In just a few days—quicker than you ever dreamt of—these wonderful health building, flesh creating tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets will start to help any thin, underweight little one.

After sickness and where rickets are suspected they are especially valuable.

Most people know that from the livers of the lowly codfish vitamines of the first class are extracted—the kind that help all feeble underweight men, women and children.

Try these wonderful tablets for 30 days and if your frail, puny child doesn't greatly benefit—get your money back.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in 7 months.

Ask McDermid & Judy, Bond's Drug Store, McDermid Drug Co., Jas. Lynch or any druggists for McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets—as easy to take as candy and 60 tablets, 60 cents.

THE QUEEN'S HOTEL, TORONTO.

Toronto residents will miss the old Queen's Hotel. Way back in 1861 the Queen's was conducted by the late Captain Dick. At his death the hotel was taken over by his son-in-law, Mr. Thomas McGaw, who eventually took into partnership Mr. Winett, and for many years the 'Old Queen's' was run in the name of McGaw and Winett. It established a record of one of the most comfortable and home-like hotels in the Dominion of Canada and its historic 'red parlor' which was the Toronto home of Sir John A. MacDonald, the Hon. Hector Langvin and the old leaders of the, at that time Tory party, found comfort under the walls of the old Queen's.

Now the Queen's is to be pulled down and a new C.P.R. Hotel is to be erected twenty-eight stories high. The furniture will be sold by public auction on September 20th, 1927 and the three following days. Many bargains will be found here, as the furniture is of the very best manufacture of Jacques and Hays, the sale is being conducted by the well known Jenkins Galleries of Toronto, purchasers may be assured of a good square deal in every buy they can make.

PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION

FAIR WEEK - SEPTEMBER 12th to 17th

To the Citizens of Peterborough,—

The Mayor and Council of the City of Peterborough, the President and Directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition wish to see this year's Exhibition the greatest in its history. The Board has planned everything required in connection with the grounds in such a manner as to present to exhibitors, patrons, and artists appearing the finest small Fair Grounds in the Province.

The entry list, which closed on Saturday, is the heaviest the Secretary has had to handle.

The quality of exhibits is expected to be higher than at any previous Fair and the competition keener.

Many new features have been added.

The Midway is a most stupendous affair, bigger than ever before.

The Grandstand attractions are the best that could be secured, varied, clean and entertaining. In fact this is a guaranteed Exhibition for this year, and the Board of Directors are standing right behond their statements when they say it is the best Exhibition that has ever been promoted between Toronto and Ottawa.

TO-NIGHT

There will be a free Band Concert by Cervonne's Band, assisted by Miss Edna Joyce vocalist, on the Band Stand just inside the George Street Entrance.

There will be no charge to-night and the public is cordially invited to attend.

All day to-morrow up to 5 o'clock there will be no charge, but to-morrow night the whole Fair will be open, all the exhibits set, every artist will perform, the Midway in full swing, and both the regular admission and Grandstand prices will prevail.

SCHEDULE OF ADMISSION PRICES TO DO WE TALK TOO MUCH?

Canadians are accused by one of the delegation of British newspaper men who have been visiting the Dominion of talking too much about the wonderful resources of this country and of boring visitors with masses of figures proving the material greatness of Canada.

If the critic from overseas was referring to public speeches his charge is perhaps justified.

Our public speakers, we must admit, have a tendency to talk too long; it is the exception to find one who can condense his ideas into a short and effective address.

But if he meant that Canadians as a whole do too much talking about their country, it is necessary to take issue with him.

We were always under the impression that our people were inclined to talk too little about the advantages offered by their home land, that they were indeed blind to the wonderful resources of this favoured country and unconscious of the very happy state in which they lived as compared to citizens of many other countries.

If, however, we are at last awaking to a realization of the fact that this is a land of milk and honey and have started to tell the world about it, so much the better.

VIVE LA FRANCE-

Even those who do not take a very deep interest in lawn tennis are able to get a certain thrill over the victory of the French team in the Davis Cup finals.

The United States had maintained such a firm grip upon the cup over so long a period that it is almost with a sense of relief that Canadians at least have learned that the monotonous reign of the American players has at last come to an end.

The French stars have had a long and uphill fight to wrest the world's championship away from the renowned Tilden and his comrades.

Each year has seen their play improve until finally they have swept through to triumph—and the sporting world applauds them as much for their determination as for their skill.

It was not as easy victory.

Breaking even on the two single matches, the French players were beaten in the doubles, and accordingly faced the task of beating both Tilden and Johnston in the last day's singles to win the cup.

That difficult task was accomplished in masterly fashion on Saturday, and thanks to Monsieur Lacoste and Monsieur Cochet, the Davis Cup for the first time in history is in the possession of France.

The victory will cause important re-actions, not only in tennis, but in the general world of sport.

BARNUM WAS RIGHT.

Although the Tunney-Dempsey fight for the world's heavyweight championship is still eleven days away, hundreds of thousands of dollars are being poured in for tickets, and already all the $40 seats have been taken.

From all parts of the Continent men are seeking tickets, and they will travel to Chicago at heavy expense to be present at what, on the face of it at least, gives little promise of supplying any spectacular features worth the time and money involved.

They are paying large sums to get a glimpse of a prize fight that at most will not last more than half an hour, and that will resemble one of the old-time fistic classics about as much as Mr. Rickard does the Prince of Wales.

Back in the days when purses were small and bouts were long there was fighting.

In Chicago next week, unless all signs fail, 150,000 spectators will be entertained to ten rounds of a boxing exhibition by Mr. Tunney, enlivened only by attempts on the part of Mr. Dempsey to slip over a "hay-maker."

The champion is not only a clever boxer, but he is wise.

He has skill, youth and speed as his allies, and he only has to use his superb defence for ten rounds to retain his title.

And because he is wise that will be his plan of campaign.

The experts say it will win for him, but it'll make the match a sorry fight.

And yet the world and his wife wants to be at the ringside.

Barnum was right.

PUNISHING THE SPEED FIEND.

In the Traffic Court on Wednesday Magistrate Browne dealt with two reckless automobile drivers in a way which will win for him the commendation of those who use motor cars as well as those who do not. One of the men, in addition to being sent to jail for fourteen days, was ordered to pay a fine of $200 or undergo a further term of imprisonment of thirty days, while the other was sentenced to a term in jail and to a fine of $25.

If Mr. Browne continues his good work his court will become—as it should—a place in which the motorist who has hitherto felt that he could defy traffic laws with impunity will have no wish to appear.

Magistrates throughout the Province could do much to make our highways safer for traffic by dealing severely with every person who sets the regulations at defiance. Prison terms should be given in every case where it is proved that the defendants have been wantonly regardless of the safety of other people. If it once became generally understood that there is a real determination to suppress speeding, and that the certain fate in store for those who offend is a term in one of the jails of the Province as well as a substantial fine, the speed fiend would be brought to his senses, and the careful driver would be able to travel abroad with a feeling of greater security than it is now his privilege to enjoy.

A triple punishment of imprisonment, fine and cancellation of license is none too severe for those who wilfully place human lives in jeopardy.—The Globe.

A NATIONAL SPIRIT.

The Hon. L. P. D. Tilley, a son of Sir Leonard Tilley, one of the fathers of Confederation, preached a good gospel in an address at the Canadian National Exhibition a day or two ago.

"There are two things that we lack in this country," Mr. Tilley said, "first, population, and second, and a vital factor, is more of the national spirit than we have today. As I look about me and see men—men like myself—growing older in years, I feel that national spirit must be inculcated in the boys and girls going to school. To the youth of Canada I send this message: Study the history of your country; love every inch of its soil; never defame, but always acclaim its merits; let no monetary call to other lands induce you to leave permanently the land of your nativity. Remember that this country of yours, of mine, is our country—the right arm of the British Empire."

The reports say that Mr. Tilley's utterance was cheered to the echo by those who had the privilege of hearing him It deserved such a reception. Canada needs more speeches of this kind. We need inspirational messages. We need words that stress the wonders of our country and urge the people to appreciate them. There is an old saying that familiarity breeds contempt. If not the latter, it certainly breeds indifference in many of us. The greatest "boosters" for Canada are those who come to us from outside. They see things here that natives have looked at without seeing, or at least without truly appreciating. It should be one of our tasks to ensure that the children who are now growing up have these things pointed out to them in a more vigorous and thorough way than has ever been done before.

National spirit is not nearly as strong as it should be in this country. We have not paid enough attention to the idea. Our efforts along this line look very small indeed in comparison with movements of this nature staged across the line. There, patriotism, pride of country, is stressed from every angle. The children get it in the schools and adults are never allowed to forget. Probably we would not care to carry the idea to the same point found in the United States, but we have certainly been backward. A great many persons, of course, are still thinking of Canada as the colony of old. They fail to appreciate the change that has occurred in recent years. They are slow to sense national developments as they take place. The last Imperial Conference placed upon official record its recognition of this change—a change that has been gradually building up for years and that was in effect even before the Conference declared it so to be.

The ceremonies staged from one end of the land to the other on Dominion Day this year gave a quickening to Canadian national spirit. They provided our people with an opportunity to study their country and to be proud of its attainments. The Confederation Day exercises were well conceived and enthusiastically carried out. The hearty way in which the idea was received by the people at large must indeed have been gratifying to those who had the arrangements in hand.

Unfortunately for the development of a national spirit, celebrations of this kind are altogether too infrequent. It would be an excellent thing if every Dominion Day were more widely used as a means for drawing the Canadian people together, centering attention on national topics, and national aspirations, and generally contributing toward the creation of that pride and devotion so necessary to the continued progress of our country.—Border Cities Star.

SCHOOL DAYS.

More than one-tenth of the population of Toronto and other cities forsook the playground yesterday morning, after a long summer holiday, and behind the solemn walls of big buildings took up the serious business of getting ready to assume the citizenship duties of full-fledged adults. They trudged off to school amid varied emotions, some of them for the first time in open-eyed wonder, and perhaps in fear, others pleased to join again with their comrades, and some undoubtedly with a genuine ambition to conquer the tough passages in the text-books, but few of them understanding the great national conspiracy which takes them out of the nursery and puts them through long, hard years of discipline and development.

Two million boys and girls go to school in Canada. They are rounded up by an inflexible system which holds a whip over father and mother, summons them to court if they object, and requires them to pay $135,000,000 a year to keep itself in operation. They must live up to rigid regulations and tread the slippery steps laid out for them. But each step takes them gradually upward and enlarges their horizon, until in the course of time their inexorable master thinks they have an ample portion of the world at their feet for all ordinary purposes. There is a certain amount of consideration in it all, however. The big buildings where their hours of confinement are spent are usually comfortable and healthful. Toronto has thought it necessary to spend over $20,000,000, so far, in providing quarters. Other cities have done proportionately well. Doctors, dentists and nurses are engaged to minister to them, but it is all part of the system which demands that the moulding of citizens be thorough.

The task which the system has assumed is a huge one, necessarily, extending over a country as large as Canada, giving the maximum of oversight to rich and poor alike, trying to put town and country on even terms, and reaching far into the sparsely settled regions of Northern Ontario and into the distant hinterlands of the Prairies. For an institution national in scope but Provincial in operation it does remarkably well. It is pretty much the same unrelenting system wherever there are boys and girls to be picked up and put through the mill.

It was not always so. The conspiracy did not work so efficiently when the grandparents of today were young. When the first census of Canada was taken, in 1871, 20 per cent. of the folks over 20 years of age could not read and write. In 1921 only 5 per cent. of those over 10 years were in this predicament. Fifty-six years ago only 681,891 persons out of a population of 3,689,000 "went to school." In 1925 the attendance totalled 2,228,869 out of a population of less than 10,000,000. Possibly when grey-haired people talk of the "good old days" they are thinking of the time when there were one-fifth as many school teachers as there are today and the truant officer had not put in an appearance, but there were few dads and granddads who did not "put their foot down" yesterday morning at the first suggestion of skipping school. They know the system has developed and tightened to make bright boys and girls into intelligent and successful men and women.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make it 45,060 in 1927.

The Directors are confident that all the jumping will not be done by Sir Clifford Sifton's horses. The attendance records are also expected to jump.

Anyway the people of North Huron must be glad it's all over and that Mr. Drury and Miss MacPhail are at liberty to go home.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., September 12 (Canadian Press). — There was an improved demand from English importers for Canadian spring wheat in the Montreal market on Saturday, and a moderate amount of business was done for September shipment.

Owing to the weakness in the Winnipeg future market for oats, the local spot prices for car lots of Canadian Western oats were reduced one cent per bushel.

The undertone to the spring wheat flour market continued easier, but prices showed no change. Sales of some fair sized lots were made to foreign buyers for future and nearby shipment. The domestic trade was quiet. There was no change in winter wheat flour, and the volume of business was small.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained under a good demand. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was firm under a moderate demand.

The demand for fresh and storage grades of eggs continued active and prices were firmly maintained. The receipts on Saturday were 872 cases.

The butter trade was moderately active, and the undertone was steady. The receipts were 2,084 packages.

The foreign and local demand for all grades of cheese continued good, and a fairly active business was transacted. Prices were unchanged. The receipts were 7,901 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Ills., Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Quick tumbling down of all grain prices Saturday followed official announcement of an unexpected big increase of the estimated yield of domestic spring wheat. Prospects of liberal receipts of wheat in the Northwest on Monday, together with a bearish forecast regarding the Canadian government crop report, were additional depressing factors.

Wheat values finished heavy, 2 5-8 to 3 to 3 1-8c. net lower, corn 2½c. to 3 1-8c. down, oats 1 to 1 3-8c. off, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

With the United States 1927 spring wheat production officially estimated at 10,000,000 bushels over the government August forecast and 100,000,000 bushels greater than the 1926 total, wheat prices to-day went downgrade from the start. Final quotations were but little above the day's bottom level. Throughout the day, bears gave emphasis to the fact that the domestic visible supply is nearly 60,000,000 bushels, about equal to last year's figures.

Assertions that the Canadian wheat crop is now virtually beyond danger from frost were current, and it was report that the weather in Canada to-day showed improvement. Meanwhile the Canadian Grower's Pool was credited with selling wheat here and acording to some advices from Winnipeg, it is expected that the Canadian government report will show 50,000,000 bushels heavier yield than was looked for Aug. 1.

Corn and oats went lower both through symapthy with wheat and because of favorable weather over the corn belt. The weekly weather forecast, too, appeared favorable for the maturing of new corn.

Weakness of grain and of cotton led to scattered selling of the provision market.

THE LAKEFIELD ROAD

Lakefield

To the Editor, The Examiner,
Peterborough.

The saying "What everyone says must be true," is surely exemplified when motoring over the road from Peterborough to Lakefield. What is said by everyone is, that it is the worst road leading to the Muskoka or Kawartha Lakes. This is a county road and from the outlay on county roads it should be first class. A motorist coming to the Lakes here from the State of Vermont told the writer that he had made good time till he struck the road leading from Peterborough to Lakefield and that it was the only bad road he had found. Why is this, and who is responsible, and are we getting value for the money spent on this road? I was over the road with a friend yesterday and we agreed that it was a disgrace to the county. Yours, etc.

TRAFFICE REGULATIONS

The Editor.

Dear Sir: The parking of cars on George Street is quite a problem and no doubt the Council will find a solution if enough time is given to allow comparisons to be made. I would like to draw attention to the parking of cars on the south end of George Street. As a safety measure it would be better to prohibit parking of cars on this section during Exhibition Week. You will remember the only accident we had in Peterborough during the recent celebration of Confederation was on George Street South. Traffic conditions are so bad, particularly at nights with glaring lights, that sooner or later a fatality will take place here. I think every safety measure should be adopted to prevent accidents. Now for some reason someone has tried to discourage parking of cars on the south side of Lansdowne Street. This to my mind is a great mistake. Cars could be parked along here and yet be kept far enough away from the Exhibition fence to form a sidewalk to allow people to reach their cars safely. This is particularly true of that portion of Lansdowne Street between the George Street entrance and Park Street, there not being much traffic and the street is very wide. Between George Street entrance and Lock Street this portion could be best used for taxi-cabs and busses taking on passengers. There are a great number of local people who cannot get down to the Exhibition long enough to say or warrant taking their cars inside. There is absolutely no logical reason why cars cannot be parked on the south side of Lansdowne Street. Traffic conditions warrant and it would give the police and fire department a clear and easy entrance in case of emergency.

A Brilliant Career made possible by a Father's Wisdom

TOM EVANS is the most brilliant student in his class. His college career almost completed, he will soon be a practicing physician. Everyone predicts a successful—even famous career for him.

And yet, had it not been for his father's foresight years ago Tom Evans, endowed though he is with natural ability, would today be one of the vast majority of young men who are starting out in Life handicapped by lack of education and training.

When Tom was a wee baby his father made certain, through a North American Life Educational Insurance Policy, that his boy would have a University education.

By this satisfying insurance plan, Mr. Evans made absolute provision that, even if he died, the funds for his son's college course would be available when the time came. His plans have worked out perfectly. He has had no burden of extra expense during Tom's University Training.

What do you plan for your son? Will he be a doctor, a lawyer, an engineer or a business man? A College education will be a vital factor in his success. Let us send you our booklet "One in Fifty" and accompanying chart showing the costs of education at the various Colleges and Universities in Canada.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

When Cherry, free forever from Chris Wiley, walked out of the courtroom with her lawyer, Stephen Churchill she asked rather nervously what his bill for legal services in connection with the divorce would be.

"You said it would be two hundred dollars, because Chris was contesting the case, and you would have to represent me in his counter suit if it came to trial," she reminded him. "I've been saving toward it—"

"My charges are—exactly this," and Churchill formed a large circle by joining his forefinger and thumb. "The divorce is a present to you from Judge Grimshaw and myself, Cherry. I'm glad it was made easy for you. Put your savings in the bank for Hope."

And so it was a jubilant, light-hearted Cherry who rushed home to her sister and her child. She found them together in her own room, Faith bending over the crib, holding the warm, filled bottle of milk so that Hope's little hungry mouth could draw upon it contentedly.

"I'm free, Faith, I'm free!" Cherry chanted rapturously, as she flung her arms about her sister. "Oh, Muvvie's sorry!" she crooned contritely, as the baby wailed a shrill protest at the sharp jogging of the bottle. "Hope, my daughter," she cried softly, bending over the crib and touching the delicate, rosy little cheeks with reverent fingers. "You're all mine now. Meet your combination mother and father —Miss Cherry Lane! Sounds funny and a little scandalous, doesn't it, Faith?" she laughed up at her sister, her eyes wet with sudden tears.

When she had finished her excited, exclamatory account, Faith sat quite still in the corner of the big couch to which Cherry had dragged her.

"Aren't you pleased, darling?" Cherry demanded impatiently. "Are you glad I'm happy for a moment? I've had such an awful, awful time,' Faith! This last year! What a year! Do you realize it's not quite a year since we first met Bob? You remember Dad brought him to dinner. We had chicken and waffles and I made it appear to Bob that I had cooked them, and your feelings were so hurt!

"Remember? And Bob and I went out together that night after dinner, and late that night, when I'd got back, Chris tried to abduct me and make me marry him then. A year, Faith! And in that year I've been engaged to four men, tried to elope with that awful Albert Ettleson; have been married to one man on the day I was to marry another; have been imprisoned and tried for murder—Mother has died, and you have married the finest man in the world and I have become the mother of the darlingest, most beautiful baby in the world. And to round off the year I'm free again! I never thought the word 'divorce' could be so beautiful! But, oh Faith, now I want to be good! I have changed, haven't I? You've noticed it?" she persisted anxiously, tears making her voice tremble.

"Yes," Faith said softly, drawing a deep breath, as if to dispel the tragedies which Cherry's swift summing up of the year had recalled so vividly. "You've changed, darling. You're growing up. Bob and I were talking last night of how wonderful you are with little Hope. I believe you're going to make a good mother, Cherry. But—won't you—miss the other? You have always had so many sweethearts, and now that you're free to marry again—"

"No!" Cherry cried out vehemently. "I don't want to be married. I'm through with all that!"

But her very vehemence caused Faith to smile wisely, knowingly. Cherry would be dead before she was "through with all that."

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SAW FISH.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

There are many strange fish in the sea. Some of them are so very queer that if you meet them walking down the street you would hardly know them. I don't mean to say that you ever would see a fish from the ocean walking down the street, but some of them are so queer that you can hardly tell what they might do.

So when the Saw Fish, who is one of the very oddest of those who live in the ocean, noticed, one day, another fish swimming toward him with a big round thing on his long, slim nose, the Saw Fish grunted:

"What in the ocean kind of a fish are you?"

"I am your old friend the Sword Fish," was the answer. For the Saw Fish and the Sword Fish are cousins, in a way, except that the long nose of the Saw Fish is broad and blunt on the end, with sharp teeth, just like those of a saw, sticking out on either side. The nose of the Sword Fish is long, sharp and slender, like a soldier's sword.

"But what is that big, round thing on your nose, Cousin Sword Fish?" asked the Saw Fish.

"It is something Uncle Wiggily played at rick with, on me and the Wolf," explained the Sword Fish. "I think it is called a leg ball or a toe ball—anyhow it's stuck on my nose and I can't get it off."

The Sword Fish and the Saw Fish were waiting.

"It's a football, not a leg or toeball!" chuckled the Saw Fish. "Perched up on top of the waves I have often looked toward shore and seen men and boys playing a game with footballs like the one on your nose."

"Well, Uncle Wiggily played a game on me all right!" growled the Sword Fish. "I stuck my nose right through this ball and it burst with a bang and scared me and the Wolf and now I can't get it off," and he related what happened as I told you in yesterday's story.

"Well, I'll saw that ball off your nose," offered the other fish.

"And then I wish you would help me catch that rabbit," begged the Sword Fish, speaking in a muffled voice for he could not open his mouth very wide on account of the football on his nose.

"I'll do that," promised the Saw Fish. "But I can't go ashore and play football, you know."

"I don't expect that," answered the Sword Fish, holding himself still in the water while his cousin rubbed his long snout, with the saw teeth, up and down on the football, at last cutting it free. "But this afternoon Uncle Wiggily is going sailing in a washtub boat with some of his little rabbits. Will you help me catch him then? He'll be out a long way from shore," said the Sword Fish.

"I'll help you," promised the Saw Fish. The Sword Fish told how, as he was swimming away with the football on his nose, he had heard Uncle Wiggily tell Jumper and Bumper, his little boy rabbits, that he would take them for a ride in the washtub boat. That's how the Sword Fish knew about it.

Some time later, when the Saw Fish and the Sword Fish were waiting in the ocean, a little way out from shore, Uncle Wiggily hopped down to the beach with Jumper and Bumper. In a quiet cove was floating a boat made from an old washtub. It would not leak as did the packing box boat that Uncle Wiggily's children used when they first came to the shore.

"All aboard!" cried the rabbit gentleman as he got into the tum with Jumper and Bumper. "All aboard. We'll go sailing!"

"You will not sail far!" snarled the Sword Fish to himself. "My cousin will soon saw a hole in the bottom of your boat, it will fill with water and sink. You will be washed out and then we'll get you!"

Not knowing what a dreadful adventure awaited him, Uncle Wiggily helped his little boys paddle out in the cove, which was very calm and still. But all of a sudden the Saw Fish, swimming under water, came up under the washtub and, moving his toothed snout back and forth, soon sawed a hole in the bottom of the boat. In rushed the water.

"Oh, Daddy, we are leaking!" cried Jumper.

"We are going to sink!" shouted Bumper.

"Dear me, it seems so! What an adventure!" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"Ha! Ha! Now it is my turn to laugh!" chuckled the Sword Fish. "You will soon be floundering in the water and I'll get you!"

"Why don't you poke a hole in the tub with your nose?" asked the Saw Fish of his cousin as they waited in the water, flipping their tails and fins, anxious for the time when the rabbits would be washed out of the tub.

"Oh, I'm afraid if I ram my nose into the tub it will stick fast as it did in the football," said the Sword Fish. "We'll get them soon enough as it is."

"Help! Help!" shouted Uncle Wiggily, looking at the land now far off. "We are sinking!" And indeed they were.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Mechanical wooden dogs form umbrella handles for the woman who is still a child at heart. Press a button at the top of the umbrella handle above and Fido sticks out his tongue and rolls his eyes. The fox terrier below may be easily persuaded to open his mouth, but he never barks. The elephant's head is made of sharkskin with real ivory tusks and the duck's head is covered with lizard skin with an ivory bill.

A year ago the prediction was made that longer umbrellas were coming back into fashion—umbrellas with long tapering ferrules and long handles. A few of these umbrellas were to be seen, it is true—but it was soon quite obvious that at least for the time being women preferred the chubby, short umbrellas to which they had become accustomed.

Once many women felt that there was something rather old maidish and super cautious about the woman who carried an umbrella save, of course, when it was actually raining. That was before we had the amusing little umbrellas that we have today.

Mechanical wooden dogs' heads are among the most interesting of the new umbrella handles. Press a button at the back of one of these carved wooden heads and the doggy sticks out his tongue and rolls his eyes—or he may simply open his mouth in a mute but friendly bow-wow.

There are other animals represented among the new umbrella handles—elephants, or ducks if you like.

And this all goes to show that the umbrella has become much more personal than it was ten or fifteen years ago. Then with most women an umbrella was a sort of piece of furniture. We kept a number of them in the umbrella rack, and carried one with regret when it was actually raining. If an umbrella was lent one hardly expected to get the same one back in return. It was quite enough if any was returned.

Umbrellas, scarfs, gloves, new ribbon belts with buckles, shoulder and buttonhole flowers, necklaces, bracelets and handbags—dozens of accessories that you will feel you must own if you visit the shops these days. And you would like to double your dress allowance just to buy all these little essential non-essentials.

ABOUT HEEL PROTECTORS

By Hedda Hoyt.

(United Press Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 12 (United Press).—Women who drive automobiles will be interested in the new 'heel protectors' for drivers. The woman driver finds that the high heels of her shoes become scuffed when she drives and for this reason a leather heel protector has been designed and is now on the market.

These heel protectors are merely little heel-shaped pieces of leather with anklet attachments. The leather protector fits snugly over the shoe heel being held firmly by a heel strap as well as by an ankle strap. Models are shown in both brown leather and black patent. There are two kinds of ankle attachments, one being a narrow strap of leather with a tiny buckle clasp and the other being a metal slip-on anklet similar to those formerly worn by men bicyclists.

Some women drivers wear mudguards which were worn upon the streets this Spring as a protection for the shoe and hosiery. These are made of rubberized cloth and look like half of a galoshe since they appear at the back of the foot only. They are not as satisfactory for driving purposes as are the regular leather heel protectors designed for driving.

Two-Toned Stockings—

It seems that much emphasis is being placed upon heels this season. Stockings with contrasting heels have become so universally accepted that almost every one wear them. The gunmetal stocking with black square heel is very well liked for streetwear. Parchment-toned stockings with light brown heels are also popular. For sports wear white stockings with colored heels are having quite a vogue. For instance, white stockings with black heels are often worn with the black and white sports costume. We have seen heels of pastel shade on white or nude stockings matching pastel-colored sports shoes.

Even the heel of the shoe is attracting attention these days. Many shoes have heels of contrasting leather and some have heels of contrasting color. As a rule the heel corresponds in color with the shoe piping or the vamp ornamentation. At present one sees many light tannish shoes with brown heels and piping worn with nude hosiery with square brown heels.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

MONDAY, SEPTEMB ER 12, 1927

This is a day of conflicting planetary influences, according to astrology, which finds, however, that the afternoon is more fortunate than the morning.

Adverse aspects are strong about noon when it is wise not to undertake important constructive work.

The tendency of the mind, while subject to the malefic influences is destructive in thought, the seers point out.

Judgment is not to be trusted when the stars menace as in this day's configuration.

Warning is given against impulsive speech and action, which may precipitate quarrels and misunderstandings.

While there is a good sign for those who enjoy power, wealth and influence they may be inclined to be domineering and difficult to deal with today.

Managers of political aspirants and promoters of business projects may find those whose interests they serve contrary and illogical.

This rule is most unfavorable to domestic happiness, making for quarrels and even divorces.

Women are well directed in the afternoon when they should use all their best energies in business affairs.

This is read as a lucky wedding day, if the ceremony is performed in the evening.

There is a promising sign for theatres which should profit by this day's advertising.

Newspapers and magazines should be used for publicity while this rule prevails.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of big experiences. Success is forecast.

Children born on this day probably will attain fame. Both boys and girls may rise to heights in public careers.

Don't Believe

Your teeth are naturally "off color"

You can give them dazzling whiteness and firm your gums by removing the dingy FILM that clouds them this NEW way

HERE is a simple test that proves the truth of the recent dental statement that dull, "off-color" teeth can be lightened amazingly, even given dazzling whiteness.

By right daily care you can work a great change in the color of your teeth. Can give them clear and charming gleam.

There is a new way in tooth and gum care. A way that removes the dingy film that clouds your teeth. A film that absorbs discolorations and keeps teeth dingy looking.

Just run your tongue across your teeth. And you will feel that film. It is the great enemy of pretty teeth and healthy gums.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It forms a breeding place for germs. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack, your teeth open to decay. Those germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Old-time methods failed in successfully fighting film. So ugly teeth were common. You must remove it. Ordinary brushing won't do it satisfactorily. Under it are the clear, whiter teeth you envy in others.

Now modern science has perfected an effective film combatant, called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film, then removes it. It firms and protects gums; beautifies teeth quickly and correctly.

MRS. BERG CLOSES REVIVAL MEETINGS

Evangelist Ends Two Weeks' Stay at Bethany Tabernacle.

Mrs. Virginia Brandt Berg closed her two weeks of special meetings in Bethany Tabernacle last evening with one of the best crowds that has attended Bethany in recent years. The building was filled. Many chairs were brought from the Sunday school room to seat the continuous stream of people that poured in, until there was no more room.

Mrs. Berg's closing message was taken from 1 Cor. 1:18, and she spoke eloquently and touchingly upon the "Cross of Christ." Mrs. Berg said that no one has yet discovered the thing, either achievements, pleasure or wealth that satisfied the heart of man as the Cross of Christ. This only will bring what the human heart longs for.

Mrs. Berg used a southern negro custom in receiving her love offering last evening. A receptacle was placed on the altar rail and those who would come up to the front and deposited their love gift and Mrs. Berg greeted and thanked them from behind the altar. It was a time of gladness and many gave cheerfully to Mrs. Berg.

Mrs. Berg spoke heartily about the kindness shown her while in Peterborough and expressed the appreciation of the party at the opening of the service.

One touching feature of the service last night was when the four young people stood up, who are leaving this week for training schools for preparation for Christian service, Miss Gladys Asling, Miss Grace Armson and Mr. James Milroy for the Canadian Bible Institute, Toronto, and Mr. F. W. Haas, Mrs. Berg's manager, who leaves the party in Toronto to-day and goes to Missionary Training Institute in Nyack, New York. Mr. Clarence Boorman, another young man from Bethany Tabernacle, left for New York on Saturday.

Mrs. Berg left last night by motor for Toronto, where she meets her husband, Rev. H. E. Berg. They will speak in large Churchill Tabernacle in Buffalo to-night and in Detroit Tuesday and Wednesday evening; then proceed to Indianapolis, Indiana, where Mrs. Berg will hold a three weeks campaign in the large Cadle Tabernacle, which seats nine thousand.

Rev. R. K. Mills, pastor of Bethany Tabernacle, announced last evening that the meetings will continue this week. Special speakers will be present, and the blessing of the past two weeks will continue.

NEWCASTLE UNITED VICTOR SATURDAY

Only Three Clubs Now Retain Record as Undefeated Teams.

LONDON, Sept. 12 (Canadian Press Cable).—The number of undefeated teams in the First Division of the English soccer league was whittled down to three on Saturday when, of the twenty-two that comprise the first string, only Sunderland, Newcastle United and Cardiff City remained with their record intact so far as losses are concerned. At the same time, the Wearsiders, thanks to their timely victory over Liverpool were precipitated into first place in the league standings. All the goals were scored in the opening half, with Hargraves and Halliday register for the victors. Hodgson shot in a thrilling goal for Liverpool to reduce Sunderland's margin, and in the second half play on both sides was fast and keen. However, each eleven held the other countless and the Wearsiders held their lead to the end.

One of Saturday's most amazing results was the victory of the League Champions, Newcastle United, at Old Trafford Park, where they avalanced the home team. Manchester had rather the better of the first half, but just before the interval Newcastle registered twice through Symour and Macdonald. Spence reduced the lead almost immediately on the resumption, but thereafter Manchester United were never in the picture. Newcastle's forwards took complete command of the play and in rapid succession Gallagher, Irwin, Harris, Symour and Moore all scored.

Everton came from behind on their own ground Saturday to take the points from Birmingham with a final score of five goals to two. The Midlanders were leading by two goals to one at the interval, but in seven minutes in the second half Everton had shot home all their counters and emerged victorious. Much the same story is to be recorded at Upton Park where West Ham, one goal in arrears to Portsmouth at half time, found themselves at the end of the game enjoying a four to two win. Watson and Haines were the star men for the losers, while Earle, Laughlin (twice), and Ruffell tallied for West Ham.

The hat-trick was performed Saturday at Bramall Lane, when Johnson of Sheffield United sent three goals home in rapid succession. An almost dulication of the feat by his team-mate, Tunstall, did not quite materialize, although Tunstall secured another two. The response of Burnley was a couple of counters obtained by Freeman and Beel.

Huddersfield Town, former invincible champions of the First Division, were able to secure only, one point Saturday at White Hart Lane in spite of the fact that they were leading Tottenham Hotspur by one goal at half-time. Three goals were scored in the second period, two of them going to the home team. The point thus gathered in the indecisive encounter was the first for the Yorkshiremen this season. Two losses went into the loss column for the first time since the season opened, Leicester City dropping their game to Derby County—and thus making up Derby's first win.

OYSTER IS BACK ON BILL OF FARE

Letter "R" in Month Signifies Return to Succulence.

MERELY COINCIDENCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—To-day the "R" comes back to the calendar, and of course, the oyster returns to the table. This is only a coincidence, for it so happens that the "R" is in the calendar just when the oyster is fattest and at its succulent best. The oyster is neither succulent nor fat during the Summer months, but it is not because the "R" is left out of the names of the months. It is because from last May up to the present time the oyster has been engaged in raising a family.

Lots of people will breathe a sigh of relief this week, give three cheers, and order oysters with a clear conscience. They could have ordered oysters with a conscience just as clear any time this Summer, but this would not have obtained any oysters for them. Still if it had they could have eaten the oysters without ill-effects, and also without any enjoyment. An oyster can be eaten safely in the Summer time, if one cares for that kind of oyster, but as far as tastiness is concerned one might just as well eat a piece of wet blotting paper.

Beginning in the Spring the oyster prepares for its spawning period; in the Summer it emits its spawn, and after it has emitted the spawn it remains skinny and scrawny until it has a few dashes of cold water to fatten it up. About the first of September it has regained its erstwhile plumpness and is again a delicacy. It is not the danger which makes oysters poor eating in the Summer, it is only that oysters at that period of the year are not worth the bother of chewing them.

Oyster production is the largest single fishing industry in the value of its raw product. The annual production amounts to about 73,000 tons of oyster meats, that is removed from the shell and ready to eat. In food value this equivalent to 254,000 dressed steers. The value of the product in its raw state is about $14,000,000 annually. Some 67,000 persons are engaged in the industry.

Moreover, unlike clamming, the oyster industry is a very well organized one, for more than half the oysters marketed are grown on beds by professional oyster growers. One of the largest companies in the country, which grows most of its oysters in Rhode Island, Connecticut and Massachusestss, has an invested capital of about $3,000,000, and about 17,000 acres of oyster beds.

The present production in the industry is only about 40 per cent of what it was in 1911-12, because of the poisoning by manufacturing waste drained into the rivers, which kills the spawn and finally finishes any bed of oysters affected by it.

A fact not generally known to the public is that the oyster is considerable of a traveller. A great many oysters, the aristocrats of the banquet table, are born in New York waters, raised in Connecticut and matured in Massachusetts, where they are prepared to tickle the palate of any epicure.

An English scientist has built a rocket which he declares will propell itself the distance from New York to London.

MAY NAME CITY AFTER PREMIER

Kemal Suggested as Being Suitable New Name For Constantinople.

MANY PRECEDENTS.

By C. P. WILLIAMSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Sept. 12 (United Press). Turkey's proposal to change the name of the ancient capital of Constantinople to Kemal in honor of Turkey's President-Dictator, Mustapha Kemal Pasha, recalls the other changes of names since the war and the personality of the Turkish leader it is proposed to honor.

The vogue of changing place names has been a development of the post-war era. Russia led off by twice changing the name of St. Petersburg, which became first Petrograd and later Leningrad, the latter in honor of the Soviet prophet, Lenin.

Norway abandoned her ancient capital's less ancient name of Christiania for Oslo.

Virtually every prominent capital in Europe has some street or avenue named for President Wilson or it has some street named with a connection with a happening during or after the war.

Perhaps no name so far adopted in Europe for a city will revive the same recollections of romance as that of Constantinople should its name be changed to Kemal.

Kemal Pasha has always had a flair for the romantic as well as the dramatic. His military coups, his overthrow of the old regime, his progressive program of reform, resulting in a fierce new Turkish nationalism, are almost as dramatic as his two great love affairs which have been equally as remarkable as those of the old troubadors of Provence.

The announcement of the honor which the Turkish people propose to bestow upon the rug-maker who fought his way to the position of commander-in-chief of the Turkish armies came soon after his marriage to a beautiful girl of 17.

Two years ago Kemal divorced his first wife, the woman who did much to place him where he is today and whose brilliant intellectual qualities were as well known as her beauty which earned her the title of the "Rose of Smyrna."

She had been the daughter of a modernist Smyrna merchant and escaped the paralysing effects of the normal Turkish lady's life by an education in both France and England. When she returned to Smyrna her father was a prisoner and he was not released until Kemal rode into the city at the head of the Turkish army. She offered the hospitality of her father's house to the deliverer of the city. Kemal was completely captivated by her charms. They were married in a way that scandalized the old Turks. The bride rode home in riding-breeches and without the traditional veil. The reason for the divorce was never made public.

Kemal's meeting with his second wife is the story of the king and the beggar maid, for he met the beautiful child while passing through the small town of Brusa some miles from Constantinople. The Dictator carried both the child and her father off to Constantinople. He found a position for the out-of-work peasant father and placed the girl in a good school.

Their marriage was only made public recently.

FAIR BOARD NIGHTS

(With Apologies to Shahrazad)

CUPID OF GHOST ISLAND

A special meeting of the Exhibition Board had adjourned and members were lingering as usual chatting about one thing and another as men do. The secretary had gone, hence there is nothing recorded or authentic to adduce, but it is understood that, when some one alluded to the story alleged to have been told recently by George Duncan, one comment and another led and probably induced the following narrative by Webber Turner:

"Four of us went down to Idyl Wyld to lock up Tom Hooper's cottage for the season. It's a little east of Harwood, on the south shore of Rice Lake. There Hooper, Chris Graham, Tom Brown, and myself.

"It was a warm, sunny autumn day, on in September. Tosti's 'good bye summer' was in the air, but there was no hurry about it. We paddled up the lake and had a shore dinner. On the way back we pulled up on Ghost Island. I think that's what they call it. I'm more at home up at Ketchecum than down there. This Ghost Island is not far from Harwood. From miles up the lake you can see that sandy shore, and it was just as good as it looked.

"Some one suggested that we go in for a swim, just a dip. It might have been Chris. You know what a cold water physical culturist he is.

"Well in we went and were splashing around, and just thinking of making a quick hop out when a bulldog came rushing down from the birch trees along the top of the bank. He was barking like a bloodhound or any hound that's out for blood, and all of a sudden the water felt just about twice as cold and believe me Rice Lake isn't exactly a turkish bath in September.

"I made a start to swim up to Bewdley or Hiawatha or any place there were no bulldogs, but I saw this one was afraid of the water or had sense enough to stay out there on the warm sand.

"There he was right down at the water's edge, snapping and growling. I never saw a sorer bulldog than that one.

"'Good thing—he isn't a newfoundian'', Hooper chattered. He always sees the bright side of things, even when he's up to his neck in ice water."

"I've remarked that about Tom myself", William Steinkrauss affirmed.

"Perhaps he just wants to play", Tom Brown suggested, 'I never can tell by the looks of a bulldog whether he's peeved or playful.'

"'You go in any say 'nice doggie'', Chris suggested.

'He looks real peevish to me", I chimed in.

"'If it was one of those toy Pekes I'd go in there and tell him to bite my toe', said. 'This settles it. No more damn dog shows at the Fair. Billy Merrill can take the brutes whereevr he likes. They're only a nuisance anyway."

"You can guess how mad Tom was. I never head him say damn in my life.

"Hooper seconded the motion, but Chris asks: 'how are going to get in there on old 'what we have we'll hold.' We can throw out the dog show later.'

"We had been in the water five minutes or so and we were chilled to the bone.

"'We got to get out', says Hooper.

"'How', Chris wants to know.

"'We could dash in together and maybe scare him,' I suggests.

"'And he might dash right at me', says Hooper.

"Well somebody's got to be the goat", I remarks.

"'Are there any eels around here', Brown asks.

"'Never saw one", says Hooper, 'there might be a few snakes.'

"'I'd just as soon be bit by a bulldog as by a rattlesnake,' Brown admits, 'and it looks as if the place between the devil and the deep lake had nothing on that shore.'

"This was a counsel of war, and we weren't getting anywhere, and the bulldog was showing no signs of weakening. In fact he was frothing. At least I though he was.

"Just then we hear 'Cupid, Cupid' up among the birches and at the same moment we see a girl up on the bank. She was dressed all in white or cream, woollen stuff perhaps, and she was tall and slender like the birches.

"Then she spies us and the canoes up on the sand and the little heaps of clothes.

"'Oh! there you are', she says. Nice voice, but a bit shrill. Society edge to it.

"'Here we are', Chris answers, 'and we've been here all winter.'

"'I didn't mean you, I meant Cupid' she says.

"'I suppose you can't see us', Hooper shouts.

"'Indeed I can. You're too funny for anything, the whole four of you', she laughed.

"Big joke; everybody laugh", I shot back at her.

"'The joke's on you, I hope you appreciate it', she drawls.

"'I guess we're in for the rest of the war', says Hooper. 'The bulldog was bad enough, but holy smokes——'

"'Listen lady', Brown says, 'a nice looking girl like you shouldn't have an ugly brute like that dog. Take him away. We'll all be laid up with pneumonia or hardening of the arteries. We're blue with the cold right now.'

"'Bulldog blues', she snapped. I didn't like her eyes.' Something funny about them, fiery.

"'Is it really cold', she asked.

"'No, we're parboiled', Chris says.

"Come in the water's fine," I told her.

"'I think I will', and she takes off her white hat.

"'Listen, lady,' Brown yelled, 'didn't you have a bath last Saturday night.'

"'Saturday morning,' she tells Tom, 'and this morning and yesterday morning.'

"'That ought to be enough for anybody', Tom says. 'It ought to do you all winter.'

"'But it looks like a lovely beach.'

"It's just too lovely for anything", I mimicked.

"'Young lady if you're coming in, I'm going out, bulldogs or not,' Tom declares.

"'Well I won't, I don't want you to break up your party.'

"Ain't that real nice", I says.

"'I've got to get out, no more foolin' about it', is Hooper's ultimatum.

"'You had no business here anyway', she warns us.

"'We're not eating the place', Hooper replied.

"'I guess you don't know who I am.'

'I don't care if you're Cleopatra", I says.

"'I'm not. I'm Mary Garden.'

"For a second I forgot the dog and my numbed legs. Something wrong here.

"'If you're Mary Garden I'm Caruso', says Chris.

"'And I'm Edward Johnson', Hooper adds.

"'And I'm Frank Pratt', says Brown.

"'Who did Pratt sing with? I never heard of him.'

"Don't stand there Mary and tell us you never heard of the great Pratt", I wails.

"'He used to sing in the Crystal Palace', Chris told her.

"'I'd like to hear him', says Mary.

"'You take that dog away and I'll see you hear Frank up at the Fair', Brown promised.

"'Wouldn't you like to hear me sing' she smiled. She was half way down the sand.

"Sure, sing the Swan Song and float away," I says.

"'Do you know that one 'Tie Your Bulldog Outside' or something like that', Hooper asks.

"'You sing Pratt's 'Asleep in the Deep' and that'll finish me', Brown wails.

"'Listen Mary', says Hooper, 'we've had enough of this. What do you think we are—'

"'You look like loons to me', she breaks in.

"'We're going out there', Tom goes on. 'We might as well be chewed to death as freeze to death, and if that dog bites me I'll sue you for $10,000.'

"'What's $10,000', she mocked.

"'Well I'll make it $30,000. That's what marathoners get anyway. Are you going or 'not?'

"'I'm going over to Harwood and get the Chief of Police to arrest you for trespass', she says.

"Get the traffic squad too", I told her.

"'You're only old mossbacks. You never heard of Mary Garden. You think it's a talcum powder, if you even knew that.'

"'We're directors of the best Fair in Ontario—' Tom Brown started, but Chris told him for heaven's sakes don't talk any more.

"Come and sing for us when we're in the Harwood jail tonight, won't you Mary", I called after her.

"'I will not. Cupid you stay right here till I get the Chief.'

"'What do you know about that', says Hooper. 'I'll never get thrawed out. She's got a boathouse over on the other side of the island and another on the main shore. She couldn't get back in an hour.'

"Chris said: 'Webber and I'll go down the shore about a hundred yards and get the dog down there and you two can go out and get dressed. And try to come to life in a hurry.'

"So that's what we did. Then I went up where they were while Chris kept the bulldog busy. We could've knocked him cuckoo with sticks, but we thought it best to let him alone. We threw sticks up the shore and darned if he didn't run after them while Chris was getting out. Probably as Tom Brown said he was only playful.

"That loosened us up a bit. So I proposed that we go to Harwood and get something to warm us up.

"'What about the police' says Brown.

"'There's no police at Harwood,' Hooper laughed, 'None that I ever saw.'

"One of the first men we met was Enoch Merriam.

"'You look kinda blue around the gills', he says.

"You don't know the half of it", I told him.

"And in a little while we learned that the tall girl in white had mental lapses and had got away from her home in Cobourg and motored up to the lake. The family own Ghost Island. I though there was something odd about her.

"'Poor Mary', was all Chris said.

"'I guess I won't say anything about the dog show,' Brown mused. 'But darn it all—,' he was still thinking of Cupid.'"

"And you say she was a fine looking girl, Webber", Steinkrauss remarked as the directors started to leave.

"To bad. A strange world isn't it. And did her people get her."

"Sure", Webber explained. "They were wealthy people. She's be all right most of the time. And always harmless, I understood."

"And what about the dog?"

"Hooper told Merriam we had left it barking over on the island, and he said he'd look after it."

"It sounds almost true, Webber", was George's Duncan's dry comment, "I guess you've got me beat, eh!"

"IT is an unpardonable crime" writes Mrs. Ethel Baillie, of Montreal, "to use any other suds than 'Lux,' for the exquisite hand-made woolies, belonging to the "Teenie Weenies;" the soft, dainty shirts, panties, jackets, bootees, etc.

"They represent, besides the expense, many hours of skilful, patient work, done by the loving hands of adoring Grannies, Mothers and Aunties. To risk spoiling these lovely, delicate little garments, by using anything but 'Lux' would be an unpardonable crime, for they cannot be replaced. Money cannot buy what love gives."

There is a lot of good common sense in this letter.

Mrs. Baillie is but one of the millions who has found by experience that when it comes to doing difficult as well as simple work — there is no substitute for Lux.

Peterborough's senior ball club captured the Lake Shore League championship and qualified to meet St. George's of Toronto in the Ontario senior semi-finals, on Saturday afternoon at Oshawa when they won their third and deciding victory of the series with Oshawa Motors, winners of the Western section. The final verdict was 10 to 7, the exciting battle going ten innings.

Despite the big score it was the kind of ball game the average fan thinks is ideal. Plenty of socks and few boots or in other words while both teams hit hard there was an abundance of fast fielding that made many of the hits go for nothing.

Al Heckman started the battle for the Petes but was suffering from a stiff arm that got worse as the game went along and he finally had to give up at the end of the fifth when the Petes were leading 6 to 4. He was hit hard during the five innings he worked but hung on grimly and was given fine support by his teammates. However, the lame flipper was too much for him and Jeff Hardill went to the firing line in the sixth. Remembering Hardill's last performance against them his advent was greeted with howls of joy from the Oshawa dugout, but the big youngster soon stopped the demonstration by steaming the ball past the Oshawa batters so fast that for the next three innings they went without a hit.

Meanwhile the Petes picked up another run in the eighth and when Motors went to bat in the ninth three runs down and Hardill going great guns it looked as if the series was all over.

But it wasn't—not just then.

Williams broke through Hardill's service for the first hit off the relief pitcher, a clean double to left and Matthews ripped a single down short that Holyman did well to knock down. Manager Benson pulled Kellar out and sent Delaney, a left-handed batter, to hit for him, and Delaney promptly struck out and the Petes breathed easier. Then along came no less a personage than Duke Dainty to spill the beans. Mr. Dainty is a right field hitter; he drives one into left field about once a season and he picked on this occasion to do the trick. He pushed a short fly into left and caught Jimmy Hall over toward centre and unable to get over to make the catch—and two runs crossed the plate.

Then the Duke surprised everybody by stealing third and a moment later when one of Hardill's drops twisted out of Swanston's mit, the Oshawa veteran carried the tieing run over.

Won in the Tenth.

So the Petes had to go out in the tenth and win the ball game all over again. Jack Hall started them nicely with a clean single but Rose and Johnston popped out and the rally threatened to die there until Matthews passed Swanston, putting the issue up to Hardill. The Petes' pitcher hoisted a high one back of third that nobody but Benson could reach and the Oshawa shortstop stumbled as he was getting under the ball and everybody was safe. Hall going in. And then Ash put the game on ice by crashing a single over second to send two more runs across.

Even then it was not all over for Whitely and Hank Morrison started Oshawa's half with singles but Batten, who had replaced Holyman at short when the latter retired with a twisted side, made two fast plays, the second starting a double killing and the series terminated therewith.

Matthews, Oshawa's big right-hander, was Manager Benson's pitching selection. He was in difficulty in practically every inning, the Petes hanging up a total of nineteen hits, but he was left in until the finish.

Both teams fielded splendidly, with the Petes' infield going like a well-oiled machine. They reeled off four fast double plays during the battle, with Rose in the stellar role by virtue of handling eleven chances without a skip. He started one double killing himself and was the pivot for two other inaugurated by Holyman and Batten while Fred Ash, who played first after Harrison's retirement from the game at the end of the Petes' third, made a twin execution single handed.

The Petes did not monopolize all the honors, however, for Hank Morrison made a beautiful catch and a gorgeous throw for a double play, Kellar the first baseman speared a fast drive for an unassisted double killing and May, the young third baseman, made a lightning fast play on a bunt.

Rose with four hits and Swanston with three were the ring leaders in the attack on Matthews while Whitely, the Oshawa catcher, and Dainty each had three safe blows. Matthews was the home run hero, smashing out a long circuit clout in the fourth to send two runs in.

This is the first senior championship won by the Petes since 1920 when they captured the Central Ontario League honors and were beaten in the finals of the Ontario Senior Series by the Hamilton Plowites, the series going three games. Of the 1920 champions Max Swanston, Hap Harrison, Ray Rose and Tommy Holyman are members of this year's team.

The Game By Innings.

Neither team scored in the first. For the Petes, Rose rolled to Penu, Johnston fanned and Swanston was tossed out by Benson on a roller deflected by Matthews.

May was thrown out by Rose. Benson singled to right but Fair cracked one to Holyman, who tossed Benson out at second and Rose's throw to Harrison beat Fair for a neat double play.

The Petes were away in the second. Heckman singled through short and was forced at second by Ash. Harrison singled to right. Jim Hall fanned, Holyman singled, scoring Ash, and when Williams' throw hopped over Whitely's head Harrison also scored, and Holyman reached third. Jack Hall rolled to Penu.

The Motors crew evened it up. Whitely doubled to left centre. Penu was thrown out by Johnston and Williams grounded to Harrison. Matthews, however, tied the score with a long home run to deep left, sending Whitely in ahead of him. Kellar singled past third but tried to stretch it into a double and was cut down by Jimmy Hall's accurate throw.

The Petes went in front again in the third. Rose opened the inning with a single to right but was forced at second by Johnston. Swanston cut a single through short and Heckman drew a pass, filling the bases. Ash struck out but Harrison came to the rescue by crashing a single over second, scoring Johnston and Swanston. Heckman was out at the plate trying to score from second on the play.

Harrison retired from the game at this stage, Ash coming in to first base and Batten going to right field. Dainty singled over second by May popped to Johnston and Benson lined one at Ash who made a neat catch and doubled Dainty off first.

In the fourth Holyman flied to Dainty. Jack Hall, however, singled to right centre and Rose crossed Motors up by beating out a neat bunt. Johnston hoisted one to Benson. Swanston singled to score Hall but was forced at second on Heckman's smash to Benson.

Oshawa closed the gap. After Fair had been tossed out by Rose, Whitely singled to right and H. Morrison, who had replaced Penu at second for Motors, came through with a long triple to left centre scoring Whitely. Benson ran for Morrison and scored when Williams dropped a single back of second. Heckman then fanned Matthews and Kellar to wind up the inning.

Ash, first up in the fifth, got a life when Benson's throw pulled Kellar off first. Batten rolled to H. Morrison, forcing Ash at second. Morrison then made a great catch of Jimmy Hall's drive to second and doubled Batten off first.

Dainty led off for Oshawa with a single over second. May popped to Rose. Ash fumbled Benson's bounder but Fair was tossed out by Rose and Ash grabbed Whitely's fly to short right.

Holyman opened the sixth with a single to left, stole second and moved over to third on Jack Hall's sacrifice on which May made a fast play. Rose cracked his third hit, a single to right to send the run in. Johnston's steaming liner over first was grabbed by Kellar who stepped on first in time to double up Rose.

Hardill went to the hill top for the Petes and struck out H. Morrison, tossed out Williams and after Matthews had been passed whiffed Kellar.

Swanston singled to give the Petes a good start in the seventh but was forced at second by Hardill. Ash sacrificed but Batten was tossed out by Morrison.

Dainty, first up for Motors, drew a pass, but May rolled a fast one to Rose who tossed to Holyman for a force out at second and Holyman completed the double killing with a quick throw to Ash. Benson struck out.

The Petes increased their lead to 7-4 in the eighth. Jim Hall opened with a single to centre but was forced at second on Holyman's bunt to Matthews. Jack Hall struck out but Holyman stole second on the third one and scored when Rose drove out his fourth hit in succession, a single to right. Rose stole second but Johnston rolled to Benson.

Oshawa died in order. Fair struck out, Holyman threw out Whitely and Morrison missed three.

The Swanston gang filled the bases without scoring in the ninth. Swanston rolled to H. Morrison. Hardill walked. Ash was thrown out by Benson but Batten singled to left and Jimmy Hall was passed. Holyman rolled to Matthews.

Then came the excitement. Williams, first up for Oshawa, doubled to left. Matthews singled to short and stole second. Delaney batted for Kellar and fanned but Dainty put his team back in the hunt with a double to left field, scoring Williams and Matthews. May flied to Jimmy Hall. Then Dainty caught the Petes napping by stealing third to bring home the tieing run on a passed ball. Benson singled to left and stole second but Fair lifted one to Jimmy Hall.

The Petes came right back in the tenth. Jack Hall singled to left centre but Rose and Johnston both popped up. Swanston walked and Hardill dropped a double back of third base which Benson might have got if he hadn't slipped as he was getting under the ball. That scored Hall with the winning run but Ash made it sure by singling past second to score Swanston and Hardill. Ash was out when Matthews took the throw-in and got the batter between first and second.

Batten replaced Holyman at short for the Petes, Holyman retiring with a strained side. Oshawa got away to a good start when Whitely singled to right and H. Morrison followed with a single to left. Williams, however rolled to Batten, forcing W. Morrison at second. Matthews also crashed a hot one at Batten, who tossed to Rose forcing Williams and Rose completed the Petes' fourth double play and wound up the game with a fast shot to Ash who made a fine play on a somewhat wide throw.

BISONS WIN FROM LEAFS

Make Magnificent Fielding Exhibition Against Defensive Display of Losers.

STRENGTHEN LEAD

NEW YORK, Sept. 12. — (Canadian Press.)—The Bisons reduced the chances of losing the International League flag to the remotest mathematical possibility at Buffalo yesterday by vanquishing the Toronto Maple Leafs 11-6, while the Syracuse Stars were dropping two games to the Rochester Colts. Buffalo now needs to win but a single game out of eight to nail the pennant. A magnificent fielding exhibition on the part of the Clymer men against an atrocious defensive display by the Leafs told the tale of yesterday's victory. Hollingsworth rescued Leo Mangum after the Leafs had acquired six runs in four and a fraction innings and held the Canadians to three hits for the remainder of the fray. Tyson, Hubert and Bisonette, with three timely hits apiece led the Bisonic slugging attack, while Huber was also the individual luminary on the defensive.

Rochester defeated the Stars at Syracuse, 6 to 1 and 1 to 0. Mills and Bogart, recruit pitchers, stymied the Stars all the way, each yielding only four hits. Mills fanned eight in the first game.

Russ Miller Sold.

President Giles of the Stars announced that Pitcher Russ Miller had been sold to Philadelphia National League Club and would report at the close of the International League season, one week hence.

Jersey City and the Orioles divided a double header at Baltimore, 12 to 6 and 7 to 4. After trailing the Birds for several innings the Jersey men cleared their batting eyes and waged an attack that netted 10 runs in the eighth inning of the opener. Every Skeeter got at least one hit and one run. Ogden bested Grody in a pitchers' duel in the nightcap.

Reading and Newark divided a double-header at Newark, the Keyes taking the first contest, a ten inning affair, 4 to 3, and the Bruins the nightcap, 3 to 1. Errors at critical times lost the first game for Mamaux, who twirled good ball In the second contest, Bentley was the master throughout. The Bears tallied all of their runs in the second inning of the nightcap by good hitting.

BROWNS WIN FINAL GAME

Avert Season's Whitewashing by Yanks by Taking 6-2 Count.

RUTH CLOUTS 50TH

NEW YORK, Sept. 12 (Canadian Press).—The St. Louis Browns averter a season's whitewashing from the Yanks yesterday by dropping the New Yorkers for a 6 to 2 count in the final game of the year between the clubs, before 35,000 fans. The Hugmen lost a chance of establishing a new major league baseball record by making a clean sweep of 22 games. However, they tied the Cubs' mark of 21 victories out of 22 against the Braves in 1909.

Babe Ruth turned in home run number 50 in the fourth inning, one of five hits yielded by Milt Gaston. That helped the Yanks make baseball history, as it gave their club a total of 141 homers, replacing the old record of 140 made by the Chicago White Stockings in 1884.

Bluege's double, followed by Haye's single, gave the Senators a 6 to 5 victory over the Chicago White Sox in the twelfth inning at Washington.

Immediately preceding Bluege's crossing the plate, the fans thought Washington had won the game and left the stands. Judge had opened the inning with a triple and scored on a fly by Stewart. Lyons, pitching for Chicago, protested and was sustained by Umpire Hildebrand, that Judge had left third before the ball had been caught.

Flaskamper took the throw from the outfield, touched third and made it two out on Washington. Bluege's hit then paved the way for the winning count.

SERIES' TOTALS SHOW PETES AS SUPERIOR TEAM

Have Outhit and Outfielded Oshawa in Four Games.

TEAM HITS .367

Harrison Heads the List With Batting Average of .700.

The records of the four-game series with Oshawa Motors, which the Petes won three games to one, winning the Lakeshore League Championship, show beyond the shadow of a doubt that the better team copped the honors. The Petes won two of their three victories by the proverbial mile, and the only game they lost was in doubt until the last ball was pitched. They outscored Oshawa by 34 runs to 18, made 55 hits as against 31 by the Motors, and defensively were much steadier, having but seven errors in the four games, while Oshawa were guilty of sixteen misplays. Seven of the Petes' regulars batted over .300 for the series; Harrison topping the big parade with seven hits out of ten times up. Starting out with a single in his last time at bat in the first game. Hap hit four in a row in the second game, then drew a pass, and after being out of the lineup in the third game played three innings Saturday and collected two hits in succession so that in his last nine times at bat he has hit eight times and been walked once. The totals for the four games are as follows:

First game.—Peterborough 6; Oshawa 0. Winning pitcher, Heckman Losing pitcher, Dainty.

Second game. — Peterborough 8; Oshawa 9. Winning pitcher, Dainty; losing pitcher, Hardill.

Third game. — Peterborough 10; Oshawa 2. Winning pitcher, Heckman; losing picher, Dainty.

CUBS GAIN ON LEAGUE LEAD

Stage Rally in Fifth to Win 7-5 Victory Over Giants.

HOMER FOR WILSON

NEW YORK, Sep. 12 (Canadian Press).—A six run rally in the fifth inning gave the Cubs a 7 to 5 victory over the Giants yesterday before the largest crowd of the season, estimated at 45,000. The crowd was banked around the outfield ,making hits into the overflow good for two bases. During the sixth inning rally a storm of straw hats showered onto the field, delaying the game until the players, ushers and park attendants gathered up the discarded summer headgear.

The victory brought the Cubs back to within two and a half games of the league-leading Pirates, who were idle yesterday. The Cubs now are but half a game behind he Giants.

Hack Wilson started the scoring in the second inning by cracking out his 26th home run of the season, a drive over the right field wall with none on base. That put him in a tie with Cy Williams of the Phillies for the National League leadership.

The Giants replied with three runs in the fifth. Terry's single and Jackson's walk produced one tally when Harper doubled into the crowd. Jackson came home on Taylor's sacrifice fly. Two more singles by Barnes and Mueller sent Harper home but the Cubs cut off further scoring with a lightning double play.

A barrage of hits, and two passes sent Barnes to the showers in the sixth, but the Cubs got two more off Henry before the rally was ended. The Giants' ninth inning rally could not produce a win.

Reds Win Double

The Reds won both ends of a double-header with Boston at Cincinnati, 8 to 4 and 16 to 5. The first game was comparatively easy for Pete Donohue, while the second was a complete walkover for Jakie May.

The shades of a once-famous team crept into the closing inning of the second game, when Dick Rudolph essayed to pitch for Boston after Hugh McQuillan was given an unmerciful pounding by the home club. The only active member left of the famous Braves of 1914 is Rabbit Maranville, now playing with St. Louis, while Rudolph acts as coach for the Bean eaters. The same old stance was there and the same old pitching motion, but the speed was woefully lacking and the curves also, although he was only scored on once.

Cincinnati hit hard in both contests, getting 12 in the first game and 18 in second. Pittenger led the hitting attack in the second game with four out of five, one of them a home run, one a double and two singles. Purdy also hit hard in both games, getting two out of four in the first and four out of five in the second.

Fred Frankhouse, former Houston hurler with a side arm delivery, won his second game in two starts for the Cardinals by defeating the Brooklyn Dodgers at St. Louis 5 to 0. The recruit pitcher allowed the Dodgers only four hits.

BUFFALO WINS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.— (Canadian Press.)— The little world's series between Buffalo, winner of the International League flag and the pennant winner of the American Association, will start Sept. 28.

President Hickey of the American Association said last night he had reached an agreement with John Conway Toole, president of the International League, to have the series open in the west, either at Milwaukee, Kansas City or Toledo, depending on which of these three teams wins the association banner.

FIRST GAME OF SENIOR SERIES ON WEDNESDAY

St. George's, Toronto Winners, Will Meet Petes at Stevenson Park.

A GREAT BATTLE

First Time Petes Have Been in Ontario Series Since 1920.

After waiting all summer for baseball the Petes are getting plenty of action in a hurry.

Yesterday word was received from Secretary Walsh of the O.B.A.A. that the Petes as the winners of the Lake Shore League, have been drawn against St. George's, winners of the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association, and that the first game of the series will be played here on Wednesday, and the second in Toronto on Saturday.

These games are in the senior semi finals, and Wednesday's fixture will give local fans the first chance to see the Petes in action in the Ontario series since 1920, when they won the Central Ontario League and clashed with Hamilton Plowites in the finals.

St. George's, winners of the Toronto Pit League, have swept through the T.A.B.A. play off without a loss, beating Classics, North Toronto and Columbias, and they are touted as a fast and clever machine, with plenty of pitching material, including Gillespie, who has won sixteen games this season without a loss. They expect an easy victory over the Petes, but Manager Swanston's crew in spite of the lack of games through out the season, are playing bang-up ball, and the whole team is full of fight and determined to take the Toronto champs. into camp in both games of the series.

Wednesday's game will be played at the James Stevenson Park at 3 o'clock, and in spite of the fact that it is being played on a week day, will certainly be the biggest crowd of the season.

ROYALS TAKE SECOND GAME OF PLAYOFFS

Defeat Ottawa Glebes 13-6 in Return Game in Juvenile Round.

HEAVY HITTING WINS

Locals Wallop Visiting Twirler's Offerings to All Corners of Stevenson Park.

All Saints' Royals hammered out fourteen hits and thirteen runs at James Stevenson Park on Saturday to tie up the round with Ottawa Glebes in the O.B.A.A. Juvenile semi-finals. They defeated the Ottawa team 13-6, making up for their 10-4 loss in the Capital City on Wednesday.

Heavier hitting won for the home team. Six of their fourteen hits were doubles, while the visitors were able to make only one of their eight hits good for an extra base. In the field, both teams started off in wobbly fashion, to tighten down later. The pitchers both had bad innings. Cripps started off weak and wild and grew better as the game progressed, while Taylor, the visitors' six-footer, was good at the start but grew worse towards the end.

The visiting hurler attracted much attention. The fans were reminded of the famous Cannonball Scott as the big fellow took his station on the mound, towering over umpires and players alike. Some of his teammates looked like pigmies beside him. His pitching, however, after the first innings, was no puzzle to the home team, which hit everything he had to offer.

The heavy hitting of Carroll and Hatton featured the game. Each of them had three hits in five trips to the plate. All Carroll's safeties were good for a pair of sacks, while Hatton reached second on two of his. Hope and Hollingsworth each had two hits, the left fielder making one of his good for two bases.

Beverage and Switzer, with three and two, were the sluggers of the Ottawa team. Purdy made their only extra base blow. Blandford had a good day at the bat. He faced the pitcher five times but was charged with only one time at bat. He hit two sacrifices, was hit once, passed once, and thrown out once by Hartley.

The visitors started the scoring, getting a run in the first on two errors, a sacrifice and a hit. The Petes went out one, two, three, as did the visitors in the second. Doubles by Hatton and Carroll, the former hitting nearly to the fence in left field, followed by an infield out and an error, put the Royals in the lead in their half.

The Glebes evened the count in the third. Taylor singled but Purdy forced him. Blandford sacrificed him to second and he stole third. Jones messed up the throw from Hatton and he reached the plate. Hatton drew the censure of Umpire Case of Ottawa because he did not get out of the runner's path quick enough after he had missed Jones' return throw, although it seemed that he had had no time to dodge.

Royals went well ahead in their half. Hope was safe on an error, stole second and went to third on the catcher's bad peg. Hollingsworth walked and stole second. Hatton sent both in with a double to right, and scored on Jones' single.

The visitors got two back in the fourth. Switzer singled. Jones threw badly to first on Taylor's grounder, allowing Switzer to reach third and Taylor second. Purdy uncorked a double to send them both home.

Royals scored one in their half. Holland singled and Cripps forced him. Hope hit to Bennett, who threw wildly, putting the runners on second and third. Beverage threw to left field, trying to catch Cripps off third and the pitcher scored.

In the sixth Switzer and Collins singled. Bennett forced Collins but Switzer scored when Hollingsworth threw to the stand in an attempt for a double play. The Petes were shut out in their half, although they made two hits.

The Glebes tied it up in the seventh. Blandford was hit, advanced on McGill's sacrifice, and scored on Beverage's single. The only visiting player to reach first in the next two innings was Blandford, who was walked in the ninth.

The Royals made a real drive in the seventh and eighth. In the seventh Hatton singled and Carroll doubled to score him. Beverage messed up the throw from the field, allowing Carroll to reach third, whence he scored on Jones' fly to centre.

In the eighth Cripps singled, Hope doubled, Hollingsworth and Hartley singled. Taylor tried to get Hollingsworth at third on Hatton's tap and everybody was safe. Carroll doubled, sending in three run. He was doubled off second when McGill made a fine catch of Jones' fly back of short, and Gordon popped to Purdy.

Umpire Case had a hard time with the fans. His signing of balls and strikes was hard to follow, leaving the fans at a loss, but the players rarely questioned his decisions. He seemed opposed to roughness, calling down Hatton for blocking a runner when he didn't have the ball, and McGill for stepping on Gordon's foot at first.

Rain twice interrupted the game for a few minutes, once in the seventh and once in the ninth inning.

total of 151, but the elusive ball missed the cup by fractions of an inch. His 152 gave him the third gross score prize.

Keenly Contested.

The championship was keenly contested under ideal weather conditions and over a course that was as velvet at its best.

The rounds of Scott and Jaques were sparkling. On the 37the hole to break the tie, the ultimate winner had a stroke advantage over the Whitlock iron-master, up to the green. Scott's drive split the fairway ,while Jaques sliced his into a depression from which the flag was not visible. Scott's second landed just off the green. It took Jaques three to get into the same position. Then after his approach, Scott missed his putt and Jaques had a chance for a half. He also missed his putt, however, and had to be content with a six, giving Scott the hole and title.

Jaques had been within a single hole of winning the championship, when one stroke of hard luck followed by one stroke of ragged golf cost him extra figures. In the afternoon round, up to the seventeenth hole he was comfortably in front when he struck a tree standing 50 yards in front of the tee, and the ball bounded off on to another fairway. Then on his second stroke Jaques wavered and it was a clean miss. He finished the hole with a seven and left the issue wide open for Scott to come through and tie him on the next hole.

Tie Unbroken.

The play-off on Saturday between Jack Young, of Royal Montreal, and Karl Keffer, Royal Ottawa, to decide the tie in the Quebec open title chase, remained unbroken when the two pros. each finished an 18-hole round in 78's. They will play another 18-hole round one day this week yet to be decided on, in a second effort to break the deadlock. The Montreal aspirant came from behind to even up the issue in Saturday's play in the fifteenth green. From there nome the two battled stroke for stroke to the finish, and it was decided to hold another play-off this week.

The team prize in the amateur competition was won by the Royal Montreal Club. Their individual scores of the winning team follow:

N. M. Scott—Morning 75, afternoon 76. Total 151.

W. M. Hodgson—Morning 80, afternoon 85. Total 165.

J. W. Yuile—Morning 85, afternoon 77. Total 162.

J. Cowans—Morning 85, afternoon 81. Total 166.

Grand total—644.

The "Hole-in-One" Club had another initiate, when H. M. B. Hughson, Royal Ottawa, sank his drive on the 150-yard 12th hole. George Black, of Granby, Queebc, had a hole in one during the open play on Friday.

Best Net Score.

J. Redpath ,of Beaconsfield, won the prize for the best net score in the amateur round after the handicap was deducted, with a total of 144. His handicap was 8 for eighteen holes, and his gross score for 36 holes was 160. G. O. Fellowes, Royal Ottawa, was second with 145. His gross was 165, handicap 10 . There were three net 146's, R. C .Smith, Beaconsfield, with gross 162, handicap 8; R. A. Lincoln, Rosemount, gross 166, handicap 10, and Joe Cameron, Rivermead, gross 162, handicap 8. In a play-off, Lincoln was the winner of the third prize.

Arthur H. Ross, Kanawaki, well-known mentor of the Boston hockey team, won the prize for the best gross score for 18 holes. His total was 75, scored in the afternoon round. Major T. W. McDowell, of Ottawa, won the prize for the best 18 holes net score. He had a net 68 in the morning round, gross 78, handicap 10.

Following are the hole-by-hole scores of the winner and runner-up. Gross scores:

N. M. Scott, Royal Montreal, amateur champion—

Morning, 436543534 out 37, 434544-545 in, 38—75.

Afternoon, 445554325 out, 37, 433655-544 in, 39—76.

Grand total—151.

Hugh Jaques, Whitlock, runner-up—

Morning, 444552434 out, 35, 4334555-45 in, 38—73.

Afternoon, 544443546 out, 38, 43354-4475 in, 39—78.

Grand total—151.

AT THE REGENT.

"THE CLIMBERS."

"The Climbers" is one of the very best vehicles given Miss Rich for the display of her verve and charm as well as her skill as equestrienne and markswoman. The scenes are laid in Old Spain at the Court of Ferdinand VII who ruled in the early part of the 19th century, and in that part of America then known as New Spain. The story has to do with the fate of the Duchess of Arrogan, separated from her young daughter, and banished from Spain, through the machinations of a heartless climber, the Countess Veya.

In America the Duchess, embittered against the world, grows harsh and domineering and gains great wealth and the hatred of the peons whom she persecutes. The man Cordova, also exiled from Spain becomes a bandit leader, and coming to the Duchess' hacienda, with the intention of taking her gold, decides he prefers to steal her heart. He leaves the leadership of his band, is wounded in protecting the beautiful Duchess, protects her daughter from the outlaws and at last brings the girl, who has wandered from Spain in the vain hope of finding her mother, to her mother's side.

"The Climbers" is good, honest melodrama, thrilling and glamorous, and filled with fair romance! It should not be missed.

WILSON CAPTURES SENIOR GOLF TITLE

Scores 41-40 in 19-Hole Competition, Concluding Four-Day Tournament.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Charles P. Wilson, of the St. Charles Golf Club, Man., captured the International individual seniors' golf title at the Royal Montreal club course Saturday, scoring a 41-40-31 in the 18-hole competition which concluded the four-day tournament of the Canadian Seniors' Golf Association.

The title holder's margin was a narrow one-stroke affair, and bunched behind him were six leading Canadian and United States' players with cards of 32, including, Hugh Halsell, United States' seniors champion, from Dallas, Texas; Dr. W. S. Adams, of Garden City, N.Y.; C. D. Cook, of Arcola, N.Y.; F. A. Parker, of Lambton, Toronto; W. G. Ross, Royal Montreal; and J. E. Caldwell, Rivermead, Ottawa.

Frederick Shape, captain of the visiting United States' golfers, was alone with an 83 while at 84 were F. R. Martin, Hamilton, Ont., Canadian seniors' champion; C. C. Holland, of Marlborough; J. A. Peck, of Apawamis, C. C. Holland of Marlborough and R. C. Mitchell of Simancy.

Other scorers were: N. W. Croft, Blind Brook, N.Y., and A. A. Hodgson, Royal Montreal, 35's; G. L. Robinson, Lambton, Toronto, and C. M. Hart, Boston, 36's; P. Q. Ross, Royal Ottawa, and W. E. Truesdell, Garden City, N.Y., 37's; A. R. Jenks, Manchester, N.H., 38; F. H. Boyt, Engineers' Club, N.Y., and W. R. C. Mussen, Royal Montreal, 39's; and Ralph Connable, Toronto, 91.

UNITED STATES DEFEATED FOR TENNIS TROPHY

France's Youthful Stars Break Through Defense of Veterans.

UPHILL FIGHT

Capture Both of Remaining Singles to Win Round 3 to 2.

GERMANTOWN CRICKET CLUB, Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—(A.P.)—The Davis Cup, most highly prized of tennis trophies, passed yesterday from the United States to France.

In a dramatic uphill fight to victory, France's youthful stars broke through the defense of veterans, captured both of the remaining singles matches Saturday and won the challenge round by the margin of 3 to 2.

Hopes of the United States had been buoyed by the sensational comeback of William T Tilden in two previous days of victorious play that put the defenders in the lead. They faded suddenly, however, when "Big Bill" "cracked" under the strain and fell before the machine-like onslaught of Rene Lacoste. They vanished entirely when Little Bill Johnston, although making a gallant as well as unexpected stand yielded to the super-stroking control of Henri Cochet in the final match.

Lacoste, scoring his second victory of the series, outstroked, out-generalled and easily outlasted Tilden. The French stylist won by scores of 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, and his victory was as decisive as these scores indicate.

Cochet faced a plucky Johnston, who showed a remarkable recovery from his disappointing form of Thursday, when the American lost in straight sets to Lacoste. But the result, even though postponed through Little Bills' gallant stand, was inevitable. Cochet won, also in four sets, by scores of 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4. Thus the two veterans who together brought the famous tennis cup back from Australia in 1920 and played the leading role in defending it ever since, passed from their long-held heights before an impetuous, indominable youth that would not be denied. With the ending of the dynasty that the two Bills set up several years ago the most successful in tennis history, France has established a new regime of control.

Play Brilliant Game.

Twenty-three years old, poker-faced, relentless accurate Rene LaCoste and 25 year old Henri Cochet, dazzling, brilliant, have accomplished for France what no other nation has been able to do since 1914. Thirteen years ago Maurice McLoughlin tried to check Australia single-handed but failed. Yesterday Tilden, having already been the principal figure in two previous triumphs, one in the singles over Cochet and the other in the doubles with Frank Hunter—also tried to settle the issue alone. But the strain was too much. At 34 Tilden had whipped himself to the peak of his game for two victories, but his system didn't have the reserve to gain a third victory against such an impenetrable defense as LaCoste put up.

LaCoste, emerging as the chief hero of the French victory through his two singles triumphs, removed whatever doubt remained of his standing as the world's foremost singles performer. Already the holder of the United States and French titles, he gave two of the greatest exhibitions of his youthful career in downing the two famous Yankee veterans.

Neither of the two deciding battles were as inspiring as the previous three contests of the challenge round. Whatever drama they boasted, beyond the fact that they settled the fate of the Davis Cup, was confined chiefly to Johnston's gallant uphill fight against heavy odds. Where Tilden's downfall was as complete as had been his mastery of stroke previously, Johnston exhibited an astonishing reversal of form.

Made Gritty Fight.

"Counted out" almost before he had started Johnston revived lingering hopes by the gritty way he fought for victory. For two sets he played France's most brilliant stroke artist to a standstill. Although losing the third quickly and slipping further behind in the fourth, Little Bill fought heroically at the finish As it turned out, all he was able to do was to prolong the issue, but for a few moments at least Johnston was again the "mighty star' of the courts as he averted defeat twice in the eighth game when only a point separated Cochet from victory.

BOY HANGS ON TO PLANE TAIL 25 MINUTES

Steadying Plane When Pilot Takes Off With Air Mail.

NOT FRIGHTENED.

Cold Hands Only Trouble, Says 17 Year Old Hackensack Boy.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., Sept. 12 (United Press).—Vincent Taylor, 17-year-old Hackensack youth, to-day was fully qualified as an aerial stunt artist. His introduction to the role came unwillingly. For 25 minutes last night Vincent rode on the tail of an airplane. L. Ponton De Arce, air mail pilot, knew nothing about it until he brought the craft down at Hadley Field after the short flight from Teterboro air port. The youth has been somewhat of a nuisance around the aviation field here because, to use his own words, he "is crazy about flying," but occasionally he is useful.

For instance, when De Arce was unable to get his six-passenger Fokker Universal into the air, he yelled to Vincent, "Swing the tail around, will you, kid?" The boy leaped forward with a grin. "Sure," he said, and he turned the plane so that it could point into the wind. He held on to the tail to steady it and soon found his feet were not touching the ground.

The plane soared up until it was 3,000 feet above the ground. Vincent held on:

"I wasn't really scared," he said, telling folks about it afterward. "It was so cold holding on that I had to take one hand off every now and then and bang it against the plane to get back the feeling. I was numb all over, but I had enough sense to keep changing hands." The youth braced his feet into a handle; the wind was too strong to enable him to straddle the fusilage.

Meantime, De Arce noticed that the plane wasn't behaving properly. He resolved to have a thorough inspection at Hadley Field. The long 25 minutes ended and De Arce made a neat landing. He left the cockpit, saw Vincent, and his jaw dropped.

"How did you get here so fast?" he demanded.

The youth told him weakly. Vincent slept in the hangar with the air mail pilots. To-day he will have a real ride in the cockpit.

So it was worth it.

THISTLE WON SOCCER GAME FROM QUAKERS

Both Elevens Failed to Show Their Usual Form of Soccer Code.

E. A. PECK TROPHY

Four Goals to Two Was the Decision of an Erratic Display.

The final issue of the E. A. Peck semi-final between the Thistle and Quakers soccer teams terminated in the former having the right to meet the Masseys in the crucial game for possession of the cup, by the score of four goals to two, in a very erratic game of the scientific code, before a good attendance of spectators, at King Edward Park, on Saturday afternoon.

Quakers won the toss and played towards the eastern goal. They were the first to be really dangerous, with Millar stepping into a well planned combination on the right wing. This was followed up by a short-time seige in which Griffin was the solo performer.

McPhate-Dawson Goal.

The Quakers left-winger rattled two shots in succession but he was tackled by his opposing half-back who punted across to the left wing, Bromley trapped the ball from mid-air and sent his wing man along the field. Play continued to be in proximity of the Quakers' goal area through McPhate by his first-time efforts and clever anti-tactics against his opponents that finally tested Curtis' saving ability. Throw-ins were prevalent, until McPhate worked his way inside, to pass across to Dawson as he run in to meet the ball with a left-footer that found the rigging, in spite of the Quakers' custodian's splendid attempt to prevent a goal.

Robb Outstanding Player.

No player was more conspicuous on the field of play than Robb, at centre-half, who took up the initiative in forcing the issue against the Thistle. Time and again, he would break up an opposing forward attack, then carry the ball into goal to repeatedly try to gain the equalizer, but Griffin saved two high-shots tehn two fast grounders from his versatile feet. The Quakers kept the play down in the "Jags" territory for a while until Bromley dribbled his way up-field with a Cameron-McPhate-Bromley triangle creating havoc to the Quakers' defence.

Dawson Scored Again.

They bunched in the corner and McPhate dribbled through three men to give Dawson the opportunity he was waiting for as he drove the ball into the net at lightning speed to make Thistle two goals ahead.

Erratic Play in Mid-field.

So far as the play had gone, there were nothing to cause any great excitement except the abundance of miskicks and poor conception of anticipation combination.

Again, good play by Foster had the Thistle defence in a quandry and flag-kicks in succession failed to be converted in which showed the lack of method around the goal. The Quaker forwards tried to walk the ball into goal instead of shooting at first chance. As time rolled on near half-time, both goals received raids that proved unproductive. Half-time—Thistle, 2; Quakers, 0.

Half Time.

The spectators had not long to wait for fireworks in the second half. Both sides had chances in the opening minutes, but slowness in front of goal was their undoing.

McKenzie Made it Three.

After hard tackling by the halves in the vicinity of the Quakers' goal, McKenzie, on the Thistle right, shot into goal and Curtis jumped up in the air to stop the ball in the corner of the upright but to his great surprise he diverted the ball into the net.

Alf. Wilson in Brilliant Form.

Throughout the whole period, the only two players that showed their usual form were the two participants in the Quakers' well-earned goal when the right-winger beat his opponents smartly and swinging the ball across into the goal, Foster headed it into the net. They came back again in full force to get the Tnistle defence upset by their change of tactics by shooting from long distance. With a little luck Carmichael might have had added to his team's total with more force behind his low grounder.

Tom McPhate's Left Foot Goal.

Turner relieved the pressure immediately to send McPhate away along the wing, with two opposing players keeping him company, he drew them close up, then slipped the ball to Cameron who left Dawson in possession, Maker tackled to divert the ball into the air, the Thistle centre man headed over to his left-winger who got the ball before it touched the ground with a left-foot drive that bulged the net.

Foster Scored From Penalty.

Again the Quakers took up the battle to compel the Thistle defence to give away a penalty-kick. Foster did the needful with a fast drive in below the cross-bar. The Quakers kept up the bombardment until the finish. Tnistle, 4; Quakers, 2.

Goal-scorers—Taistle: Dawson, 2; McPhate and McKenzie. Quakers: Foster, 2.

Quakers—Curtis goal; A. Maker and B. Curtis, backs; Downer, Robb and T. Wilson, halves; A. Wilson, Carmicoael, Horn, A. N. Otner and Foster, forwards.

Thistle—Griffin, goal; McLeod and Millar, backs; Burgess, Turner and Bromley, halves; McKenzie, Livingstone, Dawson, Cameron and McePhate forwards.

Referee—John Ware.

TAKE VICTORY FROM BRITISH

U. S. Win First Game of International Challenge Cup Series.

CO-ORDINATED PLAY

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 12 (A.P.)—The United States polo team uncovered a brand of co-ordinated play which surprised even its friends and overwhelmed the challenging British team, rods away, to a 13 to 3 victory in the first game of the international challenge cup series yesterday.

Tommy Hitchcock, leading the terrific drive of the winners, showed the way by scoring six goals. Until late in the game when he seemed to think that he could leave well enough alone and rest on his laurels, he was everywhere, driving the amazingly long shots which have made him famous, many of the smashing wallops ending their flight at or near the goal.

Close behind Hitchcock was Devereaux Milburn, veteran captain of the Americans, whose hard riding and clever work, both on defense and offense, caused Lord Cowdray of the Burlingham Club, where polo has been played since 1873, to remark:

"It's the Milburn of 16 years ago."

Malcolm Stevenson and J. Watson Webb could not keep up with their fast moving colleagues.

With two goals in the first chukker and two more in the third to one for the British, the second period being scoreless, the challengers seemed fairly stunned as the Americans ran out three in the fourth and rode away for the half intermission leading 7 to 1.

Play Wednesday.

The cup possession is decided by two victories, and if the United States wins the second game Wednesday it will not be necessary to play a third.

Captain T. I. Roark told of his amazement at the crushing defeat of his team after the game. Surrounded by a crowd begging him to autograph his photograph in the illustrated programme, he said:

"No four men will ever do that again."

Lord Cowdray declared that he was not downhearted. "The Army in India team is doing very well," he said during the game, "although the Americans are doing better." He called Tommy Hitchcock "a marvel."

Perfect Weather.

Perfect weather conditions greeted the opening of the international season. A friendly sun beamed on the shining turf, apparently smooth enough to be used as a putting green on some colossal golf course. Before play began the crowd, falling short of the expected 40,000, but still a great crowd, stood and cheered the parade of ponies, and uncovered for the flags of Great Britain and the United States.

The sun quit the game later in the afternoon and a brisk wind threatened rain, but it did not materialize.

The outcome of the contest was not left long in doubt. Hitchcock scored a goal a minute after play began, sending the ball through the posts as a penalty he did not need was called. Stevenson followed hard on his heels with another goal from a clever backhand at a difficult angle, giving the defenders two goals up.

Hitchcock opened the third with a sudden long shot that caught his opponent flat-footed, and a moment later "Critice," Milburn's little bay mare from the Argentine, rushed into the breach and saved a goal when the United States captain could not reach the ball.

"Hardware and Metal", Toronto, comments on hardware and metal marked movement as follows in a recent issue.

"Harvest weather throughout Ontario and the western provinces is ideal, and the harvesting of a heavy crop is almost assured. The Western outlook has a great deal to do with markets in general, and a bright season there reflects greatly on the situation in the East.

"Sales are improving in fall lines, and salesmen are back on the road soliciting business. Prices on stove pipes, elbows, shovels and scoops are unchanged from spring, and booked orders for these are being delivered. Linseed oil has advanced a few cents in the West. Cold rolled steel has declined 50 cents per cwt. on the Montreal market. The most startling piece of market news is the decline in range boilers, which assumes no small proportions.

"Dealers, wholesalers and manufacturers seem to be preparing for an active fall business. Buying is being done in greater volume now. Continuation of tourist traffic is looked for in the coming months, and fishing tackle, ammunition, and camping equipment should be in demand. Pocket cutlery will be found to be a good seller in the fall months. "Collections are beginning to show improvement and it is hoped this will continue.

TWO TORONTO BOYS ARE KILLED WHEN MOTORCYCLE HITS TRUCK

Light Vehicle Crashes Into Heavier One Standing On Road.

STOPPED BY OFFICER.

No Lights On Either at Time, Policeman Says—Near Barrie.

Barrie, Sept. 12. — Two Toronto young men are dead and a third lies at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Barrie, in a precarious condition as a result of injuries received Saturday evening when their motorcycle and sidecar sideswiped a standing truck on the provincial highway, five miles east of here. The dead are John Alfred Eley, aged 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Eley, 800 Kingston Road, and Edward Griffiths, aged 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Griffiths, 121 Meagher Avenue. The injured youth is Ivan Flatman, aged 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Flatman, 173 Westlake avenue. He is suffering from concussion of the brain and severe head injuries.

At 9 o'clock Sunday evening Dr. Lewis who is in attendance, stated that his condition had improved some since being admitted, and that he had a fair but not yet a good chance of recovery.

The young men killed were both employed by the International Business Machines, Limited, Toronto. The injured boy's father is a lumber dealer in the Queen City. The parents of all three reached Barrie at 5 o'clock Saturday morning in response to messages despatched immediately after the accident. At ten o'clock yesterday a jury was empanelled and the inquest was adjourned until Tuesday next.

According to the police a truck burning but one front light is given as the primary cause of this the most distressing accident on the Toronto-North Bay Highway this season. This truck had been stopped while travelling east toward Orillia, five miles out of Barrie, or a mile past Crown Hill, by Highways Traffic Officer Grant, who was proceeding to Barrie. Grant parked his motorcycle on the north side of the road and flagged the truck, driven by S. T. Jenkins, Alliston. The officer ordered Jenkins to his right side of the road, and in attempting this the truck stalled.

The batteries seemingly were low, and Jenkins is said by Grant to have turned out all his lights in order that he might better start his engine White attempting to do so the motorcycle sidecar bearing the three young men, also proceeding east, crashed into the left rear side of the truck. The impact was terrific and the scene which followed almost beggars description.

Griffiths, who was driving the cycle, was tossed high in the air, alighting on his head. He was killed almost instantly. The projected under part of the box of the truck staved in Eley's ribs and punctured his lung. He died ten minutes after being admitted to the hospital. Eley was seated on Flatman's knee in the sidecar. Flatman, whose head struck the projecting floor of the truck box, received terrible scalp wounds and concussion, and is still unconscious. The accident happened in full view of Officer Grant, who was standing by.

There were no lights on any of the vehicles, according to the police, and the officer's first thought was to found to be dead, but Eley and Flatman were still living, and were rushed to the hospital by Irvine Jackson, 325 Eglington Avenue, Toronto. Passers-by also included Miss Hunt, a nurse, of Orillia, who rendered first aid.

The youths left Toronto Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock for Washago Beach, near Orillia, where the Griffiths have a cottage, and where the boys intended to spend the week-end.

The bodies of Eley and Griffiths have been released for burial and were taken to Toronto this morning.

For the past two weeks traffic officers in this section have been making a drive on motorists for failure to burn all lights.

Eley's motorcycle and sidecar were badly damaged. They were towed to a near-by farm, where they are being held on instructions of the Coroner.

Ivan Flatman for several years had been a close pal of Griffiths, both having spent many off days shooting in the Don Valley, a short distance from their homes.

BAND CONCERT

A free concert will be given tonight from 8 till 9.30 at the Exhibition Grounds in the stand near the George Street entrance. Cervonne's Band will play selections. Miss Edna Joyce will be the soloist.

WEDDING BELLS

HOWARD—TUCKER.

The marriage took place very quietly at seven o'clock this morning at All Saints' church, of Alice Edith Tucker, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Tucker, Romaine street, and James Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Howard, Chamberlain street. The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. J. D. Paterson.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. W. A. Logan, while the choir sang "Lead Us, Heavenly Father, Lead Us." Miss Grace Tucker acted as her sister's bridesmaid, while Mr. Kenneth Jarvis supported the bridegroom.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Howard left for a honeymoon trip to Wallaceburg and Detroit. On their return, they will reside at 187 Stewart street.

HASKILL—JACKSON.

The marriage of Miss Alice Elizabeth Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson, Stewart street, to Mr. Searle D'Alton Haskill, son of Mrs. J. Haskill and the late Fred Haskill, Peterborough, was solemnized at 1.30 o'clock to-day, in the Trinity United church. The pastor, the Reverend David Wren, officiated.

Tall bronze baskets of purple and mauve asters marked the ends of the aisles, while ferns and palms formed the background for huge bowls of bridal white asters. The charming bride entered the church on her father's arm, wearing a French coat-frock of poudre blue georgette, with large black hat of felt and softly drooping satin brim. She carried a garden bouquet of corn flowers yellow daisies and pink rosebuds, tied with pastel shades of tulle. Miss Elva Jackson was her sister's bridesmaid, wearing a costume in gingerspice shades throughout; georgette frock, small cut velour hat and velvet pumps, and carried an arm bouquet of ophelia roses, tied with gilt tulle. The groom was supported by Dr A. A. Cameron, of Peterborough.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a wrist band of topaz stones and matching ring and to the groomsman a fitted leather travelling case.

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents, prior to the happy couple's departure for a honeymoon in New York and Boston, the bride travelling in an ensemble of brown chianti satin, crepe trimmed, with matching hat and suede shoes, and carrying a cinnamon fox scarf, the gift of the groom. Many beautiful gifts were suggestive of the bride's popularity and standing, among them being a walnut secretaire, from the staff of the City Hall, and a large silver platter, the gift of the City Council.

On their return to the city, Mr. and Mrs. Haskill will reside at 255 Rubidge street.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Rev. Gerard Maher delivered an interesting sermon at the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday on the Sacrifice of the Mass, describing its symbolical meaning. The two great ceremonies of the early church, i.e. the breaking of bread and the confession of sin, have been continued throughout the generations since the death of Christ, the sacrifice of the Mass perpetuating the sacrifice on Calvary, with Christ as the divine Victim and also the High Priest.

Every altar contains within its altar stone the relics of a saint. The linen cloths used at the sacrifice are symbolical of the linens in which the Saviour was wrapped for His burial, and the purity of the wax candles is emblematic of the purity of the life of Jesus. The red light always burning before the altar reminds the faithful of the words of Christ: "I am the Way the Truth and the Life," and the vestments of the priest are symbolical of his high office.

The prayers offered at Mass all have an individual meaning, from the "Kyrie eleison," ("Lord have mercy on us") and the "Dominus, vibiscum, et cum spiritu tuo." ("The Lord be with you, and with thy spirit.") to the benediction at the close.

OBITUARY.

MICHAEL SERRO.

The funeral of the late Michael Serro took place on Friday morning, Sept. 9th, from his home, 149 Stewart street, to St. Peter's Cathedral. Rev. Father Finn sang Requiem High Mass at the Cathedral and prayers at St. Peter's cemetery were said by Rev. Father Maher.

C. McIntyre, C. Baker, A. Dakison, T. Clancy, E. Dillon and R. Cerson acted as pallbearers.

JOHN BEATTIE

OMEMEE, Sept. 12.—John Beattie, for many years assessor and tax collector for the village, died on Saturday, in his seventy-sixth year. His wife predeceased him seven months ago. Two daughters survive: Miss Lila of Rochester N.Y. and Mrs. T. E. MacPherson of Omemee. The funeral takes place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

W. D. STINSON

OMEMEE, Sept. 12.—An illness of several months culminated in the death on Saturday night of W. D. Stinson, for five years Reeve of Omemee and a former Warden of Victoria County. Mr. Stinson, who was a prominent hardware merchant of the village, was forced to retire from public office last year on account of ill health. He was prominent in Orange circles.

He is survived by his widow and two brothers, Robert of Omemee and Albert of Peterborough. The funeral service, which will be private, will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at his late residence.

J. W. SLAGG.

BROCKVILLE, Sept. 12 (Canadian Press).—J. W. Slagg, former postmaster of Brockville, died suddenly entered the postal service in 1874, beentered the postal service in 1814, became deputy postmaster in 1880, postmaster in 1894, and retired in 1921. He was educated at the local schools and at Victoria College, Cobourg, and is survived by his wife and two daughters.

BIRTH.

SISSON. — On Sunday, September 11, at Nicholls Hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. Cecil E. Sisson, 187 Sherbrooke Street—a daughter.

MARRIAGE.

SHEPPARD — FINCH. — The marriage was solemnized, by Rev. K. Mills, on Thursday, at two-thirty, September 8, of Marguerite Finch, of Campbellford, and Frank Sheppard, of Peterborough. Witnesses to the ceremony were Mr. Cecil Parrington and Miss Reta Finch.

IN MEMORIAM.

FLEETWOOD.—In loving memory of my dear sister, Helen Fleetwood, who passed away Sept. 11, 1919.

"Oh how we miss her, words cannot tell,
The bright, happy face we loved so well;
The sweetest of memories are all that are left
Of a dear loving sister, one of the best."

—Sadly missed by her Sisters, Madeline and Belle.

Colorful Services On Seymour Circuit

PETHERICK'S, September 12.—With Rev. Whyte at Zion, color scheme of the Seymour Circuit anniversary services is complete. On October 9 Rev. J. J. Black, of Barrie, former pastor of St. Andrew's, Burnbrae, will be in charge of the special services at Stephen's Church, Hoard's, and it is expected that record crowds will turn out to hear the ever-popular Scotsman who won for himself a warm spot in the hearts of Burnbrae folk. Mr. Black has just returned from a visit to his old home in Scotland.

Then on Sunday, October 23, the anniversary services of Tabernacle Church, English Line, will take place with the Rev. George Brown, of Kingston, in charge. Mr. Brown is well remembered from the years he spent in Campbellford, and again his visit will draw his old friends to hear his message.

With three men of this calibre for these occasions, the Seymour Circuit will experience greater success than ever before.

Remember the dates: Hoard's, October 9; English Line, October 23; Zion, November 13.

ROCKEFELLER DONOR OF LEAGUE LIBRARY

United States' Capitalist Gives Two Millions For Building.

GENEVA, Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press).—John D. Rockfeller, Jr., is the sole donor of the two million dollar fund for the erection of a library for the League of Nations, it was announced in the League Assemoly today. There had been considerable speculation as to the donor since news of the gift became public.

A library of moton picture films will be established at Harvard University. The standard of choice will be "films which justify themselves as worthy of preservation as works of art."

SLIGHT INJURIES FOR THREE MEN

East Emily Residents Figure in Several Minor Acidents.

ONE KICKED BY HORSE.

EAST EMILY, Sept. 13.—What might have been a serious accident occurred last Friday evening, when Mr. John Sherin was driving home from Omemee in his buggy. When he was driving through the swamp just east of the railroad a motorcycle ran into him coming from the West.

Two wheels were knocked off the buggy and Mr. Sherin had his hat knocked off.

Mr. Harry McElwain fell in the barn on Thursday afternoon, hurting his shoulder badly.

Mr. Charles Spencer had a narrow escape on Thursday afternoon from what might have been a serious accident, when he was hitching his horses to the binder one of them kicked him in the forehead making a bad gash and also hurting his shoulder.

GRAY AND SNYDER ARE FOUND SANE

Alienists Examine Condemned Pair at Sing Sing.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Ruth Synder and Henry Judd Gray have been found sane in examinations conducted at Sing Sing by the State Lunacy Commission. Prison attaches said that Mrs. Snyder received the members of the Lunancy Commission very cordially and that she impressed them as realizing what "her situation is all about." Alienists found Gray's mind unchanged since they last visited him.

Gray and Mrs. Snyder were condemned to death for the murder of the woman's husband, Albert W. Snyder. They have both appealed for a new trial, automatically staying sentence.

Crowd Resents Jazz In Chapel Concert

VIAREGGIO, Italy, Sept. 13.—(United Press).—Youthful musicians were protected by police from the infuriated congregation of the Madonna Chapel here after the players had substituted jazz for sacred music. The musicians had been engaged to give a concert of sacred music.

CANADA'S JUBILEE YEAR GIVES BIG EXHIBITION REAL CAUSE FOR WHOLEHEARTED REJOICING

Peterborough's Show is Fourth in Province and Still Growing.

PROGRESS SINCE 1894

In the year of Canada's Diamond Jubilee, when the sixtieth birthday of the Dominion has been celebrated in every province and every hamlet, the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition has cause for jubilation on its own account. This great show, ranking fourth among those of the Province, exhibits the unity of the Dominion, and the progress of national industry and agriculture, achieved since the scattered provinces of British North America were welded into a mighty Confederation. On Thursday of this week, the Exhibition and the City of Peterborough will be visited by the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture in the Dominion Government, whose attendance is in itself a tribute to the importance of the Fair in the life of the country.

Instituted nearly half a century ago, the Fair, in this year of stock-taking and expansion, finds itself with still widening scope of activities, with an expanded prize-list and an extension of its agricultural, industrial and recreative exhibits. The people during past years have been increasingly impressed by the importance of the Fair and its worth to the community, with the inevitable result that the Fair itself has constantly grown and improved. One of the secrets of this growth is to be found in the first page of the modest red bound prize-list—boasting $5,000 in premiums—issued by the Peterborough Central Exhibition in 1894. The Exhibition said the booklet was "under the auspices of the West Riding of Peterborough Agricultural Society, the County Council, the Town Council and citizens of the town of Peterborough." It was then, as it is to-day, a real community effort.

Provided the weatherman remains in good behavior, all attendance records of the past will be shattered long before the final count is taken on Saturday night. The growth of Peterborough Fair will generally be illustrated by increasing numbers of visitors every day.

The completion of the new cattle barn and the extensive scheme of repair and renovation carried out within recent days means that a dream of the Exhibition Board has become an actuality. This development is but the foreshadowing of greater things. Already the directors have approached North Monaghan Council for the grant of a strip of eight feet of the land running alongside the north fence on Lansdowne Street, with the object of having ready for next year a boulevard with young growing trees in the place of the weeds now growing in rank profusion, and of adding greater dignity and beauty to the neighborhood of the Exhibition.

The new buildings and alterations are not the result of any haphazard process, but are rather the steady evolution and greater development of carefully considered plans, drawn up by the men who for years past have labored to make the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition a force to be reckoned with in this province. No public property anywhere is more carefully looked after than are the grounds of the Peterborough Exhibition. Two weeks ago, the spacious grounds and well appointed buildings elicited the admiration and delight of Arthur Meighen, a man who has seen many cities and many exhibition grounds. To-day the Exhibition far transcends the fondest dreams of its original promoters, and it stands on the threshold of progress to vastly greater things in the future.

A woman placed a number of bills in a tin can, hid the can in a stove, then forgot all about it and built a fire. Treasury experts identified most of the ashes that remained and refunded her $1200.

Don't Turn Him Down, Girlie!

When he asks you to visit the Ex., etiquette demands that you say, "This is so nice; let's start right away."

Letter Delivered After 64 Years

LONDON, September 13. — United Press.—George Head & Co., established real estate dealers, have received through the ordinary mails, a letter posted to them November 30, 1863.

They were charged six cents for postage due—the postman pointing out that rates were lower in 1863 than they are now.

MUCH ACTIVITY AT EXHIBITION PARK TO-DAY

Tents and Booths Are Being Erected For Opening To-night.

MIDWAY MEN BUSY.

Barns and Tents Are Full of Birds and Animals From the Farms.

Exhibition Park presented a spectacle of throbbing activity this forenoon with groups of men scattered all over the eastern section of the grounds working with feverish haste to get booths, or performance tents fixed up in condition for the big crowds expected to-night.

The huge waggons of the Zeidman & Pollie Shows, drawn by the splendid teams of heavy draught horses, were rapidly emptied, and the erection of mechanical contrivances was speedily under way.

The rhythmic tic-tac of many hammers, wielded by powerful arms, falling on the stakes driven into the ground, proved a prolific source of attraction to the little knots of onlookers ready to find interest and entertainment in anything suggestive of Peterborough's annual carnival. Like a magic city called into being by the will of an all-powerful genie, a community of tents and booths arose in what before had been an almost empty sward. The Hippodrome and Wild West Show of Mabel March was one of the first to be erected. For the benefit of those whose geographical knowledge is somewhat out of date, it may be well to state here and now that the old fiction that the rocky road to Dublin is in the Emerald Isle had been fully exploded. The Rocky Road to Dublin is now in the Exhibition Grounds of the city of Peterborough.

From the barns and other permanent buildings is heard the sound of the lowing of cattle, the clucking and crowing of poultry, and the neighing of horses—sounds dear to the heart of the agriculturist whose day this is pre-eminently.

A stranger might well be excused for thinking that the city was making preparations to withstand a long siege. In motor trucks and farmers' waggons, enormous quantities of food are continually being brought in for the human and animal population of the Fair.

The three cattle barns are practically full with fine specimens of Ayrshires, Durhams, Jerseys, Herefords, and Holsteins.

Judging of poultry and water fowl, which was to have commenced to-day at one o'clock, has been postponed until to-morrow morning. A number of exhibits from Perth and other parts of Eastern Ontario failed to arrive to-day, and are expected to reach Peterborough to-night. It is understood that there is no railway freight from Perth on Saturdays, hence the delay.

The situation was explained to the other exhibitors in this section, and it was agreed to delay the judging for another day.

The judges, A. W. Tyson and Willima Cadman, have been notified of this decision.

Although all the exhibits were not in place this afternoon, George Paxman was able to state that the numbers of former years are being maintained. "We are assured of a thousand bird show," states Mr. Paxman.

The new revised standard of perfection will be the judges' guide. All birds are to be judged by comparison.

THE WEATHER

A few gentle showers this morning looked somewhat ominous for the Peterborough Fair, but conditions have since improved. The barometer is now rising, and to-morrow and the next few days will see "fair and warmer." When the fair directors moved the fair dates ahead a week they made a good move, as weather conditions around the 21st, or "the equinoctial," are very uncertain.—W. P.

A medicine dropper was used to feed a London baby that weighed only one pound and six ounces at birth.

EXPANSION OF PAST YEARS AUGURS WELL FOR GROWTH OF EXHIBITIONS OF FUTURE

Value of Peterborough's Big Annual Show Grows Steadily With Its Increasing Popularity and Bigger Patronage by Farmer, Manufacturer and Merchant.

SHOWS GREATNESS OF THE DOMINION AND INDUSTRY OF ITS CITIZENS

The industrial exhibition and agricultural fair has always had a value to the community, county or province, in exact proportion to the support given it and the interest taken in it by the community. Ontario in general and Peterborough in particular can view exhibition history with a certain complacency, for the tale on the whole is one of steady progress built up by the keen support of city and country, both as exhibitior and steady patron. From being solely and simply an exposition of purely agricultural interest, the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition has become a meeting ground of the merchant, the manufacturer and the buyer.

The strong country fair has been the foundation upon which all other agricultural exhibitions have been built, but the structure that has been raised upon it has in many centres, through natural growth and expansion added new types of exhibits, a much widened prize list, and above all, a varied educational display taking in all the multitudinous manufacturing interests, and displays of natural resources; development far beyond the most wide-stretched imagination to be found among the old time fair directors. No visitor to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition can fail to see there the interchange of ideas regarding the life and work of the city dweller and the farmer.

The manufacturer, the live stock breeder and the retailer of every description of manufactured goods are given excellent opportunities of advertising their wares.

There have been great changes in the make-up of fairs since their pioneer days. The farm is no longer the self-contained unit that it once was. The farmer now has an active professional interest in the product of the foundry, the forge, the artizan's worshop, and the power plant. He is a buyer of all these kinds of production, and at the fair he gets every opportunity of seeing, if necessary in actual operation, exactly the tools he needs. And not only the farmer, but the purchaser in every walk of life will have an opportunity of seeing what his country can do towards supplying his varied needs, what it is able to contribute towards the housing, feeding and clothing of the world's million. From many sections of the Dominion, producers will bring to this great show window, their respective offerings, the manufactured products of Canada's broad fields, her mines and forests, her animal world, her fisheries—fruits of land and water to feast the eyes of the admiring 45,000.

To this great show window will come innumerable representatives of that vast army of the Dominion's march to progress known. As Canada's retail merchants whose task it will be during the ensuing twelve months to act as intermediaries between those who seek Canada's products and those who supply them. Upon the merchant devolves the responsibility of seeing that the endless belt linking up the machinery of demand and supply is in good running order. In this task, the Exhibition acts as an aide-de-camp of the merchant.

The Exhibition stands for improved methods in merchandising and improved home condition that ultimately reacts favorably on the business of the country. Goods kept prominently on display before the watchful eye of thousand of visitors out solely to "see things" have a suggestive influence on the minds of their beholders. People weeks after the Exhibition has closed its doors come into local stores seeking goods which captivated their attention when on display at the Fair.

It is almost impossible to estimate the future potentialities of on annual affair like the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. It is only reasonable to hope that the impetus given by the fairs to improved methods of stock raising and agriculture will be continued, and that its aid as a factor in the industrial development of the community will be available in the future. Along with this line of development the Fair seems destined to exert a favorable influence on the Art, Music and Literature of the country, an influence that seems bound to increase as the years go on.

ALL'S WELL WITH THE WORLD WHEN DIRECTORS ALL SMILE AT OPENING OF EXHIBITION

Final Meeting Last Night Had Nothing But Success to Talk.

PLAN FOR 1928.

Appearance of Grounds Bears Out Boast—Better Than Ever!

President Roland Denne last night told his Board of Directors that they had the greatest lay-out ... its history ready for the opening of Peterborough's twenty-fifth Industrial Exhibition and there was not a voice raised in dissent.

There is, in fact, no room for argument. New buildings, new fences, improvements seen and unseen, add to the already splendid plant, until all over the Exhibition Park appear signs of that success which has attended the big Central Ontario Show in the past half-dozen years. If there was room for doubt before, this year's showing removes any opportunity to say that Peterborough Exhibition is farther than third from the top of the province's fairs. It is a wonderful display.

In fact it looks as if Peterborough is to make 1927 a year long to be remembered. The Jubilee parade on July first ranked among the first in the Dominion—at least no reports have come in of any better—and it showed the people of this district what Peterborough people can do when they try. And the 1927 Exhibition is following along the same progressive path with only old man Probabilities to propitiate in order to guarantee final success.

If any one feature can be singled out of such a galaxy for praise, it should be the improvement to the grand stand and its vicinity. The old rail fence has been torn down, and in its place is a neat wire fence of pleasing design that more of an ornament than a barrier. The judging ring has been dotted with Union Jacks. The grand stand has been completly roofed. A large section of the stand has been fitted with comfortable seats, for which there is to be no extra charge. Benches have been provided for those who formerly had to stand along the fence. And underneath the stand are commodious dressing rooms, complete with wash bowls, where vaudeville artists may change into their gaudy attire in comfort.

Eastward, in the Exhibition section the buildings have been repainted. Gay curtains on the upper windows of the main building add a festive touch. The new cattle barn gives a

"It does matter," responded the Bishop, "I have forgotten where I'm going."

TORY ELECTED IN BY-ELECTION BY 198 VOTES

George W. Spotton Has Plurality Over Hislop, Liberal Candidate.

PROGRESSIVE POOR THIRD.

Spirited Campaign Waged By Distinguished Speakers Is Brought To Close.

GODERICH, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—North Huron returned to the Conservative fold in the by-election held yesterday by giving George Spotton (Conservative) a majority of 198 votes over the Liberal candidate, Archie Hislop, his nearest opponent. The Progressive, Sheldon Bricker, was left far behind in the three-cornered battle.

Following are the complete figures:

Spotton (Conservative).....4,531
Hislop (Liberal 4,333
Bricker (Progressive) 2,725

Reverses Majority

The election was rendered necessary by the death nine months ago of the member, John W. King, Progressive, who had held the seat since the general election of 1921. In the general election immediately preceding the constituency had gone Conservative, James Bowman being elected by a majority of nearly 2,000 in 1917, when he ran as a Government (Unionist) candidate. King's Progressive majority was 1,196 in the election of 1921, but his vote had dropped to a majority of 245 in the general election of last year.

One of the surprises of yesterday's election was the turnover in the Town of Goderich, where Hislop, the Liberal, was given a lead of 240 votes over Spotton. The Conservative had a majority of 688 there in the last election.

Tabulation of Vote

The vote by municipalities was as follows:

	Bricker	Hislop	Spotton.
Ashfield Tp.	316	348	341
Blyth	20	160	194
Brussels	30	242	167
Colborne Tp.	110	231	184
Goderich	71	1,171	931
Grey Tp.	313	488	270
Howick Tp.	600	329	549
Morris Tp.	327	323	335
Turnberry Tp.	286	212	206
E. Wawanosh Tp..	304	154	240
W. Wawanosh Tp.	279	217	273
Wingham	57	360	682
Wroxeter	12	93	72

Spirited Campaign

Yesterday's victory for the Conservative candidate came as the finale of one of the most spirited campaigns waged in Ontario in many years. Premier King and five members of his Cabinet took part in the campaign, while the Conservative candidate was supported by the temporary Conservative Leader, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, and other prominent Conservatives from outside the riding. Miss Agnes Macphail, M.P., was most active in speaking for Mr. Bricker. The former U.F.O. Premier of Ontario, Hon. E. C. Drury, appeared on several platforms in support of the Liberal candidate. The Liberals expected a stiff battle when it became certain that the Progressive intended to stay in the contest.

Despite the hard campaigning on both sides, yesterday's vote was not materially larger than that of the last Federal election. In 1926 the total vote polled was 11,439, while yesterday 11,589 ballot were cast. One peculiarity of the by-election result is that, although Mr. Spotton received 1,016 votes less than the defeated Conservative candidate in 1926, he was elected by virtue of the fact that the anti-Conservative ballots were split between the two opposing candidates. Hislop and Bricker polled a total of 6,058 votes, as compared with 5,892 cast for the late Mr. King in 1926 by the Liberals and Progressives combined, an increase of 1,166.

Only One Meeting

Yesterday's weather was ideal for the electors, and a larger vote was expected. The Conservative candidate confined himself largely to personal canvassing on behalf of himself and his supporters, holding only one public meeting during the campaign.

In Wingham, Mr. Spotton's home town, the victor got a plurality of 322, as compared with 127 in 1926. Hislop's vote in Wingham was 360 and Bricker's 57. In Goderich the Liberal candidate was given a plurality of 240, as compared with the Conservative majority of 688 at the last general election. The Village of Wroxeter gave Hislop a majority of 21.

The Liberal candidate sought support mainly on the Government record of tariff and tax reduction.

YEARS OF RESEARCH NEEDED TO MAKE OCEAN AIR SERVICE PRACTICAL, SAYS LINDBERGH

Flights Made By Pioneers Show That Traffic is Feasible.

CASUALTIES LIKELY.

Restrictions Because of Hazards Would Hold Up Scientific Progress.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has given to the Canadian Press, in response to its request, the following statement in connection with recent developments in trahs-oceanic flying.

"The trans-oceanic flights which have been accomplished demonstrate the feasibility of air transportation between the continents. The trend of future development should be toward making such transportation practical under all conditions. The pioneering is over but the perfecting is yet to be done.

"Regular trans-oceanic travel by air is no more practical to-day than trans-continental air lines were a decade and a half ago. Years of development and scientific reesarch will be required before such regular intercontinental service can be successfully inaugurated.

Restriction Would Do Harm.

"During this experimental period we may expect casualties. Yet to totally restrict hazardous flights would be placing a ban on scientific progress. Such restriction would have the same effect on the future of trans-oceanic flying as the air mail would have experienced had it been abandoned by the Government during the heavy casualty period of its pioneering days.

"The result of total restriction might be compared to the effect on aviation in general had legislation been enacted against all flying during the first few years followiflg the flight of the Wright brothers, when hour for hour, any flight was more dangerous than trans-oceanic flying is at present.

"Pioneering and development of almost every advance in the air is marked by the loss of its explorers or its scientists. Yet they would be the last to request that the advancement of the cause for which they gave their lives be retarded.

Careful Study Needed.

"Hazardous flights should not be prohibited, but they should be attempted only after careful study by experienced personnel with the best of modern equipment and for a definite purpose. In future expeditions should be organized and prizes offered under conditions which promote the development of safer travel.

"Safety of travel does not rest alone in the perfection of plane and engine but equally important is a highly trained personnel, accurate weather information, and other navigational aids, including means of radio communication for use in case of a forced landing."

NEW SOUTH WALES ELECTION DATE SET

Labor Policy For Re-election Includes Benefits as Regards Widows' Pensions.

SYDNEY, New South Wales, September 13 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's). — The New South Wales state elections are fixed for October 6, and the Labour Government, under the Premiership of John Thomas Lang, is exerting itself to the utmost to defeat the efforts of the Nationalists to oust it from power.

Premier Lang's policy includes a promise to abolish the nominee Legislative Council, to extend benefits as regards widows' pensions and child endowment, to introduce bills dealing with community settlement and credit, soldiers 'settlement loans, the establishment of a state coal mine and of wireless transmitting stations in many country towns.

Premier Lang vehemently disclaims all connection with Bolshevism, but the exposition of the Nationalist views made by Leader Bavil, K.C., dwells on the danger of the extreme Labour tendencies.

The Nationalists stand up for the retention of the Legislative Council of limited membership and of a representative character, in a form approved by the electorate. They advocate co-operation in the Commonwealth loan agreement and revision of the financial administration, and also favour the suspension of the City Council of Sydney, which they say has become a byword throughout Australia owing to the dominant Labour faction in the Council. The Nationalists would replace the Council by Commissioners.

CERVONE AND HIS BAND WILL BE FAVORITES

First Concert of Pittsburgh Organization Pleases Big Audience.

A FINE FEATURE.

Exhibition Made a Ten Strike in Booking This Splendid Unit.

You are going to like Cervone and his band.

The Exhibition management made no mistake when they booked this splendid Pittsburg musical organizations as one of the feature attractions for this year's big fair.

Cervone and his men realize that their mission is to entertain, and they know what the crowd wants, and how to provide it. They lost no time in selling themselves to the large audience which heard their first concert last night, and the first favorable impression is going to be deepened before the week is out, for the Cervone organization knows its business.

Here is a band not large in numbers, but strong in ability, splendidly balanced, crisp and sure in attack, producing a fine tone, getting a remarkable volume, when volume is called for, and equally effective when piano is needed. And it can tackle a standard overture, an excerpt from music comedy, or a jazz number, and put each across so that everybody enjoys it.

Cervone himself has showmanship plus.

His good humour is contagious: he seems to so thoroughly enjoy con-

PICKED UP BY SEARCH VESSEL NORTH-EAST OF SPOT SEARCHED BY TRANSYLVANIA LAST WEEK

No Signs of the Crew, Says Short Report From Searchers.

PARTICULARS FEW.

Rudder and Part of Wing of Plane Picked Up On the Cornish Coast.

NEW YORK, September 13. — The wreckage of Old Glory, the monoplane in which Lloyd Bertaud, James D. Hill and Philip A. Payne, started from Old Orchard, Maine, last Tuesday, has been found in the North Atlantic about 100 miles from the position at which she sent out her S.O.S. for help.

The wreckage of the plane was found by the steamship Kyle chartered by the Daily Mirror to make the search. Word of sighting the wreckage was sent by Douglas Muir, a newspaperman of St. John's, Newfoundland, who went on the Kyle. His brief report to the Mirror said:

"Located wreckage of Old Glory, latitude 51.17 north, longitude 39.23 west, at 4.20 p.m. No sign of crew. Particulars follow."

First to be Found.

This is the first of any of the planes which have come down in the water, to be found, but it was evident from Muir's message that the crew had been lost. Whether the entire plane had been found or only wing is not known here yet, and it may be that the huge wooden wing characteristic of the Fokker planes tore off, while the heavy steel fuselage, containing tanks, engine and crew, went to the bottom.

If this is so it may never be known whether those in the plane had a fighting chance for life and were able to get their collapsible rubber boat out and inflate it. But sea captains who searched for them said that the sea was too rough for a makeshift boat to live in the days immediately following the disaster.

Another Wing Found.

No trace of any other plane which has come down in the ocean during the recent flights over the Atlantic and Pacific has ever been located, but word came from England last night, according to the Associated Press, that a rudder and part of a wing had been washed ashore at Newquay, Cornwall. So at last the sea is apparently giving up some of the mysteries which it has hidden so long, and the wing on the English coast may be that of Nungesser's plane, or even that of the St. Raphael, in which Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim was a passenger.

The wreckage of Old Glory was found at a position which indicates that it drifted north after sending the S.O.S. and hitting the water. Its position when the distress message was sent has never been known, except approximately, apparently the best estimate of it having been made by the Transylvania, which placed the planes' position at 49.50 north and 41.15 west.

Distance Estimated.

This was partly based on the direction from which the signal was received as estimated by the wireless operator and his estimate of the distance away based on the strength of the signal.

If his judgment was correct the plane drifted about 100 miles to the northwest before being found. There were brisk westerly winds blowing, and at the position the plane was found there is a northerly current, but at the estimated position of the plane when it sent the S.O.S. there is a current towards the south, so possibly Old Glory was farther west at the time it came down than the Captain of the Transylvania believed. The distance is a little more than 600 miles out.

Reckoning Correct.

Bertaud, in his last message, gave his position as five hours out from Newfoundland, bound east. At a speed of 100 miles an hour, with a westerly wind, it was believed that the plane was just about 600 miles off the land when it hit the water, so that his dead reckoning was apparently quite accurate.

The position of the plane was considerably north of that estimated by the steamships which searched for it, however, which is probably the reason they did not sight the plane in the storm-tossed waters.

Strangler Will Be Tried In November

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 13. — (Canadian Press.)— Earl Nelson, alias "The Strangler," will be tried in November at the opening of the Fall Assizes, before Mr. Justice Dysart, it was learned yesterday. John Allen, K.C., will prosecute, while Jas. H. Stittin, appointed by the Crown, will defend the prisoner. Nelson is alleged to have strangled to death two Winnipeg women and is thought by the authorities to have been responsible for similar crimes in sections of the United States.

Timber Operations Show Large Decrease

QUEBEC, Que., Sept. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—A decrease of half a billion feet in timber operations in the Province of Quebec during the course of the coming winter was predicted by C. G. Piche, chief forester of the province, who stated yesterday he expected a considerable decrease in the cutting of timber.

Last year the cut amounted to about one and a half billion feet.

SIX BALLOONS STILL IN RACE THREE UNSEEN

Drift Southward in Competition For Gordon Bennett International Trophy.

ENCOUNTER STORMS.

DETROIT, Mich., September 13 (Associated Press). — Six balloons, three of them unseen since their take-off from the Ford airport here on Saturday afternoon, still were in competition for the Gordon Bennett International Trophy last night, as far as the local committee could determine.

Of the 15 balloons, nine had reported safe landings, three had been sighted, and three were unheard from. Word had been received from Southern points in the path of the balloons identifying the Hispania, the Spanish entry, the Goodyear VI., the United States entry; and the Lafayette, the French entry. All were in flight, according to the despatches.

Sweeping out across Lake Erie at the start of the race, the huge bags, it was determined, followed a path into Ohio, diagonally across that State, and then into the Virginias. From there the wind currents varied, and some of the bags swept on into the Carolinas, while at least three were reported seen in Northern and Central Georgia.

Encounter Storms.

Storms were encountered by most of the balloonists who landed, according to messages to the committee, but the weather disturbances were not severe. Of the three unreported bags, members of the committee believed that the Detroit, piloted by E. J. Hill, would weather the overhead conditions safely, and make a landing.

DETROIT DOWN.

BAXLEY, Ga., September 13 (Associated Press). — The Detroit, entrant in the national balloon race, landed here at five o'clock (eastern standard time) yesterday afternoon. The big bag, in which rode E. J. Hill and A. J. Schlosser, caught in a clump of pines near the residence of D. E. Woods, near the centre of the city.

TAX ARREARS PLACED BEFORE CUSTOMS BOARD

Total For Canadian Distilleries Ranging Near Two Million Mark.

AUDITORS' REPORT.

$10,625,658 Is Amount of Bonds Issued To Cover Liquor Shipments.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—Arrears of Canadian breweries for sales tax were estimated at more than $2,300,000 before the Royal Customs Commission yesterday afternoon. Estimated arrears of Canadian distilleries are from one and three-quarter to two million dollars, according to the estimate.

A. E. Nash, auditor for the Royal Customs Commission, gave these figures under examination by Hon N. W. Rowell. Another arresting figure which he placed before the Commission was that of $10,626,658, the total amount of bonds issued by guarantee corporations to cover liquor shipments from Canada. The auditor furnished a list of places in Mexico, Central America and the West Indies for which liquor shipments ostensibly cleared, with the amount of bonds issued to these alleged destinations.

Farrow Questioned

In order to clear up an inconsistency in the application of duties, R. R. Farrow, former Deputy Minister of Customs, was called to the stand and examined by R. B. Law, assistant counsel Mr. Law drew to the attention of the commission an old case involving the free importation of cotton yarn into the port of Montreal while the same yarn was paying duty on entering Toronto. In March, 1923, said Mr. Law, the Board of Customs made a ruling that this cotton yarn entered Canada free. Two months later, it reversed the ruling. But, he said, no attempt was made to collect the duty on the thread which had been brought in free for a number of years by a Montreal firm. The Toronto importer was paying the duty.

Mr. Farrow could not remember the circumstances surrounding the Customs Board ruling, nor could he explain why the ruling had been reversed. "I submit it was because of pressure from Toronto," said Mr. Law.

Mr. Farrow did not agree with this. There were five men on the Board of Customs, and he did not think they would all be inconsistent.

Then Mr. Law asked why an effort had not been made to collect from the Montreal firm on the basis of their imports over a number of years.

Customs Passed Entries

The Commissioners intervened at this point. They took the ground that it would be an injustice to col-

TRENT RIVER NEWS.

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 13.—Miss Helen McNeely has returned from attending the Toronto Exhibition.

Mrs. M. McNichol and sons left this week for Toronto, Mrs. McNichol having spent the past few weeks at "Sum-er-in". Mr. McNichol will remain here for a few more weeks.

Mrs. Wright and daughter, Miss Eliza, are holidaying at "Bell View."

Mr. and Mrs. Ward have taken up residence at the Allan residence which they recently purchased and expect to remain for some weeks during which time they will have improvements made on their property.

Miss Bonter, teacher at the public school, is preparing her pupils for the annual school fair to be held at Campbellford. Miss Bonter has over fifty attending her school, three or four new pupils beginning their first term when the school reopened.

The threshing machine has commenced operating again. The farmers who have threshed report the grain turning out good.

The Ladies' Aid met on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Falkner, Havelock, have been spending a few days at their cottage.

ALL'S WELL WITH THE WORLD

prosperous air to the agricultural section.

Praise Indeed.

It is no wonder the Directors were satisfied as they looked around last night from their seats in the open air meeting that always precedes the opening of the Exhibition. The actors and actresses with the vaudeville troupes had just declared that in all their travels they had never entertained or been entertained in a style to equal this. And that, said the Directors, is praise indeed.

It was, nevertheless, significant of the spirit of the Exhibition Board that plans were already simmering in active minds for next year. The members were planning before this year's fair opens for the fair of 1928! "This old fence will come down," they said, "and a wire one will replace it. We'll have a couple more buildings, too."

It seems indeed that more buildings are urgently needed. Mr. Knox told of crowding in the cattle barns, where he has a capacity for 158 head. There were 260 there to-day —the overflow being accommodated in the sheds along the fence. Geo. Paxman, who was disappointed because the projected poultry building did not materialize this year, wasn't just sure where he would put all the birds. "I've had to double-deck the ducks in the tent, as well as having the building crowded," he boasted—or complained, whichever it was. This is the first year that the waterfowl have crowded their quarters, and Mr. Paxman is afraid that if they are not treated just right these artistocratic birds may not return another year.

Down at the dog show tent, Mr. Merrell has provided benching for 245 dogs, and if it was possible to double-deck them as Mr. Paxman does his ducks, likely that would be done. They are coming from all over Canada — entries are in from Winnipeg to Halifax, with the best in dogdom from Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Brantford, and Hamilton. Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday are the dog days this year.

The big flower tent, fifty by one hundred feet, has its improvements, too. Instead of the tables which in other years made the display of flowers so difficult, there has been provided a continuous row of shelving in four banks around the tent wall. The flowers will appear to good advantage here. Mr. Jordan did it. He brought a little model to the Exhibition Board meeting last winter and convinced the other directors that such an arrangement was necessary. That is just another example of the all-the-year-round interest of the men who manage Peterborough Exhibition—thinking, when the snow was on the ground, of the blooms that are to-day displayed in the big flower tent! There is a special section here set aside for exhibits by school children.

Another Enthusiast.

After the meeting last night someone mentioned "Jumpers," and Chris Graham immediately jumped on to a bench and delivered an impromptu speech, in which he lauded this new feature of the Exhibition. At that, he has a lot to boast of. The jumping horses that will perform on Friday and Saturday are the best in the country, coming from the famous stables of Sir Clifford Sifton, Alfred Rogers, Frank O'Connor, and George H. McLaughlin. There will be three jumping events on each day, with two bush and two gate jumps arranged in the same way as at the Olympic jumps in England.

Another attraction of which Mr. Graham told his interested audience is the six-horse show transport team of H. W. Petrie, which will appear in front of the grand stand.

The Midway.

Anyone who loved the old-time thrills enough to await the arrival of the Midway this morning found it worth while. Peterborough has never seen anything like this before; there is no other in its class in the world. Just as one instance, the big ten-ton tractor that helped unload the outfit is the biggest used in this work—and Art. Blade is authority for the statement that it consumes 35 gallons of gasoline in loading, and another 35 in unloading. There are five other tractors, besides teams.

With the Midway are what the showmen call 24 major attractions. There is a wild west show. Mike and Ike are here—they look alike. And why shouldn't they? They are twins —twin midgets. There is a twenty-in-one circus side show. There are five midget ponies, any one of which will fit in a lady's hat box. The motordrome is the biggest on the road, with five riders on cycles and automobiles—four of them racing on the upright walls at one time.

All the old rides are here — the favourites of which children and grown-ups never tire—and there are many new thrills, like the Lindenbergh, the dodger, the chair-o-plane.

It was a busy day on the Midway lot to-day, in preparation for to-night. Everything will be in full swing at seven o'clock — and when everything in that Midway gets going at once, Peterborough is going to see some thrilling sight.

All in all, it is no wonder the Exhibition directors smiled last night.

Stylish Women Barred From Naples Cemeteries

UNITED LADIES' AID CHANGES ITS PLANS

Will Have Thank Offering Instead of Fowl Supper.

HASTINGS, Sept. 13.—The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United church was held at the home of Mrs. William Preston on Thursday afternoon. A very large number were present. The members of the Ladies' Aid decided to withdraw their annual fowl supper and raise their objective by means of a thank-offering. Committees were appointed to canvass the respective sections of the village.

A very interesting programme followed consisting of: A solo, Miss Ruby Preston, "Tis Not Far to Jesus"; followed by a piano solo by Miss Carrie Doxsee. Mrs. Kelley and Mrs. Faux gave a duet, after which Mrs. Preston favored them with a piano solo. The meeting closed with "Blest Be the Tie that Binds." Lunch was served by the hostess and all present report a very enjoyable time.

FURTHER ARRESTS ROBBERY CLEAN-UP

Following Discovery of Loot on Two More Farms.

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—The discovery of loot on two more farms on East Nissouri has not resulted in any further arrests in the robbery general clean-up that provincial and county police are making in Western Ontario. The farmers, whose names have not been revealed by the authorities, state that the plunder was found by children along the side of the roads near their places. Of the seven men who have already been arested, five are awaiting trial in the London and Middlesex police coutrs, after which they will be turned over to the Oxford authorities to be dealt on charges pending there. The other two men, McLeod and E. Gadd already are in the cells in Woodstock.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, September 13 (Canadian Press). — In the face of adverse harvesting conditions in the Canadian West, wheat values sagged from ⅞c to 1⅛c on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. Exporters were in the market for supplies during the early part of the session, but most of the sales were credited to "shorts" guided by the weather map. Offerings were mostly in the nature of hedging by elevator companies who are now taking in new crop wheat in the country. Selling pressure eased perceptibly before the close.

Oats continued firm despite lack of demand. Rye slipped back fractionally, while flax was steady. Increased interest was shown in the cash grain situation.

HASTINGS NEWS

HASTINGS, Sept. 13.—Mrs. D. E. Scriver, Mrs. John Fairman, Mrs. John Cruikshank and Mr. Byrant Scriver spent Wednesday in Peterborough. Mr. Scriver, who is in the hospital there, is doing well after his recent operation.

Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Hle and family are spending their holiday at their cottage in Bobcaygeon. Rev. Mr. Davie of Hilton takes charge of the services this Sunday and Mr. Thistlewaite of Norwood the following Sunday.

Mrs. S. Spooner and Miss Betty Spooner are visiting for a few days with relatives and friends in Toronto.

The Council held a special meeting on Wednesday night to decide what they would do in regard to the level of the road in front of Post Office. They decided to pave the road on the same level as the two bridges. The Post Office building is being raised to correspond with the level of the road.

Mr. and Mrs. George Jeffries and family came this week from Fort William, Port Arthur and Winnipeg, where they have been visiting for the past two weeks.

Front street was closed to traffic on Friday, on account of the road being under construction. The crushed stone was being laid and rolled to form the hard base for the pavement which is to be laid next week.

A mission is being held this week at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church by Rev. Fathers Keogh and Barry, C.S.S.R. of Toronto, Rev. Father Butler of Cobourg, Rev. Father Cleary of Trout Creek, and Rev. Father Ferguson of Warkworth, were guests of Rev. Father Bretherton during this week.

OLD MASTERS

Sleep on, and dream of Heaven awhile—
Though shut so close thy laughing eyes,
Thy rosy lips still wear a smile
And move, and breathe delicious sighs!

Ah; now soft blushes tinge her cheeks
And mantle o'er her neck of snow:
Ah, now she murmurs, now she speaks
What most I wish—and fear to know!

She starts, she trembles, and she weeps!
Her fair hands folded on her breast:
—And now, how like a saint she sleeps!
A seraph in the realms of rest!

Sleep on secure! Above control
Thy thoughts belong to Heaven and thee:
And may the secret of thy soul
Remain within its sanctuary!

Interpreting the Fabric Vogue for Fall

As Shown at the Robert Fair Store

When one speaks of the Robert Fair & Company's dry goods store, one thinks of the linens that are such a specialty of this establishment, with their wide range and variety, their spotless whiteness, and their alluring, immaculate texture and finish.

But there are many other articles to attract the eye here. Possibly the display of velvets is one of the main features at present. These are exceptionally good for ladies' wear just now, in dress frocks for all occasions, and their colours are enchanting. In tawny orange, in glittering blue, in smoky taupe, they fill the show windows, these lovely, soft, glistening fabrics, in the cobweb-like transparent materials and the exquisite cut brocaded effects, in purples and wine reds and royal blues. Heavier bodied silk velvets sport Persian designs in reds and yellows, and there are metallic fabrics that glow and glitter with the melting hues of orchid and peach, silver and grey and blue.

Hats at the Fair Store show the trend to small, close-fitting shapes in combined felt, velvet or satin. The vogue for feathers is apparent in the hackle crown of a bamboo-shaded model, and there is smart simplicity manifested in many of the black shapes, with their flaring brims and unexpected, intriguing adornment of self points and tabs and ornaments. One lovely green felt model with a wide, flaring, upturned brim of velvet sports a green ornament as its only decoration, and a dove-grey velour felt has a French taupe band around the crown, caught by a little steel buckle.

One of the large dress hats of the floppy type that make a variation in the prevailing, close-fitting mode is of black, with a felt crown and a velvet brim slashed oddly to permit grosgrain ribbon to rise in curious little upheavals at regular intervals, with a side bow of the velvet. A tiny shape of black felt has a coronal point in front of hatter's plush faced with velvet and a poky bow at the side front.

In the showing of afternoon gowns, a combination of velvet and georgette in black catches the eye, made with long sleeves and wide girdle of the velvet, draped to the side and caught with a brilliant buckle. A coat style model of black georgette over crepe-backed satin shows a top in loose bolero effect, edged by a deep band of highly-coloured silk embroidery. This model has a round neck and long sleeves, with a pleated skirt on which the reverse of the skirt material appears as a trimming, an effective treatment encountered in so many of the season's gowns.

Cavalier cuffs of fine, pleated lace appear on the sleeves of a rose beige gown that has horizontal tucking throughout, outlined with silk twist.

In the coat line, a fabric caracul with silky texture and soft colouring catches the eye, with its collar and cuffs of brown opossum.

A shawl collar of opossum that shows the notched, lapel-like effect in front and sports at the back a tiny bow which seems to sustain the collar, when turned up, appears on a jungle-green model of suedene that has a two-button side fastening and slashed insets. Another coat of suedene is of bright red with Thibet fur collar and cuffs.

The utility coats that are such an important item in the wardrobe of the woman of any type, whether her occupation be in the home, in business, or at school, are shown here in many attractive styles.

There are the novelty tweeds that have such a range in colouring and trimming, one snappy model showing a harmonizing mixture of dull reds and browns in its large checks, the collar of the amber fur collar blending with the tones of the material. And the tailored chinchillas that make such a hit with young girls going away to school and appear to such advantage on these junior misses, are much in evidence. They come with the half belts that give a slenderizing effect to the back and stop at a point invisible to the eye in front. They have flap pockets and slashed vents and inverted pleats, in different styles.

In the lower floor show cases are the new scarves that are worn with one large end over the right shoulder, in square and three-cornered types, with their splashy, effective decorations of brightly-coloured flowers and designs.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER FIND MUCH INTEREST AT THE EX

Latest Helps to Household Labor Form Inspiring Section.

FASHIONS SHOWN

Foodstuffs Provide Ideas for Menus—Women's Work.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition offers much to interest the feminine portion of the population. While most mothers of families are interested in objects of utility, like washing and sewing machines and other helps to manual labor around the house, and while most of the women visitors will spare many moments for the general exhibits in the Manufacturers' Building, and all of them will take time to view the Fashion Models that form a portion of the displays put on by the local stores, there are at all times matters of interest to women, young and old. And it is here that the very best and most up-to-date, the latest devices in furniture and household appliances of every sort are on view. Foodstuffs of every type, from monstrous cabbages to pickled onions, may be seen and the competitive entries bring samples of the skill of the canner and the preserver.

You may know how your neighbor cans her fruits and vegetables. She has told you all about her methods and you have explained your pet views on the subject. But you don't know what other women may be devising as means of doing up beets and pickles and jams and conserves. If you go to the Fair, you will have an opportunity of finding out. And you may win one of the prizes offered in the Domestic Science section, where awards are given for bread and biscuits, cookies and cakes, for pickles and canned fruits and preserved fruits and jellies. Cheese and butter come in for special awards.

In the horticulturtal section, there is plenty to interest the lover of flowers, for the various exhibits show only the best in their respective lines, and the woman who has a special-prized plant of any sort may show it here and win a coveted award.

The Fine Arts offer scope for the lover of painting of many types, in oils and water colors, in pastels and crayons, in charcoal, pencil, pen and ink. Children's work is given a special place in this section.

The Ladies' Work is always of much interest to women patrons of the Fair. Fashions in embroidery and sewing of all kinds change as the years progress, and one of the most educational portions of the exhibit is the prominence given to stitching in its many variations. Table and bedroom linen of the very finest is on view, done with all the care and attention that skilful lovers of the needle give to such work; while babies' outfits, wool work, lamp shades, wood and reed examples, all have their place. The showing of quilts also has a special attraction for the connoisseurs of old-time patterns and modes in these things. Work done by ladies over seventy-five years of age demonstrates the expert craftsmanship of the elderly citizens who dwell in our midst.

Another entertaining and educational section is the display made every year of the handicraft of children in the schools. Here are examples of the skill of the small sons and daughters of the house, in manual training classes, in dressmaking and domestic science lessons. The small boys show their wooden models of toys and ships and aeroplanes, the girls demonstrate with models their tuition in sewing and both display examples of art work done in the schoolroom.

The bane of the chorus girl and the actress of small salary has always been the unsteadiness of their income and the frequent intervals of unemployment. As a practical solution of this problem one fashionable teashop in London employs none but stage girls as waitresses and cashiers. When they have a stage engagement they are excused from work, their wages, of course, being stopped, but directly their theatrical contracts come to an end they return to their duties in the teashop. Under this plan the girls are assured of a fairly steady income all the year round. By the same method some of the London mannequins, whose regular employment varies according to the season, are given work as "extra girls" in public typewriting bureaus.

HOW PORTRAITS ARE SELECTED

F. L. Roy Explains Basis of Choosing Exhibition Pictures.

ART APPRECIATION

The Roy Studio contains an excellent selection of artistically displayed photographs and picturesque scenes which are well worthy of more than a passing glance. A visit to the studio will prove of much interest.

In Mr. F. Roy's opinion there are two bases of selection in all photographic work. The first is technical excellence or perfection of photography, and the second is the interest to the public, who really care nothing for the former which is so important to an artist in the work.

A photograph is judged from two standpoints—that of the photographer and that of the family or person portrayed. Naturally the foremost essential is—that the personality of the sitter be brought out. Is it a good likeness of so and so? If the answer is no, then regardless of the merits of the picture from the photographers standpoint, no matter how perfect the details of workmanship or the technique of art may be, unless the personality of the individual or the naturalness of the scenery is expressed therein, the picture is a failure in the eyes of the public. And it is for this end—to keep the interests of the public in mind—that the photographer must strive.

Pictures from the Roy Studio have been shown at the Exhibition here for the last thirty years and this has proved to be a most profitable business. The most interesting work of the year is put on display and many are the favorable comments called forth regarding the creditable work.

The art exhibits are shown under rather unfavorable conditions owing to the trying place to hang pictures on account of the low ceiling and poor lighting of the gallery, but Mr. Roy is confident that before long a new main building will be erected and provision made for the satisfactory showing of all works of art. Art is a delicate subject to touch upon and few people appreciate its fineness. There is at present such little local interest shown in art, that an exhibition with this end in view would not be successful; but Mr. Roy believes that if the Women's Art Association, which is making such splendid endeavours, would take up the matter, it would arouse a vital interest and lead to a greater appreciation of the beauties and educative values of art.

Libraries are being installed more rapidly than librarians with the necessary qualifications can be found to take charge of them. The number of library school graduates last year was 200 less than the number needed to meet the demand.

Fall Arrivals at Riley & Hickey's Store

Both partners of Messrs. Riley & Hickey readily expressed their opinion:

"Woollens are more subdued in shade and tone than are the gay, multi-coloured fabrics of spring," says E. F. Riley, "but like the fall season, this year's woollens are rich in their tints and shadings of grey, brown and black.

"Leaders in clothes decisions frown upon the four-button suit, despite the efforts of certain manufacturers to push it.

"Business and professional men have taken to the three-button suit in earnest, and it is a safe bet to prophesy its continued reign during the next few months. In some other quarters more form-tracing garments are favoured. In this direction the chief favourite is the two-button, body-fitting jacket with a definite take-in at the hips fitting snugly at the bottom. In many cases this variety of jacket has peaked lapels in most cases. Cheviots, cassimeres, and tweeds, together with novelty twists, continue to be good, while worsteds should have a banner year all round.

"If suits tend to be duller, topcoats certainly display gay colours and flaunt striking weaves. These are all of the loose box variety.

"Double-breasted overcoats will continue in the favoured eye of the public, because of both their warmth and their trimness. Colours will be greys, tans, and blues, as in suits. Hats are snap brimmed up all round or down all round with the brims narrowed somewhat.

"Shirts are light, plain tints, with indented stripes and designs."

Men, thought B. A. Hickey, were showing a tendency to come back to the linen collar. In ties, russet red is a new colour in small and neat patterns, although club stripes are still as good as they were. English square scarves in flat silks find favour. Sweaters show a tendency to go back to plain colours. A similar tendency is evident in golf hose. "Men's wear, said Mr. Hickey, "is growing all the time more conservative so far as the accessories are concerned. All-wool socks are in checks, stripes, colour bars and diamond patterns."

The lifetime of a good watch, experts say, is 50 years. The balance and hair-spring vibrate 157,000,000 times a year, while an equal number of ticks come from the escapement.

When Good Dressers Meet

There is a certain lilt in the note that the well turned out man's attire strikes. We've made a rhapsody out of that note in our comprehensive Fall showing of Suits and Topcoats.

BUYING TOO MUCH.

The fact that Judge Evans of Hamilton has upheld a police magistrate's ruling that certain clauses of the Liquor Control Act give magistrates the right to infer the guilt of and impose jail sentences upon persons who purchase large quantities of beer, ale or liquor and are unable to account to the satisfaction of the court for the rapid consumption of said beverages, should make it easier for the authorities to emphasize the control features of the Act.

Those people who have been buying more liquor than they could reasonably be expected to consume themselves are putting themselves into danger of a jail sentence, in view of Judge Evans' verdict.

Apparently a magistrate has the right to infer that such supplies were purchased for the purpose of illegal sale and to sentence defendants under such sections of the Act to jail.

In Hamilton nine offenders were given jail sentences, ranging from thirty to ninety days, and an appeal to the county judge resulted in the magistrate's judgment being upheld.

ALL READY—LET'S GO.

Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition hops off tonight on what the Directors confidently expect will be a non-stop flight to new records.

Everything is ready, and with the programme tonight the big fair will be in full swing, with new features of interest each day until the end of the week.

Quite fittingly, tonight's programme will be featured by the arrival of a message from President Dixon of the Canadian National Exhibition to President Rollie Denne, extending the best wishes of the Canadian National to the local Exhibition.

This message will be carried from Toronto by a relay of Y.M.C.A. runners, the first of whom started from the Queen City this morning, and its arrival tonight, with the last runners escorted by all the others who will be picked up and brought to Peterborough in cars after finishing their portion of the run, should prove an interesting and unusual feature.

Tonight should therefore see the Exhibition off to a running start, as it were, and make a welcome contribution to the 45,000 attendance figure which it is hoped will be rolled up by Saturday night.

The Exhibition is ready—let's go.

STAMPING OUT DIPHTHERIA.

The strong endorsation by Dr. McKay, Medical Officer of Health of Oshawa, of the success of preventive measures to stamp out diphtheria will give an impetus to the campaign along this line that is being inaugurated locally.

Dr. McKay is authority for the statement that, although Oshawa's population has nearly doubled in the past seven years, the immunization efforts of the health authorities have in that time cut down the number of cases of the dread disease to fifteen a year, whereas seven years ago, with a much smaller population, the figure ran from fifty to one hundred cases.

Furthermore, Oshawa's Medical Officer of Health declares that the immunization of children is effected without the slightest danger to those treated.

This statement, amply proven by Oshawa's experience, should be remembered when parents of Peterborough children are called upon to let their families receive protection against diphtheria.

Already large numbers of Peterborough's children have been immunized; the present campaign should complete the much-desired protection of the majority of local youngsters.

NOW IT'S UP TO YOU.

Many months of planning and hard work are represented in the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, which for the balance of the week will occupy first place in the thoughts of the people of this city and district.

Events of this calibre do not spring into being over night

The thousand and one details that enter into the success of the Exhibition have occupied the attention of the Directors ever since the 1926 fair.

Months ago many of them had to be considered and arranged, and the hard-working body of city men and farmers who comprise the Board of Management have sacrificed their own time and pleasure in order that the Exhibition might be one in which every citizen could take an honest pride and out of which every citizen could obtain a vast amount of clean amusement and at the same time derive other benefits of an educational nature.

How admirably they have succeeded in these aims can only be realized by frequent visits to the Exhibition.

The Examiner therefore advises its readers to go often, promising that they will find something new and worth while with every visit.

The best Exhibition in Peterborough's history awaits you.

FOR FEWER PROVINCES?

It has been suggested that the Conservatives meeting in convention in Winnipeg might discuss the subject of reducing the number of Provincial Legislatures by uniting the Maritime Provinces and making a similar union on the prairies. It is doubtful if much will be done in this way. It is a matter for a Provincial rather than a Federal convention, and the rovinces concerned might resent outside interference. Apart from this objection, the economy to be effected would be less than might at first sight appear. It would be confined to what may be called overhead, that is the cost of government and legislation, as distinguished from expenditures on public works education and similar services benefitting the people. The necessity for such services would be as great with one Legislature as with three.

The Maritime Provinces are so small in area as compared with the rest that amalgamation may seem to outsiders to be a reasonable change. The total area is 80,597 square miles. But until the Maritimers themselves show some enthusiasm for union there the discussion is hardly practical.

On the prairies the situation is very different. The Provinces are very large in area, Manitoba 251,832, Saskatchewan 251,700, and Alberta 255,285 square miles. These areas are quite large enough for convenience of administration, while the combined area of about 760,000 square miles would probably be too large. Persons having business requiring their presence at the Provincial capital would have to travel, in many cases, very great distances. This difficulty exists in Ontario and Quebec, and in Ontario there has been agitation for dividing the Province. It is true that it is not very strongly supported, but it illustrates the difficulty to which we have referred. In Ontario and Quebec the tendency to leave things alone operates in favor of the large Provincial area. On the prairies the same inertia would operate against the change. In any case it is their own business.

The talk of "too much government" in Canada is really a protest against the Federal system. A good deal of economy might be effected if there were no Provincial Legislatures at all, but the plan is quite unworkable. It was discarded at Confederation because it was found to be unworkable with only two Provinces, and it was only by adopting the more elastic system that the addition of others and the vast expansion of area was made possible. The extra expense is the price we pay for convenience.—London Advertiser.

FUN FOR EVERYBODY.

There has been considerable discussion recently in some English papers on the question whether the average individual got more fun out of life in "the good old days" than at present, those days in the particular discussion being represented by the seventies, eighties and nineties of the past century. The argument got momentum from the glorification of the past by a cheerful octogenarian, one Lord Lambourne, who acknowledges that "he still gets plenty of spice out of life but that people today lack the real cheerfulness they possessed when I was a youngster" Mr. Collinson Owen commenting on Lord Lambourne's remarks takes up the cudgels for the present and thinks that the octogenarian dwells too freely on the past delights of a very small section of society.

"In reading Lord Lambourne's views of what life was like in mid and late Victorian times we must remember that he led a particular sort of life, that of the favored aristocrat, a life which was the privilege of the few and quite unknown to the ordinary man. An elderly man of today who in the eighties was a clerk, a bricklayer, or even a professional man would tell a very different story of what life was like in those 'good old days.' In that Victorian London which Lord Yambourne knew, the young man about town of his class was peculiarly favored. Democracy had not yet begun to make itself felt, and it was still regarded as quite right and natural that the good times should be enjoyed only by a few. Bohemian London must have been a very good place for those who were of it—with its well born young men who knew how to mix, its literary, artistic and sporting members and its many interesting characters of a more leisured and less worried age. But while this particular set had an excellent time, there wasn't much fun going for anybody else. Even the womenkind who belonged to those favored few lived very restricted lives, with the shadow of the chaperon over their slightest activities. They had next to no liberty, and very little of what today we should call pleasure. The same restrictions applied to all women, whatever degree of the social scale they might occupy. And all other men, apart from the 'bloods,' led very uneventful lives, according to our standards of today."

Mr. Owen's point is well taken. What has happened to a great extent in the Motherland and even to a greater extent in this country is that pleasure has become democratized. No longer is it necessary that in order to get plenty of real joy out of life a man or woman should belong to one particular and restricted set of society. Pleasure may be less intense for a few than it was in the good old days of Victoria, but it has broadened immensely, has become infinite in its variety, and is now attainable by almost everybody. The slogan of today of "the best possible time for the greatest number" is the surest indication of real progress and will in due time entirely eradicate that dreadful old doctrine of the favored few and the toiling masses. Cheap motor cars and good roads have opened up all the glorious delights of the great out-of-doors to rich and poor alike; golf, tennis, dancing, skating, ski-ing, the theatre and the radio are now within the reach of practically everybody; and no one need want for a measure of joyous recreation who is willing to earn it by an honest day's work.

And perhaps the finest point in this democratization of pleasure is that women share in it on almost exactly equal terms with men. In the past 15 years woman has become man's real companion, no longer a household drudge, a simpering mystery in ungainly masses of shapeless clothes or a timorous plaything of passion who faints at the sight of a cut finger, but a healthy, vigorous, courageous playmate and workmate who has rightfully demanded her place in the sun and has not lost one iota of her real womanliness or charm in her glad metamorphosis. For this and the other reasons enumerated, we take off our hats to the best period in history and shed no tears for the lost delights of the "good old days."—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make it 45,000 in 1927.

One of the best features of the whole Exhibition will be the army of children that will be there tomorrow.

With the Peterborough Ball Club playing the Toronto champions here tomorrow in the Ontario semi-finals, it is fortunate that James Stevenson Park is available. The home team would have been out of luck if they had had to depend upon the Exhibition Grounds.

All roads lead to Peterborough this week—and even detours cannot keep the crowd away.

With the engineers' bridge and the Rotary arch at the Exhibition Grounds, there is a pleasing reminiscence of the Diamond Jubilee celebration.

Tomorrow is Children's Day at the Exhibition, and young Canada will be there in full strength. As the country correspondents used to say, a good time will be had by all.

What the North Huron by-election result proves depends upon the colour of the political glasses through which you examine it.

Members of the Ontario Government say they have had no complaints from Windsor citizens as to conditions there. Nor is it likely that there will be any from Detroit visitors.

This is your own Exhibition. Your week to enjoy yourself. Let's go.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—A fair trade was done in wheat with both the United Kingdom and the Continent on the Montreal grain market yesterday.

The trade in cash grain in the local market was quiet. Argentine corn was weaker and prices were reduced one cent per bushel with sales of car lots at $1.04 per bushel. Canadian Western oats were unchanged.

Owing to the continued weakness in the Winnipeg cash wheat situation, a weaker feeling developed in the local market for Spring wheat grades of flour and prices were reduced twenty cents per barrel. The local trade was quiet, but the export demand was fair.

A moderate amount of business was worked in Winter wheat flour and values were steady.

A fairly active business was done in millfeed and the undertone was firm. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet, but prices were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of eggs were well maintained under a good demand. The receipts were 1,201 cases.

The butter market was without any new feature to note, prices ruled steady with a small trade passing. The receipts were 980 packages.

In sympathy with the marked advance in prices paid for cheese in the country at the close of last week, local values were marked up ½c to 1 cent per pound. The local and foreign demand was fair.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, September 13 (Canadian Press). — Corn underwent a sensational setback in price yesterday. Widespread hot weather forcing the corn crop to overcome to a remarkable extent the growth handicaps which have prevailed for months led to selling on a big scale.

After an extreme tumble of 5¾c a bushel for the day, corn closed unsettled, 3c to 4c net lower. Wheat finished ¾c to 1¼c down; oats, ¼c off to a shade up; the provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 15 cents.

With high temperatures unusual for this time of year intensified yesterday, and with a forecase pointing to continued hot weather, notably suspicious for hastening the maturity of the new corn crop, rushes to the selling side of the corn market began right at the outset. The fact that receipts of corn in Chicago yesterday aggregated more than 500 cars acted as a further stimulus to let go of holdings and for at least the time being all talk of probable crop failure was at a decided discount.

Lowest prices yet this season were touched, both for December and for March deliveries and the rapid downward swing of the market forced into action many standing orders to stop losses at various fixed limits. Meanwhile country offerings of corn to arrive in Chicago were materially increased, and speculative purchasing was restricted for the most part to previous sellers who were in a position to collect a profit. Even on the declines, buying of this character was far from being aggressive, and consequent rallies were modest, amounting finally to 2⅛c at the outside, compared with the day's bottom level.

Rains in the Canadian harvest district tended temporarily to steady the wheat market, but liberal arrivals of wheat at Duluth, together with corn weakness, pulled wheat values down later. Wheat export business totalled 1,700,000 bushels, most of it Canadian. Oats sympathized but little with corn, rural offerings of oats being light.

Provisions were higher, early influenced by hog values, but afterward reacted with corn and cotton.

CLUB BAG GIVEN MATHER'S GIRL

People Of Corners Meet To Honor Miss Marion Adams.

LEAVING DISTRICT.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. Robert Adamson on Wednesday night when about sixty of the young people of Mather's Corners gathered to bid farewell to his daughter, Marion, who leaves in a few days for Port Hope where she is entering the hospital as nurse-in-training.

During the evening the following address was read by Miss Katie Thompson while Miss Viola Wilson presented Miss Adamson with a handsome club bag.

Dear Marion:

We think of you tonight as we gather at this social gathering of friends, who meet to bring to you good wishes on the occasion of your going from us to train for a nurse.

We desire to express to you our appreciation of your companionship and your help in this community, but we feel what is our loss here will be another's gain, for we believe you will carry your loving and helpful qualities into still another sphere.

We ask you to accept this club bag, not for its personal value but as a token of our love and goodwill to you, and in your new work may it often bring to you pleasant memories of Mather's Corners.

Signed on behalf of the young people of this community, and your friends—Ethel Collins, Viola Wilson, Herb Thompson.

Miss Adamson replied in a very fitting manner.

After the presentation supper was served by the ladies who had prepared sufficient sandwiches, cake and lemonade. The singing of "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow" closed a very enjoyable evening.

MIDWAY TO TAX CAPACITY OF EXHIBITION GROUNDS

Thirty-Car Train Carries Carnival on Tour of Country.

22 SHOWS

Latest Rides, Whips and Houses of Comedy Are Included.

The midway for the Peterborough Exhibition this year will be provided by the Zeidman and Pollis shows. This will be the biggest show ever sent out by Zeidman and Pollie, containing not less than 800 people, who for the thirty-seven weeks they are on the road will collect $391,400 for salaries and incidental expenses. The cost of transportation for this term will be more than $55,000 and the daily cost of operation, $1,700. Before the show gets back to Savannah, where it winters, it will have covered 21,677 miles. The show comes directly here from Quebec City, and after finishing in this district jumps to the Southeastern Fair, held in Atlanta. Since April 9, when it made its first appearance, the show has visited Baltimore, New York City, Brooklyn, Newark, Rochester, Buffalo, and other cities in the States, thence to Hamilton, Ontario, for the Diamond Jubilee and Old Home Week, then to Winnipeg Manitoba, and later to different cities in Quebec, whence it will come to Peterborough.

There will be twenty-two shows in connection with this company, which will tax the capacity of the Exhibition grounds. This is without doubt the largest midway that Peterborough has ever been fortunate enough to secure and will provide wholesome entertainment for all who avail themselves of the opportunity for education, amusement and trials of skill and chance in the circus city.

Included in the variety of shows is the KeKai troupe of Hawaiian performers, Mike and Ike, the midget twins supported by their troupe of performing Lilliputians, Miss Irene Dare, the one woman in the world who drives an automobile in her death-defying stunts on the straight walls of a motordrome while other dare-devil performers flout life and limb, while flirting with the Great Beyond in their spectacular motorcycle rides about the quivering, vibrating walls of the drome. Equally interesting and inviting to the diverse tastes of the thrill seekers are the rides, whips chutes, and houses of comedy that will be scattered among the general conglomoration of souvenir, ice cream, soft drink, and hot dog stands during the big week when that tremendous army of entertainers invades our city and comes to rest like a flock of giant birds spreading canvas wings for a few days rest in the local haven provided for them before they continue their great migration.

Because of the great number of laborers who have left the farms of France, farmers are installing modern agricultural machinery to replace the cheap labor.

FLOWER SHOW ATTRACTS ALL LOVERS OF BEAUTY

Enthusiasm for Gladioli Should Make This Year Outstanding.

BLOOMS ARE GOOD

Professional and Amateur Gardeners Get Together Wonderful Show.

The Flower Show should be comparatively one of the most interesting departments of Peterborough's Exhibition this week. Favorable weather of late and a gradually expanding and deepening rivalry among local amateur and semi-professional florists should bring out a fine display of our Autumn flowers.

Those who have observed the waxing enthusiasm for gladioli during the last three years and the increasing number of exhibitors of the colorful blades will be much disappointed if this year's "Glad" section does not set a new record. The flowers are available in the city and district they are in the gardens, and it is sincerely hoped that they will be transferred to the show tables this week.

The Aster benches should also be burdened with bloom. The Summer has been agreeable to them and they are now at the heighth of their flowering. All the other floral classes should present a repetition to the judges and public, and if any special appeal be necessary it might be pointed out to flower lovers and growers that the success of this department depends on them alone. It is their section of the Exhibition and if they neglect it ,rather if they fail to give it their heartiest support, it will not be the beauty spot which a little special effort can make of it.

The professional florists have usually contributed largely to the displays. They should set an example, as it were, not only to their competitors, but to the general public in order that the spirit of emulation in the improvement of public and home gardens may be quickened. Greenhouse products and the designs are always pleasing to the thousands of people who rarely see the best effects of the professional florist's work in his home surroundings. His excursions ,therefore, into the public arena of horticultural exhibits provide striking foregrounds and centrepieces in the flower show.

But an expected feature of this department may be the competition among the gladioli growers as mentioned above. It is hoped that none of those who have been developing their array of spikes will avoid this tourney, because it seems to partake of the spirit of the armed jousts of the old days, except that the swords of these knights of the floral lists will be bright blades drawn from their green sheaths in the gladioli gardens.

Corn

Relieved in 15 Minutes

Hot, sultry days tire even healthy feet. If you have corns the pain becomes unendurable. But, why have corns? Why be prevented from enjoying the pleasures of summer days? Be rid of your corns quickly, easily, painlessly with Radox Bath Salts, which tackle corns in the only effective way—at the roots. After one or two Radox footbaths you can remove corns, root and all. Read this letter:—

"After treating one corn for over ten years with various salts, etc., and other minor corns for five or six years, I decided to-night, after walking about in agony, to buy a package of your Radox Bath Salts. Believe me, or believe me not, after soaking my feet for 15 minutes in the Radox water, all the pain stopped, and now, after six hours during which time I have walked about four miles, my feet are easy and painless. I feel sure, after a few soakings, the corns will be completely removed."

LATER (June 27th).—"I have great pleasure in informing you that my feet are now free from corns."

R.R.W.

When you dip your foot into a footbath containing Radox, the dead skin (of the corn) combines with the Radox Salts to form a protein salt of the actual corn itself. This protein salt dissolves in the water, and so softens the corn that, after a few baths, it may be lifted out bodily. Radox does not affect the living skin, but dissolves the dead skin—the corn.

POST OFFICE EXHIBIT AIMS AT BETTER MAILING SERVICE

A Hundred Letters a Day Held Up Here by Carelessness.

NOT ADDRESSED

Officials Are Past Detectives and Solve Many Puzzles.

One hundred letters are held up in the city post office every day because of the carelessness of the senders in the matter of addresses. In some cases, says Charles Lacheur, postmaster, there are no addresses at all, or the name of the street is missing ,or perhaps the number is omitted. Eventually most of those that are held up are figured out and sent on to their proper addresses.

Since September 1, no less than fifty letters have been sent from this city to the Dead Letter Office in Toronto because of faulty addresses, combined with the fact that the senders had failed to place their own addresses on their letters for return in the case of non-delivery.

Were it not that the Post Office possesses officials who can read between the lines, as it were, and have many of the qualities of Sherlock Holmes, many letters would take a long, long time to reach their destination and others would never come into the hands for which they were intended. From the post office where the letter was mailed, if delivery is impossible and no return address is placed on the envelope, the letter is sent to the Dead Letter Office. From there it goes to the Inspection Department and finally to the Directory Service.

Much of the carelessness of addressing is of the simple variety, and is easily rectified by the Directory Service experts. For example, a letter is addressed to W. Brown, Kent Street, Peterborough. The expert, who has access to every directory in Canada, knows that there is no Kent Street in Peterborough. But he knows there is one in Lindsay, and he has the postal authorities in Lindsay endeavour to find out if there is a man of that name living at that address .

Other errors are more complex and take a lot of shrewd guessing. Generally, however, through experience and intuition combined, the expert succeeds in solving the difficulty confronting him. But the point is that if people would only take a bit of care when they address their letters, the ability of such expert officials would be available for use in more constructive channels.

Let us suppose that a letter is sent from Peterborough to Tom Smith, 118 Kent Street, with no name of the town included. Local postal authorities know that there is such a street in Lindsay. A letter is sent to Lindsay with a special form asking the postmaster at Lindsay to have the letter delivered if the prorecipient lives there, and if this cannot be done to return it to Peterborough . On the other hand, if a letter is addressed to a number in Bloor Street, Ottawa, for example, the Post Office officials here, although they have a shrewd idea that Toronto, not Ottawa, is the city that is meant, send it on to Ottawa. The business of discovering the exact destination is left to the experts in the Directory Service.

Many letters are received from senders in England, the United States ,and the other British Dominions addressed simply to street numbers in Ontario, without mentioning the name of the city. Numerous letters of this kind have come to Peterborough during the present year. One letter originally mailed to an address in Massachusetts, was re-addressed to a number on Weller Street, the name of the city not being given. The Directory Service sent it on to Peterborough, and in this city was located the individual for whom the letter was intended.

Similarly a letter mailed to an address in King Street, Fredericton eventually found its way to Peterborough, where on King Street of this city lived the person for whom the letter was meant.

The Post Office exhibits at the Peterborough Industrial Fair, says Mr. Lacheur, are placed there for the purpose of educating the public in the proper methods of handling their mail. Co-operation with the Post Office will make better mailing service for everybody. The two points strongly to be emphasized are: The need of care in fully addressing letters, and the absolute necessity of putting return addresses on all mail matter posted. Where a correct return address is written on the outside of the envelope, a long and often tedious search is eliminated. In the case of failure to deliver, the letter can simply be returned to the sender for further instructions. In the case of letters requiring immediate answering, the wisdom of writing the return address would seem to be obvious, but it is often such letters that lack this essential precaution.

Another point emphasized by Mr. Lacheur is this: Never send money through the mails without registering the letter or sending it by means of a money order or a postal note.

Dr CHASE'S OINTMENT

Coziness and Color Contrast

By Marjorie Howe Dixon.

A very interesting satire on the interior decorator in his native l[illegible]s, with comment on the rooms he is guilty of committing, stated that he selected one color for an interior and then arranged it in tones from light to dark in that color.

"Ah," one hears him murmur with fingers delicately bridged over his smart waistcoat, "Mauve," — sigh, "Mauver, Mauvest."

Such a plan is indeed safe, but not very original. Brown used to be the mainstay of those who wanted to arrange a room in a stout durable color. It would not show dirt, you know. One woman remarked that on moving into a house she had found the kitchen painted in dull disagreeable browns and had promptly done it over in lighter colors "Think," said her friend "how gayly you could have splashed the gravy!"

Color Important Factor.

Color is now receiving study that is its due and while some homes will always present a wild mixture of jarring colors the result of trying to assemble all sorts of fads and fancies, other homes are emerging from their sombre hues and are taking on studied color harmonies and contrasts that delight all who see them.

Just what constitutes coziness? One room seems to you cozy and another repels you. Hominess is such an enjoyable quality to find, that it is surely worth consideration. Too great precision will always defeat it. It was said of one house, "It was beautiful—there was everything you could want, but they had no books."

Books surely do help. Then, too, there must be other evidences that the room is actually lived in.

Use Wood Paneling.

Instead of the survival of the fittest decoration is undergoing a revival of the fittest. One direction it is taking is renewed interest in wall treatments. Wall paper is with us again and wood paneling.

Wall paper deserves a long story, all its own, which space forbids. Wall paper designs are as endless in variety as are fabric designs. There are patterns appropriate for every room and several possible periods for that room. Selection of wall paper involves discrimination and care, and at the same time it can show forth our individual taste, or lack of it.

One interesting development is the appearance of careful copies of old designs that are so helpful when one is trying to fit up a room accurately, and has selected, say 1820, as a date line, as it were.

For a while those who could afford to have old wall paper actually lifted from old houses, were the ones who could accomplish this desired end. Now the paper manufacturers are wisely taking care of this demand.

Wood panneling when really studied is as full of variation and possibilities as wall paper. Mouldings and panel shapes come in for consideration and bookshelves as well. Recessed bookshelves fit in well with paneling and with one's plans for housing them at the same time.

A wall surface given over to shelving for books is of necessity a colorful surface.

It can be counted to break an otherwise monotonous wall. And then again there is the liveable quality of books. When you come into a living room where there is a profusion of books on tempting open shelves at once there is something to talk about and mutual friends to discuss.

Graceful Arched Tops.

Panelled walls in dining rooms come in for their share of study, and shelving problems appear here too. In one home Colonial corner cabinets have open shelves on which to display treasured china. Other similar cabinets have closed doors that fit trimly into a gracefully arched top.

A Directoire dining room had interesting cabinets lined with red plush—needless to say there were no doors. Chintz patterned paper is sometimes used and with much white enamel, pale blue paint appears.

To continue with the dining room. The floor was of tile in tan shades blending with the handsome inlaid walnut dining set. The walls were hung with printed silk in tones of burnt sienna. Against one wall a stunning tall mirror sans frame hung over the wide buffet. A Feach leather screen added its quiet note of dignity. Wrought iron fern stands stood either side of a large window with straight heavy drapes. A pair of love seats faced each other across one side of the room.

Back to Simplicity.

The return to simplicity that enjoys Colonial interiors, Spanish and Italian effects is shown too in a room with a strong Norman influence, carried out with careful attention to detail. One great beam over the ceiling, another over the fireplace, a wooden bench before the fire—all these in their crudity and strength instantly drew one's attention. A cane seated chair faced the bench, at the right place from which to reach the wrought iron fire set. Torcheres of iron and a ceiling fixture with simulated candles, were in keeping with the room. On one wall a fine tapestry over a great chest looked across at a recessed window in which sat a fat bottle of colored glass.

Even the child's room is carefully worked out according to a period, these days. Hunting up small sized pieces to fit a certain period must be a fascinating occupation. One can imagine discovering a chest with the original brasses, then starting from there to carry out a plan.

Fittings for Room.

Hooked rugs would occur to one next, and a cane seated Hitchcock chair, would fit in there too. A small secretary desk with a good top of the broken arched variety would indeed be a find for this room. A Colonial mirror, an overstuffed chair in a small patterned chintz, a rabbit and a kitten of gingham, and of course an old-fashioned doll with a china head, would be all that would be needed to complete the joy of the youngster lucky enough to inherit all this happiness.

When one loves flowers, the winter alas, comes all too soon. But in one's bedroom they can be preserved through the long winter months in the form of brightly colored bouquets on the wall paper, or if one prefers, in the patterns of the drapes.

Effect of Harmony.

Flowered paper usually means plain drapes of a harmonizing color. Ruffled silk or cotton fabrics carry the proper sprightly note with dainty glass curtains of net. A hooked rug on the marquetry floor may use flowers for its design. And without feeling that there are too many posies they may appear again in the chintz that covers the maple chairs. A maple bed in this room should be lovely with a candlestick spread, and of course as long as they can be obtained there should be bowls of flowers on the dressing case, and on the pretty maple desk.

How many very definite and interesting qualities go into the making of a room! There is texture—the texture of fabrics, of wall surfaces, of woodwork, and of the furniture. There is sunlight and shadow. There is color harmony and color contrast. And last of all but most important, there is imagination. It is this quality which distinguishes the delightful room from the commonplace one.

FALL OPENING

The dawn of a new season—and that season Autumn! Every woman is asking, "What shall I wear?" As she turns from the flippant informality that is Summer's to the more varied and defined requirements that belong to Fall and Winter, she will find her question fashionably answered in our early display of the mode for Fall, 1927.

A new note is struck in the fashions for this season—there's a decided trend toward formality and a freedom of motion about the new modes that indicates a very interesting attempt to break away from the tailored regime that has held sway for so many seasons.

First Fall Showing

At Local Stores

TURNBULL'S STORE.

It isn't often that His Satanic Majesty gets a look-in on feminine apparel, but he has his innings this year, when a small hat named for him comes to town next week. At the Turnbull Store they are showing this little "Devil" hat, of American origin, by the way, with its close-fitting shape pierced by front points at either side.

For the "flapper," or chicken, as they term them nowadays, there are many types of hat, with coquettish and jaunty trimmings of either the felt or satin that makes so many of the smart, new combinations. Another return from the shelves of years back are the tiny coq feather hats, made in little shapes entirely of feathers or with the crown composed of the soft, clinging plumage. Side effects in coq feather trims are also to be much shown. Hats designed especially for the matron have been christened the "Marilyn," are made with larger head sizes approximating twenty-four inches ,and are dignified affairs of silk and velvet, mainly in the black, which is so popular this year, along with wine reds and greens. But other shades are just as good, as witness the very many royal blue models and the hats in honeydew (beige) and Athenia (rose).

Little junior hats come in enchanting mid - Victorian poke-bonnet shapes, with the elastic band under the chin.

In the Turnbull Store, they are featuring needlepoint in their dress coats, with suedene, duvetyn, and broadcloth. A lovely model of needlepoint is developed in a dark Copenhagen blue, with shawl collar of Thibet fur. A fern-leaf green of the same material has silk embroidery on the sides, a gorgeous brocaded lining and collar and cuffs of sable, while a Napoleon blue (an exquisite shade) in needlepoint, has diagonal strappings and embroidered motifs to lend distinction to its modelling. A fabric coat of brocaded moleskin has a shawl collar and cuffs of Thibet and a rose beige broadcloth is trimmed with opossum fur.

In the gown section, there are crepe romains and taffetas, the latter adorned in smart little frocks with much bright embroidery around the hem and smocking at the hips. Figured georgettes come in many of the high, bright shades, and there are charmeens in subdued colours. One of these in navy has a moleskin collar of narrow cut and moleskin pockets with huge flaps, while strappings of silk military braid and smoked pearl buttons give it tone. Another black model has a back panel composed entirely of the silk braid, and still another uses a long line of buttons to emphasize the slender line of the back, from neck to hem.

Kiddies' coats of tweed and polo cloth show the flare for fur collars, and there are sweaters of scarlet and grey wool, windbreakers of unique patterns and mackinaw-like coats with buttons on their flap pockets. For the rainy days there are rainbow-hued coats of "Durane," a rubberized material, and slickers of oilskin, with matching parasols.

A novelty in the kimona line is a "coolie" coat, similar to the garments worn by the burden-bearers of the Orient. These bring the aroma of Eastern lands along with them, and the symbols of Japanese and Chinese languages in the figures that splash their broad lapels. Coming from the Orient some years ago, a visiting missionary amused himself with translating the words written among the winding patterns of the women's dresses, made of the Chinese crepes popular at that time. Anyone wearing one of these colourful, short jackets, with their conventionalized, weird designs of flowers and fruits and lanterns, may achieve a conversational effect with Oriental visitors by appearing in these garments, that are made of light weight kashas and sport geometrical designs in vivid oranges, blues, and reds.

The standard corduroy velvet kimonas also have their place, developed in American Beauty and flaming orange hues.

There are middies of white and blue for the juniors, and an interesting novelty in the "tomboy" skirts that come in tweeds and woollens and Poiret twills, in plain and pleated effects, finished by a coloured belt and bright buckles with leather straps. The vogue for longer skirts that seems to be creeping into being has nothing to do with these jaunty little garments, so diminutive in length, nor indeed, with any of the frocks shown, with the exception of something unusual in evening wear. Milady still appears quite content to display her ankles and limbs at all times.

DICKSON'S STORE.

The standard staples that are house hold necessities are the main offerings of the old-established Dickson Store on George Street. Supplies of every type may be purchased, and the store is the mecca of hundreds of customers who have shopped here for years past.

On the shelves are dry goods; sheeting and cotton and flannelette, silk and dress goods, the silk and wool jersey cloth that has such an attractive sheen to its surface, silk and wool suitings, colored and cream flannels and velvets. Here are the crepes which have had such a long and intensive run in popular favor, in their variations of pussy willow, satin-faced and crepe romain, the filmy georgettes for evening and afternoon wear, and the new bellcord silk that comes in all shades, and resembles a heavy Rayon in texture.

The French delaines that are featured just now in all-wool fabric, have dozens of differing patterns, in floral and conventionalized designs, samples of them sporting mauve and green shades on a beige ground, or grey and blue on mauve, or purple and green on an orchid foundation.

Here are linens for the table and the bedroom, parasols in every shade, printed scarfs in georgette, and the new saddle-sewn gloves of chamoisette in pull-on style.

Special lines are the Belding-Corticelli and Mercury silk hose in full-fashioned effect and ladies' Oxford silk lingerie in all colors, in bobbettes, bloomers, slips, vests and gowns.

CODE INSTALLED

makes Warm Air Heating the most efficient system known to Science!

AMONG heating experts warm air is known as the most healthful and economical form of domestic heating. It fosters health—gives winter-long comfort. It costs about one-half that of other systems. Yet, because so many warm air furnaces are unscientifically installed, thousands of householders are not getting the results they should.

How can this condition be remedied?

The answer is "Code Installation". A "Code Installed" Warm Air Heating System is a system installed according to tried and proven scientific principles. There is no guesswork. "Code Installed" warm air guarantees an unfailing abundance of moist, circulating healthful heat —seventy degrees in every room during sub-zero weather.

McClary's are the only Canadian members of the National Warm Air Heating and Ventilating Association—an association which has adopted a scientific code for installing warm air furnaces. By insisting on a McClary's "Code Installed" Sunshine Furnace you are guaranteed a heating system which costs less to buy and less to maintain than more elaborate systems—yet provides 70 degrees of heating in every room.

Ventiblast

McClary's Ventiblast is an exclusive feature of McClary's Sunshine Furnace, which burns soft coal equally as well as hard coal, coke or wood. It mixes preheated air with soft coal gases and converts them into flame—thus eliminating soot, waste and dust.

Fill in and mail attached coupon, and we will send you name and address of the nearest McClary's dealer who will guarantee a "Code Installed" heating system which will give lifetime satisfaction.

THE HALL STORE.

The dress coats that mean so much to the autumn modes are to be seen in profusion in the show rooms of the Hall Store. With their flares and their furs and their fantastic variations, they dominate the scene.

Here is a navy needlepoint whose flared front closes obliquely enough to show the under part of the covered portion and has a dyed opossum shawl collar and bandings, while a rich brown suedene depends on the new fox paw fur for its trimming. Mandel fur makes the collar that harmonizes so well with the soft brown of another model that boasts high pointed flaps to its pockets. Silver grey chinchilla with the same shade in its fur adornment forms a neighbouring garment, while veldine, with a soft pile finish, is a favourite material whose development in one model shows the fad for a lining that has an upper portion of fur fabric for warmth, the lower part being developed in plain crepe.

Afternoon frocks are lovely here in the high shades and also the blacks that are not sombre in the lustrous finish of their fabrics and the glitter of their ornaments. One lovely model is of black georgette with applique of gold and red roses, its kick pleat opening tiny cuffs and pendant bow at the back showing triple rows of emerald gold, green and peach.

A three-piece dress is developed in morning glory blue crepe in jacket and pleated skirt, the former bright with chiffley (cutwork) embroidery, the top of ivory silk crepe, and a brilliant frock shows three tones of brown, ranging from cocoa to French beige, the skirt made of the three shades in tiers and the top finished by a neckline and jabot of cream lace.

A dress of baby rose with soft peach and heavy cream folds to the neck and cuffs has a tiered skirt, while a striking model of gooseberry green has a high light in a huge buckle of French enamel with Watteau-like figures in white on its green surface, the flared skirt ending in an uneven hem and a lace V and cuffs. Tiny pin tucks appear vertically on the upper portion and horizontally on the skirt.

A two-piece frock of georgette appears in a rosy grey and a dark slate grey, with pleated skirt, the tunic top and skirt trimmed with geometrically-fashioned rows of silver braid and the front finished with a slate-grey tie.

A navy georgette in coat style has a skirt heavily braided in silk and a lining of grey with a cascade finished with tiny buttons, while alternating pleated panels of black and white form the skirt of a dress whose tunic of black is stiffly encrusted with heavy white embroidery.

Afternoon frocks are made of faille and charmeen, a rose beige of the latter material having gold embroidery on pocket flaps, cuffs and collar, and a monkeyskin hue appearing with insets of cocoa brown.

Knitted jerseys in two-tone style are very dainty, with their ribbed skirts that suggest pleating in so many instances, and their soft tones of pelican grey, beige, castor and camel, all variations of grey and warm tan shades. Little Stando collars of cut wool finish some of these suits, and one model has a V-neck with a little collar at the back, done in sand with stripes of terra cotta pink at the bottom of the upper portion.

In hats, the Hall Store shows a distinct variety, both in colour and formation. Here may be found the little brimmed hats that are still popular, the off the face effects with ear tabs and rolling facings that suggest aeroplane wear and the snappy, small helmet shapes. A model of black shows the ear muffs that would be calculated to dull the street noises, while a rose felt has a grey band that boasts insets showing a gold tinge. Royal blues and tans, all shades of beige and sand and blacks are pronounced as very good for fall wear, while blues and greens come a brave second. It is said that any woman can wear a green hat, provided she gets the exact shade of green to suit her complexion. At any rate, there is plenty of choice here.

A bright red model is trimmed with silver, while the same metallic tint trims a soft delft blue and blacks are numerous and lovely, in the felt and velvet and velvet and felt and satin combinations of the moment.

The uneven treatment of lines in formation and brim and trimming is a feature of the new hats, along with their extreme, close-fitting calibre. Odd ideas in sudden little projections over brows and ears are very evident and unexpected and a good word for the long-haired comes in the information that hats are softer this year, with more "give" to them, and head sizes are larger.

McNABB'S STORE.

The latest ideas of the mode are on display in the showcases of the J. A. McNabb Company's store, where ladies' ready-to-wear goods of the most up-to-date type are sold.

The fascinating combinations of materials that are featured in so many things this season are noted here in the frocks, and the unusual variety of color also. Velvet and crepe romain makes a lovely dress of quaint design, with a cape effect at the back, scalloped as to edge and flimy as to material, caught at the shoulder with a dark cerise flower centred by a brilliant butterfly. A colored flesh slip has a wide hem of black and the long sleeves, slightly fulled at the cuffs, and the skirt draperies are inset with large velvet flowers. A velvet girdle has a wide rhinestone buckle as a highlight.

A satin-faced crepe, also in black, shows the cascade trimming at the side and the reverse use of self material that adds such a distinctive touch to the glistening material. A hand-cut flower finishes the shoulder line.

The vogue for flares and drapes and fuller skirts is emphasized in many of the models, but there is a slender effect to the lines of a tailored crepe satin stitched elaborately in poudre blue and finished with a suede belt.

A dark wine shade satin has a front drapery and shirred effect at the top of the flares, caught by rhinestone buckles and sporting tiny rows of self-buttons on the sleeves. This dress, whose skirt back is composed of the glistening side of the satin, edged by a hem of the duller crepe, has a waistline finish that gives the impression of a plain gathered fullness.

A matron's dress in coat effect has a vestee and panel back draped in, in charming fashion, while touches of heavy silver embroidery give it a distinctive air. Another black frock of mature lines has a rose beige vestee.

A crepe romain in black whose accordion-pleated skirt is edged deeply with transparent velvet and whose blouse portion shows wide bands of the same lovely goods has a fascinating cameo brooch as a front fastening, while another cut crystal ornament with pendant drops makes a glittering touch on another gown of black.

A tailored model in black flat crepe with very deep girdle shows the use in odd design of huge floral ornaments composed of alternate dull blue and black petals, laid on flatly. This dress has a rounded neck ending in a V line at the left side, another of the season's fancies, and shirred side drapes topped by the petal-like motifs.

A charming evening frock is developed in two odd shades of honeydew and orchid taffeta, with a tight-fitting bodice and bouffant skirt whose deep hem shows the same floral treatment as described above. Huge flowers of taffeta composed of honeydew and orchid shades, with poppy centres, are placed at intervals along the hem, while a long bow of orchid taffeta adorns the side front of the frock.

Coats at the McNabb Store show the prevailing influences of the trend of Fashion, in the tweeds and sports models and the needlepoint goods that makes so many of the new models. One lovely coat in needlepoint of a cracklehead blue shade has a tucked back and a shawl collar of moleskin. A black needlepoint has a collar and cuffs of sable.

Swansdown coats are on view here and there is an emphasis on grey lamb trimming in several of the samples.

Two-piece and one-piece jersey suits have the floor for sport and business wear. These little, smart effects that achieve such an air of attractive simplicity in their trig fitness and slender lines are as popular as ever with women of discernment, who find them an agreeable combination of comfort and smartness. In cloth dresses, charmeens of the darker shades are shown, with the always popular black predominating.

CANADIAN DEPARTMENTAL STORES, LIMITED.

Just a half hour spent in the local branch of the Canadian Departmental Stores, Limited, gives one a fine insight into the modes of the moment. Here, on circular racks, revolving to the touch, are the new coats, emphasizing the soft pile fabrics for Autumn wear, the luxurious fur trimming and the side fastenings that are outstanding notes. Look for an instant at this model in the soft shade of new tan that is developed in "mousivella", with its soft, plushy finish. This is a "wrap around" coat, with a side fastening at the left finished with a circular drape edged with the same Russian fox that forms the long shawl collar. A chevron of cording on either side gives a final touch.

Over in the glass-fronted cases against the wall are shimmery little frocks in the lovely shot taffetas, with their sleeveless bodices of tight basque effect and their bouffant skirts. Quaint little Victorian shoulder puffs leave the shoulder bare except for a narrow velvet strap. A fancy of the day is to make the skirt portion of three tiers of petals in three distinct shades, comolning such pastel tints as pink, blue and mauve. Hems are corded, picoted or scalloped, or finished with tiny frills of malines or georgette and the new idea is to have one side of the skirt longer than the other, an effect often achieved by the use of long drapes from the shoulder.

"Shorter, if possible", is the style dictum for skirts, it seems, except in the case of the long-skirted mid-Victorian evening dresses which stand out in contrast to the knee-length models. Another note is the odd neck, commencing with a decorous rounded outline and finishing in an angular "V" at one side. And drapes are the thing, in most instances.

Dinner gowns come in the exquisite transparent velvet, the old-time "ring" velvet familiar to our grandmothers, and in georgettes. For sports wear, this store is showing the jerseys and dainty little combinations of checked and plain goods, the latter emphasizing the predominating shade appearing in the checked portion. Knitted suits in a semi-three-piece effect, the coat and skirt showing an upper vestee portion, are also good.

Hats here show the flair for the close-fitting, snug shape that persists triumphantly in spite of all attempts to oust it by bringing back Miladi's long tresses. Every shade is used apparently, this season, for the small felt and velvet shapes appearing in blazing scarlet, wine red, dull, soft blues, many shades of brown, from nigre to monkey skin, and black, which is always good, and such a safe refuge for the lady with the uncertain complexion.

They are using felt and satin combinations here, with embroidered stitching and applied flowers in leather and silk. Metallic beads in an architectural design give a striking note to one pale brown model.

Shoes take the eye in another section. Here we are told that the tendency is toward a return of a more sensible heel. The stilt model is vanishing, and the short, stubby toe is to be superseded by a slightly longer vamp. Tans are good in Oxfords and patents will reign supreme for evening and dress wear, with satin and silver and gold kid for the dancing foot.

In lingerie, the pastel shades still have the ruling place, with pyjamas a striking exception, many of the models showing bright combinations in red with black, deep orange and blue.

On the fabric counters are spread the lovely stuffs that are to be fashioned into pretty garments, the pussy willow and stain-backed crepes and crepe romains, the gorgeous transparent velvet that has the soft sheen of mist to its lustrous pile, and the shimmery, rainbow-hued taffetas. Here are the figured crepes and georgettes with their intriguing colors and patterns. A casual glance shows only the general dancing effect of the gay patterns of these figured materials. A close scrutiny discovers the colors. Here is a beige ground with a yellow and black floral design, picked out with mauve shadows and vivid orange splashes. Another figured silk crepe shows stiff, conventional little cerise and bright blue cherries laid down with precise formation.

The woollen counter displays crepella in rose and sand, San Toys and kashas and wool delaines, the vogue of black and white prominent in the white romain with a fine black stitching giving the effect of a strange new weave.

BOYS' AND GIRLS' WORK SHOWN AT INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION

Manual Training Grows More Important Year by Year.

SPLENDID DISPLAY

Fancy Work and Sewing Done at City Playgrounds in Summer.

Among the most interesting features of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are the exhibits of work done by the boys of the manual training classes and by the girls on the playgrounds during the summer vacation.

The importance of manual training becomes more and more evident as the years pass, and it has become a factor in the industrial life of the city. Two teachers, Andrew F. Hagerman for the Collegiate and the Normal School and Albert E. Hope for the Public Schools, are in charge of the manual training classes of the city. Workshops are fitted up in the Central Technical School and in the Prince of Wales School, equipped with all the necessary machinery, including band saws, wood turning lathes, and metal turning lathes.

Woodwork chiefly occupies the attention of the students, although it is hoped that later developments will inslude more extensive training in working with metals.

The complete course in manual training comprises four years' study, two years in the Public School and two in the High School. Periods of work are from an hour and a half to two hours per week. In the earlier stages the subjects of work are chosen by the teacher. The pupils draw the various views of the object and later go to work and make it. In the elementary classes there are four stages and the teacher necessarily has to exercise the closest supervision over the progress of the work. In the higher classes, more advanced projects are undertaken, and the teacher does not interfere unless the pupils come to him with a difficulty or are in danger of falling into an error.

During the year a Toy Week is held for which the boys are asked to make something which will move mechanically. Choice is left largely to the pupils themselves, and they are allowed to work out their problems in their own way. Many of the productions of Toy Week find their way to the Exhibition.

Hobby fretwork is also encouraged at home. Boys who are abject failures in the other classes are often remarkably successful in the manual classes.

In the advanced classes at the Collegiate, the work is finished in paint, varnish, or stains. Bird houses, especially wren houses, are favourite objects of manufacture. Hall trees, waste paper baskets, flower stands, and model aeroplanes also find their way to the Exhibition.

Girls' Work.

Fancy work and sewing were occupations of which the girls on the playgrounds never seemed to tire. The regular hours for this part of the day's activities were from 10.30 till 11.15 in the forenoon and from 2.30 till 3.15 in the afternoon, but the supervisors, Miss Rowe, Miss Batten, and Miss McDonald, often found that the girls were eager to have these hours extended. The younger children, many of whom received their first lessons in sewing classes on the playgrounds, were started off with cards containing animal designs in punched holes. The stitches were inserted along the outlines thus made. Girls who showed evidence of proficiency at this class of work were speedily promoted to fancy work.

Although the boys were supposed to be "above" this kind of work, on very hot days when more strenuous pursuits were out of the question, they were sometimes permitted to try their skill at the raffia work.

All three supervisors enjoyed the advantage of Technical School training in sewing and household arts. The efforts of the girls on the playgrounds were directed towards obtaining simple effects. Nothing very complicated was attempted, and the usual fancy work stitches were used.

The exhibits of raffia work and plain and fancy sewing on view in this section at the Exhibition are without exception the work of the pupils of the playground classes.

HATS that Come with the Fall

At Mrs. J. Wilson's Millinery Store on Geogre street are the hats that mark the latest ideas in Fall wear for the head of Madame and her daughters. The velvet turbans that poke quaint ears through coronals of felt, the little berets of close-fitting type, the small caps and helmet-shaped headgear that follow the flair of the moment for aeroplane ideas in hats, are here in the vivid and subdued colors that Fashion decrees for Autumn, for there seems to be no shade that is lost sight of this year. From blues of the fashionable iris tinge, through the flamingo shades that include variations of yellow and orange, with plenty of the modish wine reds, the soft, smoky browns, the silver greys and the lovely greens that range from pine needle hues to misty jade, these little hats exemplify the trend of Style, that arbiter of feminine attire.

Although the little hats predominate, there are large ones to be viewed also, one charming model being developed in pearl grey trimmed with swirls of narrow grey grosgrain ribbon.

Felt and velvet, felt and satin, felt and leather—these are the combinations of the day, carried out, in the majority, in the same tone or in two shades of the same colour. Little visor-like, off-the-face effects are made of velvet, for instance, surmounted by the felt that forms the remainder of the hat. And there are small corded silk shapes with elongated ear tabs of velvet caught by metallic or pearl pins.

Blacks are always popular and in these there are numerous smart models, notably one of soft satin top and felt brim and facing, the corded ribbon band fastened in front by a silver buckle. Another tiny black felt intrigues with its picoted edging and band of grosgrain ribbon.

A green felt has appliqued flowers in red embroidery and a monkey-skin (soft beige) has insets over the entire crown of ribbon in two harmonizing tones of soft brown.

In a glass case are the lovely flowers that are so popular just now; huge, feathery edged blooms of georgette and satin and velvet, in soft orchid and flaming orange; stately white gardenias in the polished linen that has such a glossy finish; long, petal-like silk flowers that droop for six or more inches from their fastenings, and pastel-tinted sweet peas.

POLICE MAKE REGULATIONS FOR EXHIBITION TRAFFIC

Whole Force, Under Inspector Reid, Will be on Hand—Automobiles Must Enter by Lock Street — No Parking on Lansdowne.

CO-OPERATION OF PUBLIC REQUESTED IN MANAGING ABNORMAL TRAFFIC

The whole city police force, under the able command of Inspector James F. Reid, will look after the safety of the public at the big Exhibition.

During this week all motor vehicles must enter the Lock Street entrance, from whence they will proceed straight south around the midway, where a police officer will be stationed directing automobile parking.

No parking will be allowed on Lansdowne Street, from Lock to Park Streets. Motorists will be allowed to park their cars in King Edward Park and along all the side streets approaching the Exhibition Park.

Visitors may park their cars on the Market Square, and on all side streets in the city, parking parallel with the street. On George Street, between McDonnel and King, angle parking on both sides, with time limit of half an hour. In other parts, everyone is asked to park no longer than necessary.

The Police Department ask that the public co-operate to the same extent as they did at the Diamond Jubilee celebrations, and they are sure that the Fair will be put across in a way that it never has before.

FIRE DEPARTMENT READY AT EXHIBITION GROUNDS

Firemen Will Patrol Buildings on Guard for Small Blazes.

HOSE ON HAND

Chemicals and Hose Promise Immediate Help in Emergency.

The Fire Department will have a wagon and men at the grounds during the Exhibition, located just inside the north gate as in other years. There will be chemicals and a hose wagon with 1,200 ft. of hose, two men to patrol the grounds, and one located with the wagon, under the personal supervision of the Chief himself, who is usually on hand during the afternoon and evening.

When a fire is discovered the fire department should be notified at once and then an attempt should be made to hold it in check until the engines arrive. Great damage and loss are caused when people attempt to fight fires without the aid of the professional fire-fighters to whom they finally make a belated appeal for aid when the fire gets beyond their control. An example of the value of an experienced fire-gladiator over amateurs is given when twenty fellows forming a bucket brigade attempted to extinguish a blaze that had started in a house on the out-skirts of the city. Two of the embryo flame-squelchers were seated on the roof of a small porch tossing buckets of water through a front window, as rapidly as they were handed to them. After a half-hour of this they decided to call in expert aid and, a few minutes later when the department arrived, they were still wondering what kept the fire burning. The Chief, taking in the scene at a glance, leaped through the window, himself, and very expeditiously extinguished the flame with two buckets of water delivered at the seat of conflagration.

W.M.S. ENTERTAINS LAKEFIELD BRANCH

Ladies From Two Knox Churches Hold Enjoyable Meeting.

The Women's Missionary Society of Knox United Church held its regular meeting on Friday; the president, Mrs. Watt, occupied the chair.

The meeting opened with devotional exercises. Mrs. McDonald gave the Bible Reading and Miss Dickson led in prayer.

Mrs. Howard Clegg then gave a splendid report of the Whitby Summer School, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

A very pleasant feature of this meeting was the attendance of the Women's Missionary Society of Knox Church, Lakefield.

Supper was served on the lawn at the close of the meeting and a very pleasant social time was spent together.

Many Shares Dealt In Mine Changes Small

TORONTO, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—Although trading on the Standard Mining Exchange was over 700,000 shares, fluctuations in price were very small. Dome Mines dropped sixty points to 9.80, while Amulet eased ten to 4.82. Nipissing was another weak feature, declining twenty to 6.20 and Teck Hughes was off five to 9.25. Keely advanced 2½ to 77½ and Noranda moved up ten to 24.30. Lake Shore and Kirkland Lake were both firmer, the former at 24.86 and Kirkland Lake at 2.22.

Sharp Recovery To-day In New York Market

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—A sharp recovery in prices took place in today's stock market, which was featured by the strength of the telephone, copper and oil shares. Cotton broke about 2.50 a bale at the opening but recovered most of its loss by early afternoon. Wheat futures sold off three to five cents a bushel on the publication of the bearish Canadian Government crop report.

The streneth of the coppers coincided with the reported stiffening of the red metal market and the announcement of a substantial drop in refined stocks on hand last month. Kennecott crossed 75 to a new peak and gains of one to two points were quite common in that group.

Chicago Grain Reacts To Canadian Reports

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—Wheat and corn prices suffered a severe fresh setback to-day, wheat collapsing rapidly 5 1-8c. and corn 5 5-8c. The chief disturbing influence was the Canadian Government crop report which, taken with recent official figures from Washington, showed 77,000,000 bushels more wheat in Canada and the United States than at this time last year. Wheat to-day started 3c to 5 1-8c. off and subsequently held near to the initial bottom level. Corn opened 2 5-8c. to 5 5-8c. down, but later achieved somewhat better recoveries than wheat. Oats were easier and provisions likewise declined.

Opening prices were:

Wheat, September, 126¾. December 130. Corn, September 90⅞. December 93¾. Oats, September 43½. December 46 5-8.

Government Reports Causes Drop in Wheat

WINNIPEG, Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press.)— Wheat prices sank sharply at the opening of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day, reacting to the bearish Dominion Government crop report issued yesterday. The early decline ranged from 2¼ to 3¾ cents, October and May delivery undergoing the maximum immediate loss.

The trading pit was virtually flooded with offerings with very weak support in evidence. Liverpool cables, which were lower, also acted as a bearish influence. All the coarse grain commodities were carried downward, oats dropping 3-8 to 2½.

Toronto Trading Heavy But Trend Indefinite

TORONTO, Sept. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—Heavy trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day was well distributed throughout the list, but sales failed to disclose a definite trend, gains and losses being about equally divided.

Canada Malting, British American Oil, and International Nickel were the most active issues. Bakeries was up one point to 30, while British American reached a new high for the present movement of 27¼, sagging to twenty-seven at the close. International Nickel and Canada Malting were unchanged at 64½ and 29¼ respectively. C.P.R. at 184 1-8 was down 1 7-8, but only ten shares changed hands. Mackay preferred was up one at 71. Alberta Pacific Grain had the greatest rise during the morning, being up 2¼ at the noon close at 32½. With the exception of Standard Bank, which moved up two to 230, bank stocks were weaker. Losses of two points each were sustained by Commerce at 178, Imperial at 245, and Montreal at 343. Nova Scotia was slightly lower at 379.

FENG ARMY ACCUSED OF SLAYING 80,000

Massacred Many People in Revenge, Chinese Papers Charge.

PEKING, Sept. 13. — (Canadian Press).—Chinese newspapers charge that the troops of Marshal Feng Yu Hsiang, formerly known as the "Christian General," have massacred thousands of persons at Changte, a city of three hundred thousand population in Northern Honan Province.

Members of the "Heavenly Gate" and "Red Spears" Societies having killed some of Feng's men, the papers state, the military took a fearful revenge, slaughtering the inhabitants without regard for age or sex.

Estimates of the number of dead published by various papers range from thirty thousand to eighty thousand.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. — Canadian Press. — Plans of the seating arrangements for the Dempsey-Tunney fight revealed by Tex Rickard to-day, show that spectators occupying the five dollar benches along the fence to the north of the Soldiers' Field Stadium will be 700 feet from the ring.

THREE REPORTS OF WRECKAGE FROM ATLANTIC

Secrets of Loss of Planes May Be Revealed By Discoveries.

FLIGHT HELD UP.

Brock and Schlee Have Only Ten Days To Complete Circuit.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press.) — Water-logged airplane wreckage reported found at three widely separated points at sea today provided clues regarding ten brave adventurers who vanished into the Atlantic skies in their great gamble against the deep.

The North Atlantic began yesterday to yield its secrets concerning the lost monoplane Old Glory and possibly the lost expedition of Nungesser and Coli, the monoplane St. Raphael, which caried Princess Lowenstein Wertheim, and the monoplane Sir John Carling.

The wreckage of the Old Glory was reported found by the steamship Kyle, a rudder and part of a wing of an unidentified plane were found on the beach at Newquay, Cornwall, and a French fishing schooner reported having sighted aeroplane wreckage three weeks ago three hundred miles east of Halifax, N.S. No trace of the fliers was reported

Round-World Plane Delayed.

TOKIO, Sept. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—Unfavorable weather to-day continued as a menace to the hopes of the Detroit round the world fliers, William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, to circle the globe in less than the record time of twenty-eight and one half days.

With approximately ten days left in which to set a new record, the fliers remained stranded at Omura on the south-western coast of the Japanese archipelago, where they were forced down on Sunday while en route from Shanghai to Tokio.

After their second attempt to complete the 600 mile flight to Tokio yesterday in their monoplane Pride of Detroit, Japanese naval authorities at Omura announced that the weather observations indicated they could not hope to hop off before early to-morrow.

Think Flight Suicidal.

Japanese airmen regard the proposed Pacific flight to the tiny midway islands, 2,480 miles over the landless ocean from Tokio, as suicidal. They pointed out that the islands are of coral sand, difficult for a plane to land in or take off from and also called attention to despatches from the islands yesterday saying that no fuel had arrived.

Meanwhile, J. V. Walker, Tokio representative of the flight, went ahead with preparations to give the aviators every possible aid if they remain determined to continue.

The aviators left Harbor Grace, Nfld., eighteen days ago and have covered less than 12,000 of the 22,067 miles.

France Neutral.

PARIS, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press). —The attitude of the French Government towards the trans-Atlantic flight plans of Rene Fonck is a neutral one, the Associated Press was informed to-day. It was explained that the Government's position is neutral because the Ponck attempt is private, because the French Government is not acquainted with the results of his test flights, and because his plane is not a French one. The Government will neither encourage nor discourage the project.

Seek More Wreckage.

TORQUAY, England, Sept. 13. — (Canadian Press).—The finding of wreckage of an airplane on the seashore near here yesterday led to further extensive searches to-day by coastguards and fishermen in the hope of discovering more wreckage which might bear marks which would lead to identification of the plane. These efforts to-day were unsuccessful and the mystery of the plane's identity remains unsolved.

Women Still Hopeful.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Philip Payne and Mrs. Lloyd Bertaud, wives of two of the occupants of the missing Old Glory, and Mrs. Florence Callaghan, Bertaud's mother, told the Associated Press to-day that they have not lost hope for he fliers.

"We believe that they had time to inflate and rig their rubber lifeboat," Mrs. Callaghan said, "and that gives us confidence that they will yet be saved. They were pretty far north of the regular shipping lanes, but there are fishing boats in that vicinity all the time, and if one of them found Old Glory's crew we might not know of it yet, for those boats have no wireless."

May Order Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—The ordering of a thorough investigation of trans-oceanic flights by the Assistant Secretaries of War, Navy and Commerce in charge of aviation is under consideration by President Coolidge.

Plane Not Harmed.

TOKYO, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press). —The round-the-world monoplane, Pride of Detroit, was not believed to have been harmed by the typhoon and tidal wave which struck the Island of Kiushiu to-day, according to despatches from Nagasaki. The monoplane is at Omura, only a few miles south-east of the storm zone.

100 DROWNED.

Many Missing Since Tornado Swept Japanese Coast.

TOKIO, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press). — More than one hundred persons were drowned and many are missing, victims of a typhoon and tidal wave which inundated villages in the neighborhood of the city of Kumamoto on the Island of Kiushiu, say despatches received by the Asahi.

187 Carry Insurance Of Million Or More

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(United Press.)— One hundred and eighty-seven Americans and Canadians carry life insurance on $1,000,000 or more, according to a survey by the Spectator Company of New York. Rodman Wanamaker, New York merchant, with $7,500,000 on his life, carries the most. Babe Ruth carries $5,000,000.

New York leads with 45 in the million dollar class and six more in the State. Los Angeles contributes 19 as second.

Dr. Frederick G. Banting, of Toronto, Ontario, the discoverer of insulin as a cure for diabetes, carries $5,000,000. He is in the class with Ruth, William Fox and Adolphe Zukor.

Not far behind the magnates in their varied fields is Gloria Swanson, the actress, in the $2,000,000 class, with John Barrymore, E. W. Marland, Omaha oil man and Clarence H. McKay, head of the Postal Telegraph.

Motion picture stars are thick in the $1,000,000 group, including Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Will Rogers.

Sergt. W. H. Huxtable, Oshawa, Ontario, veteran, killed at Port Perry when thrown out of a truck. He was a member of the "advance party" of the Ontario Regiment preparing for the sports day at Port Perry.

CAMPBELLFORD TOWN COUNCIL UNCERTAIN IF IVY POISONING CAN BE CONSIDERED ACCIDENT

Refuses To Pay Doctor's Bill For Treating a Workman.

REGULAR MEETING.

Much Routine Work Discussed —Will Advertise in Waterway Booklet.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 13.— The regular monthly meeting of the Campbellford Town Council was held in the Council chamber, Public Library building, yesterday evening, with Mayor Kingston, Reeve Bygott, Deputy-Reeve Davidson, Councillors Wiggins, Stone, Jno. OSullivan, MacDonald, Wm. Abernethy and Cole present. John McGregor, clerk and D. J. Lynch, solicitor for the town, were also present.

A letter from Peter Garrison, complaining of the damage being done by water to his property on the corner of Church and Kent streets, was read. After a brief discussion of the matter, it was moved by Councillors Davidson nad Cole that the matter be placed in the nands of the Road and Bridge committee, and the town foreman, Robert Fox.—Motion carried.

A communication from G. B. Fraser, complaining of the condition of the walk on the west side of Maple street, was the next letter read. It was pointed out that the walk was old and of wooden structure and that in order to repair it sutiably it would have to be raised several inches. This was considered poor policy. Councillor Cole moved that the old walk be torn up and several loads of gravel placed there as a foundation for a new walk of concrete to be built next year. Councillor MacDonald seconded the motion.—Carried.

The next letter was from the Trent Waterway Development Association, Peterborough. It referred to the tourist traffic on this waterway and asked the co-operation of this town in their efforts to increase this. Special attention was directed to the booklet which is published annually by way of advertisement, and soliciting an advertisement for the next issue. On motion of Councillors Cole and Abernethy the clerk was instructed to reserve the same space as last year. Moved by Councillor Abernethy and Cole that the Industrial committee be appointed to prepare the advertisement.

Considerable discussion arose when a letter was read from Peterborough, regarding the work done on the government road which runs south of the town on the east side of the canal. For some reason, the account due the town, and amounting to approximately one hundred and one dollars, was not considered as being payable. Many details entered into the discussion of the communication which seemed to become ever more complicated. Finally, on motion of Councillors O'Sullivan and Deputy-Reeve Davidson, the clerk was instructed to place the letter on file and have it opened for inspection when called upon.

Clerk MacGregor, continuing with the communications, read a letter from the Workmen's Compensation Board, Toronto, referring to Frank Hubble. He also read a second letter drawing the Council's attention to the fact that the forms enclosed in their first letter had not been forwarded and enclosing a second set. During the ensuing discussion, it developed that the town carried no compensation with the Compensation Board, but carried its own risk. It was moved by Councillors Wiggins and MacDonald, that the clerk be instructed to reply to the letters from the Compensation Board and inform them of this fact.

Before the motion came to a vote, Mr. Hubble, who was present, interrupted the meeting to state clearly that his case was an accident. This statement arose from a technical discussion of just what the term "accident" meant. Some of the councillors seemed to think that a dose of poison ivy could not be termed an accident.

In reply to Hubble's statement, Reeve Bygott maintained that it was not an accident. MacDonald asked Hubble if he were subject to such poison, and Hubble replied most emphatically that he was not, and it was mainly due to some "dirty slurs" that had been cast at him that he was pressing his claim. When asked by the Deputy Reeve to give the names of some or all those who had made such remarks, Hubble refused to do so. When asked by MacDonald if he had sat down in the ivy, Hubble replied that he had taken a job on the Corporation to work.

Mayor Kingston interrupted the discussion to take a vote on the motion before the Council, and declared the motion carried.

The next item of business was a bill from William Hall for the amount of two hundred and seventy dollars for tiles laid in the sewer along Ranney Street from Second Street, about one hundred and eighty feet in all. This account aroused considerable discussion owing to the fact that Mr. Hall had not yet signed the agreement roll. Moved by Councillors O'Sullivan and Cole, that the payment of the account be withheld until such time as Mr. Hall would be willing to sign the agreement roll. Carried.

Sewer Laid Over.

Councillor Abernethy broached the Queen Street sewer subject. After a brief discussion of surveys and property right, the matter was laid aside as being too expensive for the present year. The town paving was the next subject for consideration. Reeve Bygott outlined roughly the extent of two miles of paving on the principal streets. This sketch included sections of Bridge, Front, Sebastapol, and other streets which pass through the main section of the town. He assured the Council that Mr. Lazier, engineer in charge of paving, would have something definite to report at next meeting. Mr. Lazier has been unwell and quite unable to take an active part in this work.

Winter overcoats for the police officers was suggested by Deputy-Reeve Davidson. Moved by Councillors Wiggins and Abernethy, that the matter be left with the Police Committee. Carried.

Deputy-Reeve Davidson also took occasion to remind the Council that the town was badly in need of new fire hose. He pointed out that in the event of a serious fire, the Department would be seriously hindered in their activities by a hose shortage.

When asked about the stop-and-go sign which had been on order for some time, and not yet delivered, the clerk replied that he had received a letter from the manufacturers, and that the signal would be here in a few days. This opened a discussion as to the advisability of installing an electric stop-and-go sign on the main corners, but the idea was rejected on the grounds that the town was too small and the traffic too uncertain to warrant such a purchase and installation.

Free Water for Fair.

Councillor Stone, on behalf of the Seymour Agricultural Society, said that Mr. Oliver had given the society permission to run a pipe line from his property to the Agricultural Grounds for the purpose of supplying the necessary water for the prize stock on exhibition. The society wished to know if they had the permission of the Council and what would be the charge for the water supply. Mr. Stone explained that the town would be put to no expense whatever save the pumping of the water, and that the pipe line would only be in use for about forty-eight hours.

Mayor Kingston took it upon himself to assure the society of a free water supply.

Mr. Stone suitably expressed the appreciation of the society for the generous action.

Deputy-Reeve Davidson instructed Mr. Stone to tell the Agricultural Society that he (Davidson) would pay one day's expenses for a man and team to plough the agricultural grounds. He hoped that others in the society would make similar offers. One condition only was made, the work must be done as soon as the Campbellford Fair for the present year is over, otherwise the offer will be withdrawn. If this work was done, the grounds would be levelled in the spring, and made second to none found in any town the size of Campbellford.

Councillor Wiggins presented an account from Dr. E. F. Richardson for professional services to Frank Hubble, four dollars. After a brief discussion, it was decided to return the bill to Dr. Richardson as not payable by the town.

Moved by Councillor Wiggins and seconded by Reeve Bygott, that the accounts and pay sheets as read by the clerk be paid. Carried.

CAMPBELLFORD SERVICE STATION

Campbellford has the distinction of being the one of the smaller towns that has a gasoline filling station, which for beauty and completeness is seldom found outside the larger cities. Built on the prominent, centrally located corner of Bridge and Rear Streets, the construction being of two colors of brick, artistically arranged and having a myriad of electric lights placed so as to effectually light the building and grounds, it presents a striking appearance by day or night, especially the latter. The lot on which it stands has for years been in a disreputable condition, and the citizens are justly proud of the change that has been wrought, and they take pride in pointing it out to visitors as the show place of the town.

The ladies' rest rooms are a model of neatness, and are equipped with everything for the comfort and convenience of travellers. As they are the only public rest rooms in the town they are much appreciated.

The property is owned by R. S. Southworth, formerly of the Trent Valley Creameries, and McIntyre Bros., of Peterborough, were the building contractors.

The electric wiring and plumbing were installed by P. C. Denyes and J. A. Hagerman respectively. The painting and decorating of the building and fence, including the signs, was done by a local man, George E. Morrison, in his usual artistic style.

The property has been leased by Clarence B. Williams, who has added a battery-charging department, and under his management, it is predicted a bright future is in store for this venture.

TAX ARREARS

iect from a firm which had been doing business for a number of years, on its old business. Even if the thread had been imported free and should have been dutiable, the importing firm had done all its business on the basis of free entry and without knowing that there was a duty. The customs had passed the entries. Just because a subesequent ruling made the yarn dutiable, it would not be just to collect. There was general agreement, however, that the point was an important one requiring the consideration of the Commission.

W. F. Wilson, former chief of the Customs Preventive Service, was examined by Mr. Law as to why Assistant Inspector Cyril Knowles of the Winnipeg Customs Preventive Service had been withdrawn from duty on the Saskatchewan-United States border. This was an echo of the Sair Case, which was investigated during the Western sittings of the Commission. It had to do with the seizure of a still and some alcohol. A number of men were involved in the case, including Isaac and Jacob Sair and one Barnblatt. After Officer Knowles made the seizure, representations were sent to Ottawa about him, and he was withdrawn from the work on the border. Mr. Wilson, who was preventive chief at the time, was asked to explain the action of the Department.

After Officer Knowles had taken up the work on the Saskatchewan border, said Mr. Wilson, telegrams of complaint and petitions for his withdrawal began to come in.

"But you wrote him in August, 1923, congratulating him on his success at the farms of Sair and Barnblatt, and three days later he was called off," pointed out Mr. Law, referring to the correspondence.

"That would not be of my own motion. I would not call a man off after congratulating him," replied Mr. Wilson. He thought that he had probably received instructions from the Deputy Minister to call Knowles off.

"Have you any complaints to make of Knowles?" asked Mr. Law.

"None," was the reply.

"Did you ever appoint anyone to succeed Knowles in this work on the farms of Sair and Barnblatt?" asked counsel.

Mr. Wilson said he thought he had given later instructions for Knowles to continue the work. The Commissioners informed him that there was no evidence before them of this. Mr. Wilson was given time to look over the files and see if there was any letter written by him reinstating Officer Knowles in the Border work.

Mr. Farrow, recalled to the stand, was asked why he had given instructions to the Chief of the Preventive Service to take Knowles off the Border work. He said he could not recall giving such instructions, and he made it clear that he had never issued any instructions with respect to Officer Knowles, it must have been on the direction of the Minister of Customs holding office at that time.

FALL FASHION REVIEW

Coats Vary Their Straight Lines with Modified Flares

Of course, there are many Coats—and handsome ones, too—that stray nary a whit from the straight silhouette. They, however, are in the minority this season, for the Coat with a subtle front or side flare takes first place. All the Coats are most generous in their use of fur trimmings. Not content with luxurious shawl collars and cuffs of fox, lynx, or wolf, some of the dressier models band their hemlines or their flares with rich fur. Black and beige tones are favorites.

Frocks Grow More Elaborate as the Season Progresses

The fashionable thing these days is to look not boyish but as feminine and sophisticated as possible. Not a hard bill to fill you will agree when you see the new Frocks which we are now presenting, for they are graceful and suave to the 'nth degree. Artfully draped or enhanced with subtle flares, these Frocks of crepe satin, silk crepe and velvet endow their wearers with a charm the simpler modes of the past season found it impossible to achieve.

After a Long Day at the Office

"Since I've been wearing Tarsal-Ease Shoes, my feet never feel tired at the end of the day," said Edna to Madge, who works in the same office. They're the most comfortable, easy-to-wear Shoes I've ever had."

"And very good looking, too," returned Madge, as she glanced at the neat two-strap slippers that so suitably completed Edna's trim business outfit. "I've noticed so many of the girls here wearing Tarsal-Ease Shoes—especially the ones who walk to and from work. Do let's go shopping at noon tomorrow. I want a pair of Tarsal-Ease Shoes, too!"

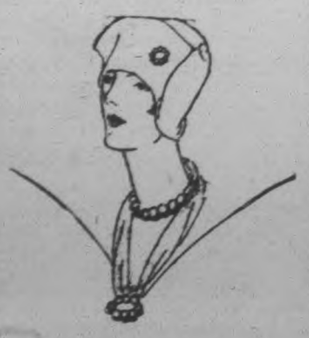
Smart Flares Exploited in New Silk Frocks

Crepe satin, chiffon or georgette and flat crepe are supple and attractive and make these Dresses unusually good looking. Side and front flares and circular skirts that ripple are supplemented with the more conservative straight-line styles. There are new Dresses in claret, beige, green, Bulgarian blue, brown, and black which are most desirable and offer a great variety from which to choose.



Every Smart Hat Has Its Touch of Velvet

Since Velvet Dresses lead the mode it is only fitting that the Hats designed to accompany them should feature this popular fabric. Frequently the Hats are made entirely of velvet, but when they are of felt, velour or soleil, the velvet appears in the form of encrustations, appliques or as brims. The majority of the Hats are black, but models in bright blue, amber and chestnut shades are also available.

Peterboro Industrial Exhibition

Advancing all along the line, this year sees the Exhibition Board offering greater attractions than ever before.

MAKE IT 45,000 IN 1927!

MIDWAY

The Ziedman and Pollie Carnival, coming here from Quebec City, is a 31-car train of fun and frolic. This Midway is travelling 21,000 miles in the 1927 season, a sure sign of its worth and quality. There are 600 employees, and the week's expenditure here for operation will be $10.300.

Entries in all classes show the increasing importance of Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, representing as it does one of the best districts in Ontario. The new barn and other buildings will be taxed to the utmost to accomodate all the exhibits.

RACE PROGRAMME

The race programme has been lengthened out, taking in Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a total of five races and prizes aggregating $1,250. The Peterborough track is recognized as one of the fastest, and the card this year promises the greatest interest for lovers of horses and sport.

The grandstand is now all covered, and patrons are assured of protection against sun and rain. It will be possible this year to enjoy the wonderful vaudeville performances in greater comfort than ever before.

DOG SHOW

The Dog Show, planned for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, has more classes and more entries than ever before, and indications are that the animals shown will be of the highest class and well worth seeing. This is becoming a more popular section of the Exhibition every year.

The Manufacturers' Building will show the latest advances in labor-saving household appliances and the latest pure foods, with a wealth of ideas for home-making and cooking. A walk through this building is an education in itself.

A Great Institution!

Peterborough Industrial Exhibition stands with the City's Schools and Churches as a great civic institution.

It is educative, for here one sees the latest that manufacturers have to offer, the newest in kitchen appliances and workshop tools, the best in foods and the most up-to-date in clothing. Here are the finest in cattle and poultry and swine and sheep and horses —studies in nature—the most lovely specimens of flowers and shrubs and trees.

It is elevating, for it shows the work of all classes of the community, farmer, tradesman, machinist, and manufacturer. It broadens the outlook and shows how the other half of the world lives.

It is humanizing, because for this week all walks of life enjoy the same pleasures and partake of the same relaxations. It has the saving grace of humor.

It is inspirational, for here one sees the splendid result of the co-operation of many men, citizens of Peterborough and dwellers in the wonderful district of which it is the centre. It is a yearly tribute to union without dissention. It is the product of harmony and of endeavor for the community's welfare.

There are men on the Board of Peterborough Exhibition with the finest qualities of leadership, of organization, and in this week of the year they condense the work of a twelvemonth.

Peterborough Exhibition is worth-while. It is worth supporting because it is a civic enterprise, but, aside from civic duty, he cheats himself who fails to visit it.

SPORTS

Wednesday is Children's Day, and the sports for school children will start at 2 o'clock, under direction of G. H. Roper, of the Y.M.C.A. The Board of Education has announced a holiday, so that all pupils in Peterborough schools may attend the Exhibition. The sports will be well worth seeing.

In the Main Building will be seen the most up-to-date in personal wear and home furnishings, showing what may be obtained in Peterborough from home-town merchants. The ladies' work, also in this building, is worth a special visit.

CERVONNE'S BAND

Cervonne's Band, of Pittsburg, is the musical attraction—an attraction, bythe way, that sets a new standard as to price in Peterborough—and holds out promise of six days of pleasure to those who like the best in band music. Included in the repertoire of this organization are some of the hottest of late favorites.

Pass-holders must enter by the pass gate at George street. Passes are not good at any other gate.

VAUDEVILLE

Included in the splendid vaudeville programme this year are the Australian Woodchoppers, the Bounding Murrays (acrobats), the 5 Jansleys (a rizzley act), Miss Edna Joyce (soprano vocalist), and other stellar attractions. The jumping horses from Toronto will add a new and novel touch.

BUDDIE MELVA, NOTED CANADIAN SOLOIST AND BANJOIST,
Will Appear Daily on the BAND STAND INSIDE THE GEORGE STREET ENTRANCE, at 3 AND 9 P.M.

THIS IS THE LIFE!

You will renew your youth and get new interest in life—you'll enjoy every minute—you'll meet friends and make friends—at Peterborough's biggest Exhibition. Don't miss it!

The three-buttoned single-breasted English Oxford

The two and three-button sack, double breasted coat with broad shoulder and sloping hip, will be the most popular with the young men, while the older set will prefer the single breasted model.

The coat for this season is slightly shorter being 28 inches, with narrow collars and with lapels open notched. The trousers will have 18 inch cuffs.

One great reason for the popularity of the double breasted coat is its adaptability wherein it is so much worn with odd trousers.

The Kynoch-Keith cloth pattern, from an old country firm, will be very popular this season, in the opinion of Messrs. Maher and Wesley.

"Any style pleasing to the eye and taste and appealing to commonsense, is bound to remain longer than those of an extreme nature. The colors will have a trend towards shades of brown.

Socks.

It is generally agreed that the penchant for fancy socks will continue, although the colors will not be quite so brilliant.

Ties.

Although styles of ties change rapidly, at present the bar-stripes and checkered modes are in favor. Mr. Selkirk of Brass Company, states that there will be less red in the ties and more bright blues. Bows are popular, those already tied predominating, as most people are unable to tie their own.

Shirts.

Shirts will be of browns with overstripings, blues and checker patterns. Striped shirts and shirt with collars attached are growing in favor.

Hats.

The hats continue with wide brims, varying of course in relation to the stature and features of the wearer. The snap brim is a great favorite with the younger set and the roll rim with older men. Bowlers are not favored so much in Peterborough as in some districts.

Overcoats.

From material submitted by the LeBrun Company we see that the three-button fall box overcoat with notched lapels 46 inches in length, and natural shoulders, mostly in fabrics of large plaids, brown Donegal, and camel hair, will be correct for this season.

Mr. Wyatt of East City is of the opinion that the blue overcoat has another season although the heavier plaids and "double and twist" are also shown. The fluffed cloth is losing in favor, while that of the plain fur surface gains.

Light fall coats will be somewhat shorter and looser.

Mr. Selkirk says widely spaced self striping, tending towards brown, will be popular in both suitings and overcoatings.

Gloves.

Gloves continue in tans and pastelle shades.

W. H. MEREDITH

This store carries the latest in both men's and boys' wear. Heretofore men have had to fall into line in the matter of seasonable style and dress, but not so in this individualistic year of 1927. The same wide choice that this store carried in the spring and summer wear will prevail in autumn and fall.

The top coats as a whole are much dressier than those of past seasons. There is a wide divergence of styles, tailorings and material; where the usual tweed garment used to suffice, the well-dressed man now finds it necessary to outfit himself with at least three models to arm himself for all occasions.

The dark blue double-breasted top coat is the leading model offered; it is cut in swanky lines, with rolled lapel that is enhanced by not buttoning the top button. It has a breast pocket for the inevitable white silk handkerchief, and incidentally no other combination but white will do, although a bit of blue edging is considered sometimes within good taste.

Single-breasted coats are formal, and they have slash pockets, raglan sleeves, and high small lapels. They have only three buttons, usually large, and are cut with a box back rather full, with no vent. These models cover the entire top coat autumn and fall fashion.

The suits for young men are two-buttoned, double-breasted sack models, with narrow collar, wide lapel, and open notch. While for older men they are two or three buttoned, single-breasted. Most of the coats have flaps on the pockets.

Mr. Meredith also has a full line of white and coloured shirts with collars and without. There is a wide range of neckwear and hosiery with the conservative colours leading.

JACK PRIMEAU

Jack Primeau, of Fashion Craft, said that this would be one of the biggest blue seasons ever when blue suits and overcoats will be worn by the well-dressed young man. Worsteds will be darker, and nice, smart tweeds will be the style for business wear. There will be three models especially in the limelight — the single-breasted, the two-buttoned notched lapel and the three-button double-breasted suit. There will also be a few styles in double-breasted clover leaf lapel and in single-breasted three-button clover leaf lapel. The last model is more or less of a freakish young man's model.

The three-buttoned single-breasted both in the standard and the young man's models will be big sellers in Fashion Craft. Spring and fall coats will vary in material from tweeds of fancy colours and patterns to greys with the slip-on and English ragoon models.

Tuxedo suits will be of the English model with the black silk vest and braided trousers the most popular.

The non-athletic College style the double-breasted

Winter overcoats will be mostly of blues and there will be a big demand for small collar dress coats. The bowler will be the dress hat with the small collar dress suit. The soft hat will remain always popular.

Hose will be of fancy cashmeres in silk and wool, with the trade leading towards plain colours. There is a steady increased demand for shirts with collars attached, in both plain whites and fancy colours. In neckwear black and white will be the leaders, with blue on an undertone of colour very fashionable.

GRAFTON & COMPANY

In young men's suits, Messrs. Grafton and Company are specializing in a three-button model with clover leaf lapel. This is in light, fancy tweeds and in blue with hairline stripes. In men's overcoats, the firm has direct importations in French montonacs, blue silver tone Cheviot cloth and French diagonals. The tendency in overcoats is towards the long streamline coat. A boy's suit that is expected to gain popularity is a two-button double-breasted model in Donegal tweed, with vest, bloomers and long pants. Cashmere socks are offered in fancy colors, and also in brown, gray, and black. Large varieties are available in the market to choose from, declares W. C. Hughes, manager of the local store of the Grafton Company.

White and fancy designs are still strongly favored in shirts, with mauve, heliotrope, blue and sand also very much in demand.

In neckwear, the latest patterns are in Roman stripes and polka dots, with a big supply of fancy patterns ready to meet a growing demand.

Men's sweaters and sweater coats, including windbreakers, are in all colors and patterns, with the shawl collar and V neck enjoying popularity.

Boys' sweaters and sweater coats are in all-wool botany.

Snakes have killed more than a million human beings in the last 50 years. An average of 20,000 are killed each year in India alone, and three to five thousand in the American tropics.

MEN'S CLOTHES SHOW VARIETY

Peterborough Clothiers Describe New Models and New Materials.

COLORS PLEASING

The two-button sack model style of suit will be worn most extensively this season. With the younger set the double-breasted coat with the broad shoulder and clinging hip, while with the older men the two or three-button single-breasted model will be popular. The collars are narrower, with the lapels remaining wide and open notch type. The coat is slightly shorter, being about 28 inches for the ordinary height, while the trouser cuff will be 18 inches. One reason for the continuing popularity of the double-breasted coat is that it is worn well with odd trousers.

Maher and Wesley claim that the Kynoch of Keith people, an Old Country firm, is putting on the market cloth patterns which are bound to be popular. Any style pleasing to the eye and taste, while appealing to common-sense, is bound to remain longer than those of an extreme nature. The colors, it is said, will tend towards the brown.

It is generally agreed that the penchant for fancy socks will continue, although the colors will not be quite so brilliant.

Shirts will be of browns and blues, with overstripings, and some checkered. Those with collar attached are very popular and are finding an increasing market.

Although the styles of ties change rapidly, at present the bar-stripe and checkered type are in favor. It is the opinion of Mr. Selkirk, of the Brass Store that there will be less red and more colors such as bright blues in the ties this season. Many men prefer bows, the most popular being those already tied. Mr. Selkirk says that, although the other type can be tied as rapidly as the elastic bands can be adjusted, and well repays the effort, most people do not care to take the time to learn the few deft manoeuvres necessary to perform this operation.

Snap brim hats are still most popular, particularly among the young men, with the brims continuing wide, more so with some types of wearers than with others. The roll brim is the favorite amongst the older men. Bowlers, although worn a great deal in some cities, are not so well liked in Peterborough, being, of course, rather inconvenient at times, such as in motoring. As one clothier pointed out, they might quite easily be damaged beyond repair by coming into contact with the roof of a car rather suddenly.

The light coats for fall wear tend to be rather short and loose fitting, giving plenty of freedom. Material supplied by the Le Brun Store gives a 45-inch guard overcoat, inverted pleat at centre, pinched at side, half belt, curved pocket, finished with velvet collar. The leading fabrics will be novelty twist in both woollens and worsteds. The medium loose box coat about 46 inches in length with regular lower pockets, outside breast pocket, set-in sleeve and three buttons buttoned through is another type. Mr. Wyatt, of East City, expects that the blue overcoat, so popular in the past few years, is good for another season, although plaids, tweeds, double and twist are being shown. The fluffed or brushed cloth is losing favor, while that of the firm surface gains. The reason for this, pointed out by one clothier, is that in the brushing process the cloth loses its durability. Mr. Selkirk says that widely spaced self-striping, tending towards coloring of brown, will be popular in both suitings and overcoatings.

Gloves will be in tan and pastelle shades.

FLY-TOX FIRST IN AUSTRALIA

The Australians have shown by their purchases that Fly-Tox is their choice for killing all housenold insects. It was necessary to establish a Fly-Tox factory at Sydney in 1925. Its capacity has since been increased four-fold to supply the growing demand. Fly-Tox is the scientific insecticide that was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Fellowship. Fly-Tox also kills moths, mosquitoes, ants, roaches, spiders and bed bugs as well as flies.—Adv.

SINGLE-BREASTED MEN'S COAT IS TO BE FAVORITE IN FALL

Double-Breasted Style Will Still Hold Many Admirers.

OVERCOATS VARY

A two-button single-breasted coat with notched lapels, slightly fitting, yet easy, will be a feature this fall, says Harvey E. Henry of Canadian Departmental Men's Store.

The shoulder will be a little heavier and the coat somewhat shorter. The vests are invariably single-breasted, with five or six buttons. The trousers remain at the standard eighteen-inch bottom. The double-breasted model still goes well, mostly in dark shades.

"A variation from these models is the college style mostly shown in tweeds, and carrying a shorter lapel and a three-button coat. This model has not yet met with the favor accorded to that with the two-button coat. In overcoats," said Mr. Henry, "blue remains the most favored shade and is shown in a double-breasted slip-on model with velvet collar, and in some cases with a small self-collar. The loose fitting slip-on with the storm collar is also good. Then comes next the town ulster suitable for the man who wishes a coat with a small half belt across the back and slightly heavier collar. The young man's coat mostly favored will be a slip-on model with medium collar or slightly tubed type. Plain dark art-silk linings take the place of the more flashy checks or plush.

"Overcoats will also be in soft shades of brown and gray, with a sprinkling of very light tweeds, but more than sixty-five per cent. of the overcoats this year will be blue in color.

"Hats will be in brown henna tints; grey shades will also be popular. Bowler hats are here to stay for the well-dressed man. Shirts are coming back to clean cut stripes, pencil stripes with a sprinkling of novelty patterns. White is specially good. The tendency," says Mr. Henry, "is towards buying a better type of shirt as the cheap shirt has failed to win favor. The narrow shape in collars is still strong. Soft collars are holding their own. The collar-attached shirt in white and fancy colors is still good. Checkered ties are in favor and hundreds of new design in fancy patterns are in the market. In caps the eight-piece top holds away in lighter shades, fancy patterns and designs. Belts remain wide; many are fancy. Socks are more or less gay, overcheck being very popular."

Mr. Henry gives it as his opinion that the dress chosen by the young rural dweller is much the same as that selected by the conservative city man.

MEN'S HATS MORE SOBER AFTER SEASON OF JAZZ

Dignity and Quietness at End of Present Fashion Drift.

ROOM FOR ARGUMENT

Width of Brim and Height of Crown Vary With Individual.

After a season of jazzy abandon, reports McWilliams and Company, felt hats seem to be feeling their way toward a more sober, dressy effect.

Specifically, the man who wore a wide raw-edge snap brim hat of extreme light color last Fall, will this Fall put on a medium-width welt-edge, flange-brim hat in a somewhat darker color.

Light colors, raw edges and snap-brims should be good for early Fall beginning right now but as the season advances more and more of the hats will be of the set-brim type, ranging from a slight saucer flange to a decided roll, and having either a turned edge, a welt edge, or a bound edge to give them stability.

Soft hat dimensions are a good topic for argument these days. Most stores selling to the man who likes exclusiveness will find a 2 3-8 inch brim with a 5¼, 5½ or a 5¾ inch crown, a successful hat. The man who likes to go to extremes will even take a 2¼ inch brim. For the masses however, 2½ and 2 5-8 inch brims are decidedly more favored and may be expected to sell all through the fall and winter.

Welt edges will be the best selling hat after the raw edge summer felt hat has passed entirely from the stage. Bound narrow curl brims will also be increasingly worn, as overcoats make desirable a more dressy hat.

Stiff hats will form part of later Fall business.

Colors seem to be travelling not to the dark shades but to tints of more quietness and dignity. Pearls, tans and steel gray, are big sellers. Of course it is clearly recognized that the color of the suit of the buyer is certain to react in the choice of a hat. The man with a brown suit is not likely to select a light gray hat.

AGRICULTURE IS BACKBONE OF PETERBOROUGH'S FAIR

Large Section of Grounds and Many Buildings Show Progress.

PRIZES WORTH HAVING

Farmers Attracted From Far and Near to Compete With Products.

Although Peterborough's annual Exhibition now bears the title "Industrial Exhibition", it is still primarily an agricultural fair. The strongest committees possible, consisting of men who know the needs of their particular branches, are appointed and they work for months drawing up prize lists that will be to the greatest advantage of the farming community. A large section of the grounds, with many buildings, is devoted to the animal exhibits, while much space is allotted for fruit and vegetables.

A large amount is set aside, when the fair budget is being prepared, for prizes for the scores of classes into which the rural exhibits are divided. That the prizes are worth winning is shown by the fact that steps had to be taken to keep out certain individuals who buy up good samples of various kinds from a large neighborhood and then make the rounds of the larger fairs, monopolizing the prizes, which are intended for the encouragement of agriculture in the territory served by the fair.

It is not, of course, the intention of the directors to protect the local men from fair competition from outside the district. The prizes are made large enough to attract men from a large area in order that competition may be keen and those viewing the exhibits may see the best that the province produces.

This is the principal benefit which agriculturists derive from the fair. The exhibitors who fail to take prizes and the farmers who don't exhibit see what the stock and produce that wins is like and take steps to find out why it is good and make their own as good.

Peterborough Exhibition is fortunate in its choice of dates. Coming right after the Canadian National Exhibition as it does, it proves a convenient stopping off place for many of the eastern Ontario men who exhibit animals there and men who would otherwise not come here to do so. Thus the standard of exhibits is raised and the benefit to the farmers of this section of the province is increased.

A prominent agricultural authority points out the changes brought about through fairs. Through the constant search of the judges for what the breeders agreed to be the best points of the various breeds, standards have been set up and the animals shown now look very little like the pictures of the same breeds shown in the prize lists of thirty years ago. Breeders have endeavored to breed animals that conform to these standards until they have become fixed. Milk cattle now have larger udders and a smoother look, while beef cattle are lower set, with those portions which produces the best cuts better developed.

It is the same with horses, swine, sheep, and poultry. The constant striving for what seems to be the ideal type of any particular breed has resulted in much better animals of every kind. In grain, too, the use of good seed and better methods of cultivation, in an endeavor to win prizes and build up a reputation for successful farming has improved the standards. The fields that win in the standing crop competitions and the grain that wins in the sheaf or in sacks have to be really good to win nowadays.

It is not only in the agricultural section of the grounds that the farmer benefits. All the latest in labor saving machinery is on display in the manufacturers' section. Not only do the makers have their latest devices on display but they have men there who understand their products and the man who already owns some of the equipment is able to discuss his difficulties with the expert and learn how to get the utmost service from it.

It is not only in the actual business of farming that the country man and his family benefit. At the Exhibition they see the latest in musical instruments, radios, and other entertaining features which make it unnecessary to drive in to town after the day's work to get recreation and relaxation. They meet their friends from miles away and discuss troubles and successes as they wander along the long rows of stalls or up and down the midway.

Information and entertainment are furnished for all at the Exhibition and the rural dweller gets his fair share of both.

EXHIBITION TEACHES CHILDREN MANY WORTH-WHILE LESSONS

City Learns of Country Life and Contributes in Return.

LESSON SUGAR-COATED

Knowledge of Many Things is Painlessly Taken at the Fair.

"What good does the Exhibition do the children?" "Why should the School Board give them a half holiday to go to the fair?" Questions such as these are often asked, and the doubters explain their attitude by charging that the boys and girls learn nothing except the names of race horses or some songs at the midway.

Yet a check-up of all that the fair offers to the youth of this district reveals much that is of great benefit. Peterborough is not so large that there are children who believe that milk comes from white wagons, but the city children can learn something about farm animals and farm produce. Few, if any, of the rural residents of the splendid farming district that surrounds the city believe that all city folks are "slickers" but there is always something new for them to learn about what is done in the shops and factories of the province.

Start with the animals. What cows gives the most milk? What is an accredited herd? What makes one hog a prize-winner and gets the other passed over by the judges? The big bull whose stall is almost too small for him and the tiny lamb hardly able to stand up are alike objects of interest to the boys and girls from the city, and the men who care for the stock will tell you that they can ask some pretty shrewd questions and won't be satisfied with evasive answers.

The child from the farm learns something here, too. Naturally, the animals are not such objects of curiosity to him, but at home he has a calf which is his own, or it may be a colt or pig. He wants to see what are the points of excellence on which the judge bases his awards, so that he may strive to get his own pet into the prizewinning class. The showing of animals results in farmers' sons, as well as their dads, being interested in the betterment of their herds so that they can win something next year or the year after.

Here is the poultry building. The keenest interest of the youngsters here is often in the section devoted to pigeons, bantams, and other pets, but the farmer's daughter, with her own little flock, can go home, after looking over the birds shown by the fanciers, and pick out those which conform best to the good points of the prizewinners, sending the others to the table. Most of the chicken fanciers are city men, but the good points of any breed are those which make them good for laying or sale, so the country girl learns something here.

If the city boy tried to raise chickens in his back yard, his next door neighbor, who plants his little space to garden stuff, would register a voluble protest, so he cannot take practical lessons from this exhibit, but even the ability to discriminate between different breeds is worth something.

When it comes to flowers, the children surely benefit. The love of the beautiful in nature is inculcated largely through the eye of youth, and not through the exhortations of older folk, and what more beautiful sight is there than the massed blooms which fill this tent to overflowing. The flower fancier who has flowers there may mutter something about "A little heathen broke my choicest plant," for each of these there are likely two or three or more children who go through the tent almost fraid to breathe for fear of spoiling some of the beautiful objects.

City children have an advantage at the Exhibition which few rural children enjoy. That is in the manual training and household science departments. The boy whose window stick is on display lets none of his friends go by without pointing it out and naturally, the boy who has nothing up will try harder than ever next year to do something that will pass. The same applies to the girls. In both cases it is almost a social distinction for the next few weeks.

An idea of the diversified products of the City of Peterborough is furnished in the manufacturers' booths. Meat, electrical goods, woollens, farm implements, follow each other as in a movie as the young people pass from booth to booth. Here they learn something about the telephone, and the wonders of that invention which keep buyer and seller informed of each other's needs and offerings, relatives and friends of each other's health and activities, though miles apart, furnish food for thought. The processes of printing, or road-making, or photography, are set forth. The Post Office gives instruction in the proper way to pack goods for shipment. The manufacturers have specimens of their work, perhaps with the materials that enter into it. Everybody issues booklets, and blotters, and leaflets telling why their products are good and how they are made. In fact, it seems that every manufacturer and dealer is trying to instruct and educate people and it is usually the children who take it all in and learn something from it.

Above all, they have a good time at it. They see people from other lands and other parts of Canada and goods from all over the world, and go their way, serenely unconscious of any increase of knowledge until it pops out sometime and somebody says, "Where did you learn that?" and the answer is, "At the Ex."

AUTOMOBILE DISPLAY AT EX SHOWS MANY NEWEST MODELS

Products of Manufacturing Genius Show Great Development.

BEAUTY OF LINE

Interest Probably Centres Around Expected Announcement of Ford.

The product of automobile genius in both Canada and the United States is on view in several tents at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. The public can only have one verdict when it surveys the multitude of improvements, major and minor, incorporated in these models. In beauty of line and color they excel a year ago, which was then considered something of grace.

New Model Missing

There is one disappointment. For months the motor buying public have been waiting for the long expected Ford. They have listened to the rumors of hundreds of different kinds on what Henry Ford's new model would embrace.

That Canadian people still have faith in Henry Ford and his products was evinced by the huge crowds that gathered at the Ford Exhibit in the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto.

A pronounced feature at the exhibit was the large number of enquiries by owners of larger cars. The interest of these owners is due to the fact that the new models will embody features that hitherto have been confined to larger and more expensive cars, and in addition will be a complete change from the old type of cars.

The new car will be beyond anybody's expectations, agents claim, combining new pleasing body designs with speed, flexibility, riding comfort, and endurance.

While there has been no mention of the new prices it stands to reason that Henry Ford, who has put all his vast resources behind the production of this new car, will be able to place upon the market a car that is wonderful value for its low price.

HUDSON.

A motor car surprise came in the announcement of a new line of Hudson Super-Six cars on a wheelbase of 118 inches. This new line completes a series of Hudson-Essex announcements. The Hudson-Essex line now will be represented by the new Essex Super-Six cars, by the Hudson Super-Six on the 127-inch wheelbase, which has been standard for years, and by the new intermediate line.

These cars are being exhibited at the Brewer Motor Sales on Brock Street.

This new line of cars is powered with the same high-compression, anti-knock motor which Hudson has just introduced. Perhaps the chief characteristic of this motor is that it achieves high-compression results with any type of fuel — requiring neither doped nor special fuels of any type. Also, transmission, axles, four-wheel brakes and all other units of construction in the 118-inch car are identical with the longer Hudson. The frame and the propeller shaft simply have been altered to bring down the total length.

Hudson believes there is no question of the great public demand for new line of cars is in response to this demand. The longer wheelbase will cars with shorter wheelbases. This be continued for those who desire it; the shorter car will fill a demand of its own.

It has all the power of the larger Hudson, and it is more compact and somewhat lighter. High compression is the vital factor in the motor design. Bodies for the new cars are made by Hudson in its own body plant. They are steel-built to an outstanding degree of rigidity and strength, and fashioned to handsome and pleasing lines. The finish is in lacquer duo-tone, with decorative striping, while the interiors are attractive with upholstery and fittings of exceptional beauty."

CHRYSLER.

The new Chrysler "72" is longer, roomier, faster and handsomer and is on view at the Gillespie Garage tent at the Exhibition Park. The new "72" gives an engine of 75 horse-power with a counterweighted seven bearing crank shaft and rubber engine mountings to wipe out the vibration.

It gives a speed of 72 miles an hour and pick up of 5 to 25 miles in seven seconds. It has rubber shock insulators. The spring ends are anchored in block of live rubber eliminating wear, noise and need for lubrication.

The body is longer and more beautiful, tastefully appointed, roomy and fully equipped with saddle spring seat cushions and adjustable steering wheel to give the utmost in comfort.

NASH.

The three entirely new series of Nash cars, which were announced to the Canadian public on June 29, are placed on display at the Exhibition by Dawson and Johnston.

A new radiator design, lower and more sweeping body lines and a brilliant array of new color combinations, make these latest models, without question, the most beautiful ever produced by Nash.

Important mechanical refinements and improvements, keeping pace with the progress which has been made in increasing the beauty of the cars' appearance, are also in evidence. Outstanding among these are the introduction of new springs of a secret alloy steel, which is said to increase riding comfort in an amazing degree.

The new body lines are lower and more sweeping than before and the wheels are smaller, giving an additional appearance of lowness to the cars, although interior roominess has not been sacrificed in the smallest degree.

Matching the beauty of line is the new array of color combinations which Nash has adopted for these cars. Many striking new harmonies are used, giving these cars unusual brilliance of appearance.

The size of the motor in the Standard Six has been increased, giving this car a high degree of performance ability. In addition to increasing the size of the motor, the size of the crankshaft has also been made larger to achieve greater motor smoothness. The crankshaft, of course, continues to be of the 7-bearing type.

The new springs of secret alloy steel are used on the Standard Six, as well as on the Special Six, and the Advanced Six, for increasing riding comfort. And another contribution in this respect is the use of shock absorbers at the front as standard equipment. The Standard Six motor is insulated with rubber from the frame at all points of contact, providing more quiet operation and saving the motor from road shocks.

Other important refinements are the carburetor heat control valve on the instrument board, a new type of head lamp, a new 4-blade fan, a new stop light switch, a heavier oil pump cover plate, new parking lights, new instrument panel indirectly lighted, new remote control door locks, a new light control on the steering wheel, and a new body hardware of special Nash design.

STAR.

The exhibit of new Star cars at Selkirk and Elliot on Hunter Street this year will reveal some charming color schemes.

Among those on display are a de luxe sedan in Lady Mary Louise maroon. It has a black belt and is trimmed in two-tone taupe and maroon genuine mohair. Another striking model is a de luxe sedan in Otsego green for the upper, with a Scotia green on the belt and lower part. This car has Scotia green fenders and the upholstering is in taupe genuine mohair.

The standard sedan is painted a two-tone bronze and Croatian green and is trimmed with a very fine blue grey material, while the special coach appears in Ozark green and Azara grey and is trimmed in grey.

In addition to these fascinating color schemes is seen the standard coupe finished in Merrimac beige and sea fog grey, with sea fog grey lacquered fenders and trimmed in blue grey. The smart cabriolet is painted desert sand and Rolls-Royce blue with Rolls-Royce blue lacquered fenders and with the upholstering in grey Spanish leather.

Among the fours is a standard sedan in Rolls-Royce blue for the lower part, with a black upper. This is trimmed in grey. The standard coupe makes its bow in a Rolls-Royce blue for the lower, black for the upper and upholstered in two-tone plush velour.

The four standard coach is also in Rolls-Royce blue and black, and is trimmed in two-tone plush velour.

For the popular "Collegiate," the four-cylinder roadster, patrol cream is featured, having a black upper, but with the fenders in patrol cream lacquer. The interior is of grey Spanish art leather.

The special touring four and the convertible roadster is shown in two-tone Persian and Japanese blue and trimmed in black.

OVERLAND WHIPPET.

Whippets manufactured to-day are basicly the same as the early models. No changes are planned either in design or construction, the manufacturer states.

The Whippet Four is built in six different body types—a sport roadster, a touring car, coupe, coach, five-passenger sedan, and a five-passenger landau. The body lines are low. In fact, the car stands only 5 feet 8 inches from the ground, so a person standing on the curb can look right over this car. Nevertheless the interior dimensions of the Whippet are roomy. A unique feature in the construction of the enclosed car bodies is the carrying of the roof line forward over the wind-shield to form a snug design, which is an integral part of the body construction.

The Whippet roadster is finished in a Corson green below the waist line and Champlain green above with a red stripe at the waist. This car has an auxiliary seat in the rear deck which affords accommodation for two extra passengers. The coach is finished in Apennine blue below the waist line and black above with a gold stripe. The landau is McDowell green below the waist line and Kenesaw green above with a gold stripe. The rear quarter is black. The four-door sedan is Apennine blue below the waist and black above with a gold stripe, and the coupe is the same color combination. The metal parts, fenders, and splash aprons are black on all models.

The Whippet Six closely resembles the Whippet Four in general appearance with the exception of the hood structure, which is longer and larger to accommodate the six-cylinder power plant. This model is built also in six body types, a touring and a roadster in the open body styles, and a coach, a sedan, a coupe, and a landau sedan in the enclosed types.

J. J. Duffus, Ltd., have this fine range of Whippets on exhibit at the Motor Show.

DODGE.

Since the spring, Dodge has brought into the automotive world two new lines that have attracted considerable interest and excited not a little comment, and are being shown by V. Eastwood at the Exhibition Motor Show.

The first was the medium-priced Dodge Six, which has been honored by the manufacturer with the title, "The Senior Line," and embraces the Senior Sedan, the Senior Cabriolet Roadster, and the Senior Coupe. The engine in this line is of the six-cylinder, "L"-head type, with 3½-inch bore by 4½-inch stroke, 223.98 cubic inches displacement. The crankshaft, which weighs 69 pounds, is supported on seven main bearings, and the manufacturer claims that, because of the absence of counterweights or other attachments, and because of its balance and great size, the car is given great smoothness. Main bearings are interchangeable. All connecting rods and pistons are assembled to groups of six, being weighed to see that they all weigh within one-eighth ounce of each other. The main oil ducts are drilled in the cylinder casting, and from the main bearings the oil is forced through passages drilled in the crankshaft. Separate ducts lead to the camshaft bearings and timing chain. The instrument board has a 75-mile speedometer, 100,000-mile odometer, 8-day clock, oil pressure and fuel gauges, all grouped on walnut-finished panel under glass. Carburetor adjustment and manifold heat control are at right, and locking ignition switch at left of panel. Four-wheel brakes, internal expandings and hydraulically operated, are standard equipment.

For the new Dodge Four, announced not long ago, mile-a-minute performance with ease and smoothness is claimed. Powered with the same four-cylinder, "L"-head type motor, as the bigger four-cylinder Dodge line, it is easier to operate in traffic by reason of its shorter wheelbase. In all three models, the De Luxe Sedan, Sedan and Coupe, there is plenty of seat room, leg room and

A New Power in Motordom!

The smooth and mighty power of the steam engine -and obtained without the use of special fuels

There is a new power in motordom—totally different in development and expression—totally new in range and efficiency—the smooth and mighty power of the steam engine delivered with the silky ease, dash and vivacity that stand out from all performance with brilliant luster.

The basis of this great Hudson capacity is a new companion invention to the Super-Six principle which turns waste heat to power. Together they combine the highest efficiency in power generation and transmission ever achieved within our knowledge. It makes Hudson the most economical car per pound weight in the world.

In the new Hudson motor, spark knock heretofore characteristic of the high-compression motor is eliminated.

Ordinary gasoline gives the performance results sought through special and higher-priced fuels.

The New Hudson is receiving the greatest public reception in Hudson history, because in all ways it is the greatest Hudson Super-Six ever built.

head room. Economical operation is another claim made by the maker. Ball bearings in the steering spindles, as well as in the steering gear itself, make this new line easy to steer and park. The cradling action of the springs is accounted for by the fact that the springs constitute more than 85 per cent. of the total wheelbase length. The body construction is notable for its rounded beauty and strength.

ESSEX.

The smooth flow of power characteristic of Essex is due to Essex sharing with Hudson the advantage of Super-Six patents. These patents make possible a full and complete balance of the motor's vital units. In all recent high-grade cars the counter-weighted crankshaft is a prominent feature. There is no doubt that all such crankshafts are beneficial in producing motor smoothness.

The Essex motor has such details as valves of silicon, heat-proof steel, roller-type valve tappets, closely fitted aluminum-alloy pistons, a silent chain for the front and drive and extra large bearing surfaces. Not only are the motor units balanced, but the clutch, the flywheel and the propeller shaft carry this principle of balance all the way to the rear axle.

The Essex braking system would suffice for a car 1,000 pounds heavier. The brakes are large and are so designed that their stopping action is smooth. The construction is simple and trouble-proof.

Essex bodies are rigidly and durably built of steel. This construction is unexcelled in any price field for strength and long wear. The body designers have had beauty as well as soundness in mind, for the lines are pleasingly curved and harmonized. Upholstery and appointments are complete.

These cars are being shown at the Brewer Motor Sales.

PONTIAC.

Pontiac dealers are in the fortunate position of being able this month to combat the oft-heralded summer sales slump with the announcement of new low prices that have resulted from increased volume production. The production, in its turn, was caused by the wide demand that featured Pontiac since its introduction.

First introduced in January of last year, Pontiac has already achieved an enviable place in the automotive hall of fame. Since the car was first introduced the price on two occasions has been lowered.

The most recent price reduction is featured not by any decrease in the quality of the car, but by the addition of new plush upholstery which lends to the interior of the cars the final touch of the distinction that is suggested by their exteriors. This upholstery harmonizes with the smart Duco color combinations which have been used on the bodies. There is nothing dowdy about the Pontiac. Its greens and blues and greys suggest the spirit of youth and enjoyment.

Both the sport roadster and sport cabriolet have been attracting particular attention since their introduction a few months ago. These comparatively new additions to the line are unique in that very few makes of cars in the low-priced field have these types, particularly cars so completely and artistically equipped. Both have a rumble seat for two passengers, easily reached by aluminum steps and nickle-plated drop seat arms.

The sedan, however, has proved on miles leader of the line throughout the season to date. It has a special appeal, with its long, roomy body, finished in Beverly Blue Duco, striped with ivory white. Like all the cars in the Pontiac Six line, it has recessed window ledges in contrasting colors, narrowed windshield pillars, sweeping crown fenders and massive foot-controlled headlights.

A. Brown & Son have a fine exhibit of these cars at Exhibition Park.

McLAUGHLIN-BUICK.

No less than 68 major refinements and improvements have been made in the 1928 McLaughlin-Buicks, which were announced recently by the McLaughlin Motor Car Company, Limited. Modifications in engine design provide greater and more effortless power, and changes in exterior line increase the streamline appearance of the 1928 cars.

The first thing that strikes the eye of the observer in the new cars exhibited by A. Brown & Son at the Exhibition Motor Show, is the latest adaptation of the familiar McLaughlin Buick radiator design, which gives the front of the car a lower and more massive appearance. An apparent increase of length and greater rakishness have been secured by lessening the over-all height of the cars by from two to three inches.

Chief of the engine improvements, which results in a substantial increase of power, as well as new silence of operation, is a new McLaughlin-Buick cylinder head of the spherical type. This gives higher compression with less detonation, causing a greater portion of the fuel to be transformed into useful power. To reduce valve noise to a minimum an entirely new valve mechanism has been developed for the new McLaughlin-Buick. The camshaft has been redesigned to ensure quiet, and the push rods increased in diameter and shortened. Greater radiator capacity makes for even cooler running than heretofore. Starting, lighting, ignition and lubrication systems have all been improved. Standard S.A.E. gear shift has been adopted.

Most radical of all the changes designed to increase riding comfort is the addition of four hydraulic shock absorbers as standard equipment on all new McLaughlin-Buicks. It is interesting to note that, instead of affixing the shock absorbers without reference to co-ordination, McLaughlin-Buick engineers redesigned the springs for all models, balancing each scientifically with the shock absorbers. The result is said to be a uniformly easy-riding line of motor cars.

FALCON-KNIGHT.

A newcomer to not only the Peterborough Motor Show, but to all motor shows in this country, is the Falcon-Knight, a six-cylinder Knight-engined line with a range of five different models—the landau, brougham, sedan, coupe and roadster—are all exhibited by the J. J. Duffus, Ltd.

The sleeve-valve type engine has a bore of 2 15-16 inches with a stroke of 3 7-8 inches, with a S.A.E. rating of 20.7 horsepower and developing 45 horsepower. The carburetor is of the plain tube type, with vacuum tank fuel feed. The crankshaft is of 2¼ inches diameter, on seven bearings, full pressure lubrication, statically and dynamically balanced. The clutch is of the single dry disc pattern, adjustable for wear. Lubrication is by high-pressure full force feed to all crankshaft, connecting rod bearings, 7 eccentric shaft main bearings and timing chain, with vacuum oil control for economy. Standard equipment consists of speedometer, ammeter, automatic windshield wiper on closed models, stop light, gasoline filter, air cleaner, vacuum oil control, indirect lighting on instrument panel, shock absorbers on front, tools, and dome light in sedans.

In addition to the models mentioned above, there has been announced recently and will be seen at the show, the Gray Ghost Sport Roadster, which presents a beautiful harmony of body line, color and trimmings. Its color, as the name indicates, is silver grey, with darker grey fenders, and it has an all-hardware nickel finish.

CHEVROLET.

The newest model in the Chevrolet is the Imperial Landau. This fine car is being shown at Exhibition Park. It is a five-passenger closed car of luxurious appointments and new design. It is equipped with a specially designed Fisher body, marking a new creation by Fisher that provides the low-priced field with a smart rakish landau. This low swung Fisher body with its many advancements from vaulted roof and oblong plated windows to smoking sets. The hardware is of special design throughout, with door seals of beaded maroon leather—in pleasing contrast with the deep-tufted mohair upholstery. The exterior of the car is finished in a satin black duco finish with double bead stripes of chasseur red. Window frames have a crimson trim on the outside and maroon within the car. It has a swing-out type of windshield of one piece design on nickelled brackets, while narrow front pillars provide for increased driving vision.

The fenders are standard one-piece full crown. It is equipped with balloon tires, bullet type head lamps, oil-filter, air cleaner, coincidental steering wheel and ignition lock, remote control door handles, disc wheels.

Introduction of Imperial provides the company with eight models, six closed and open cars, comprising a very complete line of automobiles in the low-priced class. There are also commercial vehicles in both ton and half-ton sizes.

WILLY-KNIGHT.

A new note in motor car design is found in the Willys-Knight Great Six and Willys-Knight "70" line of motor cars presented at this year's Peterborough Exhibition by the J. J. Duffus, Ltd. The Willys-Knight Great Six presents new body lines conforming to the latest ideas of construction, tending toward luxurious appointments, smart lines, dash and serviceability.

Certain changes have been made in the power plant of the Willys-Knight Great Six, which have materially built up the performance value of this car. These changes are largely confined to alterations in the intake manifold design and in the use of the oil rectifier. The Great Six Willys-Knight is built in seven distinct body types, including the foursome sedan, an entirely different type of four-passenger enclosed car; a five-passenger sedan, a seven-passenger standard sedan, and a seven-passenger special sedan, as well as a cabriolet roadster, a sport roadster and a touring car.

The new foursome has the graceful, sweeping body lines of European cars, with sun visor a continuation of the roof and with an auxiliary colored sun shield underneath. The upholstering, genuine mohair, is inlaid Circassian walnut, and metal trimmings are gunmetal silver. A steel trunk adorns the rear. The fuel tank is concealed. The car is conspicuously low in appearance, and is gracefully proportioned. Adequate roominess of seating space is found, and the interior is finished in good taste.

RADIO SHOWN AT THE FAIR

Popularity Due to Endless Variety of Programmes Given.

MANY MODELS

The success and popularity of the radio is undoubtedly due to its endless variety. To youth it gives jazz, to the music lover, the finest symphony orchestra; to the student, lectures; to the thoughtful, the finest preachers in the land. It gives thrilling descriptions of all sports. The roar of the spectators in all their moods comes to you. Their excitement is in your room and you get the thrill of hockey, baseball, prize fights, as if you were a seatholder.

The home without the radio to-day is like a home without a newspaper, the air is full of good things, and if you do not hear what science is doing for the common good, your life is so much the poorer.

Five years ago it was a fad of the technically-minded hobbyist. It was used as a toy out of which the experimenter got a new kind of thrill out of the reception of sounds and music in the air. But the very novelty of this new thing soon won for radio a wide popularity, which, however, was not supported by wives and families, for from the time the fan clamped a pair of head phones over his ears until bedtime, he was lost to the family. As a result, in the early days the radio was the ban of the housewife.

When one considers the place of the radio set in the house to-day, the prominent part that it plays in family life, the entertainment and pleasure that it offers to every member, its educational force, the dull hours which it enlivens, and its broadening influence on life, it is rather difficult to conceive it being looked upon as a disintegrator of the family relationships.

What caused the change? The thing that has made the achievement possible, that has made the radio set what it is to-day, and has won for radio its present respect in the home, is the development of the loudspeaker. Just picture scenes in the early days of radio development of a couple of men huddled around a set with head phones over their ears, making them look ridiculous to everyone else in the room, and they alone shared the broadcasted programme; and now, with a happy family sitting in comfortable chairs in a room where the loud speaker is presenting to everyone the programme. Is it any wonder that radio has won its spurs in the hearts of the people?

The development of the loudspeaker raised the radio set from a toy of the experimenter to a friend of the whole family. Its relationship to the family may be compared with that of the modern highway to the automobile, for without the development of the highway the automobile could not have obtained the popularity that it has to-day. Without the introduction of the loudspeaker, the radio would as yet be in its infancy.

Radio has taken a foremost place in the exhibits at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. Here are to be seen the latest in models and equipment a variety of displays that appeal not only to the radio enthusiasts, but to the public generally.

The new models are not marked by any radical change in circuits by refinements and improvements. Radio equipment is designed not only to add to the entertainment of the home, but to add to the beauty of the home furnishings. And the attractive qualities of the modern radio sets are well illustrated in the show that awaits the visitor at the Peterborough Exhibition.

A total of $25,500,000 was earned last year by students in 408 colleges and universities in the United States. Thirty-nine per cent of the total enrollment of these institutions were wholly or partially self-supporting.

Mourning is very general among all classes in Mexico, and black is put on for the most distant relatives and even for friends. It is, however, worn only a short time, but the occasions for mourning dresses are so frequent that every woman has her mourning suit in her wardrobe.

Complete Line of Willys-Overland Fine Motor Cars, Embodies Engineering Leadership in Every Price Class.

AT the Peterborough Exhibition, you will find a most interesting display of fine motor cars—four great new automobiles, which may be had in 28 beautiful body types, and in the Willys-Knight line a wide range of optional body colors—four distinct price classes.

In these cars has been incorporated the most advanced engineering principles known to automobile design to-day, such as:

-Wheel Brakes (standard equipment on all Willys-Knight and Whippet Motor Cars. Lower Chassis—ensuring greater safety and comfort. Clear vision corner posts. Greater engine efficiency. New body refinements. Greater roominess and greater economy. The Overland Whippet's "35 miles to the gallon" is now reflected in comparable fuel economy throughout the entire Willys-Overland line.

Demonstrations of the new Willys-Overland models will be given gladly. When you examine the Whippet, the Whippet Six, the "70" Willys-Knight Six, the Willys-Knight Great Six—a price range of $795 to $3,925, you will quickly realize that Willys-Overland now has "Value Leadership" as well as "Engineering Leadership" in every price class.

TO-NIGHT!

Peterboro Industrial Exhibition

Opens To-Night!

With every available bit of space occupied by either exhibits or amusements. All records in entries have been broken. There is a monster Midway—it will astonish you.

The Grandstand attractions are more and better than ever before. See them to-night so you may have time to later see the Buildings, the Exhibits and the Midway.

Admission to-night—Adults 35c, Children 15c.
Grandstand 35c, Children 25c.

TO-MORROW Is Children's Day

It is only called Children's Day because of the fact that the price of admission and to the Grandstand is reduced. Every child can get into the grounds on Wednesday for 10c, and into the Grandstand for 10c, while adults pay the regular admission of 35c and 35c for the Grandstand. All soft drinks and rides on the grounds Wednesday to Children 5c.

This is really the biggest affair of any kind that has ever been staged in Eastern Ontario. The Directors of the Exhibition don't mean "may be," and are looking for the hearty co-operation by their attendance of not only the citizens of the City, but also of our County and neighbors in Central Ontario.

Just once again, don't miss it.

ROLAND DENNE, Pres. F. J. A. HALL, Secy.

Fur's flare into fashion

"The fondle of silk and fur" and the beauty of lovely fabrics from the loom and the spindle, form the offerings of the store of Barrie's, Limited, to feminine Fashion seekers after the latest ideas of the mode, both in fur coats and in ready to wear garments, for this store has two separate sections to serve both desires.

The gorgeous coats that seem to grow more luxurious year by year are here in the richest and most fashionable of the pelts from fur-bearing animals. Notable is a wonderful mink coat with shawl collar and a lining that has hand-painted designs of conventional foliage scrolls, in green and brown and silver. A beautiful grey squirrel coat has a roll collar and a grey platinum fox shawl collar finishes a model of grey Krimmer lamb. A brown broadtail, that super-elegant fur, shows a collar of brown Kolinsky, and there are grey and brown caracul models. Coats of Persian lamb, whose cuffs finish with little pendant tabs, show variations in trimming of Russian Kolinsky, natural mink, squirrel and Alaska Sable, while the same trimmings appear on the models developed in Hudson seal.

In the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear section, there are now new ideas in the swansdown coats of all-wool mohair in tailored style and fur trimming, made in soft shades of brown and sand and in the Caravan coats of imported tweeds, plain and fur-trimmed, one especially striking model appearing in a black and white mixture with skunk collar. Girls going away to school have special accommodation in the snappy coats designed for them, developed in navy chincilla, with fur collars and all-wool contrasting linings, the material of the lining being carried out in the narrow insets of the coat itself, in the pipings and in the novelty suede belts that finish these smart garments.

For sports wear there are the clingling jerseys, with one surface of silk and the other wool, the angora and satin and crepe combinations and the new "peau de peche" that looks like corded satin and is trimmed with the reverse side of itself, just like so many of the soft crepe satin frocks.

There are some stunning evening and dinner gowns here. One of the latter is developed in black Spanish lace posed over flesh-colored satin, with long, tight sleeves, almost tailored in effect and a large rhinestone buckle gathering the front draperies.

A gown whose fitted top is made of the pastel-tinted French metallic material has a short skirt of transparent black velvet that appears also in a tufted shoulder flower.

A soft black satin crepe with a skirt that is made of three alternating tiers of the material and its duller reverse side has creamy Battenberg lace on the cuffs of the long sleeves, and a model of Patou crepe has a narrow line from neck to hem of scarlet and French grey, edged with cut steel buttons, the same bright touch of scarlet appearing in the little collar.

A wonderful black evening gown has a tight bodice of Spanish lace, a narrow yoke of georgette being outlined with sparkling rhinestones that appear also on the front of the skirt, edging the motif that finishes the three rows of wide moire ribbon laid on the black lace that forms the bouffant effect.

Materials of the moment include stuffs called Pan-Cross and crepe Marquise and crepe Naldi, with a new wool georgette considered very good for afternoon wear, and evening things are developed in the soft laces and the wonderfully tinted pastel taffetas that make many of the dainty gowns.

So many shades are worn this year, with black always a favorite and white powdered with the closely-woven beads and sequins that still continue in general use. In the browns are their natural foils, the orange, tango and apricot shades ,and the monkey-skin that came into prominence in the spring. Navies are always liked and the fashionable shades of the moment include the Bordeaux and Chianti, both of the wine variety. Vagabond is a dark, myrtle green, jungle is a shade lighter and there is a golden chestnut that describes itself exactly, and a copper leaf hue that is a dark henna. Flemish blue resembles a delft blue in color and there is a Royal blue that is vivid and intense. Another wine shade is Malaga, while a brilliant Chinese pink has a ylelow tinge and its sister is a sunset pink, one of the new and distinctive evenig colors.

WM. LECH & SONS LTD.

Perhaps a note that strikes the onlooker in fall fashions is the curious mingling of Simplicity and Sophistication. The gentleman who lisped and explained it by saying that they fed him on alphabet soup when he was young and took out all the "S" letters beforehand, would have to give up in despair this year, if he were asked to name the highlights of the moment. Simplicity and Sophistication are the characteristics of the mode.

Perhaps the curious commingling is nowhere more noticeable than in the fur garments that clothe Milady, when one turns from the popular plain seal coat with its collar and conservative cuffs of self to the luxurious wrap of mink or Persian lamb or Hudson seal with a glorified lining that boasts of intricate designs in needlepoint. The name of needlepoint is familiar to home lovers who know it as a wonderful embroidery. Now they are using it on linings of superfine fur coats.

In the showcases of the fur store of William Lech & Sons, Limited, are excellent examples of the modes of the moment in furs . Here is a handsome Hudson seal with an orchid lining embroidered in a lovely needlepoint design, and another model has a lining whose front panel boasts a huge appliqued velvet rose. This garment has a luxurious collar and cuffs of Kolinsky.

A grey lamb with platinum fox collar and cuffs and vivid blue pussy willow crepe lining catches the eye, while the same grey fur trims a seal coat, and another seal wrap has brown fox fur in the long rolling shawl collar which is favoured. A golden mole with amber fox trimming is a lovely model, while a leopard skin and caraculs in krimmer, cocoa, and oyster hues are other novelty samples. A Persian lamb with sable and another variation of this hard-wearing fur with fox collar and cuffs have elongated tabs on the latter.

Popular furs for winter are the Hudson seal and moleskin, Persian lamb and muskrat, grey and brown squirrel and broadtail ,and one of the most popular trimmings is Kolinsky. The linings sport every shade, from the plain shades that depend on embroidered motifs for their charm to the needlepoint designs that come in gorgeous designs like one of parrots in natural colours and the intricate patterns of Oriental weaves.

Fox is the best of all for scarves, and comes in many varieties, including the silver, genuine black, cross, red, amber and brown. This fur has the triple advantage of being flattering, youthful, and becoming.

MUSIC FEATURE OF PROGRAMS

Famous Band and Two Soloists Aid Local Musicians.

MANY CONCERTS

The musical programme at the Peterborough Exhibition this week, as arranged by Mr. Webber Turner, promises to be one of the outstanding features of the annual Fair. The out-of-town additions to the programme of local talent will be Cervone's famous band, from Pittsburgh, with the inclusion in its personnel of several members who played formerly with Sousa's Band; also Miss Edna Joyce, vocal soloist, and "Buddie" Melva, boy soloist and banjoist.

To-night, before the grand stand, a full performance will be given, with Cervone's Band and Miss Joyce, and at the George Street entrance the band of the Peterborough Rangers will play, assisted by "Buddie" Melva. On Wednesday evening the Juvenile Band of the Salvation Army will play in the afternoon, also a distinct novelty and outstanding attraction in the Old-Tyme Fiddlers from the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, also "Buddie" Melva as soloist, while the Wednesday evening performance will include these two attractions, also the Senior Band of the Salvation Army.

On Thursday, the Curve Lake Indian Band and "Buddie" Melva will give the two programmes, and on Friday afternoon and evening the Peterborough Rangers and the 4th Canadian Machine Gun Pipe Band will play, with the Rangers performing on Saturday.

Cervone's Band and Miss Joyce will also be heard throughout the entire week, at two in the afternoon and from 7.45 to 8.15 in the evening.

At the Kiwanis Club's dinner at St. James' Church tent on Thursday, Miss Joyce and "Buddie" Melva will be the soloists.

FASHION NOTES.

BY HEDDA HOYT
(United Press Fashion Editor.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (United Press).—At the present writing there are no signs of our shedding tiers! Tiers will be just as popular during the fall and winter months as they have been during the summer season.

Not only frocks but wraps are being stressed with front tier arrangements. Even fur coats in some cases have tiers carried out in contrasting furs. A gray caracul coat, for instance, has a deep tier of gray-dyed ermine. Another coat of black seal has two diagonal tiers of gray squirrel. Sleeves of this model are made entirely of squirrel.

Many of the latest evening gowns of pastel velvet have no trimming except diagonal tiers at the front of the skirt. One new frock has the tiered effect without resorting to set-on tiers. In this case the straight-lined gown is made of three materials in three graduating colors giving a tiered effect. The upper part of the bodice is made of pale flesh georgette. Joining this, just above the normal waistline is a layer of pink satin which extends below hem. This gown blouses slightly at a low hipline being held by a narrow belt of brilliants.

Tripple tier skirts are frequently seen among new fall models. The three tiers may overlap one another or may be spaced to show the foundation between tiers. A bit newer, however, are the diagonal skirt tiers which are usually posed at the front of the skirt only. Diagonal lines of all sorts are well liked at present and are preferred to horizontal trimming details.

The combination of georgette and velvet is found in many tiered models of fall inspiration. The body portion of the dress is usually of georgette with the flounce portion carried out in transparent velvet of matching hue. We have seen these models in shades of green, brown, tan, navy and black.

Among the most interesting of the new evening gowns of tiered type is a gorgette model of flesh color which is completely covered from neckline to hemline with layers of fringe.

ACTRESS DIES IN HER PERFORMANCE

Audience Unaware of Sudden Passing of Vaudeville' Artist.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. — (United Press.)—While appearing in a vaudeville skit at a local theatre, Mrs. Violet Manning, 35, dropped dead from heart failure. The audience believed she had merely fainted and the next act was sent to the stage. Mrs. Manning's husband was in the wings when she was stricken.

The Mannings had just returned from a luncheon given Gertrude Ederle, also appearing on the bill.

SAINT and SINNER

On Monday, about an hour after Cherry and Bob had left for the office, Cherry to resume her duties as her brother-in-law's secretary, Fay Lane, Junior's demure, quiet little wife, arrived for one of her infrequent visits. Faith, who looked a little untidy after her share of the morning's housework and her bathing of the baby, led Fay into her bedroom where they could talk while she changed her dress and smoothed her hair.

"Something on your mind, dear?" Faith asked suddenly, after a keen look at Fay's slightly troubled, transparent young face. "How is Junior?"

"Oh, Long's fine," Fay replied, smiling the little secret, tender smile of the beloved wife who has no doubt of her husband's devotion. "Yes, there is something on my mind, Faith. It's about—Daddy Lane. I—I think he wants to come and live with us—with Long and me."

"Isn't he happy here?" Faith demanded, on the defensive instantly. "I'm sure I've tried to make him comfortable, to show him he's wanted—"

"It's not that, Faith," Fay protested unhappily. "He likes the old place. I suppose he misses Mother Lane, feels closer to her in the house that was their home for so long. And I think your house is just a little too splendid for him—he feels out of place in its newness and in the lovely, modern room you've given him. And he likes to talk with Long about business and politics and—and Mother Lane. He and Long seem to be so much closer lately than they were when Long was just a wild boy, running around with 'that fast Fay Allen,'" she smiled.

"That all sounds plausible, dear, but what is the real reason Dad wants to leave me—us?" Faith persisted, her usually serene white brow troubled by a frown.

"Well, he says," Fay admitted reluctantly, "that he feels that Bob has too big a load on his shoulders, and that he ought to leave."

"He's been paying his board," Faith frowned, "Of course twenty-five dollars a month hardly pays for his food, but he knows he's welcome to his room, to anything in the world I have." Her voice broke on tears, and her hands trembled as she inserted shell hairpins in the shining brown loop of hair on the nape of her neck.

"Oh, I suppose I'll have to tell you one other reason," Fay laughed nervously. "He's got it into his head that your Kate Lundy is trying to marry him—"

"Kate Lundy!" Faith gasped, then began to laugh helplessly. "Of all the ridiculous things! Why, Mrs. Lundy wouldn't dream—" But she stopped, recalling tiny, trivial incidents that had gone unmarked at the time: an extra chop on Jim Lane's plate; flowers in his bedroom; Kate humming as she darned Jim Lane's socks—"Oh, dear! Maybe he's right! And the poor darling doesn't want me to have to send a perfectly good housekeeper and cook away! Is that it, Fay?" Her brow had cleared again, and there was a fond light in her big brown eyes.

"Well," Fay laughed, too, "that's partly right. But I think Dad's scared to death she will marry him—and that he'll want her to! He's awfully lonesome, Faith, in spite of the fact that he's living here with you all. He feels that it would be a slight on Mother Lane if he married someone else. Shall I tell him it's all right—that you understand, and will lend him to us for a while, at least? I'll be good to him, Faith. I love him a lot, the poor dear."

Faith, kissing her sister-in-law, felt a twinge of conscience because, deep in her heart, she was a little relieved that there would be one less person to keep her from having a private life with her husband.

DETROIT PILOT WINS BIG BALLOON EVENT

Lands at Baxley, Ga., 725 Miles From Starting Point.

DETROIT, September 13. Canadian Press. — E. J. Hill, Detroit pilot, was unofficially accredited as the winner of the annual James Gordon Bennett, balloon trophy race. Piloting his huge balloon "Detroit" an estimated distance of 725 miles from the starting point here, Hill brought his huge bag down at Baxley, Ga., last night, 50 miles farther south than the second place Goodyear Sixth, also a United States entry.

During the sixteen years in which the event has been held the United States has carried off first place six times and Belgium five. Germany and Switzerland have won twice each and France once.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1927
(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Again the stars are menacing in the morning and helpful in the afternoon, according to astrology.

Many adverse aspects are strong until noon when it is well to undertake business cautiously.

There is a promising sign for merchants and manufacturers as the day advances and they are to have much business.

Today is better to sell than to buy, but there should be an extraordinary watchfulness later of the market for raw products.

Banking is well directed and financiers may prepare to meet new problems of serious import.

All the aspects appear to promise for the drama the most unprecedented interest, but the stage will for a time detract from attention usually paid to screen productions, it is foretold.

Great and marvelous inventions are to make motion pictures even more wonderful than they have been in the past, the seers prophesy.

Love affairs should flourish this evening, which will be lucky for women, but men should be wary of feminine initiative.

There is a good sign for association with persons from whom favors are desired. Promoters may find capitalists in listening mood toward sunset.

Astrologers foretell that furs will come into public notice because of some new fashion that may arouse protest from animal lovers.

British women are to make some sort of a political campaign in which American women will help, it is prophesied.

International bonds of unusual friendliness are to be formed through women's organizations, astrologers foretell.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a quiet and rather unimportant year.

Children born on this day probably will have to make their own way in the world, but they are likely to be endowed with happy, cheerful natures.

HEAT WAVE SWEEPS U.S. MIDDLE WEST

No Immediate Relief Promised —Forecast Fair and Warmer.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.— (Canadian Press.) — The mid-west stewed and sweltered to-day under a heat wave swept by hot south-west winds from the great central plains of the Platte, Arkansas and Missouri river valleys.

No immediate relief was promised by the day's forecast of "fair and warmer," nor did the Chicago weatherman see the possibility of lower temperatures for some days to come.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The divided brim hat ascribed to Agnes of Paris is of beige felt with rhinestone and gold pin.

What can't be cured must be endured. So it would seem the milliners have decided to accept the prolonged popularity of the small soft felt hat. They did their best a year or more ago to do away with these little hats entirely. So long as they remained in favor it seemed to many of the modistes that profits would continue to be meager.

Women actually wore their little felt hats two seasons—even three seasons. Small though the originals cost, they had them cleaned and reblocked. A fresh ribbon band or a new jeweled ornament was all that they needed to look quite new.

The really wise milliners went about devising new fashions for these simple felt hats. They pleated them, and draped them in ways that might not be too easily imitated. Agnes of Paris is given credit for having originated the new felt hat that is slashed at the brim in front—with one side turned back and up and the other flopping downward over one eye.

Alligator skin in mellow tones of brown is used extensively for both shoes and handbags—and in planning your autumn wardrobe you cannot do better than to consider the possibilities of these brown tones. A very smart street ensemble would consist of a black satin or cloth frock, worn with brown alligator shoes and purse, thin brown silk stockings, brown gloves and a black hat bearing one of the new tortoise-shell ornaments.

Best of all Fly Killers—10c and 25c per packet at all Druggists, Grocers and General Stores.

CHESLER'S

FIRST SHOWING

Introducing the new Fall Coats, Dresses, Hats and Shoes, we issue a cordial invitation to every lady in Peterborough to pay a visit of inspection to our convenient, roomy Store, particularly at any time during the last four days of this week, Wednesday to Saturday. Our advance orders have arrived, and the beautiful new models are now on display.

One feature that most ladies will appreciate is the extremely moderate prices asked for garments that instantly appeal to the eye for the loveliness of fabric and tastefulness of the styles.

TheNewCoats

Very noticeable are Fashion's touches in moulding the new Fall Coats. There's a distinctness to them that is refreshing, and wonderfully attractive. Flaring effect and lavish use of furs in trimming are noticeable features. The fabrics are again a step above those of last fall or spring in pattern, coloring and quality. There's utility in these Coats, and sterling value for every dollar of the price.

Dresses That Make You Feel Well Dressed

The Dress you've been dreaming about has arrived. Lovely exotic things, fresh from the designers, and as radiant as the season of fall itself. Beauty, gracefulness of line and of clinging, rich materials, the new Dresses will reach your highest ideal, and you'll especially like the really low prices. Not an extravagant garment on our racks.

Correct Hats

In our Millinery Section we are showing Hats that top the new mode. The first sharp winds of autumn bring the question of a Fall Hat uppermost in the mind of every woman. There's a Hat here for every occasion and a match for every frock. Rich blacks and subtle shades that belong to fall alone. Here, also, we emphasize the very moderate prices.

LATEST MODELS in FOOTWEAR

Autumn has a stimulating effect on social activities, a reminder of the necessity for smart Footwear.

You'll obtain the stylish Shoes in our Shoe Department, and the display is so wide that you can please your every taste, and remarkably easy on the pocket also.

Leafs Lose First Game of Series to Stars

PETES' ENTRY IN ONTARIO RACE AROUSES GREAT INTEREST IN TO-MORROW'S GAME WITH SAINTS

Toronto Champions and Local Seniors Meet Here in First Semi-Finall Game.

MUCH AT STAKE.

Second Clash Will Be Staged in New Maple Leaf Stadium.

Peterborough's entry in the Ontario senior baseball race for the first time in seven years has awakened the latent interest here in ball and there promises to be an old-time crowd at James Stevenson Park tomorrow afternoon when the much-heralded Toronto St. George's will clash with Manager Swanston's crew in the first game of the semi-final series.

The second game will be staged in the new Leafs' Stadium in Toronto on Saturday and Queen City enthusiasts are looking for a new record in amateur ball attendance in view of the accommodation that is available for the crowd at the stadium.

Tomorrow's game here will be fought out to the last ditch as both teams will be out to get the jump in the series. St. George's, who have cleaned up all the Toronto League winners in clean cut fashion, expect to take the series from the Petes in two games. Naturally the Petes cannot see it that way and they are determined to show the Saints tomorrow that all the good ball in Ontario is not played in Toronto.

Neither camp has announced its pitching selection for tomorrow but it is figured that "Lefty" Verrall will do the honors for St. George's saving the unbeaten Gillespie for the second game. Either Heckman or Hardill will go to the hill top for the Petes. Both teams will be at full strength.

The game is called for 3 o'clock sharp and should be by long odds the most interesting and colorful fixture of the season.

The winner of the series will meet the Western champs for the Ontario title.

PIRATES RETAIN LEAGUE LEAD

Take Third Straight Victory From Philadelphia By Score 3-2.

GIANTS AND CARDS TIED.

NEW YORK, September 13 (Canadian Press). — Home runs by Glenn Wright and Earl Smith gave the Pirates their third straight victory over Philadelphia at Pittsburgh, 3 to 2. Carmen Hill, chalking up his 21st victory of the season, allowed the Phillies but four hits. The victory enabled the Pirates to retain their lead in the hectic National League race.

Smith's homer in the fifth inning wiped out a one-run lead the Phillies had gained in the second on a walk to Wrightstone, a single and two sacrifices. The Quakers went ahead again in the seventh on another walk to Wrightstone, a single and a squeeze play by Thompson, but the Pirates again tied it up in their half on a walk to Harris, Smith's single, and Hill's long sacrifice fly. Ferguson, Philadelphia hurler, and Barney Friberg, third baseman, were ejected from the game after Smith's single when they protested a decision by Umpire Jordan, calling Harris safe at third. Manager "Stuffy" McInnis left the field with his ousted players, giving rise to reports that he also had been ejected. Scott took Ferguson's place on the mound, and Wright's homer in the eighth, the winning run, was made off him.

Giants Weather Storm.

The Giants weathered a heavy batting assault as well as a barrage of pop bottles at Chicago, winding up the Cubs' series with a 7 to 5 victory. New York and St. Louis thus remain tied for second place, two games from the Pirates.

Fitzsimmons was reached for 16 hits, but was given wonderful support, especially by Hornsby. Charlie Root was thumped off the slab in the fifth by successive triples by Mueller and Lindstrom, Nehf going to the rescue. Guy Bush was called upon for the last frame.

Some 25,000 fans saw their favourites go down, and gave vent to their feelings at some close decisions against the Cubs by raining pop bottles on the field in the ninth, several of the missiles landing near Harper in right field and one grazing Umpire Pfirman as the game ended.

Homer for Hornsby.

Hornsby clouted his 24th homer, and Hack Wilson his 27th. None was on base either time.

Jim Bottomley's home run with Holm on base in the fifth inning gave Arthur Reinhart and the Cardinals a shut-out victory over Brooklyn at St. Louis 2 to 0, as well as a clean sweep of the four-game series. Reinhart held the Robins to six hits, while Elliott was found for 11. Elliott was effective in the pinches, however, twice stopping the Cards with the bases filled. Twelve Cardinals were left stranded on base.

Luque and Lucas took the Boston Braves in two at Cincinnati, 5 to 4 and 3 to 0 respectively, in a double bill to make the Reds victors over Boston five in a row.

Allen's double, Walker's triple, and Ford's single gave the Reds a two-run lead in the fourth inning of the second game.

LAKEFIELD SHOOT VERY SUCCESSFUL

W. A. Payne Makes High Score in Labor Day Match.

LAKEFIELD, September 12. — The second shoot of the season in the Lakefield Rifle Association was held on Labour Day, and was successful in many respects, but the shooting was not as good as usual, due to the appearance of a mirage on the valley, which interfered with many of the shots.

DEMPSEY OUT OF LAW'S TOILS AND TUNNEY IN

Judge Refuses an Injunction Against Former Heavyweight Champion.

SUIT AGAINST GENE.

Former Secretary Seeks Year's Salary, Charging Breach of Contract.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Judge Otto Kerner, in Circuit Court, yesterday refused to stop the Dempsey-Tunney fight here September 22 when he denied an injunction to restrain Jack Dempsey from boxing until he carried out an alleged contract with the Coliseum Club of Chicago to fight Harry Wills, negro heavyweight.

While Dempsey was getting out of court proceedings, Tunney was becoming entrangled in legal matters. Thomas M. McHale, New York, who said he was Tunney's social secretary last year at a salary of fifteen thousand dollars, filed suit against the world heavyweight champion alleging breach of contract.

McHale asserted that he acted as business secretary and confidential adviser to the champion until Tunney decided to engage Eddie Eagan, former Yale athlete, in the same capacity. As a result McHale figured he was deprived of fifteen thousand dollars a year salary and is suing for that amount.

NORWOOD NEWS.

NORWOOD, Sept. 13.—Miss Evelyn Scott accompanied by her sister, Mrs. H. J. Ford of Norwood were in Toronto last week attending the Exhibition.

Mrs. Williamson Burgess of Norwood was hostess at a delightful party for her daughter, Ruth, in honor of her guests, Misses Mary and Roberta Woods, of Fraserville. The afternoon was spent in contests and games, after which afternoon tea was served from small tables, each being decorated with vases of pink and white flowers on the verandah. The assistants were Mrs. H. J. Ford and Misses Lila and Florence Burgess.

Misses Mary and Roberta Woods of Fraserville have returned home after spending a pleasant holiday with Misses Ruth and Margaret Burgess of Norwood.

SYRACUSE WINS FROM LEAFS 8-3

Pitcher Haid, Right Hander, Sold to St. Louis Nationals.

BEARS WIN DOUBLE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The Stars defeated Toronto, 8 to 3, yesterday in the first of a six game series at Syracuse. Two games will be played to-day and another double header Wednesday. Pitcher Harold Haid, Nationals yesterday to report immediately. He is the third Syracuse right hander, was sold to St. Louis player to be sold to the Majors in less than a week. Homer Peel, outfielder, has already joined the Cardinals, and Pitcher Russell Miller, brother of Walter Miller, Cleveland southpaw, will report to the Philadelphia Nationals at the end of the week.

The Newark Bears won yesterday's double-header at Baltimore, 6 to 0, and 5 to 2, in the last contests of the season at Oriole Park. In the first game Davies held the Birds to three safeties. In the first inning Kelly hit for the circuit with one on.

Porter's home run with one in the third inning of the second game gave the Orioles their only score.

Slaughter Colts 15-3.

The Bisons closed in on the League pennant with a vengeance at Buffalo yesterday when they slaughtered the Rochester Colts in the opener of the series, 15 to 3. Due to the fact that the Syracuse Stars have dug up an early season postponement to increase their total of remaining games by one, the runners-up can still tie the Bisons for the flag if they win all their remaining contests and Buffalo goes through the next seven games without gaining a victory. Carter, who hit a homer, a double and two singles, featured. The Bisons again played a miraculous defensive game, with Bisonnette and Cohen starring.

Reading and Jersey City broke even in a double header at Reading, the Keyes taking the first decision 6 to 5 and the Skeeters winning the nightcap 5 to 4. The Skeeters rallied for two runs in the seventh of the final to nose out the Keyes after Virgil Davis' home run had scored Jarrett ahead of him to put the locals in the lead.

DELORO WINS FRIENDLY GAME

Black Caps Have Little Trouble With Belleville Alemites.

MARMORA, Sept. 13.—Alemites, winners of the Belleville Industrial League, visited Deloro on Saturday to play an exhibition game, and were easily beaten by the score of 13 to 2. Rain halted the game in the sixth after the Belleville team's turn at bat. Owing to the game being arranged at a day's notice, the crowd only numbered a hundred and fifty odd.

Ralph took the mound for Deloro. Keir struck out. Rigley rolled to pitcher. Smith grounded to Ralph.

The Black Caps piled on eight in their half. Bond walked and took second on a wild pitch, but was caught off second. J. Quinn walked and stole second. Boudreau hit a short fly over short, Quinn taking third. Boudreau stole second. Quinn registered on a wild pitch, Boudreau taking third. A. Quinn walked and Regan was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. Brown's single scored Boudreau and A. Quinn. Regan was out stealing home. Brown scored on Hughes' hit to Kerr. Wood hit to Rigley, and was safe on a low throw to first, Hughes taking second. Ralph walked. Bond's single scored Hughes and Wood. J. Quinn's double brought in Ralph and Bond. Smith replaced Darrah. Bellnap's smart catch of Boudreau's fly retired the side.

Alemites got a lone counter in the next frame, Burly making home from second on Bellnap's single.

Owing to a slight injury sustained by Smith, Darrah again took the mound in the second. Wild pitching let in the homesters for another brace.

Alemites again retired in quick time. Ralph featured Deloro's half with a neat triple to right field. This paved the way for a further count of three runs. Leal and Boudreau comprised Deloro's battery in the fourth.

In the fifth, A. Quinn created the comedy of the game by hitting a triple to centre, which, in his attempt to stretch it into a homer, saw nearly all the opposition taking part in his retirement.

By good work Alemites obtained another run in the sixth, after which the game was called.

The teams:

Alemites—Kerr, 3b; Rigley, ss; Smith, 2b; P. Burley, cf; Young, 1b; Bellnap, rf; Peets, c; Darrah, p, 2b; White, lf.

Deloro—Bond, cf; J. Quinn, c, rf; Boudreau, rf, c; A. Quinn, 2b; Regan, 3b; Brown, lf; Hughes, 1b; Wood, ss; Leal, p; Ralph, p; Berry, cf.

Umpires—Kerr at plate; Bennett on bases.

Score:

Alemites	0	1	0	0	0	1	0	0	1—3
Deloro	8	2	3	0	x	—	—	—	13

PERCY ODDIE WINS CORN CROP PRIZE

Burnbrae Men Very Successful in Various Competitions.

BURNBRAE, Sept. 13.—Percy Oddie is being congratulated upon his win in the standing field competition for corn, under the auspices of Seymour Agricultural Society. Mr. McLean of Richmond Hill, the judge, stated that Mr. Oddie's field was by far the finest he had seen and that the general average in this district was superior to any others he had visited. Roy Walker was third in this competition while Messrs. Alex Hume and Co. received second in oats and Messrs. William Stewart and Son were well up in the money.

Burnbrae and Menie are usually right there when the awards for good crops are being handed out.

A few dry days last week practically wound up the harvesting here and fall work is well under way.

GIRL AGED 12 GOOD SWIMMER

Crosses Crowe Lake, 1½ Miles, in 31 Minutes.

SPLENDID TIME.

MARMORA, Sept. 13.—What is regarded locally as a good swimming feat was accomplished on Labor Day by 12-year-old Evelyn Bamlett of Toronto, a summer visitor at Mr. William Kerr's Crowe Lake cottage. This young lady swam from Stony Island in the midst of Crowe Lake to Mr. Kerr's beach approximately a mile and a half in thirty-one minutes. Previous to this, Miss Bamlett swam another course for the distance of a mile in remarkably good time.

FOREST FALLS, N.Y., September 13. — Four smiling Frenchmen, playing with the confidence that comes with the Davis Cup, bowled through their first round matches yesterday in quest of the United States turf court championship now held by one of their number, Rene LaCoste.

Like France, Canada had a perfect day. Jack Wright Gilbert Nunns and C. W. Leslie, all advancing.

Wright defeated Jack Mooney of Atlanta, Ga., 6-0, 6-4, 6-2, and Nunns eliminated Neil J. Sullivan, Philadelphia, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-0, 6-3.

Leslie won by default.

William T. Tilden and William W. Johnston, chief hopes of the United States who found the French too much for them n the battle for the cup last week, also reached the second round, but others of the leading United States stars went down in untimely defeat.

Among the upset casualties were John Doeg the 18 year old Californian, who has been seen as a future Davis Cup material, and Lewis N. White of Austin, Texas, conqueror of Doeg several times this year. Doeg was put out by Kenenth B. Appel of Princeton, 10-8, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, and white by Arnold W. Jones of Prov nce, 5-7, 6-3, 6-1, 6-0.

Others Vanish.

Two other seeded players to vanish were George M. Lott, Jr second young American hope for future tennis greatness, and Richard N. Williams, Philadelphia veteran. The latter two defaulted, Lott because of illness and Williams because of the press of business.

At the end of the first day the United States was slightly behind the foreign invaders, the defeats of White and Doeg and the defaults of Lott and Williams, left only Tilden, Johnston, Manuel Alonzo, a Spaniard now living in the United States seeded players.

All eyes yesterday were on the French. With the one great object of their quest accomplished but with another worthwhile triump within racquet reach, they opened play in smiling but earnest fashion. Each player won his match in characteristic style.

Plays Feature Match.

LaCoste, as title holder played the first feature match and walked stolidly through it as is his wont, winning from Frank C. Owens of Atlanta, Ga., 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

Handsome little Henri Cochet, on the other hand, and the moustached Jacques Brugnon, gave the crowd a bit more action in winning respectively from Percy L. Kynaston, Rockville Centre, N.Y., 6-3, 7-5, 6-3, and Gregory S. Mangin, Newark, N. J., 6-4, 7-5, 6-3.

It remained for Borotra to give a true gallery exhibition, playing the last match of the day against Teize Tobe of the Japanese Davis Cup team. He apparently gave his opponent the first two sets, then won spectacularly at 3-6, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-0. Beaming at the gallery, and covering court with huge leaps, the Bounding Basque cleaned up the match in short order once he opened the throttle.

To-day comes a great test for the youthful Torontonian, Nunns, for he will meet LaCoste.

CAMPBELLFORD WINS AT TENNIS

Takes Four Out of Five Matches in Tummon Cup Finals.

PLAYS PORT HOPE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 13. — In the finals for the Tummon Trophy, played at Point Anne on Saturday, Campbellford succeeded in winning four of the five events from the Belleville club, who were winners of that district. The scores were: for the men's singles, Clifford Weston, Campbellford, won from W. Pinkerton 7—5, 6—3. Harry Free, Campbellford, won from A. Armstrong, 3—6, 6—3, 6—4. In the mixed doubles, Miss Jessie Weston and Dr. H. B. Longmore won from H. J. Parker and Miss F. Ross of Belleville, 6—0, 6—2; Miss Josephine Longmore and J. H. Bell, Campbellford, lost to T. Black and Miss D. Henna, 2—6, 6—2, 4—6. Wilbert Kingston and Hilton Beatty won the men's doubles against P. Cole and C. Bryant, 6—3, 4—6, 7—5.

This is the second season that the Tummon Trophy has been open for contest and the local club has succeeded in winning it both times. This afternoon the club will be at home to Port Hope. The play will begin sharp at two-thirty. The events scheduled to take place are two men's singles, one ladies' singles, one ladies' doubles, one mixed doubles, and two men's doubles. This program should prove interesting to anyone even remotely interested in the game.

1927-28 Term Opened By Superior Court

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press.)— The 1927-28 term of the Superior Court here officially opened yesterday with an inaugural ceremony at which Chief Justice Martin presided and Right Honorable Lord Hewart, of Bury, Lord Chief Justice of England, was guest of honor. The Lord Chief Justice of England spoke first in French and then in English. He thanked the members of the bench and bar for the reception tendered him.

"On both sides of the Atlantic we have the same task, the exercise of justice," he continued. "We have different methods, but we are inspired by a common purpose, the triumph of justice by law. And how could it be otherwise, since both systems of law have a common origin in the old Roman law. In Quebec your judicial institutions have been a vital force in the past. Guard them intact for it is by developing them that you are able to contribute to the prosperity of your province and your country."

MEN TO FAVOR DARKER SHADE

Allan C. Sharpe Sees Best Dressers Moving Away From Blue.

TIES OF MANY COLORS

Darker shades in suits will predominate this fall, thinks Allan C. Sharpe, although there will be a few tweeds. The three button clover leaf lapel style will be represented, but it is not likely to be so popular as in the larger cities. This, however, is now worn largely in Toronto and the United States. Blue is a favorite color in overcoats but the best dressers are moving away from blue towards tweeds and light shade types. In shirts, white is the big seller and the collar attached shirt still enjoys great favor. Shirts with hard and soft collars and in stripes and checks promise to be much in vogue during the Fall. Most of these shirts are of English broadcloth.

Hand-loomed Italian silk ties in checks, dots, and fancy designs with many ranges to choose from are the latest thing in neckwear.

In hats many Christies will be worn, more than in former years. A few velours will be seen, but the demand for these hats has been weak during the last four or five years. Heavy jumbo knitted sweaters are enjoying popularity; the crew necked pullover sweater is a big attraction.

Caps are light colored with checks and eight quarter tops. Among young men soft collars are preferred to hard collars.

Snap brimmed hats were still the fancy of the younger men, with gray, shrimp, crystal and mauvette as the colors generally chosen. Lots of fancy socks are being shown this season, even the woollen socks exhibiting a greater variety of colors. Mr. Sharpe also showed the latest in men's pyjamas in checks and with collars attached, permitting the wearer to put on a tie and thus giving greater freedom in leaving his room with the knowledge that he is at least tolerably dressed. These are in English broadcloth.

The Last is First in MEN'S FOOTWEAR

The tendency in men's footwear for the coming season is towards moderation. In the last few years, the style of shoes has swung from one extreme to the other, from the narrow, feather-edged corn-producers, to the balloon-toed, comfort schooner of the past season. Now the pendulum swings more slowly and shows signs of coming to rest with a comfortable, large, but not bulbous toed shoe. The English last also grows in favour and promises to run a close second, say some shoe men. The colours are black, with quite a number of tans of different degrees, but with a distinct black predominance later in the season.

For men's formal wear the patent leather, narrow, laced pump will be correct.

In ladies' shoes medium or Cuban heels are featured for street wear, and velvet or satin slippers with high spike heels for evening dress. Brown kid and calf will be popular, and bright buckles are in extensive use for the toes, as are the reptile trimmings. Strap and tie shoes and some Oxfords come in for their share, as the tendency is towards a fairly low heel.

Goloshes.

The rain boot and low golosh, with the turn-down cuff, in black, fawn, and tweeds, mostly, will predominate, while some high black ones will be worn for the deep snow.

With men the two or three buckle golosh is to be a favourite, and with some the slide fastener type is favoured.

Price of Leather.

The price of shoes is steadily climbing, and all indications point to a stillhigher price for some time to come. Manufacturers, who at one time could contract for a year in advance, cannot do so now for more than thirty days. The scarcity of hides accounts for this. The post-bellum reduction in the price of hides, when the market was flooded and the store-houses stacked high with them, caused those who bred cattle to turn their attention elsewhere. The herds gradually decreased in size; farms sprung up where there had previously been ranches, and even South America, whence came so much of the world's beef and leather supply, turned to other things. Now the surplus beef and leather supply has been exhausted; the meat products are not in such demand as once they were—and leather is scarce. European countries who formerly supplied their own are now in the market. Russia, up to early in July, had taken 300,000 hides from South America, as compared with 75,000 during all the past year. Thus the price of hides has increased 70 per cent. since February. Cattle cannot be raised over night, but even then, there is scarcely enough inducement, for beef is not in great demand, and leather is only a by-product of the cattle raising industry.

Business Facilities Afforded Patrons Of Peterborough Exhibition This Year

Mr. Denne states that the Exhibition Grounds and Buildings are in fine condition for the Exhibition. The buildings are repainted and there is an additional cattle barn on the Lock Street side. "It all depends on you—and the weather—to make this Exhibition the most successful yet, as all that is humanly possible is being done by the Board to insure success," he said, in a message to the people today.

The Canadian Pacific Telegraph Office will maintain a messenger service to the grounds for the accommodation of those doing business there, and they may also have an office in the grounds, although the latter is not yet certain. So far, they have had an increase of 8% over last year's business during the corresponding days of the C.N.E.

The Bell Telephone Company will put lines to all parts of the grounds and has an exhibit different from any previously displayed.

C. Lacheur, Postmaster, promises a good exhibit at the local Exhibition. Different phases of Post Office work will be explained and, in addition, a motion picture machine will portray the gradual development of the service from its infancy up to the present time. Literature will be given out and any questions in connection with the service will be gladly answered. There will be a dead-letter display, as in other years, and the space is in the Manufacturers' Building, as formerly.

The Canadian National Telegraph Office will have its usual

SPORTS AT EXHIBITION ARRANGED FOR TOMORROW

Children's Day Will See Youthful Contestants Vie in Races.

BIG VARIETY

All Public, Separate and Collegiate Pupils Are Eligible.

Children's Day at the big Exhibition is always a much looked for event in the lives of the younger generation of this district and this year it will be bigger and better than ever.

When the directors saw fit to give the children a day they incorporated with it many sport events in which there has always been plenty of competition. For the last few years the school relay races have been very keenly contested and last year this was the feature event. Four runners represent each school and they usually carry their school's colors.

This year Children's Day comes on Wednesday and the sports commence at two o'clock in the afternoon. All the schools will be given a holiday that afternoon and pupils of the Public, Separate, Collegiate Institute and district Public schools will be permitted to enter the events.

The program is in charge of G. H. Roper of the Y.M.C.A., and he has a strong committee composed of public school teachers working with him to make the day a great success.

There will be no limiting the number of entries into the different events as the races will be run in heats. A very competent set of judges has been chosen and the entry list has been very large.

The events will be:

10 years and under; a relay balloon race, four boys making a team.

50 yards dash for boys 12 years and under.

50 yard dash for boys 14 years and under.

50 yard dash for boys 16 years and under.

There will also be the boy scout race with all contestants in uniform.

25 yard dash for girls 10 years and under.

50 yard dash for girls 12 years and under.

Potato race for girls 14 years and under.

There will be another event to take the place of the nail driving contest.

STUDEBAKERS ARE STRONG IN DESIGN

Five Different Models Are Included in the New 1928 Line.

Five different models of Studebaker are for sale by Wm. Reid and son—the President, a seven passenger Sedan, Commander, five passenger Sedan; "Regal," the Commander Sport Roadster, the Dictator Sedan, and the Erskine Six Sport Coupe. The first named is on the 127-inch wheelbase chassis; the next two on the 120-inch wheelbase chassis, and the last two on the 113-inch wheelbase chassis.

Three newcomers of distinction have been announced recently by Studebaker. They are the Commander, Dictator and the Erskine Six Sport Roadsters. The Commander Roadster is powered by the same motor as the bigger models, and offers thrilling performance and speed in a car of extreme smartness. The upholstery is of genuine Spanish leather of distinctive color. The low-swung rumble seat in the rear deck, is comfortable and amply accommodates two passengers. Distinctive duo tone lacquers, folding wind-shield, with nickel frame, disc wheels, front and rear bumpers, and many other modern accessories are standard equipment on this model.

RURAL LIGHT USERS MUST SIGN PAPERS

Utilities Commission Ordered To Discontinue Electric Service.

FINAL NOTICE.

New Discharge Pipe To Be Installed at Pumping Plant at Once.

The Peterborough Utilities Commission has received orders from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission to discontinue the service to all rural light and power users who have not signed the necessary contract.

For several months the rural users have been given an opportunity to sign the contracts but as yet some have not done so. Thus to bring matters to a head they will be cut off.

The Commission at its meeting yesterday decided to place three 300-watt lights on the C. P. R. bridge, and one 300-watt light at the corner of Water and Brock streets.

The horticultural prize won by the property of the commission will be given to the caretaker.

The manager was instructed to commence work on a second discharge pipe at the pump house. At present there is only one pipe supplying the city mains and it was thought necessary to build a second one in case of emergency. The estimated cost was $4000.

PLANE CRASHES BEFORE FLIGHT

Fire Bursts Out as the Heavy Machine Is Picking Up Speed.

FLIERS UNHURT.

ETAMPES, France September 13 —Canadian Press. — The giant Potez biplane, piloted by Lionel De Marmier and Louis Favreau, was wrecked while taking off here today, in an attempt to break the worlds distance record. The big machine had progressed half a mile down the field when a tire burst, sending the plane over on its nose. The airmen, in an enclosed cockpit, at the rear, were uninjured.

Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL.

Shirley Mason is the pretty heroine of "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," playing at the Capitol Theatre during the first three days of this week. She carries the production, although the other character parts are well enacted. Cullen Landis is Victor Martin, hero of the piece. E. Allyn Warren has the role of Uncle Sam Shapiro, the kindly Jew who guards Rosie, and Chester Conklin is James Brady, who starts out as one of New York's "finest," and ends by assuming the part of a wealthy contractor. Otto Lederer is Louie, the buttinsky of the picture, who provides an opportunity for a new word "kibbitzer," supposed to be the Yiddish equivalent of bore.

To Uncle Ben Shapiro, a desperate mother brings her baby girl with a request that he adopt it, so he and Officer Jim Brady assume charge of the child and watch it grow to be a lovely girl. Then Victor Martin happens along on a visit to the Ghetto, sees Rosie, falls in love with her and takes her for a ride in his automobile, assuming the role of a chauffeur. Rosies' costume for the occasion is outlandish in the extreme, and while waiting for Victor to bring her a wrap, after stopping near his home she wanders into the house, where a "hard times" party is in progress. She receives the prize, a leather medal, for the funniest costume, and goes home in tears. Brady, who is playing pinochle with her guardian, assumes charge of her forthwith, and carries her off to his rich establishment, where she is converted into a fashionable young lady without any loss of time. Victor goes to her guardian, tells him he loves Rosie, and wishes to marry her, and they engage in pursuit of the maiden, arriving at Brady's home. Here with the help of Uncle Ben, Victor abducts the young lady and they run foul, in the ensuing chase, of a wrathful traffic officer, who happens also to be a Justice of the Peace. He marries them and a satisfactory conclusion is reached.

ducting his fine organization that he has his audience with him from the start. And his control of the band is none the less sure because of his geniality. His boys are as happy as he is, and there is a wholesome air of good fellowship about the whole unit that puts band and audience on friendly terms at once.

In their opening programme Cervone and his musicians provided a varied fare, but nothing that was not good. The overture "Martha," featuring "The Last Rose of Summer," was one of the high lights of the concert, and charmingly played was the delightful score of "The Student Prince," with Miss Edna Joyce, the band's vocal soloist, singing one of the most popular numbers of that sparkling musical comedy. Cervone's organization was in its happiest vein in this selection, and as they are billed to play both "The Vagabond King," and "Hit the Deck," selections in their concert tonight, there is a treat ahead of the grand stand patrons.

Cervone's own arrangement of "Yankee Rose" was another feature that highly pleased last night, and the band did some admirable clowning in the comedy number "Crazy Words, Crazy Tunes," in which Messrs. Boney, Marks, Mazzeri and Nossakoff proved themselves capable fun-makers.

In short the Cervone outfit is a band, and something more.

It is a collection of individual entertainers, as well as a musical unit.

It is here to please, and it will do that without trouble judging by last night's programme, and the reaction of the crowd to the band's efforts.

Miss Joyce, the soprona soloist, contributed several numbers, and easily triumphed over the difficulties of outdoor singing. Her voice is strong and true, and she knows how to use it. She, too, will be a prime favorite with the exhibition crowds this week.

Cervone and his band are so fine that it is a pleasure to think that they are to play again to-night, and then to give two concerts daily for the balance of the Exhibition.

They should be given ample time at each grand stand performance to show what they can do—they are worth featuring to the utmost.

No Gray Today!

Fear of crude dyes no longer excuses gray hair. You don't have to use them. Kolor-Bak is a clean, colorless liquid that cannot harm the hair; and it does bring back the color. Not the weird hues women used to get from old-fashioned hair dyes, but the color your hair ought to be—the color it used to be.

Kolor-Bak acts gently—the change is gradual. That's why your closest friend can't detect it. Hair is left lustrous; only the gray is gone. Blonde, auburn, brown, black—any shade responds to this natural process. The one bottle is right for all.

Why experiment with anything—even on one lock of hair—when Kolor-Bak always gets the same perfect result—on a money-back guarantee! For sale at all druggists' and leading department stores.

LITTLE GIRL KILLED BY CAR

Mary and Teresa McDonald Fatally Hurt in Winnipeg.

IN SIGHT OF MOTHER.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 13. — With her 20 months old sister, Teresa, clasped in her arms, Mary McDonald, aged 13, was struck by an automobile on Sunday and both died from their injuries. At a street curb Mary stopped to let a motor truck go by and then walked into the path of a car going in the opposite direction. Her mother screamed a warning, but too late.

According to some authorities, the custom of wearing black for mourning was handed down from prehistoric man, who, on the death of a member of his household, stained his body black in order that the spirit of the deceased should not recognize and haunt him.

ELECTRICAL DEVICES MAKE HOME LIFE MORE PLEASANT

Latest in Labor Saving Appliances Shown at Exhibition.

GIVE COMFORT.

Stoves To Warm In Winter and Iceless Cooling For. Summer.

Ontarians live in a paradise of electricity, and nowhere is this fact more evident than at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. There are electrical appliances for every kind of work and pleasure. A person who desires to have all the electrical devices available for the comfort of his home would have 87 pieces.

Of all the modern inventions which science has perfected during the last quarter of a century in connection with electricity there is perhaps none more important than the home appliances branch which has lightened to a great extent the burdensome but necessary washing, ironing, sewing, sweeping and cooking—everything incident to the average household. So great has been the development of these appliances, which but a few years ago were thought luxuries, are to-day but a part, and a very necessary part of every well equipped household. The housekeeper of to-day is being emancipated from the household slavery by electric servants. And such efficient servants that those who have made a study and comparison of old fashioned and modern methods, have found by actual test that the housewife who does it electrically saves one day in seven. That is the housekeeper of this generation has one day a week more than had her mother for rest and recreation.

No other area of similar extent as Ontario is as bountifully supplied with cheap electrical energy and the people of this province are highly educated in its possibilities from boiling the kettle to washing the clothes.

There are some splendid exhibits of electrical devices shown at the exhibition and Peterborough "The Electrical City of Ontario," is showing to those who visit the great fair, that she is living up to her name, and is making housekeeping easier by pressing the button.

The latest thing in electrical stoves is there, shown by Miller, Powell Company, along with many other devices which were exhibited at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

Electrical Refrigerator.

Fitting into the modern kitchen, the electrical refrigerator is the joy of the busy housewife and dispenses with the daily call of the iceman. No longer is the floor tracked with muddy footprints nor the woman of the house dependent upon the response to the sign hung in the window. No longer does the housewife defer an engagement that she may be at home to admit the iceman. The cold-making apparatus is entirely separate from the food chamber and occupies less room than the ice which it displaces. Operating noiselessly and automatically, without motor or other moving parts it creates cold air which flows over the food, keeping it in an ideal temperature. Not only is the air thoroughly chilled before it flows over the food, but it remains pure and dry, not having any opportunity to be contaminated by melting ice.

Grant and Thorpe have given up their booth at the Exhibition to the Frigidaire Company of which they are the agents in this city and these crisp, cold air refrigerators are on exhibit.

SUN LIFE HEAD TELLS AGENTS OF ADVANCES

Company Has Grown Steadily For the Past Fifty Years.

QUOTES FIGURES.

Annual Agency Convention Held This Year in U. S. For First Time.

DETROIT, Sept. 12— (Special)—One hundred millions of new money will be invested by the Sun Life of Canada during the present year. In the next five years over six hundred millions will be invested. During the past fifty years this great Canadian company has invested more than one billion dollars in separate investments.

The company has just closed its annual agency convention, which for the first time in the history of the company was held in the United States.

President T. B. Macaulay's address on the development of the company during the past fifty years was of course the feature of the four day convention. The rapid strides that this company has made is one of the romances of the insurance world. Some idea of the progress this company is making can be gathered by comparisons with the figures for new business secured by the combined companies of the continent. The Sun Life's new business is increasing at the rate of 32 per cent. compared with 1½ per cent. of the combined companies.

This year Mr. Macaulay completes his fiftieth year with the Sun Life, and his story of the development of the company from practically a babe among insurance companies to the commanding position it holds to-day as an international giant among financial institutions, was extremely interesting.

Mr. Macaulay contrasted the amount of business written fifty years ago, which amounted to something like $950,000, with the present year's business which will probably amount to $350,000,000 Fifty years ago there was a little less than two and one-half millions of business in force, while to-day one billion and one-half of business is on the books The assets fifty years ago were approximately $280,000 and at the end of the present year it is estimated the assets will reach the $400,000,000 mark.

Mr. Macaulay spoke of the investment problems of the company, and although the sums are reaching stupendous figures, he does not foresee any trouble. During the past fifty years he estimated that the Sun Life has invested $1,200,000,000 in separate investment. In the next five years the company will invest $450,000,000 of new money and will re-invest $150,000,000, making a total for the next five years of $600,000,000. This year alone the company will invest about $100,000,000.

Mr. Macaulay paid a tribute to the wise and sound Canadian insurance laws. He said that the restrictions by which preferred stocks that have not paid regular dividends for 5 years and common stocks, seven years, were not eligible for such investments were wise, thereby guarding the policy of the company to the extent that it could not invest except in well established corporations.

He said that the great present earning power of the outstanding securities of both Canada and United States had every prospect of growing with the countries. The company now has $400,000,000 invested, and not one cent of interest or dividends is in arrears. Opportunities for investment are gorwing with the development of the countries and the field is being extended, and Mr. Macaulay does not see any difficulty.

The Sun Life is distinguished for its wonderful earning power. Last year it earned over $20,000,000 and the prospects are that even this stupendous figure will be increased this year.

For the first five months of 1927 the valuations of the assets of the company show an increase of $11,000,000 and since this valuation was made on June 8, prices have materially increased.

Wealth, particularly in the United States, is advancing by leaps and bounds. During the war, wealth simply poured in, and the amount of money that has been accumulated is stupendous for investments. The investment of this wealth is so tremendous that competition is keen.

Mr. Macaulay announced that the profits to policy holders for the coming year will be increased for the eighth consecutive year.

Sensitive Device To Measure Wires

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(United Press.)—A device so sensitive that it measures a billionth of an inch or a millionth of a degree of temperature has been perfected in the Bell Telephone laboratories by P. P. Cioffi, physicist.

The instrument was constructed to measure almost infinitesimal changes which wires of different composition undergo when they are magnitized.

RELAY RUNNERS AHEAD OF TIME

Five Minutes Up On Schedule at Bowmanville To-day.

REACH HERE AT 7.30.

The relay run from Toronto to Peterborough bringing greetings from President Dixon, of the Canadian National Exhibition to President Denne, of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, got off to a good start in Toronto this morning.

The boys are running ahead of schedule, having a lead of five minutes at Bowmanville at 1.25 p.m., when W. Outram took up the message.

The boys are scheduled to arrive at 7.30 to-night, but they may be a little ahead of time. A big ovation will be given the runners when they arrive at the Exhibition Park.

Dick Bates started off on the 100-mile relay race from Toronto to Peterborough at 8.30 this morning. There had been a rainstorm during the night, which made the pavement rather bad for running, but later in the morning it dried up, providing ideal conditions for running, not too warm, and with no sun to heat the asphalt, so few cases of blistered feet were developed. At one point the runners were eighteen minutes ahead of schedule, but later, due to many hills and other adverse conditions encountered, the lead was dropped to five minutes, and seems destined to remain there.

The cars taking out the runners, leave them in G. H. Roper's car and bring those who have already done their stretch to town. Thus, Mr. Roper, who knows the course, is with the runner continually, while the others are taken care of and rubbed down in order that they may resume the last lap to the Exhibition Grounds to-night.

SIX NEW CASES OF PARALYSIS

Three at Edmonton and Three at Outside Points.

COOL WEATHER HELPS.

CALGARY, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—There were no further cases of infantile paralysis reported here today, according to the Medical Health Officer. There are five cases of the disease under treatment here. All schools have been closed and children under the age of eighteen are barred from attending theatres, churches, and places of amusement.

Three suspected cases were reported at Edmonton during the last twenty-four hours while Stettler, Wainwright, and Daysland reported one case each.

"The present cold weather is our greatest ally," said Dr. T. Whitelaw, Edmonton Medical Health Officer today. "Continuation of the present cool spell will do more than anything else to check the epidemic."

MINISTER FACES SERIOUS CHARGES

Rev. J. J. Mellor, of Picton, Remanded Until Sept. 22.

PICTON, Ont., September 13 Canadian Press. — Rev. Joseph J. Mellor, United Church minister here, was arraigned before Magistrate Levi Williams, on two serious charges, involving a girl under 18 years of age. Mr. Mellor was remanded until September 22nd and bail was refused by the Crown.

"There is nothing I regret more in my 18 years here," declared Magistrate Williams. "I am sorry I am not able to grant the request for bail. Public opinion and the nature of the offence make it impossible."

Mr. Mellor returned to Picton jail in custody of Chief Bibble.

STEAMER DISABLED.

French Vessel Reports Ship in Trouble in the Atlantic.

HALIFAX, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—The French steamer Coeur d'Alene today reported sighting a steamer apparently broken down in Latitude 41.33 North, Longitude 63.30 West. The Coeur d'Alene was unable to raise the wireless of the other steamer.

This information was contained in a radio message received at the local agency of the Marine and Fisheries Department from Sable Island. It was not stated whether or not the French vessel went to the assistance of the disabled steamer, which was described as of about five thousand tons, with black hull and yellow top and one black band.

SENTENCED TO DIE AS SPY FOR BRITAIN

Native of Holland Found Guilty With 22 Others in Leningrad.

LENINGRAD, Russia, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press)—Albert Goyer, said to have been an international spy since 1916, has been sentenced to death by shooting as the reputed head of a group of twenty-six persons charged with espionage in Russia in behalf of the British Intelligence Service.

Eight others of the group were condemned to death, thirteen were given prison terms ranging from six months to eight years, and four others were acquitted.

The prisoners were accused of forwarding reports in invisible ink through the Finnish Consulate here to a British representatives in Finland, giving data on the Soviet navy including the plans of battleships and submarines.

Special despatches have identified Goyer, or Goier, as of Dutch birth. He was at first arrested by the Soviet Political Police in 1926 but was released for lack of evidence. He was re-arrested with his alleged confederates last July.

The despatches quoted him as telling a Leningrad court that he was instructed by "Capt. Boyce, head of the British Intelligence Service at Reval" to remain in Leningrad throughout 1927 because the "British were going to occupy the city."

IN POLICE COURT

Leslie E. James pleaded guilty to speeding on the Provincial Highway and was fined $10 and costs.

J. W. Piers of Toronto was charged with speeding on the Highway, going 60 miles an hour. The Toronto police had failed to get Piers to sign the summons, although they had a woman sign it. The Magistrate would not accept this.

Highway Traffic Officer Hugh Wilson said that the man admitted the offence and that in traffic courts the summons as it was would be accepted. The car was owned by the McLaughlin Car Company, Oshawa, but Piers had asked that the summons be sent to Toronto.

In the case of W. G. Mackey, who was charged with speeding, J. A. McGiven had signed the summons endorsed by the Oshawa magistrate, but His Worship ordered that the summons be signed by the defendants.

Charles Toplis, who pleaded guilty to the stealing of two cars, will come up for sentence Saturday morning.

Excise Officer Buller laid charges of having a still without the necessary permit against Robert J. Dever and Albert Freeburn of Young's Point. He and Provincial Constable Maker seized two stills at Young's Point yesterday. Both men pleaded not guilty and will come up for trial on Tuesday, September 20. Bail of $2,000 was granted in each case.

Automobile Registrations.

BUICK LEADS THE WHOLE FIELD.

Cook County, which includes the City of Chicago, is one of the most competitive fields in the whole of the U. S. A., and makes an interesting study of public approval of Motor Cars. In spite of the fact that all makes of cars represented have large organizations with high power selling forces, BUICK is and has always been away AHEAD of its competitors.

The following is the list of registrations for the months of August, in this area:

Buick	1401
Chevrolet	1040
Nash (complete line)	568
Pontiac	352
Studebaker	348
Dodge	334
Essex	303
Chrysler (complete line)	273
Hudson	226
Oakland	193
Willys-Knight	153
Ford	146

It is interesting to note from the above that Buick leads the whole field, even heading the low price field including Chevrolet. As far as the Buick price field is concerned, if one adds the total of its nearest competitors, Nash, Studebaker, Hudson and Willys-Knight, you will find that Buick sold more than these all put together. Further investigation of these registrations show that while the total number of registrations for all makes of cars was down this August from 1926, that Buick enjoyed a gain of 58.6 per cent.

General Motors group, including all lines, did 52.5 per cent. of the total business for the month.

BIRTH.

DUGGAN.—To Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Duggan, 157 Rutherford avenue on Tuesday, September 6th, a son (William Frederick).

SUTTON.—To Mr. and Mrs. H. Paul Sutton (Wilhelmine Perrin), 263 Briar Hill Ave., Toronto, at Alexandra Wing, Western Hospital, on Monday, Sept. 12, a daughter, Joan Sheppard.

FACTS

Many eyes were apprehensively turned aykward this forenoon and many fervent hopes were expressed that the Weatherman would behave himself in the course of this and the four succeeding days. The Exhibition Board has unanimously agreed to buy him a brand new bathing suit for an all day swim on Sunday provided he keeps out of the water for the rest of this week.

The appearance of one of the airplanes of the Canadian Air Services, flying low above the Exhibition Grounds, caused a craning of many necks this forenoon. The airman swooped down close enough to the ground to be able to exchange some remarks with some of the spectators. Flying at a much higher altitude the airplane appeared again this afternoon.

The number of fat men among the workers attached to the travelling shows speaks well for the skill of the cooks and the quality of the fare provided.

The ladies in charge of the St. John's Church C.W.A. tent mean business. One of the workers has posted her self near the entrance and hails all prospective customers within easy distance of the query, 'Have you had your dinner yet?' Even if one has already dined the refusal of such an invitation from such charming lips calls for the exercise of a great deal of will power.

A fine string of mules grazing near the north end of the grounds engaged the attention of the juvenile population. The antics of one of the mules, which loosened itself and gave an exhibition of mulishness provoked considerable mirth among the onlookers.

ROYAL BOARD TO HOLD FINAL SESSION TO-DAY

Counsel Lays Submissions Before Commission Respect to Canadian Distilleries.

ARGUMENT OFFERED.

Expected Commissioners' Report May Be Completed By End of Month.

OTTAWA, Ont., September 14 (Canadian Press). — The Royal Customs Commission will probably conclude public hearings to-day. The final sitting will mark the close of one of the most exhaustive investigations by Royal Commission in recent years, if not in the history of Canada. During the tour of the Commission, which embraced every province in the Dominion, hundreds of witnesses have been examined in the numerous cases investigated. Thousands of pages of evidence have been taken, and hundreds upon hundreds of exhibits collected. The investigation has covered direct smuggling, under-valuation of imports for duty purposes, liquor and narcotic smuggling, income, sales, and gallonage tax evasions, and other matters affecting the revenues of the Dominion. The operation of the anti-smuggling treaty between Canada and the United States, has been one of the important matters inquired into.

Yesterday was devoted largely to cleaning up matters in the hope of closing to-day. Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., counsel, laid before the Commissioners his submissions with respect to the Canadian distilleries which were notdealt with at other cities. Brief argument was offered leries, and then the Commission took by counsel for certain of the distil- the submissions under consideration. The decision of the Commission with respect to them, as well as in regard to all other matters before the Commission, will appear in a report for the Governor-in-Council.

Work on Report.

It is understood that the Commissioners, who are all resident outside the Capital, will stay here and work on the report after the sittings conclude. Just how long its preparation will require cannot be stated definitely, but it may be completed by the end of the month. It will go to the Governor-in-Council for consideration, and its contents may not be given out until Parliament meets. While the Commission was appointed by the Governor-in-Council, the investigation which it conducted was really authorized by Parliament on the recommendation of the Parliamentary Committee which investigated charges of maladministration of the Customs Department.

Cover Many Subjects.

The preparation of the report will be a work of some dimensions owing to the mass of evidence and the great number of exhibits before the Commission. The report must cover a very large variety of subjects. Commercial smuggling petty smuggling, liquor smuggling, narcotic smuggling, under-valuation of goods to escape the dumping duties, camouflaging of liquor shipments, bribery, contributions to political funds, and many other subjects have been touched on in evidence now before the Commissioners. With respect to many of these matters, the Commission has before it submissions made by counsel, and, in some cases, argument against these submissions. To sift this mass of evidence and argument, and arrive at conclusions for presentation to the Government, is a real task.

If the Commission should not be able to conclude sittings to-day, a further hearing will be held on Thursday.

RECITALS GIVEN IN PIANO BOOTH

Heintzmans Arrange For Concerts in Manufacturers' Building.

LOCAL ARTISTS.

Music lovers who attend the Peterborough Exhibition are assured of a real treat as the result of the action of Ye Olde Firme Heintzman & Co., who have arranged for a series of musical recitals at their exhibit in the Manufacturers' Building. These recitals take place twice daily, and are outstanding in character, the artistes all being prominent local musicians.

Walter Townsend, one of Peterborough's outstanding young pianists, will give a recital to-night. Mr. and Mrs. Liddle, organist and soloist, respectively, of George Street United Church, will give a joint recital on Thursday afternoon and evening. Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, soprano, and Mary Agnes Logan, pianist, who last week received special invitations from the directors of the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, to attend on Music Day, have consented to give a recital on Friday afternoon and evening.

These recitals will undoubtedly prove a popular feature.

Niagara Commission Censures Police Chief

NIAGARA FALLS, September 14 (Canadian Press). — As an aftermath of the tragedy in which Professor and Mrs. Huxley and their daughter, of Cleveland, were killed when their car was sideswiped and forced into the Niagara Gorge, the Board of Police Commissioners, meeting here this afternoon, severely reprimanded Chief Stephen Welch, of the Police Department, for allowing nearly four hours to elapse before he communicated with outside points in an endeavour to apprehend the hit-and-run driver who had caused the accident, also for failing to secure evidence from two eye-witnesses of the tragedy who volunteered information shortly after the accident.

RELAY RUNNERS MAKE GOOD TIME

Hand Message To President Denne at 7.45 Last Night.

MANY SEE FINISH.

The relay run was completed at about 7.45 last night, when the boys, after completing a parade around the city, in which H. Tranter, the last runner, led the procession, followed by W. Herrick, who helped take the boys to Toronto. After him came the other twenty-four runners, while the cars aiding in the run, flying pennants, brought up the rear.

The parade proceeded down George Street to Lansdowne and along Lansdowne to Lock Street gate, through the grounds to the track, around which they ran to a point before the grand stand, where they were met by President Denne and His Worship Mayor Holloway.

The message which was carried in a small aluminum cylinder was read by President Denne, after which cheers were given for the President, the Mayor, Mr. Roper and Doug. Loomis.

The greetings read as follows:

THE CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION
September 12, 1927

It gives me considerable pleasure to convey to you through the medium of the Y.M.C.A. Relay Team, my wishes for the success of the coming Peterborough Exhibition.

The Canadian National Exhibition has just closed its most successful period in the forty-nine years of its history. The support of the citizens of Toronto, the Province, and Canada at large make this success possible.

May we hope the citizens of the Peterborough district will give you the same unfailing support and make the Peterborough Exhibition of this year the greatest success in its history.

Yours sincerely,
Canadian National Exhibition Association,
JOHN. J. DIXON,
President.

The Y.M.C.A. wishes to thank the following, who contributed their cars and time to make the relay run a success: N. E. Herrick, J. Gillespie, R. L. Dobbin, W. H. Dickin, and T. Dutton.

CAVAN MAN HURT

MILLBROOK, Sept. 14.—David Paton, of the Zion Line, met with a serious accident on Monday, a double fracture of his right wrist occurring as the result of a fall when his team ran away.

Mr. Patton was loading a potato-digger at the station when, for some reason, the horses frightened. They were finally caught at J. Pitt's property. As the potato-digger seemed likely to be thrown off the wagon, Mr. Patton tried to steady it, and was himself thrown to the ground and his wrist fractured.

The injury is a very painful one, and recovery necessarily slow; the accident is the more unfortunate because of the busy season on the farm at the present time.

LOCAL PEOPLE FEED HUNDREDS AT EXHIBITION

Enterprise Run From Huge Tent of St. James' Ladies to Tiny Booth.

SELL REFRESHMENTS.

Few Peterborough Men Engaged in Operation of Games.

Vieing with the professionals who travel from fair to fair, a number of Peterborough people and societies find the crowds at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition offer a market for great quantities of refreshments, solid and liquid, and erect their tents of all shapes and sizes to cater to their requirements.

First place among these is, without doubt due to St. James' Ladies' Aid. It is senior among all those present, this being about the sixteenth year. It also comes first in size occupying a large tent with seats at the tables for 150 at one time. This organization, backed up by the energetic support of all the ladies of the church, serves home-cooked meals, appetizing and satisfying, and the tent is one of the busiest spots on the grounds at meal hours.

Mrs. A. Wilson is president of the Society, Mrs. F. D. Elliott is secretary, and Mrs. H. Fry is treasurer.

Mrs. W. Sargent, who has assisted in the work for fifteen years, and Mrs. J. O. Fife, are in charge of the tables. Mrs. F. Pratt is in charge of the kitchen, while Mrs. R. Stenton, Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Dunbar are respectively in charge of the staple foods, meat, bread and pies. On the busiest days of the week the ladies expect to keep a staff of forty busy, all the ladies of the congregation taking their turns at the work.

St. John's Church Woman's Association also runs a dining tent, which seats about fifty. Two long counters are used here and again the meals are home-cooked. Mrs. A. W. Turner is president of the Society, Mrs. A. H. Stratton is general convenor, and Mrs. Lar. and Mrs. J. Comstock are assistant convenors. A large staff of helpers is recruited from the church, and meals are served expeditiously, no matter how many come at once.

A third church organization on the grounds is the Co-workers' Bible Class of George Street United Church. Lunches are served here, although one of the ladies in charge assured The Examiner that the lunches were "as good as any meal on the grounds." Light refreshments, such as drinks, candy, ice cream and hot dogs, are also sold. Mrs. B. M. Frederick is convenor, while other workers are Mesdames Allison, McFarland, Wil. J. Spencer, W. H. Cunningham, Copp, Strong, Hales, Brock Harrison and Wood.

Refreshments stands are run mostly by private individuals. L.O.L. 50, and the Y's Men's Club, however, are two societies which offer all kinds of things to eat and drink. Hot dogs, ice cream and soft drinks are the principal offerings on all these stands. J. R. Childerhose is in charge of the Orangeman's tent, while Bill Herrick and Doug Loomis head the Y's Men in their effort.

Others who run refreshment tents are Harold Wiman, R. Revoy, Jack Marshall, of Marshall's Light Lunch, G. Trennum, Mrs. T. Tyers, who serves lunches, F. Peters R. Daw and J. Joque. Herb Hill' refreshment booth, is distinguished by its name, Dinty's Inn, which attracts notice, while J. W. Devell advertises hot meat pies as an addition to the usual stock in trade of the refreshment sellers. Another novelty in the line of "eats" is "Icy Pi," sold by H. Kingscott. This method of serving icecream seems a cross between a cone and an icecream sandwich.

Louis Laskaris has moved his peanut and popcorn wagon to a stand just inside the George street gate, where he offers his usual stock in trade.

Women Voters In England Will Exceed Men Under Franchise Bill Promised Next Year

LONDON, September 14. — Women will be in political ascendancy in England next year, so far as voting power is concerned, according to the statistical review of the Registrar-General just published. It is estimated that when the Bill extending the franchise to women on the same terms as men, to the introduction of which next year the Government is committed, is enacted into law, 5,240,000 voters will be added to the electorate. As the women electors already number more than 8,000,000, compared with 11,000,000 men, this will give the women more than 2,000,000 majority.

There are already five English Divisions where the men electors are in a minority and three others where the numbers of the sexes are equal. All these divisions, with one exception, are consistently Conservative.

OUT OF POCKET COST OF $7.22 IS SET BY TWO COMMISSIONERS FOR CARRIAGE OF ALBERTA COAL

Addition of Overhead and Superintendence Makes Cost $10.07.

OLIVER DISSENTS.

Thinks Out of Pocket Cost Only $6.50—Government Receives Report.

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—The Board of Railway Commissioners, in a majority report made public today, finds the out-of-pocket cost of moving Alberta coal to Ontario to be $7.22 per ton. The inclusive cost of transportation, covering overhead and superintendence, is set at $10.07 per ton. The inclusive cost "plus an element of profit" is found to be $12.20 per ton.

Chief Commissioner McKeown and Assistant Chief Commissioner McLean signed the majority report. Commissioner Frank Oliver, the third member of the section of the Board which conducted the enquiry, disagrees with the majority report.

Commissioner Oliver finds that the out-of-pocket cost of transportation may be said to be $6.50 per ton. The Commissioner's finding of $6.50 per ton is a blanket rate designed to cover all Ontario points and points in Quebec within a hundred rail miles from Ottawa and points on the National Transcontinental and branches in Northern Quebec eastward to and including La Tuque. A rate of $6.75 is recommended for those parts of Quebec not covered by the $6.50 blanket rate, the $6.75 rate to extend as far eastward as and including Levis and Diamond Junction. With respect to inclusive cost and inclusive cost plus profit, Commissioner Oliver declares himself unable to draw definite conclusions from the evidence submitted.

Publication of the report was made by the Hon. C. A. Dunning who, when questioned in respect to the intentions of the Government regarding the findings, stated that the Government was only just in receipt of the report and had had as yet no time to give the matter consideration. The document is extensive and quite voluminous. The findings of the majority Commissioners occupy seventeen pages, while those of Commissioner Oliver fill over thirty-nine pages.

The report is not in the nature of a judgment. It states that after full consideration and study of the evidence and exhibits placed before the Board the figures were arrived at which furnish the best answer the Board can give to the various phases of the inquiry submitted by an Order in Council on February 13 1926.

GIRLS' JUDGING CONTEST TO-DAY

Young Ladies Compete in Judging Clothing and Foods.

SIXTEEN ENTERED.

The Girls' Judging Competition, which is always a special feature of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, opened at ten o'clock this morning in a special tent provided for the purpose. Sixteen young ladies from the County participated in the contests, which are concerned with judging of good dressing, house dresses, good lunches and bread. Representatives of the Department of Agriculture were in charge. As the results are decided with particular care and are not available until late in the afternoon, the prize-winners will not be announced until tomorrow.

THOROUGHBRED:
That's what the Ex. is—and there are scores of fine horses there for all who love them. Take a walk through the horse barn, or watch the splendid animals as they are led out for judging.

Rene Fonck Continues Preparations For Hop

CURTISS FIELD, N.Y., Sept. 14.—(Canadian Press.)— Captain Rene Fonck, French ace, put his giant Sikorsky biplane, Ville De Paris, through a load test yesterday, explaining to reporters that he was continuing with his plans to make a non-stop flight to Paris, pending a definite decision on the flight, which he expects to make in two or three days.

Fonck said he was not contemplating entering the non-stop race across country in the national air derby next week, as has been reported

In its load test flight yesterday the Ville De Paris carried 14,000 pounds, Fonck said the test was satisfactory.

FLIERS PAY LAST SALUTE

Cast Wreath Over Swirling Waters as Homage to Comrades.

A START HOMEWARD TO-DAY.

HARBOR GRACE, Nfld., Sept. 14. —(Canadian Press.)—On the eve of their turning back, after halting on the brink on that dread space of air and water that has already engulfed three gallant aeroplanes and seven daring fliers, the Canadian pilots of the monoplane Royal Windsor, who will yield to the orders of their sponsors and take their plane back home to-day, sailed down Conception Bay last night and out to sea to cast a wreath of flowers upon the swirling waters as a last salute to their comrades of the air, the mystery of whose passing remains locked within the depths of the North Atlantic.

The disappointed fliers, whose plans to be the first Canadians to make the non-stop flight from America to Europe by air, have met with mishap from the start, expect to have their machine in readiness to start the homeward trek to-day. Last night, accompanied by a small party of friends and officials, they set out on the steamer Pawnee and at a point off the entrance to Conception Bay, the ship was halted and with the setting of the sun a short memorial service was held and the fliers laid their wreath upon the waves, a tribute to Nungesser and Coli, Hamilton, Minchin and the Princess Lowenstein, Medcalf and Tully, death defying fliers whose perils they had hoped to share.

MINISTER CAN'T VISIT EXHIBTION

Hon. W. R. Motherwell Has To Attend Meeting of Cabinet.

WIRED LAST NIGHT.

F. J. A. Hall, secretary of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, received word from Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, last night, that he would be unable to attend the Exhibition to-morrow on account of a cabinet council meeting in Ottawa which he has to attend. Mr. Motherwell was to address the directors at their luncheon to-morrow and officially open the big exhibition.

President Denne immediately wired back asking Mr. Motherwell to send someone else, but as yet no word has been received. The wire said:

F. J. A. Hall,
Secretary Peterborough Exhibition:

Regret exceedingly that meeting of council called for Thursday afternoon next, which meeting necessitates my presence here in Ottawa. Have just learned of this and am advising you at the earliest moment. Hope to be able to be with you on some other occasion.

W. R. MOTHERWELL.

PLANE LOADED WITH GASOLINE SAYS REPORT

Three Tanks Full in Wreckage Found of the Old Glory.

FIGURES ON WINGS.

Fliers' Wives Refuse To Abandon Hope For Safety of Crew.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—The Daily Mirror last night announced receipt of the following message from Douglas Muir, St. John's, Newfoundland, newspaperman ,aboard the S.S. Kyle, the vessel chartered by The Mirror to search for the monoplane Old Glory:

"Aboard S.S. Kyle, off Newfoundland:

"The wreckage of the Old Glory taken from a heavy sea consists of 34 feet of wing containing three tank sections, glass fuel gauges and feed pipes connected to the tanks. A fourth tank is missing.

"The other three contained large quantities of gasoline when picked up.

"The engine and body of the plane evidently had been torn from the wings, leaving no trace of the control cockpit except one lever and speaking tube located near the fuel gauges.

"The American flag painted on the right wing was clearly distinguishable and traces of a similar flag discernible on the left wing. A portion of one large black painted letter also showed on the right wing, in the shape of the letter "V," or possibly parts of the letters "W" "M" or "N."

(The Old Glory carried on its wing the legend NX-703, in accordance with government regulations. It is probable the "V" referred to by Mr. Muir is a fragment of the "N."

Wing Tangled Mass

"Fragments of canvas body casing are painted silver and blue. The ships under-carriage and left wheel are fairly complete, but the wing and support are a tangled mass of stays, giving evidence of boisterous weather existing since the disaster. Nevertheless, other records may be found in this vicinity which may give a clue to the fate of the three brave men who accompanied Old Glory on this ill-fated endeavor. Therefore, we will continue the search, come what may.

"A strong southwest wind is blowing and the sea is rough and foggy."

Mrs. Philip A. Payne, Mrs. Lloyd Bertaud, wives of two of the missing Old Glory fliers, and Mrs. Florence Callaghan, Bertaud's mother, were kept in constant touch with developments yesterday and refused to abandon hope for the safety of Payne, Bertaud and J. D. Hill, co-pilot of the plane which came down in the Atlantic on its flight to Rome.

May Have Been Picked Up

They clung to the belief that the men may have been picked up by a fishing boat not equipped with radio, even though veterans who know the Nova Scotian waters pointed out that the place where the wreckage was reported found is far to the north of the fishing banks. In shipping circles it is felt that there is no longer any basis for belief that the three airmen have not perished.

A reward of $25,000 offered by William Randolph Hearst for the finding of the plane or its crew still stands, it was said yesterday by an official of The New York Daily Mirror, of which Payne was managing editor, but it has not been decided whether payment will be made to the crew of the steamship Kyle. The Kyle is a Canadian Government vessel sent out to search at the request of The Mirror. Decision regarding the reward probably will not be made until the Kyle is known to be heading in from sea.

Attendance at Exhibition.

Tuesday's official attendance at the Peterborough Exhibition was 1,967. All day the gates were open free, so no count of the admissions was made. For last night 1,967 passed through the turnstiles.

Princes Reach Home; Crowds Greet Them

SOUTHAMPTON, England, September 14 (Canadian Press). His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, looking very bronzed and in excellent spirits, stepped ashore from the Empress of Scotland here to-day, ending his trip to Canada. He was accompanied by Prince George.

The Prince of Wales, who wore a grey suit and blue shirt and collar, was seen standing with his brother on the bridge before the liner docked, waving his hat to the crowd on the pier. The Prince had expressed the wish that his arrival should be as quiet as possible ,and the dock authorities consequently restricted the admission to the quay. As a result, the crowd was not as large as usual on such occasions.

Owing to the large number of entries received, judging in the dairy cattle, which was advertised as beginning at one o'clock on Friday afternoon, will take place at 10.30 a.m., on Friday. For the same reason, beef cattle will be judged at 10.30 on Thursday forenoon, instead of 1.30 p.m., as advertised.

Gourmets of France Honor Brillat-Savarin; Unveil a Statue In Epicure's Birthplace

PARIS, September 14. — In the presence of one hundred of the outstanding gourmets of France, Andre Tardieu, Minister of Public Works, yesterday unveiled a statue to Brillat-Savarin in the little town of Belley, where the immortal epicure was born.

The statue, which expresses France's appreciation of the man who placed eating among the arts and gave to France the culinary supremacy of the world, was commenced as a part of last year's centenary celebration of Brillat-Savarin's death.

Yesterday's ceremony was characterized by the fact that homage to Brillat-Savarin's memory was paid in food as well as in stone. The "Club des Cent," composed of one hundred men devoted to carrying on Brillat-Savarin's work, and incidentally to enjoying good cooking, made pilgrimage on Monday night to the Alpin town, where the best local cooks were already at work on a menu worthy of the tradition.

At noon yesterday they sat down to a lunch composed of "pate chaud du Bugey, brochet du Furan au Court bouillon, volaille de bresse au gros sel, haricots verts, buisson decrevisses du Furan, fromage patisserie fruits, three wines, coffee and vieux Marc du Bugey."

VAUDEVILLE AT EXHIBITION IS OF GOOD CLASS

Performers of Various Kinds Provide Fine Entertainment.

BAND CONCERT GOOD.

Contortions and Feats of Skill and Daring Draw Much Applause.

A very attractive bill has been arranged for the performance in front of the grandstand at the Exhibition this year. There are eleven numbers, every one of which received applause from the audience at their first presentation last night. Webber Turner has excelled himself in the variety of the acts, which include a little of everything in the line of entertainment, from the singing of Miss Edna Joyce and the music of Cervone's Band, to the performance of a "devil" in mid-air.

Cervone's Band, with its rhythmic, smooth, rounded tone and its spirited playing of popular music, pleased the audience with a brief programme prior to the presentation of the vaudeville programme, the "blues" numbers and Cervone's cornet solo work having an especially snappy atmosphere. Later on, with the band as an accompanying medium, Miss Edna Joyce sang twice, the volume and power and brilliance of her clear soprano voice bring her repeated applause at the conclusion of her second charming number. Against the handicap of a dense, moist fog which settled about the stage and the musicians half-way through the programme, Miss Joyce's strong, true tones rang triumphantly.

Accompanied by incidental music from the band, the vaudeville performers did their stuff, opening the bill with DeMarlo, "Devil of the Air," a double-jointed gentleman who was clad in the scarlet tights, cap and tail, and clawed hoofs of Mephisto, and whose cackling laughter provided a weird accompaniment to his spectacular antics in the air. Suspended by one claw from a trapeze, he tied himself in innumerable knots and won the enthusiastic applause of the watchers by his clever stunt work.

Murray Brothers, in a comedy "trampoline" act, did some skilful tumbling, and Turrells' comedy circus, with four ponies and a couple of cunning dog performers, demonstrated the lengths to which careful training will take intelligent animals. The skipping rope work of the ponies, the bareback riding of the dogs and the actions of a frolicsome donkey provided excellent entertainment for the crowd during this presentation.

The La Marts were a quartette of entertainers composed of three clowns and a tiny piglet whose antics were funny in the extreme.

Miss Marietta, the next performer, proved herself the "iron-jawed marvel she is described as being. This charming young lady has a very evident and surprising degree of tenacity in her small jaws, for she put a terrific strain on them with her performance. Suspended by a contrivance held in the mouth, she whirled and zig-zagged and swung in divers contortions from an overhead trapeze, dancing in the air while the crowd held its breath.

The famous Australian woodchoppers were another unusual and exceptionally fine addition to the programme. Two men do a series of clever stunts with axes and saws and blocks of wood, working against time to beat one another in a block-sawing contest, throwing axes at a tree trunk with such precision that small flags burst out at regular intervals when the axe strikes the true centre, and ending their performance with a striking demonstration of the use of a lengthy stock whip which cuts to pieces small portions of material held in the hand of an assistant. Cutting a small piece of wood apart while held in the hand, the job being done with an axe that descended just so far, and no further, was another exhibition of skill.

Gardner and Mack were a couple of comedy acrobats with an individual style, and were followed by DeMario and Marietta, who again gained another meed of strong applause with their dual offering of difficult feats, contorting themselves into many queer shapes for the entertainment of the surprised onlookers.

The famous Jansleys, in the world's fastest risley act, were the final number on the programme, and were indeed a fast-moving and jolly quintette of gentlemen; with three junior performers who were regular live wires. They somersaulted in double and triple style, exchanged positions with deft twirls of feet that held them suspended in mid-air and rotated on an airy swing upheld in the same risky fashion.

An added attraction for this evening which was not presented last night will be Mrs. Simple Simon's Store, an act with an intriguing title.

A splendid programme closed with one of the outstanding display of fireworks which marks the end of the Exhibition grandstand offerings every year.

Voronoff Predicts a Race Of Supermen Breeding of Super-Animals Shows Way

BUDAPEST, Hungary, September 14 (Associated Press). — Dr. Serge Voronoff had another surprise for the members of the Zoological Congress yesterday. His first had been the announcement of greatly increased production of wool from sheep through the transplantation of glands. His second was contained in the statement:

"The mother who is the first to hand me her child for a rejuvenation operation, perhaps would be the founder of a new and mighty human race."

"Give me children endowed with the spark of genius, and I will breed a new race of supermen."

The subject of rejuvenation, he continued, was often treated jocosely, but the problems were very serious.

"We are labouring," he explained, "in order that giants of human genius shall not suddenly be exhausted when they reach a certain age, but shall be enabled to prolong their mental capacity for the good of mankind."

Dr. Voronoff mentioned his experiments with aged rams, whose lives had been prolonged by the transplantation of glands from fourteen to twenty years, and whose offspring at the latter age weighed 20 per cent. above normal and yielded 25 per cent. more wool.

"We thus produce super-animals," he said. "We can and will produce a race of supermen."

IMMENSE PROPERTY DAMAGE IS REPORTED FROM ISLAND OF KIUSHIU FOLLOWING TYPHOON

Storm, Described as Worst in Decades, Takes Heavy Toll.

TRAIN SERVICE CEASED.

Spreads Death and Destruction Over West Coast of Mexico.

TOKIO, Sept. 14. — (Canadian Press.)—A typhoon and tidal wave combined yesterday to cause heavy loss of life and immense property damage on the Japanese island of Kiushiu. More than 100 persons are believed to have perished in Kumamoto prefecture and a report impossible of confirmation owing to the disrupted communications, asserts that one thousand others died in one town near the city of Kumamoto.

The storm described as the most severe in decades, swept the prefectures of Kumamoto and Fukuoka with wind and wave, leaving death and desolation behind it. In Kumamoto prefecture 1,000 houses were inundated and destroyed according to meagre reports.

Nagasaki and nearby towns were struck by the typhoon said dispatches from Osaka. Before communications failed from Nagasaki many houses were reported to have collapsed and the streets were strewn with telegraph and telephone wires and toppled poles. Train service ceased. Other places nearby reported similar conditions.

Heavy Populations.

The region devastated was rich in rice growing of which the city of Kumamoto was a centre with a population estimated at 75,000.

Efforts were made to restore communications with Nagasaki whose population of 110,000 includes a large number of foreigners.

The monoplane Pride of Detroit on a flight around the world, is at Omura, a few miles south-east of the storm area. Early despatches from Nagasaki indicated the plane had not been harmed. Pilots Brock and Schlee were expected to start this morning for Kasumigaura, near Tokio, where Japanese airmen believed their projected flight would end.

Sweeps Mexican Coast.

NOGALES, Ariz., Sept. 14.—(A.P.)—A storm of intense severity which whipped up a tidal wave believed to have extended over a thousand miles along the Pacific ocean, has spread death and destruction over the west coast of Mexico. First news of the disaster, occurring last Wednesday, reached this border town yesterday. Meagre reports to the Nogales Herald over badly crippled communication lines said the death toll might reach into hundreds, while other hundreds, perhaps thousands, were left homeless and shipping suffered severely.

Three of Mexico's greatest seaports —Guaymas, Selina Cruz, and Manzanille—are reported to have suffered heavy property loss while two vessels of the National Line, the Jalisco and the Navajoa, are missing. Mazatlan, fourth important west coast port, also felt the lash of the storm but not so severely as the other towns.

Worst in History.

The storm, described as one of the worst hurricanes in the history of West Mexico, headed up the coast from the Gulf of Tehuantepic, Oaxaca, and swept northward as far as Guaymas, Sonora, within 300 miles of the United States border. Territory several hundred miles inland was reported affected.

Loss of life and property concerning which no exact information was available was believed to have been heaviest at Salin Cruz, in the State of Oaxaca. A despatch relayed by Guaymas said that half of the Oaxaca city was swept away and that the damage was augmented by giant combers which crashed through the town. As the waves estimated to have been 25 feet high, swept back into the ocean, wreckage from broken buildings was carried into the sea and swept up again.

Many small craft along the coast have not been accounted for and it is feared the loss of life at sea was heavy.

Shipping has been halted. The storm extended from the very southernmost state of Oaxaca up to northern Sonora, sweeping over eight States.

Reports coming by various routes reported severe damage at Yavaros, port of Sonora. Several causeways, piers and the customs house were lost.

LIGHTNING STRIKES MARMORA STEEPLE

MARMORA, Sept. 14.— Lightning struck the steeple of the Free Methodist church, formerly the Presbyterian church of this village, during the heavy storm which commenced about 5 p.m. on Saturday. Though the steeple itself remained intact, part of the south-eastern wooden support was stripped and in addition several shingles were torn off the roof. Persons in nearby houses felt the concussion. Owing to lights being off until 8 p.m. the weekly picture show at the Town Hall had to be postponed until Monday evening.

What is supposed to have been further damage done by the storm was discovered by Fred Johnston on Sunday morning. The brick chimney of his blacksmith shop, about three feet in height, had fallen to the ground, leaving not one brick attached to the roof.

AIR SOCIETY URGES BROCK TO END FLIGHT

World Fliers Asked To Cross the Pacific By Boat.

ISSUE WARNING.

Pair Told By Association That Wreck Would Hurt Aviation.

WASHINGTON, September 14. — Flatly opposing their plan to cross the Pacific by air, Porter Adams, president of the National Aeronautical Association, yesterday urged Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock to return to the United States by boat.

In a message given to Universal Service for a speedy transmission to the fliers at Tokio, Adams pointed out that failure of the proposed flight would be "a severe blow to air progress."

At the same time ,the Navy Department joined the swelling chorus of opposition to the flight by warning the airmen a flight across the Pacific, by whatever route, would end in almost certain death.

Pledges Aid to Fliers.

The National Aeronautical Association made known its attitude after word was received that Schlee and Brock were still determined to attempt the flight, by hopping from Japan to the Midway Islands, from there to Honolulu, and then to San Francisco. Pledging the aid of the Association in expediting their return, President Adams sent the following message to the fliers:

"Aviation has never witnessed a more splendid accomplishment or a greater demonstration of the reliability and superiority of American aircraft and engines.

"To attempt the Pacific with so slight a chance for success would be to jeopardize unnecessarily your glorious undertaking.

"Your countrymen are proud and satisfied with what you have already done. As head of the association I urge you to return by boat and receive the recognition which you so ably merit . Every resource of the National Aeronautical Association is at your disposal in expediting and assisting a record return."

Officials of the Association believe Brock and Schlee have already accomplished a feat that ranks in importance with that of Colonel Lindbergh. They fear the effect of another disaster. They believe it would be almost as disastrous if the two fliers succeeded in spanning the Pacific, because others might attempt the flight without sufficient preparation.

Navy Issues Warning.

The Navy's warning was issued by Air Secretary Warner, who pointed out the fliers would be confronted by almost insurmountable difficulties in attempting the flight either via the Midway Islands or Guam.

LADIES' AIDS MEET IN EAST SEYMOUR

Hoard's and Burnbrae Societies Have Good Programmes.

BURNBRAE, Sept. 14.—A most successful meeting of the Hoards Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Allan Hutcheon, Menie, on Wednesday evening last. A goodly number were present to enjoy the hour of fellowship and the good programme provided. After the usual business and devotional exercises, Miss Myrtle Seeney gave an interesting and amusing reading. A number which was heartily applauded and encored was a selection by the male quartette, the Rev. C. D. Daniel, Messrs. David Melvin, John W. Rannie, and Mitchell Rannie. The three younger members of this group give promise of beoming splendid singers and their mentor, the Rev. Mr. Daniel, is quite proud of their progress in the musical line. After a brief period of impromptu community singing and prayer by the Rev. Mr. Daniel, the ladies served bountiful refreshments and a happy social hour was spent.

The regular monthly meeting of the Burnbrae Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. E. C. Pollock, Burnbrae Corners, on Thursday afternoon with an attendance of fifty members and visitors. A very interesting and entertaining program followed the usual business session, after which a refreshment hour gave opportunity for social intercourse.

While there has been some uncertainty regarding the date of the St. Andrew's anniversary services, it is now hoped that October 30th will prove a suitable date. The annual fowl supper will follow early in the week.

Famous "Cat" Bandit Gets Heavy Sentence

CHICAGO, Ills., Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—William Baker, the "cat" bandit, was sentenced to the penitentiary yesterday for one year to life on each of five charges to which he pleaded guilty, three being for robbery and two burglary. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Arrested last week after a period of terror on the north side, during which women were attacked and robbed by a mysterious masked prowler, Baker was indicted and sentenced within a week.

SHEEP BREEDING CLUBS PLANNED

Department of Agriculture Will Organize Several in County.

PROVED PROFITABLE

J. B. Nelson, of the local Department of Agriculture, made the following announcement this morning regarding the organization of Boys' Sheep Breeding Clubs in the County of Peterborough. Sheep breeding has been a most profitable line of farming for the last few years, and promises to continue to be so for some time to come so it is considered an opportune time for such work.

"Last fall in Middlesex County, four clubs were formed among the junior farmers of the districts of Komoka, Deleware, Appin and Sylvan. None of the members had previously kept sheep, but with the help of the Representatives they bought from three to ten ewes each. They paid about $15 each for the ewes. The Dominion Livestock Branch supplied a ram for each club and showed the members how to shear, dock and castrate their lambs and how to dip the flock.

Last month the members had four interesting shows, one for each club. At each show a judging competition was held and the members also exhibited their market lambs and ewe lambs. Generous prize money was provided by the Provincial and Dominion Livestock Branches. The winners of each class and of the judging competion will meet at the London Fair this week for the grand championships of the county. The winners will have a trip to the Royal Show and will exhibit their champions there.

Many members report a profit of 100% on the year's work.

The Agricultural Representative of Peterborough County hopes to organize three similar clubs in this county during the month of September. The help of the Dominion Livestock Branch has been received by Mr. Nelson, and they will cooperate in demonstration work and in granting prize money.

If plans carry out there will be an inter-club sheep competition at the Peterborough Fair next year, similar to that being held at the London Fair in Western Ontario, this year."

Any junior farmer, particularly in or adjacent to the townships of Douro and Dummer, who is interested, can obtain full information at the local Agricultural Office, 287 George street, Peterborough.

The steamship "Carry Coulby," recently launched at the American Shipbuilding Company's yards at Lorain, O., is the largest bulk freighter afloat under American registry.

Many a show flops for lack of a ballyhoo, says Flapper Fanny, but Peterborough Exhibition needs no ballyhoo. It's there with the goods.

GRAIN REPORT

CHICAGO, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Grain markets underwent a temporary period of deflation yesterday when Canadian crop reports and the weather conditions caused a five-cent drop in both wheat and corn.

The markets rallied somewhat and at the close corn and wheat both were quoted at only about 2¼ cents off.

The Canadian Government crop report, estimating a yield of about 459,000,000 bushels for all provinces, 100,000,000 more than had been expected, was partly the cause of the early drop at the opening.

A strong rally followed, with general short covering developing and with aggressive commission-house buying.

Needed rain in Canada had some effect, and the forecast was for showers and cooler weather in the three Canadian prairie provinces.

September wheat closed at 1.27 5-8 to ⅞ yesterday, 2¼ to 2½ lower than Monday. December wheat, closing at 1.31 5-8 to ⅝, also was 2¼ to 2½ off, while March wheat was lower from 2.3-8 to 2½ at 1.35 1-8 to ¼.

September, December and March corn, closing at 94, 95 5-8 and 98 5-8 respectively, was off from 1 3-8 to 2¼. Oats and rye saw little change.

Several messages from Winnipeg indicated a belief that the Government crop report was too optimistic, but it will stand for the present at least.

OBITUARY.

MISS ALEXANDRIA LAW.

The death occurred yesterday in Nicholls Hospital of Miss Alexandria V. Law.

The funeral will take place from the residence of her brother, 25 McGill street, on Thursday afternoon.

MRS. ROBERT MILLER.

Mrs. Margaret Miller, widow of the late Robert Miller of Keene, died yesterday evening at the home of her son, Thomas, in Toronto. She is survived by another son, Robert, of Regina, one daughter, Mrs. R. F. Goodfellow, of Saskatoon, and two sisters, Mrs. Ann Gillespie, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Violet Robinson, of Villiers.

MRS. ANNA SYER.

There passed away on Tuesday afternoon one of the older residents of the city, in the person of Mrs. Anna Syer, after an illness of three months.

Before coming to Peterborough, she resided in Cavan, Ontario, with her husband, the late George Syer, who predeceased her about seven years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss, one daughter, Miss Julietta at home and two sisters, residing in the United States.

She was a faithful member of the George street United church and also of the W. M. Society and W.C.T.U.

The funeral will be at 2 p.m. from her late residence, 293 McDonnel street to the Little Lake cemetery, the Rev. Mr. Todd officiating.

WILLETT SIMPSON.

ORLAND, September 14. — The last respects of the community were paid on Tuesday to the late Willett Simpson, who passed away on Sunday evening at about 7:30, while conversing with Walter Reycraft, a neighbor, who was sitting beside him on his own door stoop.

The late Mr. Simpson had, to all appearance, been in his usual good health, and just after partaking of a hearty supper, went outside with his wife to converse with a neighbor and his wife, who had dropped in for a few minutes.

They were seated but a few minutes when Mr. Simpson remarked: "If it rains to-morrow I will move the machine down to your place and thresh out your oats." He then gasped, and fell over against Mr. Reycraft, who caught him in his arms, and called to his wife, who was a few feet away, talking to Mrs. Reycraft, and together they picked him up, and laid him on the stoop. They called Dr. McMullen of Frankford, and on his arrival he pronounced him dead as soon as he fell.

The funeral was postponed till Friday, pending the arrival of Frank, the second son of the deceased, who was in Saskatchewan.

The deceased leaves a widow, four sons and four daughters, as well as an aged father and mother, and eleven brothers and sisters, to mourn his loss.

There is no one in the community who will be as much missed as the deceased as he ran a threshing outfit and a portable sawing machine, and had a wide acquaintance. He had just been running a new up to date steel separator a couple of weeks, having purchased it in the early summer.

His popularity was manifested by the hundreds of people who called at his late residence to pay their respects to so beloved and trusty a public servant. On the day of the funeral Bethany church was far too small to contain the crowd when the Rev. Major Belford preached a sermon from the text, "Life is but a handbreadth." The cortege proceeded to the cemetery at the Christian church, where his remains were laid beside a daughter who predeceased him three years.

After the church service, the Orangemen took charge and C. V. Goodfellow, M. of L.O.L., 1363, read the last rites of the order, of which the deceased had been a member for years.

The casket was preceeded by the flower bearers carrying numerous floral tokens of respect from the family friends and lodges.

The deceased was in his 57th year, and had spent all his life in the neighborhood, and at the time of his death resided on the farm known as the Levi Herrington place, at the watering trough, one mile south east of Codrington, on the Campbellford - Trenton Provincial Highway.

WEDDING BELLS

LINN—SAUNDERS.

BURNBRAE, Sept. 14.—An event of interest to Burnbrae and Menie people was the marriage on Wednesday last of Mr. Alex Linn, Menie, and Miss Eva Saunders, English Line. Mr. Linn is prominent in the district social and sporting activities as well as being a rising young farmer, while Miss Saunders has won for herself many friends in this community. All join in wishing the young couple a very happy married life.

CALLERY—McGRATH.

MARMORA, Sept. 14.—A marriage of much local interest was solemnized at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Marmora, on Wednesday last at 9 a.m., the contracting parties being Mary, eldest daughter of Mrs. James McGrath of Tipperary House, Crowe Lake, and Bartley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Callery of Read. Rev. Father J. J. O'Reilly officiated. The bride was given away by her eldest brother, Mr. Everard McGrath of Marmora. She was prettily attired in hand embroidered rose georgette with touches of periwinkle blue and wore a large black velvet hat. She carried Ophelia roses and baby's breath and was attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth McGrath, nurse-in-training at the St. Vincent De Paul Hospital, Brockville. The latter wore embroidered rosewood georgette with black hat and carried carnations. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Thomas Callery. After the ceremony, guests to the number of fifty assembled at Tipperary House where the wedding breakfast was served. The bride received many beautiful and useful presents.

The happy couple left by motor for Chicago and other points. Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. E. Kating of Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Collen and son, Mr. and Mrs. T. Callery and Miss K. Callery, Mr. and Mrs. P. Hunt, Miss Marie Hunt and Miss Celia Byrne, all of Read; Mr. and Mrs. T. McGrath and son of Stirling; Miss S. McGord of Belleville; Miss M. Osborne of Brockville, and Mr. D. Callery of Lonsdale.

TAYLOR—FORBES

WOOLER, Sept. 14.—The United church of Brighton was beautifully with colored autumn maple leaves.

The dining room was very attractive with the large wedding cake in decorated with cut flowers, on September 6, on the occasion of the marriage of Miss Lema Forbes to Mr. Luther Taylor of Kenora. Mrs. Wellington Lapp presided at the organ while the guests were being ushered by Clinton Terrill and Stewart Webb of Toronto. At twelve o'clock noon the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, William Forbes. The bridesmaid was Miss Marjorie Forbes, sister of the bride. Mr. Harry Phillips supported the groom.

After the marriage ceremony and during the signing of the register "O Promise Me" was sweetly rendered by Miss Frances Terrill.

The happy couple and guests returned to the spacious and inviting home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips. The bridal party received under an arch beautifully arranged the centre and pink streamers from the chandelier to each corner of table, two large pink candle burning. The bridal party were seated at this table and surrounded by small tables of four, for the guests and the color scheme carried throughout. Hilda Montgomery and Irene Sanford served.

Rev. Mr. Wilson acted as toast master and called on Esli Terrill to propose a toast to the bride. He said it was a pleasure to him to speak of the excellent qualities and esteem in which the bride was held in her large social circle.

The groom responded in a most fitting manner.

A toast was proposed to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips, by Clinton Terrill, and responded to by Mr. Phillips.

A toast was proposed to the ladies by S. L. Terrill, and in response Stewart Webb of Toronto recited "The Canadian Girl."

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, especially from the groom a sterling silver mounted mirror, brush and comb.

The groom remembered Mrs. Lapp with a silver pencil, Miss Terrill with a gold watch band, Marjorie Forbes, compact, Mr. Phillips, tie pin, ushers, Mr. Terrill and Stewart Webb, gold cuff links.

After accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Taylor to the station many good wishes were bestowed on them through showers of confetti, on their honeymoon to Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, to the coast, returning by Edmonton and Calgary to Kenora, where they will take up their new home.

McClary's HERMETITE

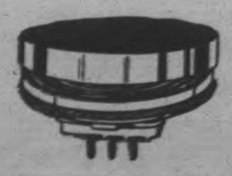
—the master baking oven of the Age

GONE the uncertainty from kitchen cooking. Gone the drudgery of fussing with a hot range. Now, with McClary's Hermetite, you just heat the oven, put in your roasts and vegetables, shut off the current and go about your other duties. When you return the whole meal will be cooked.

The secret of such remarkable performance is "stored heat". The oven walls of McClary's Hermetite are DOUBLY INSULATED—packed with insulating material and surrounded by dead air space—the best insulation known to science. The heat is thus retained inside the oven. By closing the door you make the oven practically hermetically tight—providing such baking economy and satisfaction as you have never before experienced.

What would you give to have such a range in your kitchen? An all-white, porcelain enameled range—a range that cleans as easily as a china dish—that leads all others in beauty and utility—that bakes only as a range with a Hermetite oven can.

Such a range awaits your inspection at your electrical supply dealer's—in the very style and size you require, at a price you can afford.



SPEEDIRON

All sizes and styles of McClary's Electric Ranges are equipped with the famous Speediron Element—the speediest protected element in Canada. The Speediron has brought safety, speed and reliability to thousands of kitchens—plus great cooking convenience and economy. The only reparable renewable protected element on the market. See it demonstrated at your dealer's.

McClary's
Electric Range

No reservations. Everything in the store has had the price unmercifully cut—many in half.

BOTNICK BROS.

DISSOLUTION SALE

$15,000.00 in cash must be raised at once to facilitate the readjustment of the business.

For 10 years this firm has been doing business in Peterboro, as Botnick Bros. The time has now come for a parting of the ways, and the business at 378 George Street will be taken over entirely by A. Botnick, the senior member of the firm. Right now the stock is unusually heavy, making the adjustment difficult, and the only way it can be done, is to turn a large part of this splendid new stock into cash. We know what that means, a tremendous sacrifice, and we are prepared to face enormous losses to reach our aim quickly. We MUST RAISE $15,000.00 out of our stock by the end of this month, in order to make the adjustment required. The stock is new, bought for our discriminating trade in this beautiful new store, and is at the mercy of an appreciative buying public until the money required has been raised.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1927

THE NORTH HURON RESULT.

The victory of George Spotton, Conservative candidate, in the three-cornered North Huron by-election has probably no national significance, but it will serve to open the Conservative convention at Winnipeg with a cheerful note.

The Government, enlisting the Premier and several of his big guns, including the Minister of Finance, and throwing Hon. E. C. Drury, former Progressive chieftain, into the fight, made a valiant effort to bring the constituency into the Liberal column, but their efforts could not overcome a handicap that was more a problem of arithmetic than of politics.

Perhaps the verdict is of general value and interest chiefly because it further decreased the already rapidly waning prestige of the U.F.O. political group.

Despite the attempt of Miss Agnes MacPhail to rally the rural voters, the Progressive candidate finished a poor third in the three-horse race, and the result will do much to intensify the feeling that we are rapidly getting back to two-party politics, in this Province at least.

THE SECOND BIGGEST CROP.

The thing that was needed to put a final touch on Canada's year of Diamond Jubilee has been furnished by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in its estimate just announced that the wheat crop of the Dominion will be the second largest in the country's history.

The Bureau is usually conservative in its estimates, so that when it declares that under good weather conditions until the harvest is completed Canada's wheat crop will yield 458,741,000 bushels, a total that only once before has been beaten.

The record crop was that of 1923 when 474,000,000 bushels were harvested.

Unless adverse weather sets in before the harvest is finished, Canada can confidently expect prosperity to follow this wonderful crop, the sale of which will set many millions of dollars at work in this country, benefitting west and east, farmer and manufacturer, merchant and industrial worker.

Those 458 million bushels of wheat mean good times for the whole Dominion.

Much of the information given out by the Bureau of Statistics makes dry reading, but here is one bulletin that should set the joy bells ringing everywhere in Canada.

SLASHING THE INCOME TAX.

Despite the warm admiration which the Canadian Council of Agriculture entertain for the income tax, it should be fairly easy for Mr. Robb to do some further pruning when his next budget proposals are brought down.

The slashes made in the last session were expected to result in a loss of several millions to the Dominion treasury.

And what has happened?

Mr. Euler, Minister of National Revenue, gives the answer in his announcement that the income tax collections for the first five months of the fiscal year exceeded the collections for the whole of last year by $100,000.

Despite a reduced income tax and greater exemptions, the Treasurer has in five months of this year received $47,500,000 from this levy.

Some of the credit for this condition can, of course, be given to the re-organized Department of National Revenue, which has been business-like in its method of collection.

But the chief reason is undoubtedly a repetition of what occurred in the United States after tax reductions were made.

It was soon found that more capital was freed for development and expansion, and that individual earnings increased to such an extent that national revenues were greater, instead of smaller, as a consequence of the tax slashes.

THE PLACE OF AGRICULTURE.

"Our fall fairs, particularly the large ones, are becoming very elaborate business events, but I trust that never will the day come when the agricultural side of the event will be pushed into a secondary place."—Hon J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, in opening the Western Fair at London.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Directors share Mr. Robb's sentiments.

While more and more amusement features are necessary as the Exhibition grows and the yearly attendance becomes larger, the agricultural departments keep pace.

This year's Exhibition, as visitors have already learned, is not crowding agriculture out of the picture.

In fact, the showing of livestock and of farm products generally has not been surpassed in the history of the event.

With a board composed of city men and farmers, Peterborough's Exhibition has been built on a solid foundation, according to a policy that gives every recognition to the important part played by agriculture in the development of this country.

In spite of its added attractions in other lines, it remains a fair which farmers can attend with profit to themselves and benefit to their business.

TO STOP STUNT FLYING.

Public opinion will strongly support the Government if, as the Prime Minister intimates, legislation will be brought down at the next session of Parliament to control trans-oceanic flights. Such legislation need not necessarily mean that all well organized attempts to cross the Atlantic by air will be stopped. All that it need involve—all that the public demands—is a check upon flights under circumstances that practically invite death.

When Commander Byrd and his associates crossed to Paris they were in a machine that carried a double set of engines, powerful radios, large life-boats, and supplies of food and water sufficient for two weeks. They reduced their hazard to a minimum. And they gained invaluable experience.

It is in airships of such character that future Atlantic air crossings, if ever they are to become commercially feasible, will be made. But what can possibly be gained by even repeated demonstrations that the great pond can be crossed by small monoplanes carrying two persons? That, no matter how successfully achieved, would not solve the problem of trans-Atlantic passenger travel. All navigators, and all passengers, are not Lindberghs.

If, in the months to come, airmen come forward with powerful machines, expert navigators and the very latest in flying equipment and organization, prepared to make new tests under the most promising circumstances, well and good. They will deserve support and good wishes But not so with mere stunt flying for personal or other advertising. That sort of thing, quite clearly, has got to be curbed. It is little better than suicide—Ottawa Journal.

THE FARMER'S PROBLEM.

Newspapers in Canada and in the United States have devoted considerable space during the past three months in commenting on the problems of the farmer. These papers have not been backward in suggesting remedies which they believe will help solve the difficulties of the agrarian.

One newspaper remarks that "this year Nature acts in a manner which suggests the problem will be partly solved," and "the continued rain and the consequent weakening of the ripening grain to frost continue to offer the speculator an opening for operating."

Another paper asks: "Can the Europeans pay the price for Canadian and American agricultural products?"

The problems of the Canadian farmer, and those of the American farmer as well, will never be solved by Nature (unless Nature acts differently in the future than it has in the past). Problems of the farmer will never be solved by the speculator (unless the speculator can devise a different system than the one he is now operating under). And the European can afford to pay the right price for Canadian agricultural products. For instance, the difference in what a European family should pay for its bread made from wheat selling at one dollar a bushel or $1.50 a bushel is so small as to be hardly discernible. And, the farmer, unless he receive a price somewhere between one and one and a half dollars per bushel for his wheat, is not going to travel in the prosperity class, and, as the reader well knows, without a prosperous agriculture there can be no real prosperity in other lines of endeavor. Canada's progress is dependent on its farms.

Most of those who have given the Canadian farmer's problems serious consideration have arrived at the conclusion that solution lies in co-operative marketing. That is the solution for almost every line of agricultural endeavor—eggs, butter, livestock, wheat, etc. After the farmer has put his best efforts of brain and brawn into producing quality beef, or quality wheat, and has striven for quality in whatever crop he specializes in, then he has to have a market for his produce. Now a haphazard system of marketing will likely bring him good returns once in a while, but the market he needs is the one that can be depended on to give him every year the best possible prices.

The farmers of Essex County and Southwestern Ontario should give every attention to the problem of marketing. Each year now sees an increase in the acreage of tobacco grown in the district. It is hoped before many seasons have passed that Southwestern Ontario will be producing 100,000,000 pounds a year for export to the Old Country or home consumption.

With that much tobacco thrown on the market at the end of the season, the farmer faces the problem of how to get the most for his product. He is in much the same position as the wheat farmer was before the wheat pool idea of co-operative marketing solved the problem in Western Canada The tobacco farmers are entitled to the profits of their labor. If they can see their way to greater prosperity by some system of co-operative marketing, they should begin at once to make plans for the organization of a pool. There is no question about the profits that will come from a properly managed pool organization of co-operative marketing of agricultural products. Tobacco, it is said, is not as easy to market as wheat, on account of the number of grades. But honest grading and square dealing during every step of the marketing process should work out advantageously to the grower.

As a concrete example the Western Canada Wheat Pool serves to illustrate the point The pool is controlled by the growers themselves. The members join by signing voluntary contracts. The sole aim of the pool is to prevent the dumping of wheat on the glutted markets. By controlling the sale, the pool nets a better average price. And as the pool is owned and controlled by the farmers themselves, that increased price goes into the pockets of the men who produce the grain.

Before the pool came into being, the accepted axiom of Western Canada was that 70 per cent. of the farmers got less than the average price; 20 per cent. got the average; and the other 10 per cent. received higher than the average price. And this average price under the pool is higher than the old average price under the loose marketing system where the farmer simply harvested his grain, drove to the elevator, and accepted whatever the ruling price of the day might be.

Pool members receive as much as twenty-five cents a bushel more for their crop than the man who is a non-member and is forced to sell when the market is slack and the price low. On a carload of 1,000 bushels of wheat the difference to the producer is stupendous.

One Saskatchewan farmer in 1923, the year before the pool started in that Province, only received 90 cents a bushel for Number 1 Northern, the finest wheat grown anywhere. The next year, 1924, the first year of the pool, as a member, he received $1.66 a bushel, or 76 cents a bushel more for the same kind of wheat than he had received in the year preceding the pool. In 1925 he received from the pool $1.45 a bushel. The final payment has yet to be made for last year's crop, but it is assured that when the full returns are in, the price will be around the $1.50 mark.—Border Cities Star.

MONTREAL, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., September 14 (Canadian Press). — A moderate amount of business was worked in Canadian spring wheat with foreign buyers on the Montreal market yesterday. Trading in cash grain in the local market was quiet and prices were unchanged.

The export trade in spring wheat grades of flour continued good, but the local country demand was quiet. The undertone continued easy, but there was no further change in the prices.

The trade in winter wheat flour was also of a very limited character, and prices were steady.

An active business was again done in all lines of millfeed, and values ruled firm. The tone of the market for standard grades of rolled oats was steady, but the demand showed no improvement.

The movement of Canadian baled hay for export account continued fairly liberal on the local market, and prices were unchanged.

The undertone to the egg market was firm, with a moderate amount of business passing. The receipts were 3,585 cases.

The butter market was inactive, but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 737 packages.

Prices for all qualities of cheese were firmly maintained under a fair demand from local and export buyers. The receipts were 11,663 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, September 14 (Canadian Press). — Excited selling drove grain prices wildly upward yesterday, almost six cents a bushel in some cases, but later much of the loss was overcome. The rush to sell was due mainly to a surprising estimate by the Canadian Government that wheat production is greatly in excess of what most traders have figured. Reports, however, of storms interfering with the Canadian harvest acted as something of an offset.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 2¼ to 2½ cents net lower for the day, with corn at a net decline of 1⅝ to 2⅛ cents, oats ⅞c to ⅝c off and provisions varying from 15 cents decline to a rise of 20 cents.

Belief that the new Canadian crop figures on wheat are over-optimistic developed toward the last yesterday and helped to bring about price rallies, but in the early dealings the trade was in a state of semi-panic. Taken at face value, the Canadian official estimate indicated nearly 50,000,000 bushels larger production in wheat in Canada this season than during 1926, and 77,000,000 bushels more wheat in Canada and the United States than at this time last year. This was interpreted here to mean a total North American surplus of 630,000,000 against world import requirements of only 748,000,000 bushels.

Inasmuch as Argentina alone shipped last year 154,000,000 bushels of wheat and Australia 98,000,000 bushels, the excess of world supplies indicated this season startled the trade here. The bearish effect on prices was greatly intensified by simultaneous weakness of the corn market because of hot weather forcing the new corn crop to maturity, whereas of late talk of corn crop failure had been rampant.

When the selling stampede both in wheat and corn had somewhat spent itself, however, fresh buying set in based on reports of adverse weather for the market harvest in Canada and on predictions of better corn demand. Oats were relatively firm throughout the day, influenced by talk of apparent previous inaccuracy of Canadian official figures on oats production.

Provisions temporarily were lower with corn and cotton, but rallied on buying credited to packers.

A Thought For To-day

INITIATIVE

The world bestows its big prizes, both in money and honors, for but one thing, and that is Initiative.

What is Initiative? I'll tell you: It is doing the right thing without being told.

But next to doing the thing without being told is to do it when you are told once. That is to say, carry the message to Garcia; those who can carry a message get high honors, but their pay is not always in proportion.

Next, there are those who never do a thing until they are told twice; such get no honors and small pay.

Next, there are those who do the right thing only when necessity kicks them from behind, and these get indifference instead of honors, and a pittance for pay. This kind spends most of its time polishing a bench with a hard-luck story.

Then, still lower down in the scale, we have the fellow who will not do the right thing even when someone goes song to show him how and stays to see that he does it: he is always out of a job, and receives the contempt he deserves.—Labor Leader.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

AN IMPORTANT ROAD.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I was very much interested in reading "North's" letter in your issue of the 9th instant, with reference to the condition of the Buckhorn road north of Lake Catchacoma to the Haliburton boundary, and while he showed decisively that it is in the interests of the merchants of Peterborough to make every effort to see that this road is put in condition for the use of motor trucks and automobiles, it seems to me that he has not gone far enough. I have been over the road, and I can assure you that it is practically impassable from Hugh Cochrane's to the boundary (twelve miles), but from the boundary to Gooderham (six miles) and from there to Haliburton the road is in good condition. If the twelve miles were improved, which would not entail a very great expense there is no question but that an immense trade would be developed for Peterborough (their legitimate market), which is at present being diverted to Lindsay.

In addition to this, if this road were completed and connected through Haliburton County with the road north of Apsley, it would make one of the most beautiful scenic routes in Ontario; and the fact that there are myriads of lakes and streams teeming with fish would be a wonderful attraction for American tourists the majority of whom are searching for just what we have at our door awaiting development.

Peterborough being the gateway of this route, either going or coming, it would appear that it is important that some of our organizations should make some effort to exploit our opportunities.

Both of these roads have been surveyed by the Ontario Government with a view of building suitabale roads.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE.

Miss Marjory Murray Receives Many Usefeul Gifts From Friends.

DOWNEYVILLE, Sept. 14.—A very enjoyable time was spent Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Murray, when the friends and neighbors assembled and presented their daughter, Marjory, with a miscellaneous shower prior to her marriage next week. A large number of useful gifts were received by the bride-to-be. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess and the evening spent in dancing.

WHEAT YIELD ESTIMATE UP

Government Figures Just Issued Higher Than Last Month's.

CROPS WORTH BILLION.

OTTAWA, Sept. 14.—The Government crop report issued yesterday giving a preliminary estimate of this year's principal grain crops spells prosperity for Canada. A total wheat yield of 458,741,000 bushels is predicted. This is an increase of 101,000,000 bushels over the August estimate and nearly 50,000,000 bushels over the total yield of 1926 It will rank as the second largest crop in Canada's history.

The total yield of oats is estimated at 502,199,000 bushels, as compared with the August estimate of 419,000,000 bushels and a total yield last year of 383,419,000 bushels.

The barley harvest is estimated at 98,049,000 bushels, as compared with the August estimate of 86,455,000 bushels, and a total yield last year of 99,684,000 bushels.

Rye this year will total 17,462,000 bushels, it is estimated, which is 1,000,000 bushels more than August estimate and more than 5,000,000 bushels in excess of last year.

The flax crop will exceed 5,100,000 bushels, it is figured. This is 2,000,000 bushels more than the August prediction, but slightly less than last year.

Crops Worth $1,075,800,000.

The other salient feature of the report is the estimate of the hay and clover crop at 16,524,000 tons, the second largest yield on record in Canada and 2,000,000 tons more than the 1926 crop. What this year's harvest means in dollars and cents and spending power of the Canadian farmer and his family is indicated by the following approximate tabulation:

Wheat	$573,000,000
Oats	250,000,000
Barley	63,000,000
Rye	15,300,000
Flax	9,500,000
Hay	165,000,000
Totals	$1,075,800,000

Adjuster is Making Many Drastic Changes for Big Sale.

Judging from the activity of the adjustor in charge of W. H. Meredith's stock for the next nine days or so, no mercy is being shown to the worth of that fine old store's goods. G. E. Yeager, the merchandise adjuster, is slashing away at the prices with a mailed fist, and showing a total disregard for cost or loss. The public is therefore assured that the selling of the stock will be decidedly greater than anything of the kind ever before staged in the City of Peterborough. With old King Winter just around the corner this should mean a great deal to the men who have overcoats and suits to buy. The opening advertisement appears on another page of tonight's paper.—Advt.

Plain and Gay Little Frocks

The little tot's garments are always adorable, and the group pictured here are no exception. If the occasion is to be gay, the frock worn in View B would meet all requirements. Three quarter-inch tucks are placed at the bottom, and two rows of lace insertion are set into the front of the yoke. The armholes are trimmed with matching lace, and dainty ribbon is tied in bows on the shoulders. Bordered material in a graduated dot design makes the dainty little frock in View A, with the yoke and short sleeves of plain material. Very practical is the frock in View C. The tucks have been omitted from the skirt, the sleeves are long and gathered into a band, and the high neck is trimmed with a narrow lace edging. No. 1154 is in sizes 6 months, 1, 2 and 4 years. Size 1 year requires 1⅛ yards of 32-inch or 36-inch material. Price 20 cents.

ENGINEER KILLED IN MOTOR WRECK

Driver of Car in Which He Rode Placed Under Arrest.

TORONTO, Ont., September 14.—Edgar Arthur Prince, aged 60, of 31 Dingwall Avenue, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when an automobile in which he was being driven crashed into a Hydro pole at the south-east corner of Danforth and Byron Avenues. Harry Webster, 33 years of age, 10 Thyron Avenue, driver of the car, received cuts on his face and hands. Detectives Clarke and Koster arrested him on a charge of manslaughter.

Police Version of Smash.

Webster had borrowed the car from his brother-in-law. He was driving, police witnesses declared, east on Danforth at a fast rate of speed, when suddenly he turned out to pass a motor truck. In some manner Webster, police said, lost control of the car and it went crashing into the iron pole. Prince was thrown out of the car, the front of which was ripped completely out. When picked from the wreckage, he was carried to the curb and expired a few minutes later.

The late Mr. Prince was chief engineer on the lake steamer Rapids King. Webster is the first officer. Yesterday was the closing of navigation season for the boat. For the past 32 years Mr. Prince was chief engineer on lake boats. For 16 years he was on the steamer Macassa and also served in a similar capacity on the Chippewa.

Born in England.

Born in Leamington, England, he came to Canada with his parents when a small boy. They lived in Port Perry for many years. Mr. Prince studied dentistry, but his love for sailing won him from his profession.

His widow, Jean, seven children—Cora, Rex, Alice, George, Grace, Margery, and Dorothy—all living at home, and one brother, Henry, of 320 Kenilworth Avenue, survive.

Chief Coroner M. M. Crawford will conduct an inquest.

SAINT and SINNER

Jim Lane, plodding about his room in squeaking new shoes, was completing his packing. He had refused to allow Faith to help him, but seemed to be glad to have her sitting in the big old rocking chair he had brought with him from the Myrtle Street house when he had come to live with his daughter and her husband.

She watched his patient, stoop-shouldered figure, his sad, humble face, and the lump in her throat threatened to melt into tears.

"You're sure you want to go, Dad?" she asked at last. "You know, dear, I'm so glad to have you here. I thought you were comfortable and—and contented."

"Couldn't have been treated finer if I was the Prince of Wales," her father assured her with an attempt to be jocular. "But Junior's sort of been after me for weeks and I guess maybe it's a good thing for a useless old man like me to circulate among his children a little so's he won't wear his welcome out."

"Oh, Dad!" There were pain and reproach in Faith's cry.

Jim Lane's gnarled, brown old hands trembled a little with haste and emotion as he crammed his cheap "best suit" into his suitcase. In spite of his almost old-maidish passion for order he left it a little wrinkled to go to Faith, to stand behind her chair, his hands falling heavily upon her shoulders.

"Honey, I wouldn't hurt your feelings for the world," he told her huskily. "But I'm getting old enough now to have a little sense, and I know you and Bob would be mighty relieved if I could shift the whole family off your shoulders, instead of just my own worthless self. Young married folks have a right to privacy, a chance to fight things out all by themselves. Your Grandpa and Grandma lived with me and Martha when we was first married and looked like there never was anything but trouble."

"But you haven't made trouble, Dad darling," Faith protested, her hands going up to grip his. "You've been oil on troubled waters many a time."

"Thank you, daughter. And now I want to tell you that Junior won't hear of me paying any board, no matter how much I want to. Says he's getting rich with that automobile accessories business of his. And he says he's going right on paying me rent for the house—sixty dollars a month, you know. So I wanted you to know that I'll be in a position to pay Joy's board. Do you think ten dollars a week will be all right? Course I never can repay you for having been a mother to the poor little tad ever since she was born."

"Oh, Dad, I wish you wouldn't feel that you have to pay for Joy," she protested.

"I reckon, with Bob's business like it is, he'll be glad to have the ten dollars," Jim Lane answered.

"What do you mean, Dad? I don't understand—Have you heard him say anything?" A chill of fear shuddered along her nerves. Was that the reason Bob had been so silent, so preoccupied lately? Why hadn't he told her?

"Oh, just bad times generally," her father hastened to reassure her, but she detected a note of fluttering insincerity in his voice, every modulation of which she knew so well.

"You're staying till after dinner, aren't you, Dad?" she asked, beating back the fear and trying to speak naturally. "Bob's gone to the station to meet Joy, you know. She'd feel wretched if her Dad wasn't here to listen to her excited tale of camp life, when she's been gone all summer."

"Course I'll be here for dinner, honey. I guess I'm more anxious to see my baby than she is to see me. But—one more thing, Faith. And don't take it amiss: don't let Cherry and the baby take up so much of your time that you'll forget you've got a good-looking husband who needs a lot of attention—if you don't want him to look for it elsewhere. Now, where in Sam Hill are them old carpet slippers of mine?"

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1927.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Although a benefic aspect dominates early in the morning this is read by astrologers as rather an unimportant day.

The planetary government seems to promise that most persons will feel cheerful and optimistic on awakening.

The mind should be clear and foresight should be trustworthy, while this sway prevails.

There is a promising sign for the success of everyday matters, but important affairs should be deferred.

It is wise for women not to stress the importance of their personal wishes in business or domestic activities.

The rule is not an auspicious one for suitors, for girls are supposed to be capricious under this direction of the stars.

Weddings of this date probably will be more successful in establishing love than in assuring prosperity.

All the signs today presage more interest in education than at any previous time.

Schools and colleges will flourish in the coming year as never before, but co-operation again will be discussed with more or less criticism.

International relations will be cemented by a more extended exchange of students and professors than formerly, it is prophesied, but new problems will develop.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have some sort of business that carries severe hazards and they should be cautious.

Children born on this day probably will be fortunate in financial affairs. The subjects of this sign often receive legacies and unexpected gifts.

FEW DETAILS OF TORNADO

Wholesale Death and Destruction Dealt Out in Western Mexico.

COMMUNICATION BROKEN.

NOGALES, Arizona, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—The collapse of communication, both by telegraph and railway today, still kept from the world the details of the wholesale death and destruction believed to have been dealt out by the storm which for three days last week lashed a thousand miles of the west coast of Mexico's seaboard.

Officials of the Southern Pacific of Mexico Railroad last night reported that no train connection with Mexico City or Southern Coast points would be made today. Meagre reports that the death toll in Salina Cruz and Manzanillo, both important west coast seaports, was enormous, gave cause for speculation regarding the picture which would be revealed with improved communications.

RIVERA TELLS OF PLANS FOR NEW ASSEMBLY

Spanish Premier Not Dictator, He Asserts, As He Takes Advice.

COUNCIL OF STATE RULES.

Has Given Spain New Form of Legislature—Will Provide Constitution.

MADRID, Sept. 14.—"I am not a dictator,' General Primo De Rivera, head of the military government, said in an interview with the United Press coincident with his announcement of his plans for the General Assembly that is to replace the old parliament. "Those who call me a dictator exaggerate," General De Rivera continued. "Personal power is always hateful. A dictator rules according to his own ideas, often whimsically. I have always acted with the advice of government officials. I feel no remorse at having overthrown the previous government four years ago. I have committed no single violation of personal rights. I have surrounded myself with advisors and abided by the advice of the Council of the State, the Financial Tribunal, and other high officials.

"To-day I have given Spain a new form of legislature. During the next three years this Legislature is to draw up a new, better and permanent constitution under which our nation there after will be governed.

"The new assembly is to consist of 350 members drawn from representative walks of life and appointed to office by royal decree. Women will be eligible for membership, but married women must have the consent of the husbands to hold office and husbands of married women members will not be eligible themselves for membership.

"The assembly will have limited powers. It will be able to criticize government policies, but the government will have the final voice in all legislation.

JURY COMPLETED.

Leonard Cline Goes On Trial For Murder of Friend.

ROCKVILLE, Conn. Sept. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—After four days the jury has been completed to listen to the outline of the cases of the State and defence in the trial of Leonard Cline, novelist and newspaperman, charged with the murder of his friend, Wilfrid Irwin, last May 16.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Roman stripes with modern variations characterize this sweater. Brilliant rose, yellow, blue, violet and green are used on a background of cream color, and the skirt is of plain cream-colored flannel.

The most primitive of all textiles were made with wrap and weft of the same color. Necessity may have been the mother of invention when some primitive weaver first hit upon the idea of making warp of one color and weft of another.

"The next stage," says an authority on textile history, "was to make a cloth with colored stripes, by using successively two shuttles containing different colored threads."

It was a decided step forward when some ingenious weaver hit upon the idea of making checked or plaid materials with a two-colored warp and two-colored weft.

Striped materials you will find among the textiles of the most primitive people. Scotch warriors doubtless wore striped kilts before they had hit upon the bright idea of having them made in plaid design.

Through slow successive stages for thousand of years weavers have been perfecting means of making more and more elaborate textiles. But even today there is an undoubted attractiveness about goods of colored stripes—extremely primitive though they may be.

What we call Roman stripes—stripes made of a number of bright colors—were known and used before the Romans. They are called "Roman," because of the fondness evinced by the Italian peasants about Rome for this particular type of material.

And now Roman stripes have been revived. And there is about most of us a streak of primitiveness that responds to the sight of a bit of gaily striped material of this sort. They gladden our eyes and come as something of a relief at a time when we have been rather fed up on complicated printed designs.

Ladies slippers are as dainty as flowers when they are painted in flower design. Buy a pair of white kid or canvas slippers at one of the August shoe sales and decorate it with painted roses on vamp and heel. Just the thing for informal evening wear this autumn. Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I will send you the design in actual size for the painted decoration.

WAR AVIATORS HOLD BANQUET

Secretary Asks For Representation From Peterborough at Meeting.

IN TORONTO SEPT. 19.

The following letter has been received by Mayor Holloway from the secretary of the Aeronautic Club, 754 Yonge street, Toronto, announcing a banquet at which all World War aviators are to be present:

Dear Sir,—I beg to inform you that this Association in conjunction with the City of Toronto is having a banquet on the evening of Monday, September 19th, at the King Edward Hotel. This is to take the form of an aviators convention and a large number of former members of the flying services will attend. Major-General McBrien will be present and is expected to make an important announcement regarding the new National Air League of which he is the provisional head.

Upon the request of our committee, I am writing to you sir, to ask if you will get in touch with some former flying officer of your city and ask him to pass the word around to his old associates, as we would like to have a good delegation from Peterborough. We would also be obliged if you could have your local newspaper carry a news item on this coming event and so reach the greatest number of those interested.

NEW FLAVOR

If you will add Gruyere cheese, instead of just plain cooking cheese, an egg souffle will achieve an exotic, tantalising flavor.

FAIR GROUNDS ARE IMPROVED IN MANY WAYS

Builders, Painters and Repair Men Active During Summer.

SEATS IN PLACE.

Old Street Car Seats Do Service Now in Exhibition Park.

From the hands of the builder, the painter and the repairer, the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition grounds and buildings have taken on a new beauty and attractiveness.

Immediately on entering by the main gate on George street south, and indeed, when the gates are left open, long before one actually passes through, can be seen the now famous model of the Quebec Bridge, more famous so far as Peterborough is concerned, than its great prototype, which adorned George street during the Diamond Jubilee celebrations. It is placed at the end of the avenue which runs from the entrance of the Exhibition to the horse barns.

Newly repainted and propped up from the ground on the east side of the gates is one of the old street cars of the Peterborough Radial Railway, which is now converted into an Exhibition week check room and barber shop.

Every building in the grounds has been repainted. The contract was given to Spray Painting, Ltd., which, using a sprayer accomplished in one month what under the old method of hand brushing would have required almost triple the time. By this method every crack, even in the oldest building, exposed for many years to the contrary influences of sun and frost, was filled in with the paint that preserves as well as beautifies.

Around the grandstand has centred much of the constructing activity of past weeks and months. A new fence has been raised along the front; all the seats have been painted; the metal roof, the work of the William Hamilton Co., protects from wind and rain. Under the grandstand are in process of construction a number of dressing rooms for the accommodation of artistes taking part in the performance before the stand, that are yearly some of the stellar attractions of the Exhibition programme. Placed at strategic points in the grounds, within easy hearing distance of the band concerts, are the seats that were formerly in the interior of the Peterborough street cars, which were bought from the company and repainted for continued use in this part of city life.

The New Barn.

Pride of place among the new features of the Exhibition must be given to the new cattle barn situated between the two older buildings for live stock.

Except for the fact that the new barn has a metal roof and contains some minor additions suggested by the experiences of the intervening years, it is built on much the same lines as the older barn to the north. It suggests a greater air of permanence than any of the other buildings. For example it is built on a cement foundation and all the posts are bedded in cement.

Erected by Fred Dunnmitt, the new barn is 120 by 32 feet with a metal roof supplied by the Pedlar Company of Oshawa. Forty head of cattle can be accommodated on each side. Light and ventilation are supplied by cupola fanlights. Alternate windows are on pivots, with transom catches by means of which they can be opened or closed by a cord from the ground.

Sleeping quarters for the cattlemen are in a loft in the centre of the barn. Farmers say this represents a much needed advance in cattle barn construction. In other buildings men tending the animals had to sleep on the floor on a level with the cattle. There was always a certain amount of danger from animals which had freed themselves and wandered about in the darkness and the new arrangement, besides adding to their safety, helps the men to keep the barn in a condition of greater cleanliness.

The latest barn is intended to be kept entirely for the housing of herds certified as being free from disease.

Between it and the older barn, facing Morrow street, a new gate is being erected on a cement base. When completed this will be roofed over with a circular top. This gate is intended for the greater convenience of stockmen who unload their charges at the pen on the siding at the end of Morrow street. Though the new gate they will be able to lead their animals without passing along the busy streets.

"With the growing popularity of the Exhibition," said President Roland Denne, "the directors aim at erecting buildings more permanent in character than those which sufficed in the early days of the Fair."

Why Women Wanted And Science Developed A New-Type Hygiene

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND, Registered Nurse

MODERN women with the business world to face, and a more tense social life to lead, demanded greater protection in meeting their greatest hygienic handicap. As a result, the old-time sanitary "pad" is fast disappearing.

Over 80% of better-class women now employ KOTEX—more than a sanitary pad; true scientific protection. Filled with Cellucotton wadding, the newly perfected super-absorbent, it is five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Kotex also DEODORIZES while it acts. Also, it is discarded easily as tissue. No laundry, no disposal problem.

Packed 12 in a box. At any store. Look for name Kotex on the box. If it is not there, take care; it is not real Kotex.

No laundry—discard like tissue

DUTY RAISED ON U. S. FILMS

New Zealand Determined To Foster British Moving Pictures.

THREE PENCE A FOOT.

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 14 (United Press).—A determination to foster British films at the expense of the American product is expressed by the New Zealand tariff, where in the general duty of a penny a foot is increased to threepence in the case of the American films and decreased to nothing in the case of the British product.

SEVEN ARRESTED AFTER COLLISION

Employees of Railway and Street Car Companies Out On Bail.

WEEHAWKEN, N.J., Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Seven men were held today in bail aggregating fifty thousand dollars following a collision at a doubly safeguarded crossing between an engine and a trolley car in which thirty-one persons were injured, two perhaps mortally.

Those arrested after the crash during the rush hour last evening comprised the crew of the locomotive, the railroad towerman, and the operator of the one-man trolley, the latter being under custody in hospital.

The towerman said the mechanism of the crossing gates failed to work. The switchman, whose duty it was to derail the trolley if there was not a clear track ahead, could not be found last night.

YOUNG PEOPLE ENTERTAINED

Church Society Invites Pupils and Staff of High School.

AT CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 14.—The Young People's League of St. John's United church was at home in the club rooms and the auditorium of the church on Monday night to the staff of the Campbellford schools and the pupils of the High School. There were one hundred and seventy-four guests and each one of them spent a most enjoyable evening.

The first part of the program took place in the church auditorium. It was opened by singing an old favorite hymn. A vocal duet by Misses Irene Stevens and Ruth Taylor was the second number and demands special mention for its sweet harmony and splendid rendition. After the duet, the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

F. D. Phillips, president of the society, welcomed the guests and spoke a few minutes on the society's work and connection with the life and activities of the church in general. The Rev. Ernest Harston, minister of St. John's followed Mr. Phillips' address with a more detailed outline of the institution, its aims and desires, its importance as an organ of the church and as a benefit to the young people of the day. As minister of St. John's Mr. Harston extended a warm welcome to everyone present and expressed a sincere desire to see them frequently in attendance not only at the Young People's meetings, but in the church as well.

One point which Mr. Harston particularly emphasized, however, was that he believed that every person should attend their own church functions regularly. No one, he said, would welcome a stranger more gladly than would he himself, but he did not wish to be considered guilty of "sheep stealing." It was not the honorable thing to do.

After Mr. Harston had finished speaking, the hosts and guests were formed into groups and the recreation hour in the basement of the church began with contests and games of various kinds. The young people entered into the fun with an abundance of spirit, but the high light of the amusement was the honeymoon race, won by a young couple from "Eganville." The Rev. C. D. Daniels staged a novel moving picture production stunt with Messrs. Phillips, Shapter, Craighead, and Hazell as movie stars. The scene when they told their first lie to their mother and later, when they said farewell to their sweethearts before taking a long voyage overseas, was particularly amusing. Owing to the lateness of the hour, the entertainment was somewhat curtailed but while lunch was being prepared Mr. Daniels led the community singing which took the form of an old-time round song, "O How Lovely Is The Evening." The singing was done by three groups and, thanks to a number of choir members who were present, was exceptionally well done.

Just before a very satisfying lunch of coffee, sandwiches, pickles, and cake was served, the entire assembly sang Grace. Half an hour later, about eleven-thirty, Mr. Harston pronounced the Benediction and the evening ended with he National Anthem.

As a venture into a new field of church entertainment, the evening was a complete success. The practice has been followed by city churches for some years, but Campbellford has usually been considered much too small a place for such an affair. With the closing of the entertainment on Monday evening that belief goes into the discard, for nothing could have been more satisfactory to both guests and hosts than the function at St. John's church. Mr. Harstone, minister of the church, together with the officers and members of the Young People's Society are to be highly commended for their excellent entertainment. They, in turn, are truly grateful to those who in various ways assisted in the program. For the various musical numbers, Mr. Albert Hazell, church organist, presided at the pipe organ.

About the Exhibition

A traffic jam at the Ex. doesn't last long when Constable Frank Pratt gets on the job.

No, the reserved section in the centre of the grand stand is not for the press and families. It is for guests.

Somebody in search of a thrill suggested setting a cat loose in the dog tent but Bill Merrell wouldn't let him.

Somebody's always taking the joy out of life!

Last year the acrobats were glad to get out of their windy tent to do a little exercise on the stage. This year they will be so comfortable in their dressing rooms under the grand stand they may have to be chased out.

The world has progressed in everything but fiddling. There will be some real old time stuff at the George street band stand to-night.

Did you ever try to catch a chicken? Then have a try at ringing the duck's neck. (On the right, towards the grand stand.)

Heard on the Lindenberg ride last night: "Heck! I forgot my sandwich!"

SEYMOUR FAIR WILL BE GOOD

Members of Society Express Confidence as They Complete Plans.

WATER FOR STOCK.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 14.—The Seymour Agricultural Society met yesterday evening in the Council Chamber, Public Library building. There were fourteen members present, including the president, Henry Watters, and the secretary, J. Nelson Stone. The object of the meeting was to complete arrangements for the Campbellford Fair, which will be held Thursday and Friday, September 28th and 29th.

Various reports were placed before the meeting, each showing that definite progress had been made. The secretary read a communication from the Department of Agriculture, reminding the society that all sheds and pens used for the housing of cattle and other live sock for exhibition purposes must be thoroughly disinfected and whitewashed. This was in compliance with the law. On motion of Mr. Horkins, a committee of three was appointed to attend to the matter. Mr. Horkins also recommended that the contract be given to the same person who had done the work last year, since this work had been entirely satisfactory.

The matter of a water supply for the stock section was then discussed. Secretary Stone advised the society that the town had granted them a free water supply, and that Mr. Oliver had given ready consent to an attachment being made to his outlet on his property. The president, Mr. Watters, seeing Mr. Oliver present, asked him to address the meeting. In a few minutes, Mr. Oliver outlined the cheapest and most efficient method of making the connection. Dr. O'Hara reminded the members of the law regarding the matter, and provision was made to comply with it. A committee was appointed to proceed with the installation of the water line at once.

There being no further routine business, a general discussion of matters directly relative to the Fair began and continued till adjournment.

The Agricultural Society is firm in its belief that this year's Fair will be the most successful in all the years that Campbellford has undertaken such an enterprise.

LEGION ARRANGES TO ATTEND SERVICE

Members of the Campbellford Branch Will Attend Brighton Unveiling.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 14.—The local branch of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L., held its regular meeting in the Armouries yesterday evening. Major Bygott, president, occupied the chair, with Vice-president Thompson and Secretary McEacheran also present. Last night's meeting was by far the largest since the organization of the Legion here, June 19, 1927. Six new applications for membership were presented and the official charter was received. This will be formally presented to the Campbellford Legion as soon as the necessary arrangements can be completed.

The most important business item was the unveiling of the Brighton War Memorial, Sunday, Sept. 18th. This matter was dealt with first. The firing party, consisting of ex-service men, was selected and arrangements made for a brush-up drill on Saturday evening at eight o'clock. It will be absolutely imperative that each man in this party appear on parade correctly dressed in review order. Any man who has not a complete uniform may get whatever pieces he is lacking from the quartermaster's store. Such items must be returned immediately after the Sunday parade. The dress will be service dress with side arms. Rifles and ammunition will be issued at Brighton.

After some discussion, Major Bygott was appointed to take charge of transportation, and investigate what grants, if any, have been made for that purpose. The local detachment will leave the armories at fifteen minutes to one, Sunday afternoon, and Major Bygott would appreciate any assistance rendered by owners of cars who would be willing to take legionaires to Brighton.

The secretary, continuing with the communications, read the resignation of Glenn Thompson, vice-president. Since he is leaving town, there was no other alternative but to accept his withdrawal from the local branch. Before putting the motion to a vote, Major Bygott, president, asked Mr. Thompson to accept the congratulations of the Legion on his promotion and their best wishes for his future success. An invitation was also extended to him to accept the hospitality of the local branch whenever he should return to town. The resignation was accepted by a vote of the members.

The president's inquiry for members unemployed, ill, for social suggestions, notices of motion, etc., receiving no response, he proceeded to welcome Rev. Ernest Harston, minister of St. John's United Church. Mr. Harston, himself an ex-service man with an enviable record of service at the Front, both as a combatant and a chaplain, is keenly interested in the welfare of the Legion.

The next meeting of the Legion will be held at eight o'clock on Tuesday, September 20, in the club rooms in the Armouries. The item of major importance to be discussed will be the unveiling of the Alderville War Memorial on Sunday, September 25. This memorial should be of particular interest to the citizens of Campbellford, since it was built by a local contractor, and the local regiment is responsible for the unveiling programme. It should also be remembered that the red men fought as gallantly as any on the field of battle. It is but a mark of respectful appreciation of their deeds to attend the unveiling.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 14.—Mr. and Mrs. James Archer and Stanton Archer motored to Toronto yesterday afternoon. They will spend a few days in the city and will be guests at the Wallace-Lockhart wedding today.

Mr. Gerald Wilson is visiting his mother, Mrs. C. A. Wilson, Rear Street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Smith and family are motoring to Toronto and Hamilton for a short holiday, combined with business. While in Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will attend the Wallace-Lockhart wedding.

The large gilt signs of the Standard Bank which have been re-painted, have been replaced on the bank building, corner of Bridge and Front Streets. Mr. William Dunstan, master painter, who had charge of the work, is now engaged with the exterior decoration of the Carnegie Library Building, Ranney and Bridge Streets.

A comparatively small crowd listened to the band concert which the regimental band played from eight to ten yesterday evening. This was due, no doubt, to the numerous other attractions and business meetings which were in progress at the same time.

Yankees Clinch American League Pennant

RUTH CLOUTS TWIN HOMERS

Take Double Victory Over Cleveland, Each by Score 5 to 3.

SECOND STRAIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—The New York Yankees clinched the American League pennant yesterday beyond all mathematical doubt with a double victory over Cleveland, each by a score of 5 to 3.

Babe Ruth, clubbing out one home run in each game to bring his season's total up to 52, led the attack that definitely assured the Yankees their second straight championship and fifth in seven years under the management of Miller Huggins.

The Yankee steam-roller, flattening all opposition almost from the start of the season, clinched the flag with the finish of the season still nearly three weeks away and with the overwhelming margin of 17 games over the second place Philadelphia Athletics. It is one of the most decisive victories in the history of either major leagues, and a contrast to the Yankee triumph last year when the team barely staggered in at the finish with a three-game margin over Cleveland.

With 15 more games to play, the Yankees may lose all of them and still finish at the top by a single game margin, even though the Athletics won all of their remaining 17 contests.

May Break Record

With 98 victories and only 41 defeats on their slate, including yesterday's games, the Yankees have an excellent chance to break the American League record for total wins in a season. This mark was set at 105 by the Boston Red Sox in 1921. The major league mark, 116 victories hung up by the Chicago Cubs in 1906, is out of their reach.

The Yankees have set a few new slugging records already this season that may stand for some time. The spectacular Ruth-Gehrig battle has enabled them to break the major league club record for total home runs. Two by Ruth yesterday, along with others by Pat Collins and Earl Combs brought the Yankee aggregate up to 145, five more than the record of 140 set by the Chicago Nationals in 1884. The American league's former record, 134, was set by the Yankees in 1921 when Ruth hung up his high individual mark of 59.

George Pipgras outpitched Willis Hudlin to win the first game yesterday afternoon, while Waite Hoyt enjoyed the distinction of capturing the deciding game, marking his 21st victory.

Ruth's homers enabled the Yankees to come from behind and tie the score each time. His first was made in the seventh inning of the opening game with Koenig on base; the other off Joe Shaute in the fourth inning of the final game, started a four run rally that clinched the game.

Trounce White Sox

The Athletics slugged the offerings of Connally and Jacobs for 19 hits and trounced the Chicago White Sox at Philadelphia by a score of 15 to 5. Although Lefty Groves was forced to retire in favor of Rube Walberg in the sixth, he was given credit for the victory.

Timely hitting gave the Senators a double victory at Washington over the Tigers, who dropped the second game of a double header 5 to 3 after losing the first 3 to 2.

Boston came from behind in both ends of a double header at Boston to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 4 in 13 innings and then 3 to 2.

CAMPBELLFORD WINS AT TENNIS

Takes Seven Matches From Port Hope in League Series.

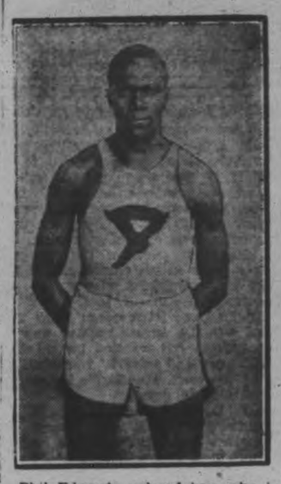
HARD FOUGHT GAMES.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 14.—The local tennis club entertained as their guests yesterday afternoon, the Port Hope players. The fixture was a Central Ontario Lawn Tennis Association tournament match, and consisted of seven events including eleven players from each club. Although the weather was far from ideal for tennis, each point of every game was keenly contested. The fact that the local club won the whole seven events does not necessarily imply that Port Hope was easily beaten. They were not. The visiting players put up a stiff resistance and they are to be admired for their excellent sportsmanship. The keenest games were played by Weston and Lewis, singles and the men's doubles also went the three sets before victory was won.

The events and scores: Men's Singles, Clifford Weston, Campbellford, won from P. H. Lewis, Port Hope, 6—2, 3—6, and 6—0. This match attracted the keenest interest of the spectators and waiting players. Harry Free, Campbellford, won from F. Winfield, Port Hope, 6—1, 3—6, 6—3. In the Ladies' Singles Miss Josephine Longmore, Campbellford, won from Miss D. Grant, Port Hope, by a 6—1, 6—1 score. In the Mixed Doubles J. H. Bell and Miss L. Smith upheld the prestige of the local club by winning from H. Winfield and Miss B. Ryan, 6—1, and 6—3. Miss Jessie Weston and Dr. H. B. Longmore won from Miss H. G. James and Mr. James by almost the same score, theirs being 6—3 and 6—1. Miss James' brilliant playing was a matter of much favorable comment. Misses Verna Shore and Dorothy Linton did their part to complete the victory by winning their event, Ladies' Doubles, 6—3, 6—4, against Misses L. Ward and M. Bennet of Port Hope.

The Men's Doubles was another event which went the three sets before victory was won. Hilton Beatty and Wilbert Kingston, Campbellford, managed to outplay T. H. Briden and H. Ryan by the thin edge of 6—4, 7—9, 6—1. This was perhaps one of the most evenly matched contests of the afternoon.

SETS RECORD.



Phil Edwards, colored boy, who is British by birth, but running for a New York club, who set up a new Canadian record in the 1,000 yards run at the Canadian National Exhibition sports. Edwards and Ray Watson, who held the previous record, ran from scratch, the colored lad just nosing out Watson at the line. The new time is 2 minutes 13 1-5 seconds.

TUNNEY IS NOT HIGH-HAT

He's Not Snobbish Nor a "Grandstander," Says Close Intimate.

BY BILL OSBORNE

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Of all the champions boxing has ever known, Gene Tunney, perhaps, is the most discussed and the most misunderstood.

He is accused of being "high hat."

Now let's take that as a start. The term "high hat" infers snobbishness. Gene talks and shakes hands with more persons in one day than any predecessor he has had, with the exception perhaps of John L. Sullivan. Gene likes to talk to children. He has any number of tiny friends up in the little mountain town of Speculator who holler "Hello, Gene" at him whenever he walks by. Can you call a man like that snobbish?

Then he is accused of using "too many big words." Is that a crime? Gene, perhaps, never had the advantages of education that other men have had. But he has industriously sought to better himself mentally ever since I have known him. And supposing he does make a grammatical error now and then? Even the best of speakers do that. Theodore Roosevelt, Charles Evans Hughes and William Jennings Byran, all capable men, have been known to make errors in diction.

To know Gene is to love him.

He has a gentle voice. He is careful of other people's feelings. He is studious. He is independent. His desire for privacy and his love of outdoor life in the solitude of the mountains is unfairly mistaken for "sullenness."

Gene has confided to me that he could mix in with that fast crowd that swirls at the heels of every he wanted to but not at the price commonly demanded. He could, for instance frequent barrooms, he could mix at the heels of every heavyweight champion of the world. But he chooses not to.

He has plenty of self-respect. He is unfailing in his devotion to his mother and his famly. He looks out for the needs of his sparring partners. Recently one of them died. Gene quietly went about taking care of the funeral expenses and offering to be of service in every possible way.

He is no "grand-stander." He did not call up the newspaper men and tell them grandiosely what he was going to do so he could get credit for it in the public prints. Gene is not that sort of a fellow. I am revealing this incident now for the first time.

If you could penetrate the inner circle of his home life you will find friends there of the highest character. There is no hypocrisy about his expressed love for the simple life.

He does not drink. He does not smoke. He attracts a finer element to the boxing profession than it has ever before known. There are more bank and railroad presidents at his ringside than at any other. There are more brokers, high-grade business men and ladies taking an interest in this fine sport now than ever before. He has elevated it just as he has elevated himself.

He could curry favor on account of his connections with the marines, but he will not sanction any tie-up in that respect. Not so long ago he was scheduled to make a vaudeville appearance in a certain western city. The house manager got out a lot of machine guns, rifles, bayonets and flags and had them fluttering all over the lobby and the stage. Gene came, saw the whole layout and ordered it down.

"The war's over", he said. "I don't want to trade in on it."

Somehow I can't help liking a man like that.

WILL TRY FOR AN EVEN BREAK

British Team Re-organized for Second Game in Cup Series.

INTERNATIONAL POLO

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (Associated Press).—Fifty per cent. reorganized, the British polo team will ride out at Meadowbrook to-day in an effort to even the series for the international challenge cup and prolong it to a third match.

The United States won the opening game Saturday, 13 to 3, and need only one more victory to retain possession of the cup for another three-year period. The emblem of supremacy was won in 1921 and successfully defended in 1924.

Captain Richard George and Captain J. P. Dening will be found on the British side to-day, replacing Claude Pert at No. 1 and Major Austin Williams at No. 2. The new-comers will add their weight and aggressiveness to the British line so badly needed in its game.

The States will stand pat on the "Big Four" of modern polo, J. Watson Webb, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., Malcolm Stevenson and Devereaux Milburn.

On the basis of comparison available on the first day's play when the United States four outrode and outstroked the British side, the United States will enter the second match top-heavy favorites.

Supporters of the visitors agreed that unless some system has been devised between games to stop the sensational Hitchcock and Hardy Milburn, who ran wild in the opener, the Army in India will carry another forlorn British polo hope in the battle.

The line-up:

Great Britain—Captain Richard George, No. 1; Captain J. P. Dening, No. 2; Captain C. T. I. Roark, No. 3; Major E. G. Atkinson, back.

United States—J. Watson Webb, No. 1; Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., No. 2; Malcolm Stevenson, No. 3; Devereaux Milburn, back.

BISONS SURE OF PENNANT

Cinch Matters by Defeating Rochester Colts for Final Contest 12-3.

LEAFS WIN DOUBLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. — (Canadian Press.)— The Buffalo Bisons put the International League pennant triumph for 1927 in cold storage beyond the pale of all mathematical doubt by giving the Rochester Colts another artistic lacing at Buffalo yesterday by a score of 12 to 3. The champions needed only to win yesterday to cinch matters, btu theSyracuse Stars dropped two games to the Toronto Maple Leafs, making the Bisons sure of an overwhelming margin at the end of the League race.

Profitt twirled a stellar brand of ball for the Bisons, blanking Rochester and allowing only three hits until two were out in the ninth, when the visitors suddenly slashed out four hits, netting three runs, and spoiled a shut-out victory. The Bisons drove two Rochester hurlers from the box.

Toronto beat Syracuse, 3 to 2 and 7 to 5, at Syracuse. Williamson's muff of a fly with two gone and the bases loaded in the second inning cost the second game. Hargraves' homer with Welsh on base won the first for the Leafs. Sylvester Johnson, no-hit pitcher, has been recalled by the St. Louis Cardinals, the fourth Syracuse player and the third member of the pitching staff to advance to the Majors within a week.

Newark hammered out a 6 to 3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles at Newark. A four run rally in the fourth was sufficient to give them the verdict. Mackin clouted for the circuit in the fifth.

Reading rallied for two runs in the ninth to nose out Jersey City 6 to 5 at Reading. The Keyes loaded the sacks in the ninth on two singles and a walk and then Neal Dougherty singled to centre to score two runs for the victory.

NEW RULES PRO HOCKEY

Committee To Recommend Radical Changes in Playing Rules.

BEFORE DIRECTORS.

BOSTON, Sept. 13. — (Canadian Press.)—Radical changes in the playing rules of professional hockey were made publpic last night by the rules committee of the National League. They will be recommended for adoption at the annual meeting of the league to be held in Chicago September 24.

The most drastic of the eight changes proposed intended to abolish the tripping of a player when in scoring position in order to prevent a goal. The new rule would grant the player so fouled a free shot at the defender's goal, with only the goal tender to beat. The shot would be from the place the foul was made, but the player taking it would be in motion at the time. A smilar penalty is proposed for cases where a shot on goal is prevented by a defending player throwing his stick.

Other changes would limit overtime play to a "sudden death" period not to exceed 10 minutes; cut the width of gaol tenders' pads from 12 to 10 inches; permit kicking the puck and forward passing by a defending team in the defensive zone; and inflict a minor penalty on any player deliberately picking up the puck, shooting out of play, or using abusive language to another player.

Under the amended code as proposed an attacking team would be allowed a goal when a defending player kicked the puck into the net to save a tally. No player other than the team captain may address the referees and the league president will have authority to discipline managers who use abusive language to officials, step out on the ice during a match, or hamper officials in any way.

CHAMPION SPENDS IDLE DAY AT CAMP

Not Expected to Resume Training for Bout Until Thursday.

LAKE GENEVA, Ills., Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—A heat wave that shot the mercury up to 95 degrees in the scanty shade enveloped the Cedarcrest County Club yesterday, where Gene Tunney trains sometimes for his battle with Jack Dempsey in Chicago a week from Thursday. But the heavyweight champion was on leave again, enjoying whatever breeze swept in from Lake Michigan to Lake Forest, where he visited with friends.

Tunney is not expected back at camp until Wednesday night and is not due to resume training until Thursday. The programme then calls for boxing sessions until Sunday or possibly Monday. The big Marine, his own trainer, feels that the training grind is about over and that too much work will leave him stale for the championship tilt.

Jimmy Bronson, Gene's chief second in the winning tilt with Dempsey last Fall and nominated for the same job next week ,believes Tunney yesterday is 30 per cent better than last year and should win by a knockout in six rounds or less.

"Gene is boxing with more speed and assurance than ever before," Jimmy said. "He is heavier because of the weight added to his shoulders despite the decrease in the size of his waist and hips. The new strength in Gene's shoulders has added 20 per cent to the effectiveness of the champion's right hand punches and they were heavy enough at Philadelphia to make a mask of Dempsey's face."

Ruth Seven Swats Ahead of Lou Gehrig

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Babe Ruth's fifty-first and fifty-second home runs yesterday against Cleveland brought the Bambino seven swats ahead of Lou Gehrig, his closest rival, and seemed to assure him the long distance hitting championship of the majors for the season, barring a highly improbable rush by Gehrig.

With the season finals nearly three weeks away, Ruth is only seven home runs away from his record mark established in 1921.

The Ruth-Gehrig standing:

	Yankees' games played.	Homers
Ruth, 1921	139	55
Ruth, 1927	139	52
Gehrig, 1927	139	45

WRIGHT VICTOR SECOND ROUND

Only Canadian to Emerge Successfully From Second Round Play.

TENNIS SINGLES

FOREST HILL, N.Y., Sept. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Jack Wright of Montreal, Canadian champion and Davis Cup star, was the only one of three Canadian players to emerge successfully from the second round of the United States men's singles tennis championship tournament yesterday afternoon.

The elimination of one Canadian was inevitable as Wright and C. W. Leslie of Montreal were opposed to each other in an intra-city match which went four sets before the Canadian champion defeated his fellow-townsman, 7-5, 6-1, 7-9, 6-1.

Wright will meet William M. Johnston of California in the third round.

Makes Plucky Fight.

Gilbert Nunns, young Toronto player, made a plucky fight against Rene LaCoste of France, the defending champion, before succumbing 6-0, 6-2, 6-4. He improved as the match progressed, making his best stand in the third set, in which he led 3-1 before the Frenchman steadied and wore Nunns down with his accurate drives.

William T. Tilden of Philadelphia, champion six times in succession before LaCoste won last year, swept through his second round match, defeating Berkeley Bell, Austin, Texas, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2. LaCoste and Tilden are favored to meet in the final.

Meanwhile the supporting casts in the France-American rivalry came through along with their principals. Second round victories were chalked up for Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon of the French Davis Cup team, and for Johnston and Francis T. Hunter of the United States team.

Ohta Eliminated.

The chief surprises in the second round were the elimination of Yoshiro Ohta of Japan, and the crushing defeat of Dr. Carl Fischer, former intercollegiate champion, by Arnold Jones, ex-Yale captain. Ohta, who Sunday eliminated Clarence Griffin, was put out yesterday by the latter's brother, Elmer, of New York, 6-0, 6-2, 6-2. Fischer was set down at 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

All matches will be played in the stadium to-day, with principal interest centering on those between Tilden and Elmer Griffin, LaCoste and Harada, Cochet and John Hennessey, Borotra and Lang, and Johnston and Wright.

Soccer Notes

Saturday's soccer bill is the E. A. Peck final game between the Masseys and Thistle, at King Edward Park, on Saturday afternoon. Kick-off at three o'clock.

On Saturday afternoon, September 24, a very important game has been scheduled to decide the issue that has been "talkative" during the season by the "Die-Hards," who have challenged the pick of the Association players to a combat in the soccer code at King Edward Park.

A novel idea has been formulated by the very energetic committee of the C.G.E. Athletic Association for a 5-a-side tournament that will be held on Thanksgiving Day at King Edward Park in the afternoon of that day. This competition is confined to players of the C.G.E. only, and very valuable prizes will be awarded the winners.

In previous years the local soccer executive have always provided medals as a souvenir of the League championship to the winners, but this year, after consulting the players, the Association decided that 18-inch club bags would be more profitable and serviceable in carrying a player's outfit. Each bag will have a drop and a name tag, and are being purchased locally. The Association will present to the Masseys team twelve bags to be distributed amongst their players.

MACDONALD STILL HOLDS BELIEF THAT GENEVA PROTOCOL WOULD BE ACCEPTABLE TO DOMINIONS

Would Have League Commission Go Over Agreement To Erase Mistakes.

PROBLEM SIMPLE.

British Obligations Can Be Discussed at Special Imperial Conference.

LONDON, September 14 (United Press).—Ramsay MacDonald's affection for the Geneva protocol, under which the great Powers would make certain guarantees, is emphasized once again in a letter to both The Daily Herald and The Manchester Guardian published to-day.

This letter shows that if MacDonald gets into power at the end of the Tories' term he will be wedded to the protocol idea, in spite of the Dominions' opposition, and will seek to persuade the Dominions that the protocol should be accepted by them. MacDonald says that Senator Dandurand's speech shows that Sir Austen Chamberlain's statements on this subject are not true, and he revives the fact that the Dominion delegates in 1924 accepted the principle of the protocol, and adds: "What we have to do is not merely to content ourselves with deploring Chamberlain's speech of last Saturday, but we must begin our work where he left off.

"We have to find out how far the self-governing members from the Dominions can accommodate a common Empire policy which can be fitted into the protocol idea. My own belief is that the problem is very much simpler than it appears on the surface, and the Canadian delegates's speech gives support to that view.

"I should favour a commission from the League being appointed to which a draft of the 1924 agreement would be submitted for close examination so as to remove any mistakes embodied in it, and to amplify it by way of amendments so that the separate notes would become acceptable. Meantime we should have a consultation, even if necessary by special session of the Imperial Conference, to discuss international administration, Empire relations, and the obligations which the protocol would impose upon us, and also to consider how we can agree on an optional clause in the instrument setting up a Hague court."

Lord Parmoor and Gilbert Murray also write to The Manchester Guardian, condemning Sir Austen Chamberlain for supporting the protocol policy. The Government meanwhile says that neither Great Britain nor the Dominions want the protocol, or any further extension of Britain's foreign obligations.

HEAT WAVE CAUSES DEATHS IN CHICAGO

Schools Closed In Many Midwest U. S. Cities.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Midwest looked in vain today for relief from the three-day heat wave which the weather bureau has predicted will continue through tomorrow. Reports of many deaths and of rising temperatures which are making this month the hottest September in weather bureau history came from all parts of the West Central States. Only four cities reported their temperature as being under 90 degrees. Eight deaths were reported here, where the mercury touched 95 degrees. Many Illinois, Indiana, and Missouri schools were closed, due to the intense heat.

ENGAGES NEW SPARRING PARTNER

Dempsey Tries Another Session of Moonlight Training at Camp.

LINCOLN FIELDS, Crete, Ills., Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Under the glare of the flood lights, Jack Dempsey engaged in another mysterious session of moonlight manoeuvers at his training camp last night, with everybody barred out but Manager Flynn, Jerry Luvadis and Gus Wilson trainers and the essential sparring partners.

A new sparring partner with a reputation of having a great left hand, Armand Emmanuel of San Francisco, was slated to trade punches with Dempsey along with Allentown Joe Gans and other regular members of the staff.

Dempsey did no boxing yesterday, nor any roadwork, in the sweltering heat of mid-afternoon, with the thermometer around 95. He climbed into his ring togs for a light session with the punching bags. He whaled away at the light bag for four rounds, and drove punches into the heavy swinging target for two more, while Jerry the Greek, his trainer, attempted to hold the bag stationary.

Instead of going out on the road, Dempsey tugged at the rowing machine for half an hour yesterday morning.

TOURIST TRADE AIDS BUSINESS

Men Here For Holidays See Commercial Prospects of District.

INCREASE NOTED.

A considerable increase in tourist traffic this year, is reported by Frank G. Stinson of the Chamber of Commerce, which increase in volume to the Kawartha Lakes must have been apparent to the average citizen observing the numerous tourist cars parked on the streets.

Camping continues to be as popular as ever with our American cousins, and in meeting some of these people, one is sometimes surprised to find men and women of very high intellectual development and social standing in their home communities. Among these are found authors and journalists of note, who take this method of delving into the very heart of their subject.

Mail inquiries sent in to the Chambers of Commerce and allied organizations indicate a wide range of appeal and a very promising percentage of responsible business and other people seeking information concerning holiday resorts.

Mr. Stinson, as representing these organization, believes it to be a good thing for the country to bring these business people here, pleasure bent, as when they are on the ground they can better visualize the prospects and possibilities of the district in regard to mining, manufacturing and so forth.

FLIERS INTEND TO START FROM JAPAN FRIDAY

Announce That They Will Hop Off For Midway Islands.

2,480 MILE JOURNEY.

Royal Windsor Leaves Harbor Grace For Windsor, Ont., This Morning.

TOKIO, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Edward Schlee and William Brock, pilots of the round-the-world monoplane Pride of Detroit, today announced they expected to hop off near here for the Midway Islands, nearly half way across the Pacific on Friday. The projected flight to Midway means a hop of 2,480 miles over the water and almost errorless navigation if they are to reach their destination. Midway is only a coral formation of a few square miles in area.

Once at Midway, the fliers would face a fourteen hundred mile gap of water to Honolulu and then 2,400 more miles to San Francisco.

The monoplane arrived at Kasumigaura at three o'clock this afternoon (Japanese time) and was brought gracefully to earth by its co-pilots. They were smiling despite the bad luck they have had since they arrived in Japan, being forced down twice at Omura by inclement weather.

A large crowd of newspapermen and naval officers greeted the fliers on their arrival. Neither Schlee nor Brock showed signs of fatigue and the plane was in good condition. Without delay the aviators were given refreshments and handed hundreds of cablegrams from North America.

Windsor Coming Home

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland Sept. 14 (Canadian Press). — The monoplane Royal Windsor, piloted by Phil Wood and "Duke" Schiller, hopped off at 6.25 this morning, Eastern daylight time, on its return flight to Windsor, Ont., in accordance with instructions from their sponsors that they discontinue their projected trans-Atlantic hop to Windsor, England. The fliers had previously announced the intention of piloting a course for Old Orchard, Maine, but stated that with favorable weather conditions they would continue from the Maine Coast on a non-stop flight to Windsor.

Not From Lost Planes

LONDON, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Air Ministry experts who have examined the wreckage of an airplane found several days ago on the beach at Newquay, are understood to have decided that it is not that of any missing trans-Atlantic planes, says a despatch from Newquay to The Evening News. Part of the wreckage and a rudder, covered with silver gray fabric, are being brought to London for further examination.

Hope is Faint

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Only a faint hope that the small collapsible rubber boat with three daring air adventurers had survived the storm tossed Atlantic since last Wednesday today remained to the searchers for the occupants of the monoplane Old Glory after the discovery of the wrecked hulk of the giant craft off Newfoundland.

With a detailed description of the recovered wreckage, the searching steamer Kyle reported it will continue the search and stated that it is still searching for the collapsible boat which the Old Glory carried. Shipping men believed the continued search was useless. They pointed to the observation of masters of searching vessels who looked for the plane last week that stormy waters would prevent the survival of the strongest regulation lifeboat.

Passes Sydney

SYDNEY, N.S., Sept. 14 (Canadian Press). — The Royal Windsor en route from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, to Windsor, Ont., via Old Orchard, Maine, passed over Sydney at 11.40 a.m. Eastern daylight time.

Seen at Antigonish

ANTIGONISH, N.S., Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Flying in a westerly direction, the Royal Windsor passed over here at 1.15 p.m. Eastern daylight time.

LOCAL PEOPLE FEED HUNDREDS

chance or skill, are few. W. Outram has a real novelty in the Duckie Duck game run for the first time in Peterborough. The idea is to throw a ring around a duck's neck, which is easier said than done, as the ducks are more or less skilful in dodging the little circlets of wood. A. Marshall runs a bottle game, one of these where a husky man hurls a baseball against a tier of bottles and is surprised to see only two or three fall. He adds to his trade by giving each person who plays a ticket and on Saturday night he will draw among the stubs of these tickets for the winner of an eight day mantel clock. H. Record runs a wheel of fortune.

G. W. Hall has the barber shop concession, where No. 16 of the Peterborough Radial Railway is still serving the citizens of, and visitors to, Peterborough.

More altruistic purposes are served by tents run by the Peterborough Kiwanis Club, and the Canadian Department Stores. The former has provided a tent for lost children, where the police matron is in charge, and all stray children are to be taken. Here they will be entertained untill their mothers or other guardians arrive in search. The successors to the Cressman Company have a rest room furnished with easy chairs where the tired can sit and look at the latest styles in ladies' wear.

The Midway

The midway for the Peterborough Exhibition arrived yesterday, and today everything is in full swing. This is the biggest show ever sent out by Zeidman and Pollie. Over 800 people accompany the show, and to bring them here required a thirty-car train.

There are twenty-two shows set up at Exhibition Park, and it is without doubt the largest midway that has ever come to this city.

There is plenty of wholesome entertainment for all classes. It has numerous rides, in fact more rides than have ever been at the Peterborough Fair.

Merry-Go-Round.

The largest ride of all is the merry-go-round, with its three rows of steeds on the platform. It is accompanied by music which will provide enjoyment to many. The caterpillar is there with the usual green covering, and little buggies to ride in. The hey-day, the chair-o-plane, the whip, the ferris-wheel, and a few other rides provide plenty amusement and give lots of thrills.

Something new in the rocky road to Dublin, in a donkey car you will be taken through the wilds and turmoil of Ireland to Dublin.

Alca the Alligator Boy.

This is a living mystery of a boy 18 years old, who is covered with alligator skin, and to prove that this skin is no fake, he offers $100 to the person who can prove it does not grow on him. His whole body is checked and there are only two places where freakish skin has not grown on one cheek and on his hands.

The Midget Dancers.

Olive and George are the world's smallest married couple. It is a real sensation show, giving dancing exhibits. In this show there are also Mike and Ike, two other midgets.

Diamond See Walkers.

Six monkeys perform on a large speedway inside the tent. The speedway is made up of six lines of tracks, and many thrilling stunts are performed by these little drivers in their motor cars. There is a thrilling finish and many handicaps. The original mile a minute Murphy, Barney Oldfield, and many others give exhibitions of dare-devil driving.

Sacco and Vanzetti.

In another ten perfect models of Sacco, Vanzetti, Jesse James and his gang and Mrs. Snyder are shown in life-like form. There are also many other noteworthy criminals, train bandits, and murderers, in the rogues' gallery in life-like models. These models are exceedingly well done and depict the hard features of the criminals.

There is also to be seen in this tent Lindberg, General Custer and a few others who have made history.

A negro one day while viewing these models believed he saw one moving which in fact it really is and he pulled his knife out and stabbed it.

Ten in One.

They say it is the best in the Midway, at least you get plenty for your money. In this show the boy with the elephant skin and feet, the double bodied woman, right side woman and left side man, Charles Fulton, flyweight champion bag puncher of the world, Lady Brighmire, a palmist, and a balancing and contortion act are featured all for the price of one admission.

Honeymoon Trail.

This honeymoon trail is a real walk in fun house with shady nooks and something that gives real thrills to all who go through it.

Badgad Beauties.

This show, Bagdad Beauties, is composed of real Oriental show girls who give a half hour performance with all the latest dances. It features Anolite, the Philadelphia centennial dancer.

Teenie Weenie.

In one small tent three little black horses are to be seen performing. Teenie-Weenie is the smallest horse in the world, not as big as an airedale dog. He is four years old and can be put in a suit case. Big Ben, the Dane dog, is huge in comparison to these horses.

Kekai's Hiwaiians.

Kekai's Hiwaiians show features Princess Lani in high-class Hiwaiian music, dancing and singing. This troupe consists of six players and gives a half hour programme of the very latest in Hawaiian music and dancing.

Autodrome.

Miss Irene Dare can be seen driving an automobile in death defying stunts on the straight walls of the motordrome. Other dare-devils perform flirts with death on motorcycles.

Many other shows and games are included with the Midway. There are ice cream, hot dog and soft drink stands, along with all games of fortune and skill. There is a fine war exhibit and the original one-eyed cricus provides plenty of amusement.

GENERAL SYNOD SESSIONS BEGIN

Archbishop of Rupert's Land Administers Holy Communion.

MANY DELEGATES.

KINGSTON, Sept. 14.—(Canadian Press.) — Historic old St. George's Cathedral here was the scene of the formal opening of the eleventh session of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada here to-day. With one or two exceptions all the bishops were present, besides large numbers of clerical and lay delegates from all parts of Canada. The service consisted of morning prayer and holy communion and was conducted by Archbishop Matheson of Rupert's Land. The Right Rev. William White, of Honan, China, preached the sermon.

FLOWER SHOW CONTAINS MANY FINE DISPLAYS

Wide Variety of Blooms Shown By Amateurs and Professionals.

GLADIOLI FEATURE.

Long Stands Covered With Splendid Specimens of Beautiful Flowers.

"There's a nice smell from that tent," remarked a man passing the Flower Show enclosure this morning. Inside, the perfumes of innumerable blossoms filled the space which provided such a welcome, cool interior to those stepping from the glaring sunshine of the warm out of doors.

The flowers are exceptionally lovely this year and are arranged in a novel and striking way, being "decked" in such a manner that each exhibit has an individual place on the tiers of white planking provided for the purpose. An artistic placing has been achieved this season without a hint of the crowding which sometimes mars the effect. Around the walls of the big tent are placed these decks which afford such ample accommodation for the flower-filled vases.

Probably the gladioli, the "sword" flowers that come in such exquisite pastel tints, are the outstanding feature, along with an unusual display of wonderfully large and beautifully colored dahlias. The last-named super blooms made an attractive showing at the Toronto Exhibition this year also, but there was nothing at the Canadian National to surpass the local demonstration of what can be done with these feathery-edged blossoms.

Filling almost one entire side of the enclosure are the decks which hold the gladioli, standing up in their straight, dignified magnificence to bless the beholders with their loveliness. They are not graceful flowers, these superb things which remind one of dainty ladies holding out ruffled skirts, but they are exceedingly beautiful. Their range of color surpasses the power of adjectives to describe. To speak of reds and creams and oranges in their regard is to get no adequate idea of the hues which nature has painted on these flowers, both the standards and the demure little primulini with modest brows folded over cast-down faces.

Here is a gorgeous spike called "Pfitzer's Triumph." Whoever Pfitzer was, he certainly achieved a triumph in this bloom, which is a large specimen of orange-rose, and provided a sensation at the Hamilton Flower Show two years ago. A neighbor is Mrs. F. C. Peters, an orchid beauty, both of these from the open section shown by W. Carter of Byersville. Mrs. Leon Douglas is another sunset-hued blossom, Baron Hulot is a small flower of an odd rich purple, and Jewell is a fairy like peach in hue. Mrs. Dr. Norton is a fascinating pale pink with yellowish lower petals, while the thunderous note of a deep rich crimson has a happy name in War. Jack London is a luscious deep pink and Fern Kyle is a misty, glowing cream. Hazel Dawn is another rosy pink, Henry Ford comes in reddish purple, and Rose Ash is an outstanding thing of subdued splashy mauve. W. H. Young and A. E. Prest are local growers represented, largely in this gladioli section, while the Whitby Gardens sent many lovely flowers, miscalculating the time, however, and sending them a day too early, a slight detriment to the freshness of the blooms.

The giant dahlias which make such a gorgeous showing are from the gardens of Joseph Grierson and S. Harris, and from the Cedar Nurseries at Whitby and they are a "named" collection, just like the gladioli.

The Junior Horticultural Society has an exhibit of asters, ferns, geraniums and begonias, with a number of the oddly-tinted zinnias, which make such an effective decoration, and bits of light in the balls of African yellow and orange marigolds.

The collection of wild flowers is exceptionally artistic, and the amateur display contains many of the modern and older-fashioned flowers, which always remain favorites in the public eye. Here are velvet pansies, salpiglosis, Princes feather, in its maroon softness calendula and tiny sky-blue forget-me-nots scabiosa and sweet peas. There is one vase of roses that are memorable in their white beauty, a trio of the spotless flowers catching the eye and riveting the attention.

J. H. Callender shows his collection of weird cacti, with many novel inclusions this year. There is an "old man," that has a trio of relations in the one holder also a very rare monstrosity with claw-like sections, and a Mexican oddity in the "Bishop's Hood," shaped exactly like a Bishop's cap or biretta, and lacking the spines that distinguish the unwelcome surfaces of the majority of cacti. This specimen is rock-like in surface, and has the interesting botanical name of Astrophytum myriostigma. Another tongue-twister is the Mamillaria, which resembles nothing so much as a pan of buns, while a horn-bearing cactus from Texas whose touch spells much laceration to the fingers, is known to learned people as an echino cactus or natus mirbella, and looks like a prickly pear, also a baby plant of the giant cactus which grows in its native habitat, the desert to a height of forty to sixty feet. There is the bitter aloe of commerce, also an Agave sisalana, or plant from which the sisal hemp for ropes is made. A prickly pear from the Death Valley district adds its distinctive touch to the quota, also a lace cactus, an agave Victoria Regina, and a little central miniature rockery of cactus plants illustrates the vogue for these decorations which is now strong in the United States.

There are some lovely wreaths here fashioned of exquisite blooms, and there are vases and baskets which show much artistic ingenuity in their design and construction. Red velvet snapdragon, or antirrhinum, glows beside a basket of feathery-edged asters, with pink snapdragon and misty gypsophila make another charming basket, while an outstanding creation is a basket of very tall pink gladioli, arranged in sheath style, alternated by the same soft "baby's breath."

The two central decorations make a lovely adjunct to the interior, with their bounteous collection of palms and ferns, geraniums, begonias, coleus and lilium rubrum. These are displayed by the Peterborough Floral Company and Jordan's Stores.

The foliage or coleus plants have a section that is very noticeable, displaying the many varieties of these decorative plants, and there is a section devoted to potted blooms with geraniums, begonias and Fuchsias on view.

ADOREE AND GILBERT WON FIRST FAME AS CO-STARS

Combination That Created Sensation in "The Big Parade" Scored Biggest Success in Monte Cristo

History repeats itself, even in the production of motion pictures. When the critics and public heaped praise upon the combination of John Gilbert and Renee Adoree after the triumphant presentation of "The Big Parade", few recalled the fact that both these noted screen artists first won fame while playing opposite each other in a motion picture several years ago. This was "Monte Cristo", based on the celebrated novel by Alexandre Dumas, which will have a revival presentation at the Capitol Theatre commencing tomorrow.

In this picture, too, Miss Adoree plays the role of a French girl, not of the same type, but still of the same character as the individual she characterizes in "The Big Parade." Gilbert, in the role of the Count of Monte Cristo, not only is seen as the youthful lover, which type has made him an idol in recent pictures, but he also demonstrates his marvelous versatility by depicting the count as an aged man, who defies the world in his quest of vengeance.

Probably the highest price ever paid for the right to publish four words from a published work was given by William Fox to the estate of the late, James O'Neill, actor, for the privilege of using the line "The World is mine", in the motion picture version of Alexander Dumas' story, "The Count of Monte Cristo." This line is indissolubly associated throughout the world with the play and Fox, when he decided to produce this story, decided to use it regardless of cost.

William Fox is reviving "Monte Cristo", not only because of the merit of the photoplay and marvellous story, but because of the popular demand for the John Gilbert-Renee Adoree combination, which has proved so successful in pictures released during the past six months. Others in the cast include Estelle Taylor, William Mong, Robert McKim, Ralph Cloninger, Spottiswoode Aitken, George Seigman, Virginia Browne Faire, Gaston Glass and Francis McDonald.

You can't help touching Germ-Laden objects---

---This Toilet Soap Purifies

Door knobs, car straps, public telephones, money—your hands are continually touching them. And so are hundreds of other hands—some of them perhaps not as clean as yours.

Physicians will tell you that hands are a favorite means of transportation for germs.

As a simple protective measure, why not use a toilet soap that removes germs as well as dirt? Because it is so wonderfully refreshing and cleansing, Lifebuoy is today the favorite toilet soap of millions . . . used regularly for every toilet purpose. Each time you use Lifebuoy, its mild, creamy, antiseptic lather will go deep into every pore to purify and protect.

REV. J. E. TODD IS CHAIRMAN

First To Hold Office in Peterborough Presbytery of United Church.

The first meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church of Canada assembled at Trinity Church this morning at 9.30 a.m. with Reverend R. F. Stillman of Norwood in the chair.

Previous to this time the pastoral charges of Peterborough County have been included in Lindsay Presbytery, but this was divided, as it was considered too large and unwieldy.

There were approximately thirty-three ministers and lay-men present this morning, and more were to arrive this afternoon.

One of the first items of business to be considered was the election of officers, which resulted as follows: Chairman, the Rev. J. E. Todd of Peterborough, the Rev. H. W. Foley of Fraserville, secretary, and the Rev. H. B. Harrington of Warsaw, treasurer.

The secretary of the Conference, the Rev. G. C. R. McQuade of Odessa, briefly addressed the Presbytery on the secretarial work of the Conference and Presbytry. The Rev. W. E. Nelson of Havelock was appointed representative of the Presbytery on the Conference Historical Committee.

MOTHER FOR PUPS IS HARD TO FIND

Cat Bereaved of Kittens, Finally Agrees to Feed Young Ones.

A tragedy was narrowly averted last week when the mother of four small day-old puppies gave up the struggle and left her family orphans, upon the hands of her mistress.

Matters looked very bad indeed, and it was doubtful if the little family could be saved, although efforts were made to bottle feed them with some degree of success.

Another mother was discovered, but when one of the little orphans was added to her own family, she had no mercy upon it and showed her displeasure by snapping the small head clean from the body. It was evident that this would never do, and no hope was held whatever, for those that would not bottle feed, when "Tabby" came to the rescue. Having been bereaved of her own family, she was introduced into the home of the motherless waifs, and taking in the circumstances with almost human sympathy and understanding, she took to her task with a will and prospects are once more bright for the little family and their step-mother.

It is a matter of conjecture as to the surprise that will be evinced on both sides, when the young ones open their eyes to behold their mother, and she realizes that she is the mother of pups.

Worth Seeing

If you are an admirer of Fine Art you ought to see the beautiful marble figure on display in the Heintzman & Co. exhibit in the Manufacturers' Building.

It is the work of the renowned Italian sculptor, Bottogomi, and is cut from a solid block of the best Carara marble, and is one of the finest pieces of this art in Canada. It is the property of the

COUGHLIN MONUMENTAL WORKS
216 Hunter Street.

About the Exhibition

The slumbers of many citizens along Aylmer street were disturbed this morning by the rapid tattoo of many hoof beats and the plaintive "baas" of sheep driven by their owners towards the Exhibition Grounds.

Already the gate crashers are at work at the Exhibition, and in this, as in other things, the gentle sex are assuming equal rights.

Many of the shows and rides not being in readiness last night, people were disappointed, but everything will be going strong to-day.

One enthusiast, on mounting a special Exhibition bus, was surprised to find that he was the sole occupant and rode to the grounds in regal state.

Exhibition week is surely here when numerous inquiries from slightly inebriated strangers, as to their whereabouts, are met with in the streets.

H. W. Petrie's six-horse team arrived this morning from Toronto.

Mrs. W. T. Holloway is a prominent worker in the dining tent conducted by the C.W.A. of St. John's Church.

Good entertainment was provided this forenoon on the band stand, near the George Street entrance, at an impromptu piano and violin concert by workers from the Midway.

The appearance of the water cart was hailed with relief this afternoon, especially around the Lock Street entrance, where clouds of dust followed the passage of even the lightest vehicle.

An unsightly wound on the leg of one of the horses of the Zeidman & Pollie Shows, the result of a mishap during transit on the railway, is a reminder of the difficulties attendant on the moving of so much freight and live stock.

A minor accident took place last night on Leary Avenue when one of the showmen backing out of a line of cars bumped into the automobile of a local man. No damage was done, and everybody concerned showed the utmost good humour over the affair.

WOOLER NEWS

WOOLER, Sept. 14.—The first Sunday in September was marked by the large congregation at the United church which was trimmed aand decorated with flowers, many baskets of gladioli, asters and dahlias were admired, and Rev. H. B. Neal at the morning service told the children a story of the wonderful flower clock of one hundred and fifty years ago, so beautifully made by the Father of Botany—Limdeus. This led up to the morning message of "Flowers." In the evening the church was filled to hear Mr. Neal's message on "The Dignity of Work."

Mrs. Clara Terrill spent a few days with Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Terrill at their summer home at Baptiste Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Smith entertained a number of their Peterboro friends over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rowe spent Sunday afternoon in Sidney with Mr. and Mrs. Bailey.

Mrs. King and children, Violet and Kathleen, of Toronto, are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gooding.

Mrs. Sharpe and daughter, Mrs. Carter of Forthill, are visiting relatives and friends.

Muriel and Jean McColl have returned home after spending the summer in Detroit.

GATINEAU POWER TOWERS ERECTED

Line Passes Through Township To South of the City.

The new power line being built from the Gatineau River to Toronto will pass within a few miles of this city. The towers are already up through the Townships of Cavan, North Monaghan, and Otonabee. The line will cross the Provincial Highway between Springville and Fraserville.

The towers are of steel set in cement blocks, and will carry high tension wires, with power geenrated at 25 cycles, which cannot be used in this district unless it is changed to 60 cycles.

UNIVERSAL PACT TO OUTLAW WAR

Norse Delegate Introduces the Matter at Meeting of League Assembly.

GENEVA, September 14 (Canadian Press). — A "voluntary universal arbitration pact" was introduced at to-day's session of the League of Nations Assembly Commission on Disarmament by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen of Norway. The pact created tremendous interest as a concrete development of the movement to outlaw war.

The pact makes all war between signatories impossible by arranging settlement by an Arbitration Board of all conflicts which are not handled by the World Court or are not solved by the Council of the League of Nations.

MRS. CARL WINS PRIZE FOR GRAIN

Submits Best Decorated Sheaf For W. H. Merrill Special.

PERFECT SCORE.

A keenly contested competition came to a close this afternoon when decision was made by the judge, Melton W. Young, in the competition for the special prize offered by W. H. Merrill for the best decorated sheaf of oats exhibited by any lady. The prize went to Mrs. Carl of Fraserville, who scored forty points for grain, twenty points for straw, twenty for decoration, and twenty for neatness, making the highest possible score. Second prize went to Mrs. George Helson, Warkworth, with a score of 37 for grain 19 for straw 19 for decoration, 19 for neatness—a total of 94. Third prize wen to Mrs. Dench of Lakefield, who scored 38 for grain, 19 for straw, 17 for decoration, and 18 for neatness—toal 92. In all there were eight competitors and the scores were very high, indicating a satisfactory degree of quality. Mr. Young said the competition disclosed a quality of exhibit that was a credit to the community and the equal of any in the Dominion.

HUNDREDS DEAD IN COAST CITIES

Typhoon Has Destroyed 700 Houses in One Japanese District.

PHOTOS SHOW DAMAGE.

TOKIO, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press) —Four hundred persons are dead, two thousand three hundred injured, and seven hundred houses destroyed in the Kumamoto Prefecture, Island of Kiuskiu, in consequence of yesterday's typhoon and tidal wave, reports to the Japanese Home Office stated today.

In Kukuoka, Nagasaki, and Kanagawa Prefectures there were few casualties, but numerous houses were inundated and damaged. The tail of the typhoon struck Tokio this morning. Several thousand houses in low lying sections were flooded. Thirty children were injured when the roof of a schoolhouse was blown off.

Aviators Bring Pictures

OSAKA, Japan, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Airplane pilots who flew over the typhoon devastated areas of Kishiu returned today with photographs graphically showing scenes of desolation .One report estimates the total damage at twenty million yen (about ten million dollars) including the loss of large areas of reclaimed agricultural land, which is now under the sea, owing to tidal waves.

MUCH DEVASTATION.

LONDON, September 14 (Canadian Press). — The Exchange Telegraph Company's Tokio correspondent says official reports from various prefectural headquarters throughout the Island of Kiushiu, tell a tale of devastation of the coast villages from yesterday's typhoon, tidal waves, and floods, which, while not unparalleled, is nevertheless catastgophic, causing the death of six hundred persons.

CHICAO, September 14. — Canadian Press. — Wheat and corn prices took an early swing upward to-day with speculators giving considerable attention to reports of storm delays to the Canadian harvest Despite favorable weather for corn, buyers were numerous on possibilities of frost damage late in the season. Opening ½c to 7-8c higher wheat subsequently held near to initial figures. Corn started 1-8c to 2c up and afterwards retained much of the advance. Oats were firmer. Provisions also displayed strength.

Opening prices were: Wheat, Sept. 128 3-8; December 132 3-8; corn, September 95 7-8; December 96¼; oats, September, unquoted; December 47 7-8.

Unlisted Section Active; Toronto Market Firmer

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Heavy trading in unlisted stocks, coupled with strength in the most active issues, imparted a firm tone to the general list on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Northern Bakeries was the active leader, advancing ¼ to 31⅝, while Canada Malting was also in demand, gaining a similar fraction at 29 1-8. Nearly 3,000 shares of British American Oil changed hands, the issue registering a new level for the present movement at 27½, with the noon close 1-8 lower. Dominion Stores and P. N. Burt each gained one point, the former at 80 and Burt at 94. The greatest recession was recorded by G. and W., which lost one point at 46. Investment issues were strong, Bank of Commerce gaining 3 at 263, Dominion one at 270, and Royal 2 at 314.

Stock Prices Resume Their Upward Movement

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Stock prices continued to work upward in to-day's market under the leadership of high-grade industrials and rails. Reduction in the call money rate from 4¼ to 4 per cent. stimulated the recovery which had been temporarily interrupted after midday when weakness cropped out in a couple of specialties.

The weekly steel trade reviews reported little change in operations or demand, the iron age composite, pig-iron price falling to the lowest level since 1916. However, considerable interest was manifested in the announcement that the Pennsylvania Railroad directors had approved the purchase of 300,000 tons of steel rails for use in 1928, the largest rail order in any year in the company's history. General Motors old stock was again the individual feature, soaring more than six points to a new high record at 260½. Dupont touched a new top at 328. United States Steel Common and several other industrial leaders also reached new high ground.

Mine Trading Heavy With Area Leading

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Heavy trading on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange of over 900,000 shares was featured by the exchange of close to 200,000 shares of Area alone. Opening at 56½, Area jumped 16 points and closed at 73½. Dome Mines continued on the decline by another ten to 9.50. Amulet eased three to 4.85, while Barry Hollinger firmed one to 50. Bidgood advanced 2½ to 27, and Corona in transactions of more than 125,000 shares gained two to 15½. International Nickel and Wright Hargreaves were firm at 65.25 and 7.55 respectively.

OBITUARY.

MISS A. V. LAW

Died in Peterborough on Tuesday, September 13, 1927, Miss Alexandria Victoria Law.

The late Miss Law was born in Ashburnham and has lived in Peterborough all her life.

She leaves to mourn her loss, one sister, Miss Minnie Law of this city, and one brother, Bruce Law, 25 McGill Street.

The funeral will take place on Thursday, September 15, 1927, at 2 p.m., from the residence of her brother, 25 McGill Street, to Little Lake Cemetery, with the Rev. W. Allan officiating.

MRS. BRIDGET HOOLIHAN.

The death of Bridget Angelsey, widow of Daniel Hoolihan, occurred early this morning at her home at 460 Donegal Street, after an illness of several weeks' duration. The deceased was eighty-eight years of age.

The late Mrs. Hoolihan was an old and respected member of the community, having resided in Peterborough for the past forty-three years . She was born in Ireland and came to Canada with her parents at an early age. Her husband predeceased her thirty-eight years ago, and two sons, John and Daniel, also passed away some years ago. Survivors are five sons, Thomas of Mount Pleasant, Mich., William, Patrick, and Edward of Grand Rapids, Minnesota, and Samuel, of this city, also four daughters, Mrs. P. Collins of Peterborough, Mrs. J. J. Callaghan of London, Ontario, Mrs. L. W. Learr of Peterborough, and Mrs. J. F. Kelly of Chicago. A granddaughter, who resided since babyhood with the deceased, is Rosemary Hoolihan of this city.

The funeral will take place from the late residence at 460 Donegal Street at nine o'clock on Friday morning to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

In our complete list we have twenty-seven different types, including Willys-Knight, Whippet and Falcon-Knight.

All our cars are fully equipped including four wheel brakes, giving maximum safety to family and loved ones.

The Whippet Four is the only car offered for sale in its class with four wheel brake equipment, highly necessary in present day speed regulations and congested traffic.

The Whippet Six is now selling for the lowest price of any Six on the market and is fully equipped including four wheel brakes.

The Willy-Knight and Falcon-Knight obviously are powered with the famous silent Knight Sleeve Valve motor, not obtainable in any other car. The only motor that improves with use. The longer it runs the quieter it gets. No carbon trouble or valve adjustments necessary during the life-time of the car.

These cars must be seen to be fully appreciated and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

A car for every purse and preference . (Advt)

AROUND THE CITY

The Outdoor Club of the Y.W.C.A. held their closing outing of the season last evening and thoroughly enjoyed the trip down the river. During the season the girls have met each Tuesday evening for camp fire supper and have visited many of Peterborough's beauty spots along the river and in the woods and it was with a feeling of regret that these good times had come to an end that the girls expressed their appreciation to those who had helped make the outings such a pleasure. But when outdoor good times must come to an end the girls were reminded of the good times in store at the Y.W.C.A. for this fall and winter. All members and friends of the club are invited to the Association Fall Rally the end of September, to the Y.W.C.A. week end conferences, the swimming and gymnasium activities, the many clubs and educational classes and parties.

THAT COLD!

To successfully combat a Cold, it is necessary to speed up the elimination of poisons and accumulated waste from the body. The best way to do this is by restoring normal nerve energy to the liver, kidneys, bowels, lungs, and skin by releasing constriction from spinal nerves. CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS PROVE EFFECTIVE in warding off a cold or in breaking up a cold which has become either acute or chronic.

ART, COOKING AND SEWING WORTH SEEING

Children's Work Also Shown On Second Floor of Main Building.

WELL DISPLAYED.

All Exhibits Are Fine Specimens of Various Lines of Handiwork.

The section devoted to the Fine Arts and Ladies 'and School Children's Work at the Exhibition makes a splendid showing this year. Housed in the upper section of the Main Building, there is a variety of exhibits to attract the eye of the patron interested in painting, embroideries, fine cooking, and the handicraft of the boys and girls of the Public School classes devoted to the teaching of manual training and domestic science. As is the case in many other exhibits, the displays this year have an artistic touch, and the two ladies, Miss Higgins and Miss M. Elliott, who are in charge here, have done everything possible to make the showing attractive in the extreme. White-covered shelves, dainty white lace paper doylies under the cooking display, trellises of asparagus ferns, and hanging baskets of flowers, all add a decorative touch to the interior.

In the fine needlework display, special attention appears to have been paid to embroidered dresser sets, the entries in this section being very large. These pretty things have been developed in many ways and with much ingenuity and skill shown in the lovely work. One example is done on orange coloured bolting cloth, with blue and pink flowers and black butterflies. Filet, silk embroidery, and crochet adorn the surfaces of other pieces, in floral and conventionalized designs.

One buffet set is very effectively done in outline embroidery of red that silhouettes the little dancing figures of youths and maidens, capering under swinging red bells adorned with descriptive English names, like St. Martin's, Old Bailey, Shoreditch, and Stepney, while a fluttering banner proclaims:

"Oranges and lemons, says the bells of St. Clemens."

There is a lovely set of doylies with tatted edges and centres made of linen with the rose design showing.

The embroidered spreads are exceptionally dainty. One develops a simple but striking design in applied blue butterflies with edges and French knot adornments of black silk, the whole on a bleached linen ground, while a formal garden of pink applied flowers appears on another spread, with a pink-calico-clad damsel watering the posies from a green pot and a little blue and yellow boy pulling a blossom. On the pillowslips appear fat yellow chicks looking inquiringly at stiff and dignified blue daisies.

There are embroidered table runners in many pretty designs, one carried out in chenille roses on the heavy natural linen with crocheted edges.

Two lovely centrepieces include an arrangement of cut-out silk-edged flowers with the open section filled in with honeycomb stitch in orange shade, also a lovely thing in "lazy daisy" stitching in yellow and white formal design, picked out with French knots.

The display includes thirty-one pieces from the hands of one lady alone, Mrs. Reeves, one of whose conceptions is a natural linen centrepiece with crocheted edge and big roses in crimson silk.

There is a black kimona with a hand-painted front and orange lining, babies' knitted jackets, a bag made of tiny seashells and a lovely set in spread and shams, the work of a young Italian girl of the city, who wove the white linen herself, then worked it elaborately in an intricate hand-drawn pattern.

Hooked floor rugs in gay colors, quilts of piecework and crochet and embroidery, and a collection of fancy sofa pillows, have a place here, also a showing of work done by ladies of seventy-five years and over, with one blouse executed by Miss Martin, at the age of ninety-three years. The careful handiwork of these senior citizens includes woollen socks, beautifully darned pieces, lovely embroidered articles and quilts.

The Cooking Exhibit.

It would take a Dickens to adequately describe the delicious appearance of the home-made cooking, the puffy bread loaves, the glazed and plain buns in white and yellow and brown, the graham muffins, the tooth

CANADA GAINS COUNCIL SEAT

Dominion Elected For Three Year Term—Third in Voting.

CUBA AND FINLAND LEAD.

GENEVA, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—Canada, Cuba and Finland were elected to fill the three vacant non-permanent seats on the Council of the League of Nations for three year terms. Forty-nine states took part in the voting. Cuba received forty votes, Finland thirty-three, and Canada twenty-six. Canada received one vote more than necessary absolute majority of twenty-five.

Greece was Canada's nearest competitor for the third seat, getting twenty-three votes.

Portugal received sixteen, Uruguay three, and Haiti one.

The assembly decided that Belgium was not eligible for re-election to one of the three non-permanent seats on the Council of the League of Nations. The three vacant seats were those of Salvador, Belgium, and Czecho-Slovakia, the membership of these three countries having expired.

Immediately after the vote on the question of Belgium's eligibility for re-election was announced, the head of the Belgian delegation, M. Vandervelde, smilingly stated that he and his colleagues were perfectly certain that the vote had been based on a question of principle and had not been directed against Belgium. This statement was loudly applauded and the applause was renewed when M. Vandervelde said Belgium would continue to co-operate whole-heartedly in the interests of the League of Nations and world peace.

BOY LOSES SIGHT OF EYE

Vernon O'Connor, 9, Hit By Piece of Glass at Fair.

OPERATION NECESSARY.

Vernon O'Connor, aged nine, was struck in the left eye by a splinter of glass which flew off the glass cutter's machine at the Midway yesterday afternoon, and in all probability will lose the sight of his eye.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. O'Connor, of Cricket Place, immediately rushed him to the Kiwanis Lost Children's Tent, which is in charge of Police Matron Amy Wood. The matron saw that the boy's eye was bleeding badly, and she had him taken to the St. Joseph's Hospital, where Dr. Buchanan was summoned.

The boy was operated on, and Dr. Buchanan has very little hope of the boy ever seeing again with the eye.

Provincial Constable Maker is investigating the accident.

FACTS

Although some of the booths were closed this morning, the Y's Men report a rather busy session and prospects look fine for a big day.

It may have been a guilty conscience or just the desire for solitude. Whatever the cause, one of the black boys with the midway created a small stir amongst the few noon hour loungers, when, deciding that the two sober-faced men behind him were rather too persistent in their attentions, he dove into one of the tents, re-appeared in the front of another, and when the men strolled again in his direction he decided that these men could have no benevolent interest in his humble person, and did a final vanishing act, much to the amusement of all present.

KEEN CONTESTS IN ALL RACES AT EXHIBITION

Balloon Race and Scouts' Relay Interesting Events.

RACES RUN IN HEATS.

Large Number of Entries For Every Event Makes This Course Necessary.

The school children had a fine day for their sports at the Exhibition yesterday, and taxed the capacity of the stand. The sports began at about three o'clock, and were run off simultaneously with the regular grand stand performance.

The arrangements were in charge of G. H. Roper and Doug. Loomis, of the Y.M.C.A., aided by several teachers from the schools, and there was not a hitch in the whole proceedings.

The balloon race for boys, 10 years and under, was very good, and provided much amusement for the spectators. The teams for this race consisted of four boys each, two at each end of a 25-yard stretch. Each boy was provided with a balloon. After running the 25 yards to his team mates, he had to blow until it burst. At this signal, one of the boys waiting ran to the opposite end and went through the same performance.

The relay races were especially worthy of comment, all being closely contested. There were four boys in the boys' relay race, each running ¼ of a mile, while six girls shared the burden, each doing about 25 yards.

The Scouts' relay race was rather an innovation. Four boys on each team were provided with a short length of rope. Two were stationed at either end of a 50 yard stretch, the first man running to the opposite end carrying his rope. Arrived there he tied a reef knot and as soon as he handed it to the judge his team mate started for the other end, until all four had run and tied their knots. The team that finished first was later disqualified because one of the knots was not correctly tied.

Most of the races had to be run off in heats on account of the numerous entries.

Towards the end of the programme fireworks were set off in the field, and a host of hopeful youngsters streaked across the track and the grounds in pursuit of the novelty parachutes as they descended.

The results of the races were as follows. Prize announcements will be made later:

Girls, 10 years and under — 1, Laura Chartran; 2, Mary Harbison; 3, Marian Whaley.

Girls, 12 years and under — 1, Jean Wilson; 2, Margaret Allison; 3, Winnifred Norton.

Girls, 16 years and under — 1, Eileen Bowler; 2, Jean Harvey; 3, Winnifred Norton.

Girls' potato race — 1, Gladys Johnston; 2, Betty Hopwood; 3, Eileen Bowler.

Girls' relay race — King Edward team — Margaret Todd, Lillian Dickens Marjorie Self, Mary Mitchell, Chrissie Milby, Rosalie Hunter.

Boys, 10 and under — Balloon race — 1, Norman Wilson; 2, Carl Florence; 3, Norman Baxter; 4, Arnold Brady.

Boys, 12 years and under — 1, Gordon Dearborn; 2, Reginald Mongraw; 3, Leonard Mahood.

Boys, 14 years and under — 1, Reg. Kingdon; 2, James Price; 3, Tom Wallace.

Boys, 16 years and under — 1, Donald Asquith; 2, Karl Dorrington; 3, Walter Dinesin.

School relay race, Prince of Wales School — Gordon Seabrook, Harold Stewart, Harold Epps, George Gatfield.

COSGRAVE WIN IS PREDICTED

President of Free State Will Be Surprised If Defeated.

80-72 SPLIT ESTIMATED.

LONDON, Sept. 15 (United Press) — President Cosgrave confidently hopes to obtain a working majority as a result of today's polling, and he will be the most astonished man in the Free State if he fails, according to messages from Dublin.

Those daring to be prophets in Ireland predict a victory for Cosgrave but only by a narrow margin, one estimate giving the total for the Cosgrave group at 80 seats and the total for the anti-Cosgrave group at 72. This majority of eight would be enough to ensure a stable government for some time.

A medicine dropper was used to feed a London baby that weighed only one pound and six ounces at birth.

Baltimore Surgeon Injects Air Into Brain Of Patient to Diagnose Puzzling Disorder

BALTIMORE, Sept. 15.—Suffering from a brain obstruction which cannot be located by the X-ray, G. Elmer Wilbur, Florida Public Schools Superintendent, underwent an injection of air into his brain—the last hope of locating the disorder, which it is feared may cause his death.

He is at Johns Hopkins Hospital, where, when the obstruction is found, Dr. Walter E. Danby, brain surgeon, will operate.

Dr. Danby said that Professor Wilbur may have a tumor on the brain, and he will probably know definitely when he views X-ray pictures taken with the air in the brain.

The four ventricles of the brain were drained of the cerebro-spinal fluid in which the brain is suspended and the air was forced in to take its place. Air, in an X-ray picture, photographs dark, and a tumor, if there is one, will show in white relief.

Dr. Danby originated the air injection to locate brain obstructions.

The nature of Professor Wilbur's ailment has baffled brain specialists since he was brought to the hospital Friday.

After all other means were exhausted, the air injection, a delicate hazardous undertaking, was resorted to.

Professor Wilbur was brought to Johns Hopkins following a collapse in New York, where he fell to the floor apparently dead. He later returned to Florida, where physicians advised him to come to Baltimore. He is suffering no pain, and there is no apparent indication of paralysis, which often accompanies brain disorders.

FURTHER SUBMISSIONS ARE LAID BEFORE COMMISSION AT OTTAWA

Cover Large Number of Firms Investigated During Sittings.

7 IN WINNIPEG.

Ask Appropriate Prosecution Be Entered in Respect of Offences Disclosed.

OTTAWA, Ont., September 15. — (Canadian Press. — Gordon Lindsay, assistant counsel, laid before the commission, submissions covering a large number of the firms investigated during the sittings of the commissions. Seven of these firms are located in Winnipeg. They are Reiders Limited, Surprise Shoe Company, Novelty Shoe Company, S. Marantz, Miladi Limited, Juveniles Limited an Madenell Garments Limited, and Canada Jobbing and Importing Company.

With respect to Reiders Limited, Mr. Lindsay submitted there had been undervaluation and wrongful suppression of invoices. Further investigation and collection of any taxes due was asked as well as prosecutions of any persons liable.

The Surprise Shoe Store, it was submitted, had entered goods at an undervaluation and presented false invoices to the customs. Again further investigation, collection of taxes, if any, and prosecutions, if necessary, was suggested. A finding of undervaluation was asked in the case of the Novelty Shoe Co., and collection of duties as well as prosecution of persons liable, suggested. In the S. Marantz case, a finding of entering goods at an undervaluation was asked. Collection of taxes and prosecution of persons liable was suggested.

Books Incomplete.

Mr. Lindsay submitted that Miladi Limited, imported goods at an undervaluation and that the books and records of the company were incomplete. A similar submission to those respecting the other firms mentioned as to collection of taxes and prosecution was made in the case of Juveniles Ltd., and Madewell Garments Ltd., arrears of sales tax were alleged, and it was requested that these be collected. Suppression of invoices was the finding asked in the case of the Canada Jobbing and Importing Company. Further investigation, collection of taxes due, if any, prosecution of persons liable.

Submissions were also made by Mr. Lindsay with respect to three Toronto firms.

The Kelton Rubber Company, he submitted, wrongfully presented to the customs invoices which did not represent the full cost of goods imported. Further investigations, collection of any taxes due and prosecution of those liable was asked.

Counsel submitted that S. Silverman, 77 York street, used a sales tax license which had expired. Proceedings to collect any amount improperly retained by Silverman was suggested. With respect to the Alco Dress Co., a recommendation was asked that failing settlement, immediate steps be taken to collect all sales tax owing by this company.

Smuggled Liquor.

Mr. Lindsay asked a finding that Andrew Mathew of Halifax "conspired to smuggle liquor into Canada, and to defraud the revenue in the duty properly payable thereon."

He suggested the following recommendation: "That the relevant evidence and exhibits be referred to the Department of National Revenue, Commissioner of Customs Branch, and that the appropriate action and prosecution be entered against Andrew Mathew in respect of the offence disclosed."

Counsel for the Commission submitted that the following findings and recommendations should be made in connection with Capt. E. A. Dicks, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

"The evidence discloses that Edward A. Dicks conspired to smuggle into Canada large quantities of liquors and rums over a period of years; that such liquors and rums were smug-

LOCAL DOG SHOW STRAIGHT SHOW SAYS EXHIBITOR

Keener Competition Than in Toronto is Another Tribute Paid.

LARGE ENTRY LIST.

Courtesy of Officials Also Remarked By Visiting Owners.

"There is keener competition here than at the Toronto Show," was the comment of one of the exhibitors at the Dog Show tent yesterday afternoon. This gentleman is showing Boston terriers, but the same remark might apply, according to general comment, to the other classes, for this year's exhibit appears to have brought out a large number of exceptionally good dogs.

"Some of the shows are run on peculiar lines, but this is a very straight one," was the confidential remark of a lady exhibitor, and another very gratifying little bouquet for the directors of the show was the assertion by Blake Johnston of Toronto, backed up by Earl A. Brown, that the officers in charge of the Peterborough Dog Show are among the most courteous of officials. "They give you splendid consideration here," was the verdict of both gentlemen.

"If you had a real building here, instead of a tent, you would have a show second to none in the province," was the assertion of another exhibitor, voicing the opinion of several other owners of dogs.

When the crated dogs, which were still imprisoned last night on account of the absence of their handlers, are in place, the directors of the dog show this year hope to reach their goal of two hundred and fifty animals on view. The exhibit includes several outstanding specimens, with champions in many of the classes.

To an exhibitor, his own breed of dog is the best in the world. The remark of one show man that the Russian wolfhound and the Alsatian shepherd dog are the two most beautiful animals of their kind may be open to criticism. At any rate, there are some splendid examples of these two big, showy dogs on view this year. In the Borzoi class, there are four of the tall, white aristocrats of the canine kingdom, with one exceptionally fine entry in Valga of Rousseau shown by her owner, Mrs. M. A. Kedney, of Mimico. This superb animal, when shown at the Canadian National Exhibition's dog show, where its owner refused $1,500 for it, took six special prizes, three first awards, 1 C.K.C. special ribbon, winners' bitches and best of breed. This dog is Canadian bred.

In the Alsatian class, with about fifteen entries, a notable entry is that of W. T. Munns, of Toronto, showing four dogs. One of these is

PRETTY FLIER LAUGHS AS SHE DISCUSSES HOP

Everything Ready For Take-off For Paris on Sunday.

DREAM OF YEARS.

Schlee Advocates More Airports—Royal Windsor on Way Home.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—A pretty twenty-three year old girl flier who talked laughingly of the adventure in which ten persons have disappeared, to-day was at the starting point of her projected flight to Paris, eager to be the first woman to cross the Atlantic by air.

Miss Ruth Elder, of Lakeland, Florida, swooped down from the sky at Roosevelt Field last night with her co-pilot, Capt. George Haldeman, after covering 420 miles from Wheeling, West Virginia, and immediately began final preparations for taking off on her 3,610 mile flight across the sea on Sunday morning.

"We have everything ready to leave on Sunday except the weather,' the pretty pilot said. "Gas bought, runway ready, plane ready, pilots O. K. Give us a weather break and we'll take off then.

"I've been dreaming and planning this ever since I first learned to fly two years ago. Then Lindbergh did it and I was more determined. I want to be the first girl to turn the trick. I'll do it, I and Capt. Haldeman."

Her auburn bobbed hair was swept by the wind of the flying field and her large gray eyes sparkled in vivacious confidence as the aviatrix reeled off details of her monoplane, the Stinson Detroiter, "American Girl.'

"She weighs 5,600 pounds loaded, 2,080 empty and will carry about 500 gallons of gas She'll cruise about 4,800 miles. I figure about 100 miles an hour or a bit better as cruising speed."

The "American Girl" is driven by a 200 horsepower Wright whirlwind engine and is a duplicate of the Sir John Carling of London, Ont., which vanished in mid-ocean, the round-the-world plane, Pride of Detroit, and the Royal Windsor, of Windsor, Ont., whose trans-Atlantic flight has been abandoned.

Attired in light tan golf knickerbockers, a man's white shirt, tan sport shoes, and a flying helmet which was pulled back over her head, Miss Elder was as dapper and immaculate as Colonel Lindbergh on the day he arrived here with unsoiled collar and neatly pressed flying togs after his long flight from St. Louis on his way to Paris.

In dashes marked by a soft southern drawl the young flier answered a reporter's questions. "Never smoke 'em," she said as she refused a cigarette at the start of the interview.

"Do you want only to fly to Paris because you are a girl?" she was asked.

"Well, they've got pretty evening gowns there, I hear," she replied with a mocking smile. "I've never been to Europe—might as well go this way—get some clothes—doll up a little—come back by boat—taking it easy—no flying back for me."

"What will you wear on the flight?" "What I've got on, I suppose. I don't know."

"Are you engaged to Capt. Haldeman?" "Say, listen. I'm married," the co-pilot interrupted.

Miss Elder was asked about a report that she had been married in Arizona.

"Never been in the silly state," she said laughing lightly. "Nope, never married—not even engaged."

More Airports Needed.

TOKIO, Sept. 15. — (Canadian Press.) — Edward F. Schlee of the round the world monoplane Pride of Detroit, whose projected hop across the Pacific was abandoned, declared in an address to-day at a luncheon in honor of himself and his companion, Walter S. Brock, that more and better airports were needed all over the world in order to make flying safer and better.

Schlee described the long flight of the Pride of Detroit briefly. Most of the danger they encountered was in Japan, he said. They were lost while flying over the Island of Kiushiu leaving Shanghai and only luck enabled them to find the naval airport at Omura. When first leaving Omura for Tokio, being forced by bad weather to return, they found they had but one gallon of oil left. Schlee said this would have meant a forced landing in the mountains or at sea had they continued.

Windsor Delayed.

OLD ORCHARD, Maine, Sept. 15. —(Canadian Press.)—Ignition trouble, as well as unfavorable weather reports from the Upper St. Lawrence Valley and Lake Ontario region, today caused the postponement until to-morrow morning of the flight to Windsor, Ontario, of the monoplane Royal Windsor, which returned here last night from Harbor Grace, Nfld. Phil Wood, co-pilot with Duke Schiller, announced shortly before noon that his decision had been reached. The trouble with the ignition, which he said had bothered them on their eleven hundred mile flight yesterday of twelve hours from Harbor Grace, had been located and would be remedied during the day.

They plan to take off as soon as possible after eight a.m., Eastern Standard time.

DANGER SIGNS ARE ERECTED

Checkerboards Put Up at the Curves on the Norwood Road.

MANY NEW BOARDS.

The Peterborough Automobile Club is erecting four new checker board danger signs on the Norwood road where there have been so many accident due to the dangerous crooks and turns in the road. With the erection of these, the sign program for this season, which has been in the capable hands of J. A. Bertram, will be completed.

The club erected some 850 route signs within a fifty mile radius of this city, in addition to fifty cautionary "school, go slow" signs at busy intersections adjacent to public or high schools.

Mr. Bertram, who, everyone agrees, has carried out his work every effectively, reports that already some of the signs recently erected have been destroyed, presumably by children throwing stones. In view of their undoubted benefit to motorists, it seems too bad that this condition must obtain and a course of education in sign preservation in schools will do a great deal toward lessening this careless wanton destruction.

FROST IN ALBERTA RAIN FARTHER EAST

Cutting and Threshing Delayed in Many Parts of Prairies.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—Heavy frost in parts of Alberta, torrential rains in Central Saskatchewan and a drop of thirty degrees in temperature in Manitoba, was the over night programme of the weather man in Western Canada. Six degrees of frost over the area extending from Calgary to Edmonton is believed to have caused some damage to uncut crops, while garden stuff was severely nipped.

The cold wave followed in the wake of storm clouds which drenched the province on Tuesday and Wednesday. This disturbance moved over Saskatchewan yesterday, bringing the heaviest rainfall of the year to practically all portions of the province. Cutting and threshing will be held up for at least four days to a week.

SEVEN PLANES ARE READY FOR SPOKANE RACE

First of 57 Entrants Arrive at Long Island Fields.

START MONDAY.

Miss Elder Insists on Making the New York-Paris Hop.

ROOSEVELT Field, L.I., September 15. — Racing airplanes are beginning to arrive at the flying fields in the neighbourhood prepared to enter one of the three races from Roosevelt Field to Felts Field at Spokane, Wash.

The first class of planes, those with small engines, will take off next Monday morning at 5 o'clock. Another class will take off on Tuesday morning, and the third, a class for high-powered large capacity ships that will attempt a non-stop flight, will take off on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Field offices of the starting committee will open this morning in the Roosevelt Field hangar. Pilots will be required to register there and a time will be set for inspection of their planes by Department of Commerce inspectors. A crew of inspectors, headed by F. J. Jerdone, is already at the field.

All the starting arrangements will be handled by the Lindbergh Flight Commemoration Fund Committee, the organization that is seeking to purchase Roosevelt Field as a permanent memorial to the first flights across the Atlantic. The committee hopes that by attracting a large number of people to the field to witness the take-offs, it can emphasize the value of the eld to aviation.

Seven airplanes are already in hangars at Curtiss Field. There are fifty-seven entries to date. The time for filing entries does not expire until to-day. Two of the planes now on the field are in Class A, which will make one over-night stop en route. The remainder are Class B, which will make two over-night stops. All planes except the non-stop classes will be required to make several five-minute stops at stated landing fields.

INSISTS ON HOP.

WHEELING, W.V., September 15 (Associated Press). — Smiling, but adamant, Miss Ruth Elder, Lakeland, Fla., aviatrix, last night waved aside all suggestions that she abandon her proposed New York-to-Paris airplane flight.

Wheeling bankers sponsoring the flight at a conference vainly urged Miss Elder and George W. Haldeman, her veteran navigator, to postpone the hop-off for France until next year.

"We agreed to go and are going," Miss Elder said.

The proposal that the American Girl, Stinson-Detroiter monoplane, specially built for the hop to Paris, be entered in the New York-to-Spokane air derby as a substitute flight was rejected quickly.

"Not if that would mean that we give up the Paris flight," Miss Elder said to this suggestion. "If it does, we'll be glad to enter that race after we return from Paris."

Miss Elder, flying from Portsmouth, Ohio, where her plane was forced down by lack of fuel on its flight from Tampa, Fla., to Wheeling, brought the American Girl to rest at Langing Field, Moundsville, early yesterday afternoon. She said she and Mr. Haldeman would take off for Roosevelt Field, N.Y., at noon to-day, and that the trans-oceanic flight would start as soon as weather conditions permitted.

Miss Elder announced that she and Mr. Haldeman would take a direct route from Roosevelt Field for Paris rather than by way of Newfoundland.

AGED MAN DIES FROM ACCIDENT

Hugh Liggett Succumbs To Being Crushed By Wagon.

INQUEST ORDERED.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 15. — Hugh Liggett, 76, who lives near Garden Hill, died on Tuesday morning as the result of an accident which occurred last Wednesday when he was run over by a loaded wagon, one wheel passing over his body, causing a crushed hip, two fractured ribs, torn muscles, and other injuries.

Deceased, it is alleged, had been having a disagreement with his brother, Samuel Liggett. William Hamil, who was driving the wagon, trying to separate the two and make peace, when in some manner the accident happened.

Dr. Beatty of Garden Hill was called in and gave medical attention; during the few days the injured man lived he suffered severely.

The coroner, Dr. Diamond, of Port Hope, has ordered an inquest which will be held in the Community Hall, Garden Hill, on Friday, September 16, at 2.30 p.m.

CANAL APPEAL NOT ORDERED BY PANAMA

President and Foreign Minister Renounce Delegates' Action at Geneva.

WANT AGREEMENT.

Bernstorff Says Disarmament Commission Should Hurry Up Its Work.

PANAMA, Sept. 15 (A.P.). — Both President Chiari and Foreign Minister Alfaro are authority for the statement that Dr. Eusebio Morales was acting on his own initiative when he suggested the differences over the new Panama-United States treaty be submitted to the World Court.

The foreign minister declined to comment on Dr. Morales' action pending receipt of the official text of his speech in the League of Nations assembly, but remarked the Panaman delegate was so well acquainted with the treaty problems that he would not have made the declarations attributed to him unless he was convinced it was proper and opportune to do so.

Know U. S. Won't Agree

Panaman official circles, however, are convinced the United States would never consent to submission of the differences over the treaty to an outside tribunal.

Deputy Harmodio Arias, who opposed the new treaty even before its submission to Congress, is quoted as saying:

"The suggestion made by Dr. Morales is in effect that there be submitted to determination by the World Court the question if Panama has sovereignty over the Canal Zone. I would say, apart from the fact that this is a purely academic question, that the court has no jurisdiction regarding it, the United States not being a party to the statutes creating the court.

Wants Agreement

"I believe Panama's principal interest is that the concrete questions which have arisen in connection with the application and interpretation of the treaty of 1903 be solved by agreement, provided that nothing be stipulated which may implicitly or explicitly contradict Panama's viewpoint regarding the sovereignty of the Canal Zone.

"I feel sure that Panama wishes to co-operate in a most friendly spirit with the United States for a fair solution of all the pending questions."

Get Something Done

GENEVA, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—The League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission should hurry up its work and get something concrete accomplished toward disarmament, Count Von Bernstorff, German's war-time ambassador to the United States, declared to the assembly committee in a brief but striking speech yesterday.

Von Bernstorff asserted that the people of the world were beginning to say that over stress on "security" was merely an excuse for not disarming.

"The arbitration and security sections of the League protocol are still in a state of mere proposals," argued the speaker, "while nothing has been done in the lien of real disarmament."

Another feature of the Assembly disarmament committee's sitting was the introduction by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the Polar explorer, of "the draft of an optional convention for obligatory arbitration of disputes.'

It is designed to allow the Powers, whether members of the League or not, to agree to submit their differences to arbitration, in the hope that by the adhesion of more Powers to the convention, recourse to war may be gradually "outlawed" along the line taken up in the Briand-Kellogg negotiations and propounded by United States Senator Borah and Professor James T. Shotwell.

Intense Interest

The proposal created intense interest in Assembly circle. It will be debated on Friday and will probably be sent to the Assembly's juridical committee for further study.

Dr. Nansen's recommendation would include the settlement of disputes of whatever nature arising between the signatories which have not been settled within a reasonable time by the normal methods of diplomacy. The second article stipulates that all legal disputes would be referred without special agreement to the world court of justice. If any doubt existed as to whether the disputes were juridical in nature and hence came under the compulsory arbitration clause of the world court, that court should decide the question.

ACCIDENT COSTS FARMER HORSE

Mowat Murphy's Team Bolts When Frightened By Car.

ONE BADLY INJURED.

Mowat Murphy, Brighton, is minus a horse as the result of another mishap on the Highway. It would appear that he was driving along the Kingston Highway about two and a half miles from the town of Brighton when his horses took fright at a passing motor car, driven by F. Caverly of Niagara Falls, Ont., and bolted. The wagon, which was carrying a load of grist, was totally wrecked but the grist escaped injury or loss of any kind. One of the horses will die as the result of injuries sustained, is the opinion of Dr. Hancock, Colborne, who was called to the scene.

Chief of Police Spencer, Brighton, was called to the scene at ten-thirty yesterday morning. Before leaving, he summoned Provincial Constable Fewtrell of Cobourg and a Highway Traffic Officer. Chief Spencer was unable to appear before the scene had been cleared of debris. The police officers investigation found that Caverly had attempted to pass between the farmer's wagon and a car driven by Earle M. Boyce, Detroit, all three vehicles moving in the same direction. There apparently was not room for him to do so and the result was a crash with the wagon, causing the horses to bolt and the vehicle to be wrecked. Both motor vehicles contained several passengers, but none sustained injuries worthy of note save Caverly, whose shoulder was badly bruised. Mr. Caverly's car is fully and completely insured against accidents and a satisfactory settlement will be made out of court.

World-famous tenor of the Mertopolitan Opera House, New York, who will give a recital in Peterborough, at the Grand Opera House, September 29, under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club. As upon former occasions, Mr. Johnson has requested a Heintzman & Company Piano as the accompanying instrument.

MAY ENGAGE NEW TEACHER

Trent River School Now Has Nearly Sixty Pupils.

TOO MUCH FOR ONE.

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 15.—A meeting of the ratepayers of School Section No. 10 is to be held at the school house on Saturday morning to consider the question of securing an assistant teacher as the work is too great for one teacher to do justice to nearly sixty pupils.

The annual rural school Fall Fair which was arranged for September 13th, has been postponed until Friday, September 16th.

A pleasing event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Garneau, Monday night, when the members of the Ladies' Aid, husbands and families assembled at their home for a social hour and during the evening presented Mrs. Garneau with a half dozen stainless steel knives and forks and Mr. Garneau with a pair of gold cuff links. Mrs. Garneau has been a valuable member of this society, especially through a recent season of special work in connection with the church. Mr. Garneau has been of great service in using his time by assisting in drawing material and providing wood for use of the Ladies' Aid. The members of this society wished to show their appreciation in this way. After the presentation refreshments were served and a very enjoyable time was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard are spending September in "Blair Athol." Mr. Hilliard is principal of Havelock High School and drives to and from his work daily.

Guests at the Cook Cottage are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lane and Miss Larkin, Toronto.

BRIGHTON FAIR MAKES RECORD IN ATTENDANCE

Large Increase Shown at Yesterday's Splendid Exhibition.

EXHIBITS ARE GOOD.

Women's Work Particularly Prominent—Three Horse Races.

BRIGHTON, Sept. 15.—Yesterday was a red letter day for the officers and executive of the Brighton Fair. In every way yesterday's event eclipsed all previous fairs. The gate receipts showed an increase of almost two hundred dollars and the attendance mark of twelve hundred persons establishes a new high record. A reliable estimate placed the number of cars inside the grounds at four hundred and fifty, while many were parked by the roadside outside the fence. Conspicuous among the parked autos was the large percentage of American license markers. Nor were these markers from the States bordering on the Dominion; there were some from California, Florida, and Tennessee.

The farm produce exhibits were housed in a large marquee about the centre of the oval inside the half mile track. The specimens of apples and truck garden produce were of exceedingly high grade. The poultry exhibit was not large, but included many different breeds of fowl. The cooking, which occupied the northern portion of the marquee, won special mention from the judges.

The dairy cattle exhibit consisted of Jerseys and Holsteins, and was located near the northwest corner of the grounds.

In a marquee directly north of that which housed the small produce, the finest exhibition of domestic manufacturies that one could wish to see was assembled. The exceptionally high quality of both material and workmanship made the matter of judging a very difficult task. This is particularly true of the ladies' fancy work the exhibit which attracted the greatest attention being a colored centrepiece.

The Fine Arts exhibit included amateur oil painting which appeared almost professional; water colors of a similar grade, and charcoal work, copies of some of the old masters. The basket maker's art was effectively displayed by several articles including a flower pedestal a serving table and tray and several other articles.

Perhaps the most striking exhibit among the flowers was one of asters. The pansy collection was very complete.

On the track, the major events were the speed events for harness horses. There was a large entry list for both the 2.20 class money and the 2.50 class. In the 2.20 class, Aram Dexter, owned by Charles Morris, of Port Hope, won first money with apparent ease. The great bay came sailing home well in front of the field. His time was 2.20½. In the 2.50 event, Joe Tarrif earned first money for his owner, E. Thompson, of Picton, with a half-second to spare. His time was 2.24½. The running race with five entries held the interest of the stands for a few minutes, but the horses and riders were very unevenly matched.

The midway was a complete assortment of every form of amusement that is ever found at a fair, as well as the usual line of refreshment stalls. Just south of this, the rural schools vied for honours at first aid and general proficiency. Their careful training by their instructors and are a compliment to them.

In various parts of the grounds, the latest models of several makes of cars were on exhibit and open for demonstration purposes. These included General Motors, Ltd., Hudson ,Essex, Dodge fours and sixes, Studebaker, and others. Most of the models shown were of the closed types.

During the day, music was furnished by the Frankford Citizens' Band. Their duties commenced with leading the parade from the Town Hall to the Fair Grounds at two o'clock. The Canadian Legion, too, was in evidence. As a means of advertising the unveiling of the war memorial next Sunday, and also as a means of raising funds, young ladies in white sold war memorial tags on the grounds and in the stands. The Salvation Army also sold tags.

By six o'clock the grounds were beginning to clear of both fair-goers and exhibits. No programme had been arranged for the evening other than Arlie Marks and her Quality Players at the local theatre. This was announced from the judges' stand during the afternoon. The directors of the enterprise are content that the fair was a success. It is safe to predict that if an annual increase equal to that of this year becomes a regular occurrence, Brighton Fair will, in a short time, become an event second to none.

HARVEST ALL IN AT LAKEFIELD

Work of Drawing in Grain Practically Completed in District.

ROOT CROPS GOOD.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 13.—The harvest is nearly all in in this district and according to reports, is in the main, good. The heavy rain of August 29th caused considerable damage to cut grain in some localities. The prospects are good for the root crops and corn is very good.

Provision was made at the last session of Parliament for a new position as chief secretary to the Prime Minister.

URGE TREATY WITH FRANCE

New York Board Urges Development of Adequate Commercial Pact.

INCREASE TRADE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Development of an adequate commercial treaty with France was urged upon the state department yesterday at a special committee meeting of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation.

The meeting, called especially to consider the French tariff situation ended with instructions by members to W. J. L. Banham, president of the board to send the following letter to Secretary of State Kellogg:

"If, as is understood, this government lacks a commercial treaty with France, we urge that one should be immediately developed. It is most unfortunate that one has not heretofore been negotiated. Certainly similar treaties should exist with all countries with which the United States and its people desire to trade.

"Peaceful negotiations in trade are absolutely essential. There should be an international understanding of our respective positions that those of us who have commodities to sell, or to buy, can do so with confidence that summary action of no kind may intervene to cause misunderstandings between the traders of France, America or any other nation."

WORK ON TANK IS NOT HALTED

Going on Day and Night Until Completion at Lakefield Plant.

BRILLIANT SCENE.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 15.—Work began at 1 p.m. on Wednesday last at building the new tank storage building at the Canada Cement Company's plant, until the completion the concrete is poured in constantly, night and day, seven days a week as it is absolutely necessary that no halt be made. The scene of activity is lit by electricity at night and presents a brilliant scene.

Paralysis Epidemic On Wane In Edmonton

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 15. — (Canadian Press).—That infantile paralysis is still on the wane in Edmonton was again indicated yesterday when only one case, and that a suspect, was reported by the city health department. The total number of cases is now 78 since the epidemic started, with ten deaths. No deaths have been reported since last week.

ELECTED HEAD OF GRAIN BOARD

E. W. Kneeland Newly Elected President of Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

BY ACCLAMATION.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—E. W. Kneeland, general manager of the British-American Elevator Company, Limited, was elected president, by acclamation, of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange at the annual meeting of the Exchange here yesterday afternoon. J. A. Crowe, British Empire Grain Company, and W. A. Murphy, of the Smith-Murphy Company, Limited, were elected vice-presidents.

A. Thomson, retiring president, made reference in his address to the members of the Exchange, to the Campbell amendment to the Canada Grain Act, which would allow farmers to designate the destination of their grain. It was the retiring president's opinion that much depended on the interpretation and enforcement of the bill as to whether it would have any effect on the country elevator system. The second amendment, referring to the inspection of grain at Moose Jaw was also mentioned, the interpretation of which was considered doubtful, but was liable to add considerable to the cost of handling if it meant that all grain coming through Moose Jaw was to be inspected and handled there.

Pool handling and selling methods were discussed at the meeting.

TWO ACCIDENTS AT MILLBROOK

Hit and Run Driver Concerned in One Collision.

CARS DAMAGED.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 15—Two motor accidents occurred in the vicinity of Millbrook on Sunday evening in one of which a car driven by Mr. Smith of Monaghan, collided with one driven by Mr. McConnell of Oshawa. Mr. Smith's car received slight damages and could be driven home, but the other car had to be towed into a local garage for repairs. The owner was injured about the head from the impact with the roof of the car. Adjustment as to damages was made by the two drivers at the time the accident occurred.

A car driven by Arthur Martin of Toronto was crashed into from the rear by another car which was attempting to pass, and which for some reason came so close it caught the left rear fender and wheel of Mr. Martin's car, splintering several spokes in the wheel, and bending the fender against the body of the car. The driver sped on without making any attempt to stop, but his number was secured. Traffice Officer Hugh Wilson is looking after the case.

Both accidents took place on the road east from the village, near L. W. Smith's farm.

TESTS ARE FORBIDDEN.

Judge Refuses To Allow Police To Hold Suspects.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press).—The padded cell campaign against criminals begun by Chief of Police Hughes has petered out. Chief Justice Olson of the Municipal Court has ruled that "unless a subject is unable to distinguish right from wrong, the law as it now stands cannot hold a mental suspect."

TOURISTS FLEEING.

Leave Black Sea Resorts Because of Frequent 'Quakes.

MOSCOW, Sept. 15. — (Canadian Press).—Thousands of panic stricken tourists along the black sea coast today were crowding all means of transportation to escape from the district, which has been shaken by earthquakes in the past few days, causing death and injury in many districts.

American Dancer Killed At Paris

NICE, France, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— Isadora Duncan, the American dancer, was killed in an automobile accident at 9.40 o'clock last night. She was trying out a new automobile on the Promenade Des Anglais when a guest of wind blew a long scarf which she was wearing around her neck over the side of the car. It became entangled in one of the wheels and dragged the dancer out of the machine into the roadway. Her neck was broken.

The dancers body was removed to St. Roch hospital. At the time of the accident Miss Duncan was accompanied by a newspaper woman, Mary Desto Parks, who came to see her with reference to the publication of her memoirs.

ECZEMA LASTED TEN YEARS

On Knees. Would Itch and Burn. Cuticura Heals.

"From the time I was a small child I was troubled with eczema on my knees. It broke out in a rash and would itch and burn so that I would scratch it and cause eruptions. My stockings aggravated the breaking out, and I lost my rest at night on account of the irritation. Later it broke out on my arms. The trouble lasted about ten years.

"A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some, and after using one box of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Cuticura Soap I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Kathleen O'Connell, Port Dufferin, N. S.

Smyth introduced the visitors to a congregation that overflowed the capacity of the church. Immediately after dinner the band gave a short program at the Wellington Park. The next engagement was at the Sandbanks Park, where over two thousand people had gathered to hear the band. Mayor Fraser of Picton again showed his interest in the visit of the band by presiding over the afternoon program. At night the Regent theatre, Picton, was crowded beyond capacity for the last service of the day. It is estimated that at least five thousand people heard the Peterborough Temple Band during the week-end. Commandant Frank Ham, who accompanied the band, preached two practical and helpful sermons; one at the Wellington United Church, and one in the Regent Theatre.

Next Wednesday evening, Young People's Sergt.-Major R. C. Braund, is meeting all the workers of the Young People's Department, in preparation of the Rally Day, which will be held on Sunday, October 2nd.

An appeal has come to Commandant Ham to locate William Gibbs, late of Coversham, Berks, England, last heard of at Peterborough. His daughter in Alberta enquires. Any information can be telephoned to 1929.

The Harvest Thanksgiving Services will be held on Sunday September 25.

London churchgoers were startled on a recent Sunday by an advocate of the "brighter fashions for men" movement. This man, the centre of attraction wherever he went, wore a suit cut on conventional lines but of a bright violet hue.

FISHERMEN DODGE BULLETS IN NORTH

Owner Drives Men Away From in Front of Her Land.

APSLEY, Sept. 15.—Fishing at Jack's Lake is not without its thrills, piscatorial and otherwise, according to the report o a party of tourists who experienced both kinds last week. They were fishing near a cottage when the owner, a lady from the U.S., called out to them that they had nine miles of lake to fish in without choosing that spot. Failing to take the obvious hint contained in the remark, she went into the house and returned with a gun with which she commenced firing at random. The proximity of some of the bullets caused the fishermen considerable uneasiness and thinking discretion the better part of valour, they hastily heaved anchor and sailed away from the danger zone.

The same lady with a fine disregard of international etiquette flied the United States flag to the exclusion of all others. This so incensed a patriotic young Canadian that he removed it one day last week, but it is again in position. This display of bad taste is exciting much adverse comment botn by Canadians an i tourists.

OMEMEE UNITED W.M.S. MEETING

Arrangements for Bazaar and Other Business Discussed.

OMEMEE, Sept. 15.—The monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United church was held on Thursday afternoon in the Sunday school room. Following the opening exercises conducted by the president, Mrs. E. W. Rowland, some time was given to the disposal of several items of business. A reques for the annual donation of fruit from the society to the Deaconess' Home, Toronto, was read by the secretary, Mrs. E. Bradburn and by request of the meeting, the corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. Widdiss was authorized to send for the required number of bottles. A donation will also be sent to the Fred Victor Mission at Toronto.

The resignation of Mrs. T. C. Ivory as treasurer was read with regret but will not be accepted until she has been asked to reconsider the matter.

The annual bazaar came up for discussion but as the work is progressing favorably, other necessary arrangements were left over until the October meeting.

After several views had been expressed it was decided to hold the special W.M.S. Autumn Thank-offering during the month of October, Mrs. H. Lamb and Mrs. C. L. Morcombe being a committee to arrange the programme for same.

The Secretary of the Missionary Monthly, Miss Lillian Race requested that all subscriptions for this paper be in next month.

At this juncture, little Audrey McCaffrey, who is the first member of the Baby Board in connection with this society, was presented with a pretty membership card. Mrs. Robert Wilson is the secretary of the Baby Band and hopes to have a large enrolment this year.

The special Confederation programme was then taken up. Mrs. Rowland acted as leader and was assisted by Miss Eva Race in "The Story of the First Settlers." "How we should greet the immigrant," by Mrs. L. A. Mahood; response from the Immigrant through prayer," Mrs. Scott; "The story of the Ukranians," Miss Nettie Rutherford; "The story of the Italians," Miss Lila Parsons; "The Finlanders and Greeks," Mrs. J. Courtney; "The Danes, Icelanders, Norwegians and Swedes," Mrs. F. G. Sandy; "The Poles and Bulgarians," Miss Lillian Race; "The Hebrews and Armenians," Mrs. J. Bushnell; "The Chinese and Japanese," Mrs. E. Bradburn.

The leader then summed up the whole in a short form and as a very fitting climax to the splendid programme recited a very suitable poem.

A social half-hour was enjoyed at the close with Mrs. R. H. Williamson, Mrs. C. L. Morcombe and Mrs. E. W. Rowland as hostesses.

SUNSET SOAP DYES

SUNSET or "Other Dyes"?

THERE is all the difference in the world between just "dyeing"—and dyeing with SUNSET.

SUNSET brings to the home all the "know how" of the expert. It enables any woman to produce results impossible for the professional dyer to excel.

The easy directions—it's all so delightfully simple with SUNSET. The clean methods—no messy powder, no stained hands, no ruined utensils.

The brilliant, lasting colours—they're boiled in, the only way to make a home dye fast. The speedy results—no time and effort wasted in ripping seams or "working" buttonholes, because all SUNSET colours are penetrating, and dye cotton, silk, wool or mixed goods the same shade at the same time. The material is cleaned as it is dyed.

No matter how long your experience in home dyeing, we say without fear of contradiction "SUNSET will amaze you—it will prove a revelation!"

Let the little cake of SUNSET prove these statements—it costs only 15c to try the new way. Refuse substitutes; ask your dealer to get SUNSET. Or write us for colours wanted.

The "SUNSET Season's Colours" folder tells the latest fashionable shades and how to get them with SUNSET Dyes—get it at your dealers or write us direct.

CADET LEAVES FOR GARRISON

Candidate Eva Williams Enters Salvation Army School.

LOCAL CORPS NEWS.

Candidate Eva Williams leaves today for the Salvation Army Training Garrison, Toronto, joining the now-long list of young people who have entered into the realm of Salvation Army Officership from the Peterborough Temple Corps. She said farewell to her comrades on Sunda last, who pray for her every success in the great work she has chosen.

The Young People's Band did good service on Sunday last during the Senior Band's visit to Picton, Ont., and the surrounding country. The Bandmaster, Bro. Frank Robinson, considered the week-end one of the most successful that the Band has ever experienced. Arranged to help one of their former bandsmen who is now an officer, Ensign Herbert Payton, the week-end was one of tremendous activity.

The engagements of the bind included a Welcome Festival in the Armouries, at which Mayor Fraser, on behalf of the citizens, gave the band the freedom of the town. The Sunday's program commenced at 9.30 a.m., at the village of Bloomfield. At the conclusion of the service the band motored on to Wellington, where a service of praise was conducted in the United Church. The Rev. Mr.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1927.

A MAP OF VALUE.

The National Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior has just issued an unusual map that should be of great value, not only to United States citizens who wish to visit Canada, but to Canadian motorists as well.

Its purpose is to supply key information in regard to the main connecting routes between the more largely populated centres in the United States and the important Canadian ports of entry.

The location of the main travelled roads in the various Canadian district is also indicated.

A map such as this which the National Resources Intelligence Service has designed for the convenience of the automobile tourist will undoubtedly, if it can be given circulation in the proper quarters, do much to arouse an interest in Canada among people living upon the border who have not yet visited this country.

They will realize on glancing at the map that they are only a comparitively short run by car from some of the most beautiful districts on the whole continent.

TO BREAK THE RECORD.

Peterborough's big Exhibition is now in fine stride and there is every reason to hope that when the final returns are checked on Saturday night the objective of 45,000 attendance will have been reached.

Whether this new record is established or not depends upon the people of this district during the next two days.

The Exhibition management has done its part in assembling the best all round fair in local history.

It has gone the limit in the way of providing worthwhile special attractions.

It has expended lavishly upon plant improvements.

It has placed the grounds in better condition than ever before.

All that is needed for the balance of the Exhibition is the loyal co-operation and support of the city and surrounding country.

That co-operation and support, it is confidently expected, will not be found lacking but will be evidenced by record crowds today and tomorrow when the finest programmes of the week are offered for the benefit of Exhibition visitors.

LINDBERGH KNOWS BETTER.

The "flaming youth" who delights to see how fast he can drive the family car and who speeds at a dangerous rate regardless of the traffic conditions should ponder over the example Colonel Linbergh has given them recent.

The hero of the lone flight across the Atlantic has been paying a visit to Minnesota, and in arranging the details of his journey from the flying field through Minneapolis to the St. Paul boundary, it was necessary to time the parade closely.

Accordingly it was decided that Lindbergh should be rushed from the field to the starting point of the parade at the rate of sixty miles per hour, in order that the parade might pass through the city at a slow rate.

But the plan fell through.

Why?

Because Colonel Lindbergh himself vetoed it.

He flatly declined to ride in an automobile at any such speed.

Thirty-five miles an hour, he declared, was his limit in an automobile.

Our reckless drivers should remember that the man who dared a solitary flight over the Atlantic refused to speed in a motor car.

And yet thousands of motorists who couldn't be tempted to trust their lives in a long air voyage will go out on a crowded highway and "step on the gas."

STUDYING TRAFFIC PROBLEMS.

It is interesting to notice that an important place on the programme of the fourteenth annual Goods Roads Convention, to be held at Niagara Falls on Sept. 27, 28 and 29, has been given to the subject of traffic, safety and road surface protection.

J. A. Begin, Comptroller of Provincial Revenue for the Province of Quebec, is to be the lecturer on the question of traffic regulation and enforcement, and the open discussion that will follow will be led by R. B. Stoeckel, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles for the State of Connecticut.

As the convention will bring together delegates from every Province in the Dominion, including most of the Premiers and Ministers of Highways, the discussion of this vital question should prove of much benefit.

The slaughter on the highways is increasing, and it has become necessary for Provincial Governments to put new life into their enforcement of traffic regulations and to bring the latter into shape to deal effectively with the situation.

Here in Ontario there is room for a decided improvement, and the opinion is growing steadily stronger that the authorities should see to it that reckless and careless drivers are deprived of their license to drive.

That weapon is now in the hands of the Government, and should be used vigorously upon all offenders.

THE ABANDONED FLIGHT.

Canadians from coast to coast will receive with approval the news of the abandonment of the aeroplane flight from Windsor, Ont., to Windsor, Eng. Last week two promising young aviators of the Dominion perished in their attempt to cross the Atlantic by the air route, and the tragedy, in conjunction with those of a similar character which took place at about the same time, aroused a protest throughout the civilized world against such ventures being undertaken. Canada's record in the science of aviation in the past has been one of accomplishment of much work of practical utility. During the war some of our airmen became famous by their deeds of extraordinary daring in the face of the enemy, and since the termination of hostilities they and others engaged in various branches of aviation have shown themselves not only ready but capable of undertaking any task required of them. Canada, with good reason, is proud of her airmen and their record, and is unwilling, in view of recent events, to allow any of them to depart on a venture which, at its best, is merely an act of daring.

The fact that the flight of Captain Courtney westward across the Atlantic has also been abandoned is further proof of the widespread nature of the demand which is being made that trans-oceanic flights shall discontinue until new developments provide greater assurances of success. The Westminster Gazette, which sponsored the attempt, has released Captain Courtney from any obligation to carry on, and has suggested that cancellation of the flight is "in the best public and scientific interests."

Phil Wood of the plane which was to make the Windsor-to-Windsor flight appears to be much disappointed that he is not to be permitted to continue his journey. It is natural that he should feel regret, but he should understand that the discontinuance of the trip is in no sense a reflection upon either his daring or his ability as an airman. No one questions his qualifications or his readiness to take the hazard.—The Globe.

CONVENTION PROSPECTS.

The Toronto Star quotes East Essex Conservatives as considering a resolution to reduce the number of Provincial Governments in Canada from nine to five—this by making one Province of the existing three in the Maritime section and following the same plan on the prairies. This is not the resolution passed by the East Essex Conservative Association for presentation to the Winnipeg convention. The one that was passed called for a material reduction in the size of the Federal Parliament. At that time, however, The Border Cities Star suggested that in making such a change—one that it has long advocated—the idea of reducing the number of Provincial administrations should also be initiated.

The Toronto Star sees no possibility of the Conservative convention allowing the party "to become entangled in so controversial a subject by passing a resolution on it, or even by allowing it to be discussed as an item on the convention program." There is too much gunpowder, the Toronto paper says, in, around and about the question of uniting certain of the Provinces. And it adds: "It is, in fact, the fear of getting entangled in such discussions that makes the Conservatives almost afraid to hold a convention at all. There is a fear that delegates from the West may stand up and attack the tariff protection policy of the party, and that manufacturing delegates from the East may offend the West by demanding higher tariff walls. Instead of open discussion of all-comers in a public meeting, the Conservative practice has always been to get a few reasonable persons together in a room and arrange everything or, at least, let it be understood by the masses that everything had been arranged."

There is no doubt a good deal truth in what the Toronto paper says, but if the Winnipeg convention is to be the success that leading Conservatives hope for it, it will have to provide something better than a cut-and-dried discussion of worn-out subjects. If the Conservative party is going to get anywhere in Canada it will have to bring itself up to date. Too many Conservatives are still living in the past. That is why a great many persons who are nominally Conservative have not been voting for the party lately, or, if voting for it, taking very little interest in it.

The resolution passed by East Essex Conservatives is an important one. It proposes that the membership of the House of Commons be radically cut, in order to reduce the actual cost of government and to secure greater efficiency. Everyone knows that it is ridiculous to have 245 members of the Commons and just as absurd to have 96 men in the Senate. Every one of them draws an indemnity of $4,000 a year, plus all the other expenses of electing them and maintaining them at Ottawa. If the East Essex resolution is to be criticized it should be on the ground that it did not go far enough. However, it is a step in the right direction and an indication that Conservatives of this district are alive to the necessity of new planks in the platform and a more progressive outlook if the party is to have success. Mr. A. J. E. Belleperche, President of the East Essex Conservative Association, has frankly predicted that his party will remain in opposition for years to come unless it steps out of the rut in which it has been standing for some time and offers the electorate something new, something striking, something more in keeping with the changed times in which we live.

The managers of the national convention to be held in Winnipeg next month will be making the greatest mistake of their lives if they allow the meeting to become nothing more than a formality. Discussion at the Winnipeg meeting should be free as air. Every opportunity should be provided for political heart-searching. People with original ideas should not be squelched, for the Conservative party needs ideas more than it ever needed them before. Young voices should be given their say. If the younger and more progressive section of Conservative thought has its way, the party is going to get somewhere. If the old school which still thinks in terms of Sir John A. Macdonald, and the Canada of half a century ago, has control, then Conservatism's stock will not rise very rapidly. New conditions demand changed policies, new ideas.

Next month's convention can be a great success—or a sorry "flop."—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make it 45,000 in 1927.

Yesterday was a great day for young Peterborough The Exhibition made a hit with the youngsters.

In the language of the war communiques, "a certain liveliness" seems to be developing in Windsor.

"Babe" Ruth is taking no chance in regard to his home run title. He is still the champion in that department.

They are still trying to induce Mr. Ferguson to enter the Federal field. But the Provincial Premier shows no signs of anxiety to take the plunge.

President Dixon announces there will be no more nudes at the Canadian National Exhibition. He was referring, let it be understood, to the Art Gallery and not the swimming marathon.

Peterborough's streets will have an unusual large amount of traffic during the balance of the week. Every motorist should drive with even more care than usual, in order that accidents may not mar the enjoyment of Exhibition Week.

When that clean-up of Windsor is actually begun it is to be hoped they won't entrust the job to Mayor Thompson of Chicago.

We make fun of the weather man, but the flying men are not taking any chances without his advice.—St. Catharines Standard.

CATTLE GRAIN, AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—The market continues to hold steady, with a good demand for fair to choice quality butcher steers and heifers. There are, however, a lot of coarse heavy unfinished steers, and plain common mixed steers and cows, for which there is a very slow market. About 800 cattle of the latter types were carried over from the early markets, and it is a question how to get them cleared off. Cows are down 50c to 75c and common steers in proportion. There is a fair steady enquiry for good type stockers and feeders, and these are moving out freely at steady prices.

Lambs and calves steady to strong.

Hogs 25c higher.

General run of prices as follows:

Choice butcher steers active at from $8.25 to $8.75, with extra choice up to $9. Light steers, $8.25 to $8.50, and choice butcher heifers, $8 to $8.25.

Baby beeves firm; choice, $12.

Common steers and heifers, $5.00 to $5.50.

Choice butcher cows, $5.00 to $5.75, medium, $4.25 to $4.75.

Bulls, choice, $4.50 to $5; choice butcher, $4.50 to $5.00.

Springers and milkers quiet at steady prices.

Stockers and feeders active, selling from $6.00 to $7; heifers, $5.50 to $6.25; delivery country points.

Lambs, choice, $12.00 to $12.25.

Calves, choice, $13.00 to $14.00.

Hogs strongs and 25c higher at $11, f.o.b. selects.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).There was a marked improvement in the demand from United Kingdom buyers for all grades of wheat on the Montreal market yesterday, and a fair amount of business was worked.

A feature of the local cash grain trade was the demand from New York exporters for Canadian Spring wheat and sales of some fair-sized lots of No. 2 Northern were made at 12½c per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, c.i.f. Montreal for first-half October option. There was an easier feeling in the market for Ontario oats, and prices were reduced 1 cent per bushel. Car lots of No. 2 white were sold at 66c, No. 3 at 65c, and No. 4 at 64c per bushel. Canadian Western oats were steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—Notwithstanding that wheat prices averaged higher yesterday, the increasing movement of the Spring crop became the dominant factor at the last. Fully 1,100 cars of new domestic wheat were loaded yesterday by one railroad system, and Grand Forks, North Dakota, was reported as having been temporarily embargoed on account of the rush of wheat to market.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at the same as Tuesday's finish to 1 cent lower; corn ¼ to 1c up; oats at ¼c advance, and provisions showing 2 to 12 cents gain.

Until near the end of the day the wheat market showed an upward trend that was associated with greatly improved export demand, total purchases for Europe being estimated at 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 bushels. Besides, sleet and snow in Alberta were reported and there were predictions of frost last night both in Alberta and Saskatchewan. Earlier advices, too, told of heavy rains causing serious delay both to cutting and threshing over large areas in Canada.

Selling on advances, however, was an outstanding feature of the wheat market throughout the day. The selling was especially conspicuous from Northwestern sources. In this connection it was pointed out that flour business was reported to be lagging, with most of the demand coming from bakers. On the other hand, friends of higher prices did considerable future delivery buying of wheat, assuming that all the bear news was out, and that rallies were to be expected.

Corn values owed their strength yesterday largely to government returns from Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, indicating that regardless of weather considerable corn will probably not mature. Besides, rain is needed now in many sections and some corn crop damage from drought and excessive heat is noted. Oats were steadied by good cash demand.

Provisions reflected the firmness of corn and cotton.

A TRIP THROUGH KAWARTHAS

"Say!" said a neighbor, popping into my kitchen one Saturday morning as I was methodically preparing for Sunday's meals, "there's an excursion on Monday up to Lindsay by boat and return by train if you want to. Mrs. Smith and I are going. Why don't you come along too?" "Goodness me!" I said, stopping short in the cake I was mixing, "how you do startle a person. An excursion? When? Where? Oh, I've too much to do." "Rubbish!" she answered. "Now you must make up your mind to come." Rather than argue I said I'd go as far as Bobcaygeon, and she departed.

Having once said I would go, excitement took possession of me, and I was as eager for a jaunt as the rest, so when Monday dawned, a lovely, still, warm day, it found me all prepared to enjoy the beautiful trip, and as we steamed out into the lovely Otonabee River I left care behind, and settled myself in a quiet corner for a real good time. Lock after lock we passed through, each with its pretty setting of flower-garden and little lock-house, till we reached Lakefield, where the huge new structures of the Canada Cement Works caught the eye, with the immense dam nearing its completion. Here they have diverted almost all the water from the original river-bed, and it surges over the big dam into the boiling, foaming rapids below. The site of the new power-house was pointed out, and several other half-constructed buildings, which will be a great asset to the pretty little village without spoiling its beauty.

On we went, winding past the wooded islands of Katchawanooka till we reached Young's Point, a bright, pretty little settlement along both sides of the lock, and here, in the little Anglican church we came on the first evidences of the practical mission-work of the Rev. Frank Hartley nearly thirty years ago. This good man, then quite young, was sent to the Apsley district and extended his work throughout parts of the back country hitherto untouched by the Protestant Church, and in some cases, by any church. All along the way we heard of his heroic labors as a pioneer parson.

We traversed Clear Lake, where, in the thick trees near Kawartha Park, so many years ago some Jesuit missionaries and their converts were burned at the stake. From there, almost imperceptibly, into lovely Stoney Lake, where nearly every island has its cottage, and pretty little camps and bungalows dot the shores all the way up to Burleigh. Here we found the prettiest lock-house of them all, beside the double lock, and the lovely flower-garden was set off by the background of dark trees. Except near Burleigh and at its farther end, Buckhorn, beautiful Lovesick Lake is not much tenanted. Only here and there did we see a lonely cottage or camp, but its wooded islands and main shore are mostly left to Nature. Buckhorn proved to be a thriving summer resort, with hotels, a store or two and post-office, and numerous pretty summer cottages, at this season full of visitors, a great number being from the United States. Year after year the Americans come north to all this fascinating summer playground, with their fine steam yachts, launches and boats, and they never seem to tire of these lovely lakes. One great charm about them is the absence of formality and dress-occasions. Old clothes, sporting things, bathing-suits, are the recognised attire, and there is a free and easy air about everything, and a total lack of formality that makes it an ideal holiday place for the tired busy people. And how the young folk do enjoy it! And what a lot of romances have their beginnings and culminations in these attractive settings! In by-gone days Lovesick Lake got its name from a pretty Indian maid, who drowned herself in it in despair over thwarted affection. But this is only one of the many legends about this part of the country. At Sturgeon Point are still shown the graves of Manita and her lover, Ogemah. Manita and her father were taken prisoners by a hostile tribe, and kept by them for some time. She had been betrothed to one of her own tribe previously, but evidently he had not made a very deep impression, for when the son of the conquering chief fell in love with her, she gave him a very faithful heart. Shortly after this the captives were released, and returned home, where Manita's former lover claimed her promise. Her refusal so enraged him that when Ogemah came to visit her and urged her to return with him, the discarded lover from an ambush shot him through the heart. The shock was too much for poor Manita, and, though she lived to be a very old woman, her reason never fully returned. "Hush; do not wake him. Ogemah is sleeping!" she would say to the children, and his grave she kept covered with flowers until she died.

Buckhorn is a long winding lake, very lovely, but, like Lovesick, with few camps. Here and there along the shores one catches sight of a lonely farm. At the floating bridge one passes through into the wider expanse of Deer Bay. This bridge is quite a curious thing, there being but three in all this part of Canada. It is a regular plank road, laid on ties, floting on the water, and is of considerable length. Near one shore a part swings out to permit the passage of the steamer. When thinking back over past days, it seemed odd not to see now a drive of logs. These drives, consisting of thousands of logs, used to come down from all this northern country till parts of the lakes between the islands were a solid mass of logs, with their cook and bunk-houses, and the river-drivers with their cant-hooks running full speed over their heaving and rolling surfaces, till one dreaded for their safety, and marvelled at their skill. But to-day the lakes were empty, the lumber industry being mostly a thing of the past.

Near Bobcaygeon we passed Round Island, the property of Mr. Mossom Boyd, of the well-known lumber firm. It is densely wooded, and for many years he maintained a herd of buffalo there, which grew and increased till they became somewhat of a proposition. Finally they took to crossing over to the mainland, and wandering about, to the discomfort of the inhabitants, so after a while the herd was sold to various parks and places where they could be kept, and now they are but a memory.

Bobcaygeon is built on three islands, and is a most picturesque little place, full to overflowing of summer visitors. Along the waterways were troops of girls, youths, and children, like modern mermen and maids, in the cool clear water. But here my journey ended, and I left the merry company to go on their way to Lindsay, until its return trip two days later.

It is a curious thing that the scenery always looks quite different when you approach it from the reverse way, and fresh bits of beauty unfold themselves. This time we had a merry troop of Hebrew Boy Scouts on board, with their scout-masters. They played the piano, they sang, they trotted all over the boat with their bright faces and polite ways, till it was a pleasure to see them. Just one more week and they would be back in the hot streets of the great city, but how they did enjoy the respite they had! On we sailed through the sunny afternoon, down through the lakes, and past the locks and cottages till we reached Burleigh once more, and started down Stoney. But this time we went to a cottage here, and a landing there, and all the various hotels, where the visitors poured down to the boat, and stood in their gay dresses, chatting and laughing on the wharves, making a pretty picture against the dark trees and bright evening skies. As we went from one pretty place to another, the sun, like a crimson ball in a clear sky, sank below the hills, the lights began to twinkle in the cottages, and the sounds of singing came across the calm water where the silver path of the moon gradually became brighter, till she and her attendant stars were reflected as in a glass, and at last the ripple of the water churning back from her bow was to be heard, or the cry of a loon over the wide expanse of Clear Lake. Then round a turn shone the lights of Young's Point, and thus ended a lovely happy trip, leaving a haunting memiry of the beautiful Kawartha Lakes." Jock.

TROPHIES ARE PRESENTED TO C.N.R. WINNERS

Widespread Progress Noted in First Aid Welfare Work.

35,000 MEMBERS

Montreal Team Wins Coveted Lady Drummond Trophy.

TORONTO, September 15. — Toronto was chosen as the proper place in which to present the various trophies presented for competition in first aid under the auspices of the Canadian National Railways Council St. John Ambulance Association, and the meeting for that purpose was held here recently, with Mr. W. D. Robb, vice-chairman of the system, and president of the council, in the chair. Winning teams were present from Quebec, Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg, while the individual champions amongst the men's and women's classes came respectively from Quebec and Edmonton, indicating the widespread progress of this form of welfare work.

In his address, Mr. Robb spoke of the wonderful enthusiasm displayed throughout the system and compared the present state of affairs with that which prevailed when he was a mechanist apprentice. "In those days the workmen had no knowledge of first aid," said Mr. Robb, "and when accidents occurred all they could do was to send for a doctor and stand around in a sympathetic attitude until he arrived."

In contrast there are now 35,000 certificated first aiders on the Canadian National system, and it is the ambition of the officers to spread the knowledge until it will be impossible for any emergency to arise at any spot without the presence of a trained first aider.

Col. C. A. Hodgetts, C.M.G., M.D., of Ottawa, director general, representing the headquarters of the St. John Ambulance Association, whose annual task it is to examine teams from coast to coast, said that this year he found the standard greatly in excess of any previous year, not only in the winning teams, but amongst all who presented themselves for examination.

"A great deal of credit is due to the Canadian National Railways for the interest taken in this most important work," said Col. Hodgetts.

"There is a fine feeling from coast to coast, and this is due to the sympathetic support of all the officers, general managers and superintendents."

Dr. J. P. Mitchell, assistant chief medical officer, paid a warm tribute to the excellence of the training, and he earnestly advised a thorough reading and study of the excellent manual prepared by the St. John Ambulance Association.

Lady Drummond Cup.

The chief trophy presented at the meeting was the Lady Drummond Cup, emblematic of the women's championship of the Dominion in first aid and home nursing. This trophy was won by a team from Montreal headquarters in competition with the rest of Canada, the team being composed of Miss L. Rippingale, captain, the Misses Southwood, R. Turner and A. Bain. They were warmly congratulated for their splendid success by Col. Hodgetts, who particularly stressed the fact that the conditions of the competition included a knowledge of home nursing, a feature in which the Canadian National had been a pioneer.

The ladies named in the foregoing with the assistance of the Misses I. Marshall and B. Wittenberg, also captured the Robb Trophy for the best women's team on the system. The Bowker Cup for the central regional championship, and the Dourne Cup for the Montreal and District championship. As each cup carries with it individual prizes, Miss Rippingale and her associates accumulated a considerable collection of trophies at the conclusion of their particular presentations.

The cup presented by Sir Henry Thornton, chairman and president, was won by the men of Fort Rouge shops, a smart squad which stepped out with precision and neatness. This team is composed of George Tait, captain, R. E. Banyard, C. A. Wyatt, A. A. Reid, W. Crawshaw and J. Owen.

The Chamberlain Shield for the Central Region championship was won by the men's team of the Quebec General Offices, consisting of H. P. Kelly, Captain, E. Martell, A. Morin, W. R. Gammache and J. Barreye. This team received an ovation and it was noted that they were runner-up in the System championship, being only four points behind the Fort Rouge winners.

The Galloway Cup for the electric lines was won by the Lambton team of the Toronto Suburban Railway, consisting of C. Lawrence, F. Hester, F. Walker, F. Coomber, J. Herbertson and W. E. Kelton. The trophy was presented in person by Mr. D. E. Galloway, assistant vice-president.

The Telegraphs Department Officers Cup was won by Winnipeg headquarters and this trophy was presented by Mr. W. G. Barber, general manager of the Telegraphs.

The Barber Cup for women's team of the Telegraph Department was won by the Montreal office team, with a Toronto team in second place. The Montreal team is captained by Mrs. E. Newman and her daughter, Miss L. E. Newman is a member of the team.

The Page medals for the individual system championship were won by Mr. Arthur Morin of Quebec, and Miss Theresa M. Carragher of Moncton.

SCHOOL FAIR AT MILLBROOK GREAT SUCCESS

South Cavan Pupils and Friends Turn Out in Force.

CHANGES IN STAFF.

Fairview Wins Prize For Best Display of Flowers—The Prize List.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 15. — Fine weather favored the sixteenth annual Rural School Fair for the South Cavan district, held at the Agricultural Park, Millbrook, on Thursday afternoon, between six and seven hundred people being in attendance.

The staff this year has a number of changes, the new agricultural representative, J. Y. Kellough, B.S.A., being in charge for the first time following the exchange by which F. C. Paterson, for seven years head of agricultural activities in Durham County, has taken Mr. Kellough's place in the southwestern part of the province, his location being in Norfolk County.

Assisting Mr. Kellough are J. A. Neilson, B.S.A., spray supervisor (fruit) for the counties of Ontario and Durham, who judges vegetables and fruit; Clarence Allen, and Donald Gibson, who look after awarding the prizes for the livestock and poultry, respectively; W. B. Reynolds, B.S.A., who is shortly to judge at the school fairs in Elgin County; Misses B. Oke, secretary, and Muriel Daley, the latter being assistant secretary, and judge of the flowers, sewing, cooking, etc.

Exhibits in practically all classes were creditable both as to quality and quantity, the special prizes given by the local Women's Institute for the school having the best collection of flowers, and of vegetables, bringing out a very large and beautiful showing in the former section; the award in each case was $2.50. In awarding the prize in the flower collection, the judges took into account, condition of blooms, arrangement, variety, and grouping of varieties; the winning school was Fairview, S.S. No. 14, Miss Dorothy Hall, teacher. Others competing were: Cork, Millbrook, Whitfield's, and Zion.

In the collection of vegetables, Millbrook Public School won the prize; others showing being: Whitfield's and Cork.

Owing to the very short time elapsing since the schools reopened after the holidays there was practically no opportunity, particularly where a new teacher is in charge, for the scholars to be trained for the parade and physical culture exercises. Hence only three schools participated, the judges being Colonel J. W. Odell and W. B. Reynolds, B.S.A.

Whitfield's, S.S. No. 8, won first place for the parade, Miss Ethel McKnight, teacher; Cork, S.S. No. 15, Miss Mary Moise, teacher, came second, and Carmel, S.S. No. 19, Miss Isabel Syer, teacher, third. Miss McKnight had adopted the Confederation idea for her pupils, the handsome banner having the dates 1867-1927, the sashes worn by the pupils having the names of the provinces, and the whole color scheme being in red, white, and blue.

Black and orange for banner and costumes was chosen as a striking color design by Miss Moise for the scholars of Cork School, and Miss Syer featured a patriotic style, using many flags in the scheme followed.

In the physical culture competition the results were: Cork, Whitfield's and Carmel. In the public speaking contest, for which Rev. P. C. Howard and W. B. Reynolds were judges, the winners were: Mary Vance, Marjorie Brackenridge, Ruth Ball and Donald Lang.

In the extra classes there was a weed naming contest requiring identification of mounted specimens, those having the highest points being: Jessie Armstrong (10 correct), John Coulter (9) and Charles Mason (8).

The general prize list was as follows, the names being in order of merit:

The silver shield donated by the Department of Agriculture in the school fair efficiency contest and awarded to the school having the highest average number of points per pupil in all the school fair work, went to S. S. No. 15, Cork. Last year and in 1925 Zion School won the shield, and in 1924 Cork had the honor of holding it. Won three times, not necessarily in succession, it becomes the permanent property of the school.

The special prize for the pupil having the highest number of points at each school fair this fall, generously donated by the T. Eaton Company is a silver cup seven inches high, and suitably engraved. Desirous of promoting greater interest in the educational work along agricultural lines being carried on in the schools of Ontario, this firm will give over 500 of these handsome cups this season, the trophy becoming the property of the winners. The secretary has not opportunity of completing these individual totals on the days the fairs are held, but when the certificate of honor is sent each school the name of the winning pupil will be the same as the one who has been awarded the cup.

A good sports program was run off during the afternoon, and the booth on the grounds, under the direction of the Golden Links Mission Circle, was well patronized during the entire time the fair lasted.

RURAL SCHOOL FAIRS

North Hope Township.

MILLBROOK, September 14. — The attendance was somewhat larger than usual at the North Hope Rural School Fair held at Garden Hill on Friday, September 9, the fine weather, and the fact that there are eight schools in the district to participate in this annual event, and great keen interest prevails in connection with the competition for first place in the parade physical culture exercises, and the various classes of exhibits, accounting for the number gathered on the grounds during the afternoon.

The new Agricultural Representative, J. Y. Kellough, was in charge, and judging the parade and physical culture were Inspector J. W. Odell, and W. B. Reynolds, B.S.A. both of whom expressed themselves as being well pleased with the initiative and skill shown in the costumes, marching, deportment, school yells, etc.

WIDE VARIETY IS SHOWN BY INDUSTRIES

Building Contains Products of Many of the Local Factories.

SOME FROM OUTSIDE.

Food For Man and Beast, Clothing and Furniture Among Exhibits.

To the homemaker, a walk through the Manufacturers' Building is at once educative and entertaining. Here are appliances for the elimination of household drudgery and unnecessary labor on the farm, the most up-to-date models in clothing, articles for the sportsman and lover of the water and the out-of-doors, musical instruments, beautiful carpets, scientifically balanced foods for cattle and poultry, and exhibits depicting industrial development up to the present day.

Immediately on entering, the visitor finds himself between the Grafton exhibit showing the latest ideas in men's and boy's furnishings, and the Canadian Packing Company's stall with Rose Brand bacon.

William Hamilton and Company show a very realistic model, "The Confederation Pulp and Paper Mill." Everything in the model is in its place even to the notice "Help wanted, apply within," and the other polite request, "Keep off the Grass" displayed over the neat, well-kept grassy plots. Alongside the mill runs the railway siding, with a car being loaded with newsprint "for The Peterborough Examiner." "One ton of newsprint," says an informative poster, "requires 100 horse power." Above the stall is a streamer which proudly proclaims the fact that the company is 11 years older than Confederation.

At the stall of the Quaker Oats Company, attention is immediately arrested by the cage of trim, clean-looking fowls contentedly feeding on Quaker products, and bags of Quaker flour, cattle and chick feed, with samples of scratch grain, dairy rations, egg mash, and the ubiquitous Full-o-Pop chicken fare.

Doors, asphalt slab slates, examples of Brantford roofing, and plaster wallboard are the main features of the portion of the building allotted to the Alfred McDonald Lumber Company.

E. V. Warne displays fine Gerhard Heintzman Pianos and Orthophonic Victrolas. Portraits of Mesdames Alma Gluck and Galli-Curci add emphasis to the musical atmosphere of the stall.

Frigidaires, Delco lights, and automatic water systems take up the bulk of the space leased by the Delco-Frigidaire Co., a subsidiary concern of the General Motors of Canada.

Tropic ranges and heaters are shown by Adam Hall in a stall tastefully decorated with the Union Jack and Canadian coat of arms.

Pianos and Victrolas occupy the centre of the stall of Heintzman and Co., which is ornamented by a beautiful piece of marble statuary depicting Innocence, the work of the eminent Roman sculptor, F. Bottigini, and the property of the Coughlin Monumental Company. From the walls hang the pictures of three of the most famous figures in the musical world, Madame Tettrazini, who recently purchased a Heintzman piano in ivory and gold; Ignace Paderewski, and John McCormack.

A huge Polar bear in cardboard draws attention to the products of the Sanitary Ice Company, adjoining the exhibit of J. J. Turner and Sons, who are featuring horse blankets.

Canoes, Johnston outboard motors, dog sleighs and snow shoes make their appeal to the outdoor man and pioneer from the stall of the Peterborough Canoe Co. For milady, out-of-doors, William Lech and Co. have prepared a wonderfully attractive display of fur coats and chokers. There are on view Kolinsky coats, with luxurious lining, grey and brown squirel coats, golden mole trimmed with amber fur, Hudson seal trimmed with natural lynx, and Hudson seals with Kolinsky gray squirrel and sable, coats in Persian lambs, beaverine and baby leopard.

Equally wide is the range of chokers, natural red fox, cros fox, platinum, silver and black foxes, and red fox dyed amber and brown

On show at the Maple Leaf Milling Company's stall are sacks of laying mash, corn meal, and poultry feed, as well as flour for the making of food for the human population.

Suggestive of an Oriental palace is the nook belonging to the Brinton Carpet Co., showing splendid examples of "Ardebil" seamless carpets, made in Peterborough, and Sarouk carpets with the patterns woven throughout to the back.

The Post Office exhibit is intended, as was explained by Postmaster Charles Lacheur in The Examiner yesterday, to show the public its errors of omission and commission in handling of mail matter and to give a working demonstration of the right way of procedure. A moving picture, with a love story and a little bit of sentiment as the sugar to coat the pill, shows how carelessness of letter writers adds to labor in the Post Office and causes unnecessary delay in the transportation of mail.

Continuing its close association with farm and dairy, the De Laval Co. shows the latest thing in milkers and separators. Practical demonstration of the efficacy of the De Laval products is to be given on the prize herds at the cattle barn to-day and every succeeding day until the close of the Fair.

Specimens of gyproc fireproof wall board, plaster board, hard wall plaster, insulex, hydrate lime, rockboard and other fireproof materials of construction are on view at the exhibit of the Peterborough Lumber Company.

HIGH SCHOOL A.A. IS RE-ORGANIZED

Girls and Boys Elect Officers at Campbellford School.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15.—The student body of the Campbellford High School met yesterday afternoon in the school auditorium for the purpose of re-organizing their Athletic Society. The following officers for the present year were elected: For the girls—President, Marjorie Akerman; Secretary, Irene Stevens; Executive: Dorothy West, Katherine Irwin, Marion Clapper, Georgia Davidson, Gladys Stevens. The officers for the boys were: E. H. Greig, principal of the school, Honorary President; Thornton Ibey, President; Ted Blute, Secretary; E. Stevens, assistant principal, Treasurer; Executive: Ellis Darling, Russel Learmouth, Bernard Blute, George Slogget and Geoffrey Midgley.

After a brief discussion it was decided to hold a field day this year but the date was not definitely decided upon. Further particulars will be available after the next meeting.

FURTHER SUBMISSIONS

gled into Canada and that customs duties were properly payable thereon. The evidence further discloses that Edward A. Dicks was engaged in the liquor business from which substantial profits may have been earned, and has filed no income tax returns.

Recommendation:

That the relevant evidence be referred to Department of National Revenue, Commissioner of Customs Branch, and that the appropriate action and prosecution be entered in respect of the offences disclosed. That the relevant evidence be referred to the Department of National Revenue, Commission of Income Tax Branch for review and that such action be taken as in the light of the evidence and any further investigation of the Department may be warranted."

Roche Questioned.

Dr. W. J. Roche, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, appeared to answer a number of questions with respect to customs staffs. He pointed out that vacancies were filled only on request of government departments. It was suggested to him that a relieving staff which would be able to fill vacancies temporarily while permanent appointments were being made, might be a good thing. This was designed to meet objections met with on tour, that sometimes years elapsed before vacancies were filled. Dr. Roche replied that this suggestion had already been made, and that it might be particularly applicable to the Customs Department. He gave the Commission further information about the procedure adopted in connection with appointments to the Customs service.

C. B. Patten, chief of the staff branch, Department of National Revenue, was examined briefly. He explained that the system of granting 6 months leave of absence to retiring officers caused delay in filling such vacancies. Two of the commissioners suggested that it might be wiser to give such officers a bonus of six months salary, and have the vacancy filled at once.

ART COOKING AND SEWING

some tea biscuits, the cookies, round and oblong and scalloped, the big tins of luscious dark and light fruit cake, the nut and layer cakes with cocoanut and icing tops, and the display of canned and pickled goodies in fruits and pickles and jellies.

Displayed in their own section are the artwork samples that comprise pieces done in oil and water colors, in charcoal, pen and pencil, crayons and pen and ink, also reed trays with chintz linings, inlaid and carved wooden trays and ornamental pieces, and an ingenious model in colored woods delineating a farmhouse and surrounding barnyard. This is a striking bit of work.

In the painted pieces are oils and water colors, many of which catch the eye; a marine view with white-capped waves breaking against a quiet beach, a flute-player charming a snake, the whole thing executed in dull greens, a little girl with bare feet looking at a flower, the picture full of a soft atmospheric charm, an Oriental, very decorative lady in vivid colors, an old lady with calm, folded hands and old-time cap sitting in a peaceful kitchen, an ornamental plaque of brightly-colored pansy faces, a still life of apples tumbling out of an old hat and another of peaces and a vase of salpiglossis, and a girl with smouldering eyes and nut brown skin above a green smock. "Love and Art" is a good example of charcoal work.

School Children's Work.

The exhibit of children's work, drawn from the classes of the public schools, from primer to fourth grade, that teach manual training and domestic science, is always interesting and shows the talent latent in the small heads and hands of the boys and girls of the city. Arranged in careful rows are the tiny models of dresses, the dainty bits of embroidered linen, the well-sewn little bags and the little pieces in raffia boxes and photo frames, that tell the story of small maidens' attention to careful tuition, while the boys' exhibit displays models in wood of many things: bird houses (of which there are several designs), aeroplanes, ice boats, medicine chests and waste paper baskets. A model of a battleship and one of an old-time sailing clipper attract the attention with their obvious very careful workmanship.

The display of water colors and pen and ink sketches by the children is also very good, with designs of free and conventionalized types, book covers and wall-paper patterns and cunning little black silhouettes.

WEDDING BELLS.

WALLACE—LOCKHART.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15.—An exceptionally pretty wedding took place at St. Simon's church, Toronto, at half past three o'clock yesterday afternoon when Miss Louise Barrett Lockhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Lockhart, 5 Powell avenue, became the bride of the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, son of the late Hon. N. Clarke Wallace and Mrs. Wallace, and rector of Christ church, Campbellford, Ont. The Rev. F. H. Brewin, rector of St. Simon's church, assisted by the Rev. Canon Broughall, officiated. Mr. George Crawford played the music for the service which was fully choral. The church was very effectively decorated. Tall standards of yellow chrysanthemums with oak leaves stood in the aisle. Palms and ferns with standards of chrysanthemums and smilax decorated the choir stalls and chancel.

The white-robed choristers singing, "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden," preceded the bridal party up the aisle. Leading the bridal procession came two pretty little flower girls, nieces of the bride. They were Miss Diana Lockhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lockhart, and Miss Joakanne Lockhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Lockhart. They wore pretty frocks of buttercup-colored voile with yoke of Baby Irish lace and full skirt. Their hats were of the same yellow voile material with French flowers and they carried old-fashioned paper frilled posies.

Following the flower girls came two pretty bridesmaids, Miss Mary Marquise of Brantford and Miss Isobel Lockhart, sister of the bride. They were frocked alike in pea green georgette with high bodices and long sleeves, circular skirts with tuckings edged in scallops. The bodices were cut in a point at the neck, and at the girdle was a band of darker green with a bow at the side. They wore large green felt hats with velvet trimmings, green slippers and the gift of the groom, a necklace of pearls, and carried yellow chrysanthemums. The circular skirt was of satin material with apron front, and the girdle was held with a brilliant buckle. A veil of Brussels net, worn by the bride's grandmother, formed a coronet in front and was held by a wreath of orange blossoms at the back with little clusters over the ears. The veil fell over the long satin train which was held on the shoulders by brilliant buckles and was cut round at the foot. A cluster of orange blossoms was caught in the folds. White satin slippers were worn and a shower bouquet of butterfly roses and lily of the valley was carried.

The bride looked exceedingly charming and was given away by her father. She wore a simple sleeveless frock of white crepe back satin, opening over the pointed bodice on a vestee of satin with round cut neck.

Mr. Rodney Johnston was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Eric Warren, Mr. Douglas Lockhart and Mr. Norman Taylor.

During the signing of the register, the choir sang, "Oh Perfect Love" and the regimental march of the Governor - General's Body Guard was played, the bridegroom being an ex-officer of the regiment. At the conclusion of the service, the bride and groom and their attendants passed down the steps under an arch of swords formed by the guard of honor, officers of the Governor General's Body Guard.

Immediately after the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Powell avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Lockhart and Miss Olive Wallace, sister of the groom, received the guests. Mrs. Lockhart wore a very becoming gown of black lace and georgette with yoke of flesh pink and deep fringe hat of black satin with diamond pin. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Wallace wore a gown of rose crepe with black hat and carried a bouquet of roses. The bride and groom received in the big bow window, decorated with palms and ferns. The entire house was done with a profusion of Autumn flowers.

In a large marquee on the lawn, the bride's table was decorated with pink roses and silver candelabra with pink candles. The huge wedding cake was topped with lilies of the valley. Mr. Justice Hodgins, uncle of the bride, in a witty speech proposed her health. The groom responded admirably and included the pretty bridesmaids, from who the groomsman responded suitably.

The bride's numerous gifts were in an upstairs sitting room.

Amid a shower of rose leaves and confetti, the bride and groom left for their motor. For travelling, the bride wore a gown of green flat crepe trimmed with embroidery, with a smart coat of a darker shade trimmed with mole skin and a green felt hat to match.

The Rev. N. Clarke Wallace and Mrs. Wallace leave September 16th for England. Upon their return to Canada, they will live at the rectory of Christ church, Campbellford, Ont.

Each girl was allowed only two prizes. She was given the two highest prizes that she won in the competition.

The girls' judging competition was very interesting and was keenly contested, although there were only sixteen entrants, a lower number than in past years. It was under the supervision of several representatives of the Department of Agriculture: Mr. J. B. Nelson, local representative; Miss E. Hopkins of Lindsay, and Mrs. P. Shorey of Ancaster and Miss E. A. Slichter of Kitchener, the two latter acting as judges.

The contest is designed to develop an interest in household science and good taste in sewing and dressing, and is open to any girl in the County of Peterborough and Townships of Cavan and Emily, 26 years old or under, who has never attended an agricultural collage or taken part in a provincial competition. The prizes are awarded for correct placing (50 per cent), and reasons (50 per cent), the latter being delivered orally. In Peterborough County, the list comprises contests in judging of good dressing, house dresses, school lunches and bread. The contest took place yesterday in a large tent provided especially for the purpose, with house dresses placed on racks, while school lunches and bread were arranged on a table. Four young ladies from the Hall store acted as models in the good dressing section, dressed for church-going on Sunday morning in the country.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shillinglaw, Miss Maybelle Shillinglaw, and Miss Amy Farnham, all of New Haven, Conn., are visiting Mr. Shillinglaw's brother, James Shillinglaw, Seymour East. This is the first time Richard Shillinglaw has revisited the scenes of his boyhood days in twenty-one years, and it is the first trip to Canada for Misses Shillinglaw and Farnham.

At the local Lawn Bowling Club yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Fred Linton and Mrs. Fred (Dr.) Free were hostesses to four tables of bridge. Mrs. A. J. Jenkins won the prize for the highest score.

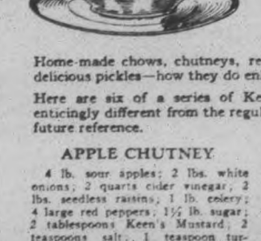
Keen's Famous PICKLE Recipes



Pickle Time! Tomatoes, cucumbers, gherkins, cauliflowers, beets, onions, celery, cabbages and peppers—are ready.

Home-made chows, chutneys, relishes, catsups and all kinds of delicious pickles—how they do enhance a meal.

Here are six of a series of Keen's famous pickle recipes — so enticingly different from the regular run of recipes. Clip them for future reference.

APPLE CHUTNEY

4 lb. sour apples; 2 lbs. white onions; 2 quarts cider vinegar; 2 lbs. seedless raisins; 1 lb. celery; 4 large red peppers; 1½ lb. sugar; 2 tablespoons Keen's Mustard; 2 teaspoons salt; 1 teaspoon turmeric (optional):

Soak the onions in brine (1 tablespoon salt to 1 quart water) over night. Drain them and put them through the food chopper. Pare the apples and put them through the food chopper. Pour 1 pint vinegar over the apples and raisins and let them stand over night. Add the onions and other ingredients, and cook the mixture until the vegetables are clear and tender. Seal it in sterilized bottles or jars.

PICCALILLI

2 quarts red tomatoes; ½ peck green tomatoes; 1 head cabbage; 15 white onions; 10 large green cucumbers; salt; 3 quarts cider vinegar; 4 lbs. brown sugar; ½ cup turmeric; ¾ cup black pepper seed; 1 ounce celery seed; ½ lb. mustard seed; 1 cup olive oil; 1 quart vinegar; ½ lb. Keen's Mustard:

Chop the vegetables and place in layers in a porcelain dish; a layer of salt between the layers of vegetables. Let stand over night, then drain, discarding the liquid. Drain well. Heat the vinegar, sugar, seeds and turmeric together and pour over the vegetables. Let stand 48 hours. Drain off liquor, add mustard mixed with olive oil and 1 quart vinegar, and pour over the vegetables. Pack in sterilized jars.

A GOOD CROCK PICKLE

1 gal. white wine vinegar; 9 level cups brown sugar; 1 level cup Keen's Mustard; 1 cup salt; 1 tablespoon turmeric powder; 1 tablespoon curry powder; 1 oz. ground mixed allspice; small piece of alum.

Heat enough vinegar to dissolve sugar, then put ingredients in a covered crock, stir well and continue to stir each morning for two weeks. Add cucumbers, onions, small carrots, beans or any vegetables desired at any time. This will keep well all winter.

TOMATO MUSTARD CATSUP

2 gals. cooked tomatoes; 2 qts. vinegar; 2 lbs. brown sugar; ½ lb. salt; 1 red peppers; 2 ozs. allspice; 1 oz. cloves; 2 ozs. black pepper; 1 oz. ginger; 1 lb. Keen's Mustard.

Boil tomatoes and strain; add all the other ingredients except the mustard and cook well; then add the mustard and cook stirring. Strain and bottle. Use whole spice so that it will come out when straining.

MUSTARD PICKLES

1 quart small onions; 1 quart cucumbers; 1 large cauliflower; 2 heads celery; 2 red peppers.

Peel onions, cut vegetables in small pieces, cover with weak brine and let stand overnight. In the morning bring to a boil and drain off.

Take two cups brown sugar, 1 cup flour, 6 tablespoonfuls Keen's Mustard, 1 tablespoonful turmeric and 2 quarts vinegar. Boil this mixture for twenty minutes stirring continually. Pour over vegetables hot. Let stand ten days, stirring every day, then bottle.

An Attractive Version of the Overblouse

Lace edgings and narrow tucks elaborate the tailored blouses of to-day. One cannot have too many attractive blouses to wear with separate skirts, thus creating the smartest two-piece frocks. The model pictured here was made of white crêpe-de-chine with groups of narrow tucks in the front and back and opens all the way down the center front. The round boyish collar is becoming and the full-length sleeves are finished with a tailored cuff. The pattern is perforated for short sleeves and provides an attractive cuff. The hip-band may be omitted and the blouse tucked under the skirt-band in regulation shirt-waist style. Sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 38 bust requires 2⅛ yards of 36-inch, or 1 yards of 40-inch material. Price 20 cents.

SAINT and SINNER

What had her father meant? Was he hinting that Bob was flirting with some other woman? But there was certainly no opportunity! All the time he was not in his office he was at home or out with her, his wife. But—Jim Lane wasn't the man to make trouble. He had meant his hint for her own good—Faith's disturbed mind worried itself ceaselessly with speculations and questions, even during dinner, which was a gala occasion in celebration of Joy's return from a girl's summer camp in the mountain.

"And what do you know, Faith, I gained ten whole pounds!" Joy was shrilling excitedly at her, between enormous mouthfuls of food. "And I got more new freckles than any other girl in camp! And I can swim like a fish! Chief says he never did see a kid learn to swim as fast as I did! And I hiked twenty miles in one day, and I—"

"Fine, darling! You look wonderful! I'm so glad you had such a happy summer. Don't gobble your food so, sweetheart. This isn't camp, you know," Faith blended interest and big-sisterly admonition automatically, but her mind was still gnawing at that thing that her father had said, "—if you don't want him to look for it elsewhere!" Oo, what had he meant? Was it possible that he, too, sensed that electric undercurrent between Cherry and Bob. But lately they had behaved almost as if they hated each other. Bob rarely spoke now in Cherry's presence, scarcely looked at her—but, oh, didn't that mean that they were afraid of themselves, or did it mean that there was a great deal more between them which they were trying to hide from her? After all, they worked together at the office—all day long—

Cherry, who had looked unusually pale, her golden eyes self-communing, secret, a little sad, shook off the spell which held her and chattered impulsively to Joy:

"Now that you've gotten to be such a big girl, and outgrown all your clothes, I'll have to take you shopping, Joy Lane, and see if we can find a color that won't fight with those tremendous freckles of yours. Come and have lunch downtown with me tomorrow, honey, and we'll buy out a store."

"And Faith can make my new dresses! Nobody can't make dresses as pretty as Faith! Oh, gee, I'll be glad to wear something besides bloomers and middies. But, gee, you oughta seen me play baseball!"

"Will this athletic celebrity honor me by going to the movies with me after dinner?" was Bob's contribution to the cheering-up of Joy.

"Gee! Where's the dictionary?" Joy giggled, but she was immensely pleased and flattered. "Just you and me, Bob? All by ourselves?" and she fluttered her pale blond eyelashes at him with a comical imitation of Cherry's charming coquetry.

"Well, the truth is, Joy, I've got an old lady that's apt to be jealous if I beau a beautiful young flapper around. Suppose we ask her too? Just to keep peace in the family, you know," and he winked broadly at the enchanted child.

"Oh, I guess we'd better take her," Joy giggled. "But Cherry's got to stay home and take care of her baby, ain't she? I bet she's been putting it off on Faith all summer! Oh, gee, Cherry, I'm sorry!" she cried contritely, as a tide of anger swept over Cherry's lovely face. "You'll still buy me the dresses, won't you? I didn't mean to be nasty, honest!" Then, after Cherry had rushed from the room, Joy turned puzzled eyes from one member of the family to the other: "Gee! Everybody seems so funny!"

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Sedate brown is an admirable foil to the loveliness of peach color and this color combination has been used by the smart dressmakers for autumn evening wear. This peach-colored chiffon frock is trimmed with brown lace. The rose on the shoulder is of brown lace and peach chiffon. There is a rhinestone buckle on the narrow belt.

Ingenious little discs with sectors of different hues have been made by which it is possible to tell various possible harmonious color combinations. And these are doubtless quite useful to persons not endowed with a natural eye for color harmonies. But no one has ever yet invented, and of course no one ever will, an instrument by which one may tell from time to time the color harmonies that are smart at the moment. But every season there are not only smart colors but smart color combinations—and it really sometimes happens that two colors or shades that combine with smartness for the time, are very nearly, if not quite, inharmonious. The fact is that of late years we have felt a dissinclination to accept the most obvious color harmonies. So we have combined orchid and pervench blue, Nile green and lemon yellow.

A color combination that has been sponsored by Mrs. Napoleon Bonaparte recently is lavendar and beige—a combination which is as really harmonious as it is at present smart.

Brown has been combined with peach with extremely good results—and if you are planning a new evening frock at present I would strongly suggest a combination of brown lace and peach-colored chiffon.

Black is still used with pink or pinky-flesh by the smart French dressmakers. To wear discarded finery in a slipshod fashion around the house is, of course, a very bad plan, but to rip up your old evening frocks and, having washed and otherwise cleaned the material, to remodel it into pretty negligees, is a very good plan indeed.

FASHION NOTES.

BY HEDDA HOYT
(United Press Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (United Press).—Velvet and velvet combined with contrasting fabrics will play important roles in fall millinery. Plain, embossed and printed velvets will perhaps be most important al hough the following combinations are also frequently shown; velvet and velours, velvet and satin, velvet and felt, velvet and bengaline, velvet and brocade and velvet and gold leather.

It is thought that plain velours and felts will prevail for morning wear while velvets and combinations of velvet and other fabrics will rule for afternoon occasions. Perhaps it is due to the velvet vogue, that turbans of draped type are returning to fashion. One sees many turbans among the French millinery as well as among American models.

In selecting a dress trimmed with tiers, select one which has diagonal tiers rather than horizontal tiers as the former types are newer.

The slightly raised waistline is suggested in many of the advanced fall gowns, oftimes the raising of the waist being suggested at the front only. A horizontal drape or tuck may be all that is necessary to suggest the raising of the waist.

Black lace used as a lingerie item, for trimming or instead of fabric is emphasized in fall collections. Entire-step-ins of black scalloped-edged laces with the scallops forming the borders are shown for dressy wear. When black lace is used for trimming it is generally combined with pale pink georgette or net and this combination is repeated often.

Brown is to be one of the outstanding fall fabric shades. Almost all of the darker browns will be used as well as woodbrown tones and reddish browns. Shoes, hosiery and handbags of brown will be important due to the vogue for costume harmony.

HELPFUL BABY BOOK.

We have just received a booklet, "Baby Welfare", which is one of the most interesting and instructive we have seen in a long time. It has chapters on pre-natal care, Feeding of Baby, Bottle Feeding Supplementing Breast Feeding, Diet After First Year, Food Formulas, Sleep, Fresh Air, Exercise, Bathing, Clothing, Baby's Weight and Measurements, with sundry hints as to safeguarding of baby's health against common ailments. There is also a page devoted to Baby's Biography, which should be an interesting record of the little one's activities when it is filled in, and a Weekly Record for Baby's Weight and Height, which the mother can fill in. In the introduction the publishers say that they have purposely omitted suggestions pertaining to medical treatment, knowing that such information should properly come from the family physician when such advice is needed. Mothers desiring a copy of this most helpful book can obtain one, free, by writing to The Baby Welfare Department of the Borden Company Limited, 180 St. Paul street West, Montreal, mentioning this paper.

FRECKLES

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. Ho to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckleface, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes your freckles; while if it does not give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any drug or department store and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get yourself a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove your freckles.

Carnelian and jade jewelry will replace the popular pinkish rosequartz as fall advances. Both real and imitation stones of carnelian and jade are being made into chokers, bracelets, rings and earrings.

"No Rubbing for me—since I tried Rinso"

"TO think that I once believed hard rubbing was necessary to make clothes white.

"Perhaps it was . . . before the days of Rinso. But now, I simply soak the clothes; letting Rinso gently loosen all the dirt so that it floats away in the water.

"Then after rinsing, the clothes are whiter than ever."

Antiseptically clean

FALSE TEETH mean a sweet, comfortable, mouth

FRESH, sweet false teeth every day, accomplished without any laborious brushing—is the promise HYGEOL offers.

Its cleansing action (harmless to the teeth, themselves) removes all food particles, discolorations, odors, and that tenacious greasy film. It also completely sterilizes the false teeth.

This work is accomplished by leaving the teeth immersed for twenty minutes in a solution of one part HYGEOL to three parts water. This can be done most conveniently while dressing. At the end of that time, the teeth need only to be rinsed to complete the thorough cleansing.

If preferred, teeth can be left overnight in a weaker solution—one teaspoonful of HYGEOL to a glass of water. Results are equally good.

Test HYGEOL free. Secure sample bottle by using coupon below. We welcome enquiries.

SOMETHING NEW IN HEINTZMAN PIANOS

Ye Olde Firme Present Beautiful and Unique Exhibit at Local Exhibition.

Who would have thought it! In fact, who would have ever dreamt of anyone taking a fancy to a piano finished in green! And yet, "perfectly lovely, fascinatingly unique," was the acclaim of hundreds of visitors yesterday in the manufacturers' building at the Peterooroughi Exhibition on beholding a Heintzman & Co. Style O Upright Piano, quite resplendent in a striking coloring of rich sea green, guaranteed not to crack nor fade. In this innovation Ye Olde Firme Heintzman & Co., piano builders of over 77 years standing, have sustained their reputation for progressiveness by keeping away from the conventional in piano case finish, and introducing something entirely new unique and distinctive.

This sea green piano is one of the arresting features in Heintzman & Co's splendid exhibit of pianos and phonographs of interest-holding value.

Among the pianos one sees a Style E Grand in English brown mahogany finish, an instrument which for exclusive character in construction, volume and tonal quality, has won universal commendation; a Syle O Player in lacquer walnut finish, a piano peculiarly suited in size for the average apartment home, to which it will add distinction and beauty, and an exquisite Ionic Upright, finished in walnut.

In phonographs this outstanding exhibit is featuring and demonstrating the wonderful Brunswick electrical Panatrope, a new discovery in music for the home. This is an electrical record playing instrument, the choice of royalty because of its rich colorful music, so utterly true to life. This machine has been combined with the 8 tube Radiola Super-heterodyne, and the result is a musical revelation of the widest scope. Another feature is a Victor Automatic Orthophonic in walnut finish, which plays continuously for one hour, changing its own records automatically. The demonstration of these wonder phonographs holds visitors spell-bound. By all means see and hear them, for they are undoubtedly the most marvellous inventions in the phonographic world. They both embody the new method of reproduction, and the result, whether of voice or instrument, is truly phenomenal in its naturalness and astounding tonal volume.

Heintzman & Co. enjoy a universal reputation as piano builders par excellence, whose Style E Grand Pianos have been, and are being used by the world's greatest artists—voice and instrument—for concert work.

Their local show rooms are at Heintzman Hall, corner of George and Hunter streets, where, as well as at the company's exhibit at the Exhibition, that courtesy so characteristic of Ye Old Firme awaits all visitors.

Mr. R. Haddow, the popular local manager is responsible for the exceedingly attractive display of his company's excelling instruments, for which he reports there is an ever-growing demand. (Advt.)

THEY SAVE STEPS, TIME AND LABOR

McBride & Franks' Exhibit Last Word in Kitchen Kabinets at Ex.

New exhibitors in the Manufacturers' Building at the Exhibition are found in McBride & Franks, with an appealing line of the popular Knechtel Kitchen Kabinets, which are attracting a measure full of interest. These Kabinets present the last word in all-round adaptability to the needs of any kitchen, they embody many exclusive improvements and practical features that save steps, time, and labour; all are elevated from the floor to make sweeping under them easy, and all have castors.

This outstanding exhibit includes a large and specially handsome kabinet finished in white enamel, featuring a porcelain sliding top 41½ by 25 inches, a cutting board that pulls out with extension top, nickel-plate trimmings, self-locking door catches, and glass knobs on drawers; another similar model finished in golden oak; the Midget, a kabinet finished in grey, only 27½ inches wide, designed for service in the average apartment, and affording in amazingly compact form all the famous Knechtel Kitchen Kabinet conveniences; and a handy little companion cupboard with five shelves for cooking and other housekeeping utensils.

Another exhibit in this section so interesting to housewives is a charming Knechtel Fall Leaf Kitchen Table, finished all over in snow white enamel, with top decorations and bootlegs in blue. In this table with two falling leaves — very much in demand — we see the antique very acceptably modernized.

The Knechtel super-serviceable kitchen furniture can be purchased on the club plan, with a 10 per cent. saving on all orders this week.

In conjunction with this display, McBride & Franks, at their store, 224 Charlotte Street, are making a special showing this week of the latest creations in lovely Chesterfield, dining and bedroom suites, individual pieces of furiture, and exquisite draperies. As a concession to Exhibition Week, the values are the greatest of the season. McBride & Franks are proud of what they sell, and customers find both pleasure and profit in dealing with them. (Adv.)

JEANNETTE STORE HAS PRETTY EXHIBIT

Living Models Help To Display Latest Fashion Creations.

The Jeannette Style Store has an attractive little corner section in the Main Building at the Exhibition. A low railing encloses a rug-covered flooring on which stands and racks are placed for the display of coats, frocks and hats. Music is furnished all through the afternoon and evening, and living models parade at night in a demonstration of the latest ideas in Fall fashions.

A stylish coat model on view is developed in deep wine-colored needlepoint with Thibetine collar and cuffs, and a light-colored muskrat coat occupies another vantage point. Evening dresses include a dainty frock of apple-green taffeta, made in bouffant style with scalloped hem and large pink rose at the waistline, also a black georgette with top of gold lace and ostrich feather ornaments. Another gown of black taffeta is trimmed with cut velvet and heart-shaped motifs of deep cerise. ur neckpieces and little hats in felt and velvet complete an interesting showing.

PRAISE FOR ROGERS' BATTERYLESS RADIO

Hundreds of visitors to the Exhibition are attracted every day to White's Cycles and Sports' outstanding exhibit in the main building of Rogers' Batteryless Radio Receiving Sets. Over two years ago Rogers' Batteryless pioneered the field of light socket radio reception with a complete unified set operating direct from the home lighting current without batteries or chemicals, and they have experienced an unbroken record of success. White's are showing and demonstrating all models which for handsome cabinet work and efficiency in operation are masterpieces, with an irresistible appeal to discriminating radio fans. And while delighted at the clarity of tone and fidelity in powerful and uniform reception, astonishment is freely expressed that these famous radio sets can be operated for less than four cents a week. Don't miss this exhibit at the Fair. (Advt.)

LOCAL DOG SHOW STRAIGHT SHOW

Xeres de la Chasse Royale, international grand champion of France and champion in Belgium in 1924 in the youth class. This dog, which has only been shown twice before in this country, at Ottawa and Sherbrooke shows, is owned jointly by Mr. Munns and R. Perry, of Toronto. Its owners are said to have paid $2,000 for this animal, which listened with quick interest to the French remarks addressed to it by a neighbouring exhibitor.

Adda Hergerslut is another entry of Mr. Munns', an eight-months-old puppy with a fiery disposition that got a great deal of satisfaction out of an interlude yesterday, when its owner took it out and put it through its paces in a vacated field. This puppy took first award at Ottawa and second at the Toronto Show.

Deerfoot Budweiser, a dog that took first prize at this show last year, and was considered at that time to be vicious in tendency, has quieted down considerably, and appears to be very fond of its owner, H. O. Cousins, of Grafton, who also has Queen of Hearts Six. From Montreal come two big Alsatians, Bria von der Bonn, priced at $350, and Fritz von der Bonn, at $500. The former, despite the handicap of a very sore paw, took three seconds and two thirds at the Toronto Show, and the latter one winner and three firsts.

Other interesting entries in the Alsatian class are a good-looking black puppy with green lights behind its brown eyes; Cloe of V. Need A, owned by S. Seigel, and two dogs owned by Mrs. W. Storey, Billo von Bergholtz, reserve winner and owner of three first awards at the Toronto Exhibition show, and Gustdale von Bergholtz, first, second, and third winner at Toronto, with second award in the brace class and owner of two silver cups.

Blake Johnston of Toronto, a pioneer breeder in Canada of the beauty of the dog world, the Russian wolfhound, who has lately turned to a very contrasting type of animal in the Doberman-Pinscher, shows three of these odd, dark brown dogs with their matching, keen eyes and close-cut ears. "Hands-off" is the warning at this section, but Favorite of Pontchartrian, one of the fiercest looking of the trio, is described by its owner as being a very gentle dog in the house, where a small daughter can maul it to her heart's content. A German named Dober, is said to be the originator of this strain, adding the "Pinscher" later in consideration of its fierceness. They are described as "the dogs with the human brain," and were not allowed to be released from Germany until after the Great War, when they were used for transporting ammunition to the troops in the trenches and for doing first aid work for men trapped in swamps. They are valued at $500 apiece.

A curiosity is the quartette of Schipperkes, from the "O'North" Kennels of E. A Brown in Toronto. These, the national dogs of Belgium, small speimens of the canine kingdom, in black, with a fox terrier type of face and formation, a harsh coat, and pear-shaped body, are valued at $500 apiece and are the first examples of their type to arrive in this country

In the Boston Terrier class, an outstanding specimen is the $3000 winner dog of the Canadian National Exhibition, International Champion Million Dollar King. W. J. Welch of the Liftlock Kennels, shows several fine dogs, and there are a number of entries from the Jubilee Kennels in Toronto, one puppy, "The Burglar Dee-Cee," shown by Mrs. M. Stevens, of Toronto, having won two firsts and two specials at the Hamburg, New York, Show, the best of show in Hamilton and reserve winners in Toronto and London.

Another interesting entry is Highball's Little Man, shown by Mrs. Fred Burridge of Toronto. This dog was reserve winner at the Kitchener show and took first and three seconds at the Toronto show at the Prince George Hotel last November. Its owner refused the sum of $1000 for it recently.

A pair of quiet brown Chinese Chow dogs are another novelty that attracts a good deal of attention, with a single entry in the Pitt Bull terrier class and in a black French bulldog.

The friendly Beagles have a large entry from the Brownton Kenneis of W. Thompson, with a double champion shown by O. Pierson, in Model Swampy Diamond.

Herb Routley shows springer spaniels, including International Champion Trent Valley Cutie, and D. C. Grants cocker spaniels are another notable entry. Here is Mitzie's Gloria, a wonderfully intelligent specimen, with her quartette of puppies. Gloria is a superb bench dog and stands in the judging ring without collar or leash, her soft brown eyes fixed steadfastly on her owner. She got four firsts, one second and reserve winner here last year, while two of her puppies, Gloria's Sensation and Glorias Flying Cloud, took first and second respectively at the Ottawa show this year.

In the Airedale Terrier class, Ringmaster Laddie, owned by Mr. F. J. W. Mason, of Sherbrooke street, took a first yesterday, while Oliver Twist, ("Silver") owned bw Miss S. E. Keighley, of Toronto, a dog that took three firsts, two specials and reserve winners at the Toronto Show, was looking for "more" at this show.

There are some of the keen specimens of Scotch collies on view, with several of Ken Sine's breeding and "Teddy," a novice whose parents were both champions of Quebec, and who is owned by Mrs. Montgomery of King George street.

There are Half a dozen English bulldogs, among them Rex Alaunt, shown by Mrs. F. W. Heggum, of Toronto, a big cream example of the dog whose name "Alaunt" springs from the old Saxon word for this breed.

Sealyham terriers include the champion St. Margaret May Queen, the best of any variety of terrier shown at the Toronto Exhibition, and owned by Miss Alice O'Brien of Toronto.

Other winners at Toronto in the cocker spaniel class are Kelman's Snowball, reserve winner, and Kelman's Snowball, winner in the colored class.

There are a number of bull terriers, with their white coats and pink eyeballs, a black Kerry retriever, smooth haired fox teriers, wire haired fox terriers and a large number of little decorative lap dogs; Pomeranians, with a couple of pure white beauties in this section, and Pekinese, with their mild big eyes and flappy ears. In the judges' tent, which houses these pets are also the large samples of dogdom, in the Russian wolf hound, the Doberman Pinschers and a couple of dignified black Newfoundlands.

Few Days' Use of Uratabs Stops Annoying Bladder Irritations Getting-up-Nights.

Those who know the trials and discomforts of Bladder Weakness should be interested in this letter: "I have been bothered with Bladder Trouble for more than 3 years. A burning irritation was almost constant—and I was obliged to get out of bed perhaps five or six times during a night. Then I heard of Dr. Southworth's Uratabs and, without much hope of help tried them. Wonderful relief came within a few days and I now feel my trouble is practically ended. Am very grateful for what this grand medicine has done for me, and will always use Uratabs whenever I feel it necessary."

No matter what your age may be, if you want to end days of troublesome annoyance and nights of restless misery due to Bladder Weakness and Irritations—you should try the amazing value of Dr. Southworth's "URATABS" at once.

Dr. Southworth is a well-known practicing physician of nearly 50 years' successful experience. URATABS are made from his own special private formula and all druggists are authorized to supply them on guarantee of money back if not satisfactory.

LADIES WITH PRESS PARTY

Some thirty ladies are with the party of British newspaper editors now visiting Canada. They sailed for home from Montreal on Friday. This is a charming group from the feminine contingent. LEFT to RIGHT: Mrs. H. J. Whittick of Wolverhampton; Mrs. Kidd of Oldham; Mrs. Arthur Woodhead, Huddersfield; Miss Bodmin; Mrs. Grotrian, Hull, and Miss Kidd, Oldham.

Heavy Trading in Mines; Three Pass 100,000 Mark

TORONTO, Sept. 14.— (Canadian Press.)—With heavy trading of more than 1,200,000 shares on the standard stock and mining exchange this morning, International Nickel was the feature with transactions of nearly 1,000 shares and a net gain of 3.25 at 68.50. Trading in each of Amulet, Area and Barry Hollinger ran into six figures. Amulet went up sixty to 5.50, while Area rose 6¼ to 82½. Barry Mollinger made a gain of nine points at sixty. Gold Hill firmed 2½ to 28 and Kirkland Lake eased three at 2.22. Noranda advanced 10 at 24.60, while Wright Hargreaves at 7.50 had lost five as did Teck Hughes at 9.24.

Frost In West Sends Price Of Wheat Up

CHICAGO, September 15 (Canadian Press). — With frost reported in Canada and with Liverpool quotations unexpectedly firm, the wheat prices here soared an early advance to-day, after a wavering start. Predictions of cooler weather in the corn belt had a decided bullish effect on the corn market. Opening ⅝c off to ⅝c up, Chicago wheat later showed material gains all around. Corn started at ¼c decline to ¼c advance, and subsequently ascended more than 2 cents. Oats were also firm. Provisions likewise tended upward.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September 128, December 130⅞. Corn, Septemger 94¾, December 96⅛. Oats, September 44½, December 47⅜.

Many New Highs Made In Active Session To-day

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—Active bidding for the high-priced industrial specialties, more than a score of which established record high prices, again featured to-day's active stock market. Heavy buying of the General Motors issues, based on expectations of an unusually favorable August sales report, continued to dominate the trading. The old stock was bid up nearly six points to a new high record at 268, as against the year's low of 145½. Reports that the New Haven and Pennsylvania railroads would be in the market for a large quantity of rails next year brought fresh buying into the steel shares, United States Steel Common moving into new high ground at 158⅜.

International Harvester soared nine points to a new top at 236 and active bidding for Allis Chalmers sent that issue up nearly five points to a new maximum at 118.

Trading Brisk To-day On Toronto Stock Market

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—Brisk trading was well distributed over both the listed and unlisted stocks on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. F. N. Burt was the feature when more than 1,100 shares changed hands, reaching as high as 66, a net gain of two points. Alberta Grain advanced 1¼ at 34, while Brazilian rose a full two points to 194.

Distilleries and Breweries were active. Walkers firmed ½ to 50½, and Industrial Alcohol ¾ to 37⅜, while Seagrams and Carlings remained firm at 27½ and 27 respectively.

The mines were strong. International Nickel reaching 68, a net gain of 2½. Noranda advancing 25 to 24.75, and Amulet 57 to 5.45, while Kirkland Lake dropped one to 2.24.

British American Oil and Northern Bakeries were active but firm, the former remaining at 27¾ and the latter gaining ¼ at 32¼. Bank stocks were steady, the only fluctuation being that Standard gained two at 2.50.

About the Exhibition

All the motor apparatus even to the new ladder truck, which does not yet belong to the city, of the Fire Brigade is in the parade today to the Exhibition Grounds.

There have been no calls, as yet, made upon the services of the fire picket at the Exhibition Grounds, which proves that everyone is combining to protect the buildings and property.

Two strings of splendid jumping horses came in last night from the Sifton stables and the Toronto Hunt Club.

The concessionists staged an old-time party last night after 11 o'clock which lasted until the wee sma' oors of the morning. There was dancing, singing, and plenty of music and fun in front of the east band stand.

The comment of the average housewife last night around the man selling razors was that her husband could not cut wood with an axe.

William Mayell, addressing the directors and Kiwanis Club today describing what he called the unholy racket caused by the early type of motor car, suddenly found his point only too realistically illustrated by the terrific din and clatter which proceeded from the Midway.

Petes Defeat St. Georges in First Game of Series

PETES COME FROM BEHIND TO WIN FIRST GAME FROM SAINTS; TORONTO CHAMPS BEATEN 4 TO 3

Al Heckman Pitches Homesters To Victory and Drives in the Winning Run of Brilliant Ten Innings Game.

VETERAN GOOD IN PINCHES.

Verrall Losing Pitcher, Retiring in Tenth For Gillespie—Sensational Fielding Thrills Crowd at James Stevenson Park.

(By F. D. C.)

The fighting Petes spotted St. George's three runs in the first three innings of yesterday's Senior O.B.A.A. semi-final game at James Stevenson Park and then battled their way from behind to finally beat Buck McKenna's Toronto champs, 4 runs to 3, after ten innings of as exciting baseball as has been seen here in many a moon.

It was a sweet win.

Two misplays, the only errors made by the Petes during the hard-fought struggle, made St. George's early lead possible and it was only after a bitter uphill fight that Manager Swanston's outfit overcame the handicap and snatched victory out of defeat.

Inability to produce safe hits off Al. Heckman when they had men on bases cost the Saints the ball game.

In nearly every inning the T.A.B.A. titleholders had runners in position to score, but the necessary hit was not forthcoming.

The Petes' veteran right hander, while not showing as much stuff as usual, was steady in the pinches and brilliantly supported by his team mates, aside from the two expensive errors already mentioned, held the visitors in check inning after inning; in fact, although the Saints collected eight hits in the last seven frames, they could not cash them in for a single run so stingy was Heckman at critical moments.

And "Heck" had the satisfaction of winning his own game by cracking out the hit that sent Shiner Johnston in with the winning run in the tenth, a fitting climax to a courageous performance by the sterling twirler.

Manager McKenna pinned his faith upon Frankie Verral, his southpaw star, who up to yesterday had lost only one game this season. His record now reads two losses.

Verral fanned only two of the Petes and did not seem to have a very puzzling assortment, but he worked confidently and showed excellent control and with the help of his team mates notably Yank Boyd, the flashy Saints' short stop, he managed to make it a tough proposition to score runs. He disappeared from the picture in the tenth, however, when the first two Peterboro batters reached the runways, Manager McKenna yanking him in favor of Harvey Gillespie, the unbeatable right-hander. The relief pitcher only tossed two balls, Heckman smashing the second off Radke's shins for the hit that won the ball game.

The loss, however, goes to Verral who was, of course, responsible for the runs left on the bases when he was retired.

Brilliant Fielding.

It was a grand ball game, replete with fielding plays that positively sparkled. The Petes had the bulk of the fireworks defensive stunts and gave Heckman wonderful support. Jimmy Hall started the starry display in the first inning when he tore back and pulled down Swing's hard smash with one hand. In the second Harrison jumped into the air to snare Boyd's steaming drive with his gloved hand, and Holyman ran over back of second to make another great one-handed catch in the sixth. Shiner Johnston tore off a fine play of O'Driscoll's roller in the ninth to start a double killing. Batten was responsible for several fine catches in right, and Rose covered plenty of ground around second.

For the Saints, Sniderman and Swan in the outfield contributed nice running catches and Yank Boyd at short turned in a great card, handling nine chances in beautiful style.

The second game of the series will be played at the Maple Leaf Stadium in Toronto on Saturday and is expected to draw a record crowd. The victory of the Petes was altogether unexpected in Toronto and lovers of amateur ball will be out in droves to look Manager Swanston's team over. The Petes have the edge right now and are detemined to wind up the series and enter the finals by beating the Saints on Saturday.

A Bad Start.

The opening frame was not very rosy for the Petes. Heckman could not get the ball over for Swan and the Saints' lead off man walked. He stole second on the first ball, sliding around Rose although the throw beat him. Fraser sacrificed him to third. Radke's easy roller got away from Rose, Swan scoring. Sniderman cracked a long double over Jimmy Hall's head, scoring Radke. O'Driscoll lined to Jimmy Hall. Swing whipped a hard drive to deep left, and Jimmy Hall made a gorgeous gloved-hand catch as the ball was going over his head.

For the Petes, Rose was tossed out by Verrall, Johnston singled over second but Swanston fouled to Radke. Heckman rolled to Boyd, who fumbled, but the ball was deflected to Younder in time to force Johnston.

Harrison robbed Boyd of a hit in the second when he leaped high in the air and pulled down a liner with his gloved hand. Younder popped to Rose, and after Verral was passed, Heckman registered his first strike out with Swan as his victim.

The Petes died in order. Harrison flied to Swan, Jim Hall raised one to Sniderman and Younder tossed out Batten.

A nice piece of stategy that worked successfully until an error crept in gave the Saints their last run in the third. Fraser started the inning by slashing a single over Johnston's head. Radke sacrificed him to second. Sniderman was hit. O'Driscoll drove one to right and Batten made a nice running catch, the runners advancing after the out. Swing walked, filling the bases. Then Holyman and Heckman trapped Sniderman off second and when they started to run him down Fraser broke for the plate and scored when Swanston dropped Heckman's toss. And then on the next ball Boyd lined to Batten, retiring the side.

Holyman, first up for the Petes, struck out, and Jack Hall was thrown out by Verrall. Rose dropped a single into short centre but was forced at second by Johnston.

Beginning the fourth Younder struck out and Verral flied to Jimmy Hall. Holyman tossed out Swan.

The Petes started their run-getting in their half of the frame. Swanston opened hostilities by slashing a single to left and Heckman promptly doubled down the left field foul line, Swanston going to third. Harrison's short fly to Sniderman allowed no chance for a score but Jim Hall singled to right, sending Swanston in with the Petes' first run.

Fraser fanned to start the Saints' fifth, and Radke rolled to Harrison. Sniderman drove another long double to left centre. O'Driscoll bounded to Heckman.

For the Petes, Jack Hall rolled to Fraser. Rose got a life when Fraser dropped Radke's throw but was forced on Johnston's roller to Fraser. Swanston drove a fly to Swing.

Holyman made a circus catch of Swing's apparently safe drive over second in the sixth, grabbing the ball with his gloved hand. Boyd flied to Batten, Yonder singled to left and Verrall dropped a Texas Leaguer into the same field, but Heckman struck out Swan to end the session.

The Game Sewed Up.

The Petes drew up on even terms. Heckman was safe on Younder's fumble. Harrison doubled to deep right field, sending Heckman to third. Jimmy Hall's sacrifice fly to Swan sent Heckman in. Batten rolled to Fraser who made no play and everybody was safe. Holyman popped to Boyd. Batten stole second. Jack Hall beat out a hit to short, Harrison going home. Rose forced Batten at third on a smash to Radke.

Fraser opened the seventh for the Toronto champs with a clean single to left and stole second. Radke flied to Rose. Sniderman flied to Jack Hall in deep centre and Fraser ran to third after the catch. Ross camped under O'Driscoll's high fly.

The Petes' half was soon over, Boyd tossed out Johnston and Heckman and in between Swanston was thrown out by Fraser, Verrall covering the bag.

In the eighth Swing bunted to Heckman, who tossed him out. Boyd singled past Holyman. Younger hit to Rose, forcing Boyd at second. Verrall singled to left. Swan struck out for the third time.

In the home half Harrison bounded one to Boyd, Sniderman made a nice running catch of Jimmy Hall's drive to right centre, and Batten was called out on strikes.

The Saints threatened again in the ninth when Fraser gave them a start with his third hit, a single over second. Radke sacrificed, Sniderman was passed. Johnston grabbed O'Driscoll's bounder and started a lightning fast double play, with Rose handling the play at second.

Holyman rolled to Boyd. Jack Hall flied to Swan and Rose was thrown out by Boyd.

In the tenth Swing flied to Jimmy Hall, Boyd singled to left, Younder hoisted one to Rose and Verrall was easy on a fly to Jack Hall.

Winning the Battle.

The Petes put the winning run over in a hurry. Johnston started the "million dollar" counter on its way by singling over Younder's head. Swanston bunted for a sacrifice and O'Driscoll trying to head Johnston off at second pulled Younder into the air and everybody was safe. Verral was taken out of the box and Gillespie, the Saints' unbeaten right-hander, was sent to the rescue. The game was over with the second ball pitched by the relief pitcher, Heckman cracking a fast roller at Radke which bounded off the third baseman's shins and rolled far into left field while Johnston chugged home with the winning run.

SENATORS TAKE THIRD STRAIGHT

Defeat Tigers 3-2, Athletics Win in Eleventh Inning By Score 5-4.

YANKEES WIN OUT.

NEW YORK, September 15 (Canadian Press). — Washington made it three straight from the Detroit Tigers by taking yesterday's game, 3 to 2.

At Philadelphia the Athletics rallied in the ninth inning of their game with Chicago and won out in the eleventh inning by a score of 5 to 4. Singles by French and Cobb, a pass to Cochrane and a hit by Fox scored the winning run. Bib Falk's two doubles drove in three of the White Sox runs, and he scored the fourth himself.

Boston pounced on Stewart for three runs in the first inning, and never was headed afterward, taking the third straight game of the current series from St. Louis by a 6 to 5 score. Rogell, Flagstead, and Hofmann led the Boston batting attack, while O'Rourke's all-round play continued to feature for the Browns.

Yankees Win Three Straight.

The Yankees made it three in a row over Cleveland by winning yesterday's tussle by 4 to 1, Southpaw Ruether hanging up his thirteenth triumph over the year. The New Yorkers bunched hits off Miller in the third and fourth innings for all their runs. Ruth and Gehrig were stopped with a single apiece in three times at bat.

LEAFS DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER

Defeat Stars 4-3 in First Game, Losing the Second 5 to 2.

RALLIED IN NINTH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press). — Ovid McCracken, recruit from the Danville Club of the Three Eye League, had the honor of pitching the Stars to their 100th victory of the season yesterday, beating Toronto 5 to 2 in second game of a double header. The Leafs won the first, 4 to 2, on a three run splurge in the ninth, banging out five straight hits in that session off Russ Miller.

The Bisons and Rochester Colts halved two listlessly played games at Buffalo, the home team taking the first game, 8 to 1, and Rochester bagging the abbreviated affair 7 to 2. O'Malley, a youngster given a trial by the Bisons, proved the sensation of the day by gathering four hits, stealing a base and negotiating two beautiful catches in centre field.

Tommy Sewell climaxed a great day of hitting by slamming a triple in the eighth inning of the final game of a double-header yesterday to score Woodgie from first base with the run that gave Reading a 7 to 6 victory over Jersey City. The Skeeters took the first decision, 5 to 3.

Sewell hit seven consecutive singles, five in the first game for a perfect day at bat and two in his first two apeparance in the nightcap. He was stopped in the fourth, popping to short, but he got his eighth of the afternoon when he tripled in the eighth. Sewell had hit safely eight times in a row, counting a single in the ninth inning of Tuesday's game. The even split yesterday gave Reading the series by three to two.

The Bears split even in a twin bill with Baltimore.

Needs Seven Homers To Equal 1921 Record

NEW YORK, September 15 (Associated Press). — One home run in every two games from now until the end of the season will put Babe Ruth even with his record 1921 year, when he totalled 59 big swats. He failed to connect off the Indian hurlers yesterday, and Gehrig didn't either, leaving Ruth still seven up on his mate with a pile of 52. At this same period in 1921, Ruth had 56 homers to his credit.

JACK WRIGHT LOSES GAME TO JOHNSTON

Eliminated in Third Round of Men's Singles Tennis Championship.

TIGHT MATCHES.

Henessey Scores Sensational Victory Over Henri Cochet, of France.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 15. — (Canadian Press).—John Hennessey, of Indianapolis, rose to the heights of tennis greatness yesterday to score a sensational victory over Henri Cochet of France in the third round of the United States men's singles tennis championship. He won on sheer grit and staying power in a furious five-set match, 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 3-6, 6-1.

Jack Wright of Montreal, Canada's lone survivor at the end of the second round, was eliminated in the third round by "Little Bill" Johnston of California in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4. Johnston, improving steadily with practice, forehanded the Canadian Davis Cup player into submission.

Hennessey gained an early lead of two sets over Cochet, was overtaken, and then came back to crush with a dazzling barrage of volley placements the player who eliminated 'Big Bill' Tilden in the fourth round of last year's tournament, won the English tournament after beating Tilden again, and downed Johnson in the Davis Cup matches last week.

As a result of the upset, Hennessey will meet Francis T. Hunter in the quarter finals. Hunter yesterday entered the bracket in easy fashion by downing Jean Washer, Belgian champion, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3.

Tilden, however, will clash again with a member of the French Davis Cup team. The lanky Philadelphian, victorious yesterday over Elmer Griffin of New York, 4-6, 6-1, 11-9, 6-0, will take on Jean Borotra.

The "Bounding Basque," like Tilden, had a hard fight for the bracket, but finally won at 2-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3, over Jerry Lang, ex-Columbia University star.

Johnston's quarter final opponent will be either Jacques Brugnon of France or Arnold Jones of Providence, R.I. The two were tied at two sets each when darkness halted play. Brugnon won the first and fourth at 9-7, 6-1, and Jones the second and third, 6-4, 6-3.

Rene LaCoste, the French defending title holder, scored his third straight victory of the tournament by beating Takeichi Harada, Japanese who is ranked third in the United States, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

LaCoste's slow shots, always within the lines, forced Harada to beat himself.

Stiffer opposition is scheduled for LaCoste to-day in Manuel Alonso, second in the national rating list. The little Spaniard from Philadelphia needed all his cunning to win his third round match from John Van Ryn, promising Princeton star, at 5-7, 6-3, 6-1, 6-4, 6-0.

PIRATES ADD LEAGUE LEAD

Advanced To Four Games When They Win Double From Boston.

GIANTS SPLIT TWIN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15. — (Canadian Press).—The Pittsburgh Pirates' lead in the National League was advanced to four games yesterday when they bagged both ends of a double-header from Boston on their home grounds, 6-2 and 3-0. The Braves now have lost 10 straight and the Pirates won seven straight.

Neither the New York Giants nor the St. Louis Cardinals, in second place, made any headway as they divided a double-header, the Cardinals winning the first, 6 to 3, in ten innings, and the Giants the second, 9 to 3, at St. Louis.

Chicago fell six and one-half games behind the Pirates when they were trounced by Brooklyn at Chicago, 10 to 6.

Reds Win 7-6.

The Cincinnati Reds gave Philadelphia a ninth inning surprise party with a rally that netted four runs and turned a 6 to 3 defeat into a 7 to 6 victory. It made eight straight wins for Cincinnati.

Kent Greenfield, knocked out of the box by the Pirates in one of Tuesday's games, essayed a comeback in the first Pirate-Braves contest yesterday but with little more success. The Pirates combined his offerings for 13 safe hits. Ray Kremer allowed the Braves only six hits.

The nightcap was a tight pitchers' duel between Miljus and Robertson. Lloyd Waner's single and Wright's double gave the League leaders a run in the first inning and they added another in the second on Grantham's triple and Harris' sacrifice. The final tally of the game came across in the fourth on a walk to Grantham, Gooch's double and Miljus' sacrifice. The Braves had practically no opportunities to score, so effective was Miljus' pitching.

Lloyd and Paul Waner collected eight hits between them in the two games.

Canuck Cricketers Win Third Straight

PHILADELPHIA, September 15 (Canadian Press). — Toronto's cricket team concluded its invasion of Philadelphia by winning its third straight match yesterday.

The Canadians defeated the British officers' team, 214 runs to 61, in a single inning. After piling up 214, Toronto, with C. A. Seagram and E. Carlton still at bat, declared its inning closed, and figured correctly, for the bowling of Henderson and Seagram was too much for the officers, who were quickly retired.

Seagram was high scorer for the Canadians with 52, not out.

TIGHT RACE IN NATIONAL

Settlement of Championship Promises To Hang Fire to Last.

18 GAMES LEFT.

NEW YORK, September 15 (Canadian Press). — Definite settlement of the National League championship promises to hang fire right up to the eleventh hour, judging from the closely huddled positions of the contenders. Pittsburgh, New York and St. Louis have 18 games remaining on their schedules, not including yesterday's contests, while Chicago has 15 left.

For the rest of the season, including postponements, the card reads:

Pittsburgh—Boston, 2; Brooklyn, 5; New York, 4, all at Pittsburgh; Chicago, 4 at Chicago; Cincinnati, 3 at Cincinnati.

New York—At St. Louis, 3; at Pittsburgh, 4; at Cincinnati, 5; at Philadelphia, 3; at Brooklyn, 2; Philadelphia, 1, at New York.

St. Louis—New York, 3; Philadelphia, 5; Boston, 5; Chicago, 2, all at St. Louis; Cincinnati, 3 at Cincinnati.

Chicago—Brooklyn, 1; Boston, 5; Philadelphia, 3; Pittsburgh, 4, all at Chicago; St. Louis, 2, at St. Louis.

So Arthur Deagon is dead!

Few of those who chance upon these lines ever heard him or heard of him, but most of those who did no doubt retain a golden memory of the sweet singing comedian they heard here in the part of the janitor in "Peggy From Paris." That occasion was his only appearance in Peterborough, a transitory star of the theatrical firmanent flashing across our little world within the narrow but seemingly infinite bounds of the stage of the Grand Theatre in its almost forgotten days or rather nights of glory.

Tom Stenton, Price Adamson, Jack Cook, any of the house crew, whose habitat has been so long behind the big curtain, could put a tape line to the stage dimensions, but who could measure the lengths and breadths of those misty, glamorous spaces suggested by the beguiling art of the scene craftsmen, and those other farther, fairer fields of a restless, questioning fancy where the yearning spirit forever seeks that mystic, evasive phantom we call beauty. The immaterial stuff of dreams, things that always have been and always will be, but never can be! Often this luminous beauty was kindled in the theatre, for instance by the tenderness of the loyal, patient, loving heart of Maggie Strand in J. M. Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows"; the finale of "Carmen" with the haunting orchestral pianissimo as Neuresis claims the wilful, former cigarette girl; the breathless fight on the stairs in "The Breed of the Treshams"; the loveliness of Jane Cowl and so on even to the sentiment of "Peggy From Paris."

At any rate it seemed a thing of beauty to the young gentlemen from M. Fessenden's Collegiate ensconced along the railing of the upper gallery. To them "Peggy From Paris" was a clean, smart, tuneful musical comedy and Arthur Deagon's was the name and personality associated with it. His introduction was as the gruff, slangy, rough voiced janitor, and the surprise of the show was his singing of the first of his songs revealing a really effective tenor voice of range and power and appealing tone.

"Lilly there's Johnnies aplenty Roaming all over this town, etc."

Do you remember the opening verse of "Lil My Easter Lily"? It stopped the show, to use a phrase not then coined and current. George Ade wrote the book and lyrics, William Loraine the music, and Henry W. Savage produced it. Another hit was an interpolated song "I'm the Only Star That Twinkles on Broadwawy" by Peggy. There wasn't a dull spot in the entire vocal score, event to the bit of drollery in "Henny."

For he lost his heart when he heard the tune
That Henny played on his big bassoon.

The Collegiate generation today presumably battens on the whole dumb show from Max Sennett to,—but it's too dismal a subject to dwell on. Better one "Peggy From Paris" than a million feet of the so-called celebrities of celluloid.

Arthur Deagon died suddenly in Boston about two weeks ago during a dress rehearsal of George M. Cohan's new musical comedy "The Merry Malones." The author himself had to step into the part for the opening in Boston and will remain with the show until the casting agent finds another actor.

Amelia Bingham also died in New York two weeks ago. She was seen here in the comedy "The Climbers" in the days when Peterboro could boast two or three "good shows" a week.

The fact that these two stars were known to Peterboro is a pathetic reminder of the devolution of the theatre in all but metropolitan centres. One feels something of the emotion of the Russian exile whose home is stripped and vacant or has been converted into a communistic tenement. Probably it is better not to simplify the figure. And when death takes men like Deagon or others we have seen and heard we are affected as are Russian emigres who might hear of the passing of Grand Duke Nicholas or other personages of the homeland before the revolution.

So a sigh for Arthur Deagon, and Peggy and the male chorus that sang:

Forgot are the looks of the musty books
But we're true to our college days.

DOCTOR'S LIFE SAVED

Would rather miss breakfast than his Little Daily Dimeful of Kruschen Salts.

"It Is the Very Salt of Life"

READ THE STORY OF HIS AMAZING RECOVERY

The following letter is an entirely spontaneous and disinterested testimony to the value of Kruschen, written by a doctor. We are glad to be able to bring the claims of Kruschen Salts, backed by such an eminent authority, to the notice of readers.

Here Is the Letter:

April 2nd, 1927.

Dear Sirs:

During the past few months I have often felt inclined to write you concerning the efficiency of your Mineral Salts, but the customary prejudice of the profession against the giving of testimonials has hitherto hindered me from doing so.

However, the very pronounced benefit I have experienced from a long course of the Kruschen Salts compels me to hesitate no longer.

For the sake of brevity we omit the next paragraph of the doctor's letter, which describes in medical terms the symptoms of a very serious illness from which he was suffering. He then continues:—

Knowing that the usual drugs would be of no avail, I eventually took to a systematic course of your Kruschen Salts and have much pleasure in telling you that the results have been almost phenomenal. My friends never expected me to recover, but now I can thankfully say I have shed my former woes like a garment. Hyperacidity, Gouty Symptoms, Hæmorrhoids, Rheumatic pains, though none very severe, were each of them sufficient to make themselves unpleasant at times. They have all vanished, and now I keep to the Kruschen Salts with the utmost regularity. In fact, I would rather forgo breakfast than miss my morning dose. It is undubitably the very Salt of Life.

I may tell you plainly that I have no interest in advertising your perfectly-balanced natural corrective, but I feel that if I did not write and acquaint you with my own personal experience I should be wanting in common gratitude.

You are at perfect liberty to make what use you may desire of this letter—all I ask is that you refrain from divulging my name.

I remain,

Yours very truly,

Why YOU Need Kruschen, Too

The need for Kruschen Salts first began when civilization started. Lack of fresh air and exercise robbed people of certain mineral salts which Nature ordained as essential. As civilization advanced, the health of mankind tended to deteriorate. And medical science has to-day proved that this is due to the lack of those salts.

The consequence is constipation—failure to get rid of excess waste matter caused by our all-too-pleasant diet and comfortable, easy-going way of life. And so follow half our troubles—rheumatism, excessive fatigue, unaccountable lethargy, depression and sleeplessness.

The Alternative to Ill-health

The "little daily dimeful" of Kruschen contains exactly one day's supply of those mineral salts that Nature prescribes for your well-being. It is the "little daily dimeful"—not a big dose occasionally—that keeps you well. Just as much as will lie on a ten-cent piece, tasteless in your morning cup of coffee or tea. This is the way to constant and complete fitness, internal cleanliness, energy and cheerfulness—now and throughout life. 234

BIG FOUR WINS CHALLENGE CUP FROM BRITISH

Check Britain's Thrilling Comeback to Win Second Game 8-5.

CLOSELY CONTESTED.

Losers Battle Americans To Standstill Throughout Last Seven Periods.

WESTBURY, N. Y., September 15. — Canadian Press. — The United States "Big Four" again reigned supreme in the world of polo but only after the most spirited challenge they have ever had.

In a close and fiercely fought battle yesterday afternoon on the green turf of the Meadowbrook Club the United States four horsemen checked Great Britain's thrilling comeback to win the second and deciding match of the international cup series by a score of 8 to 5.

The margin of triumph was gained in the first period when the brilliant young United States forward, Tommy Hitchcock, scored three sensational goals in succession, but it took all of the defensive skill of the Yankees to hold this margin against the spirited attack of the reorganized British team.

Throughout the last seven periods the Britons immeasurably strengthened by the addition of the hard riding Captains, George and Dening, to the forward line, fought the Americans to a standstill in a battle that contrasted sharply with their rout in the opening game last Saturday.

Where they had been overwhelmed 13 to 3 in the first match, the invaders yesterday came back with a desperate last-ditch bid that fell little short of extending the series to a deciding game. Hitchcock's dazzling open sortie was too much to offset in the face of the brilliant United States defence although the British forced the attack throughout the last half of the match and once in the seventh chukker, came within two goals of tying the score.

Greater Team Work.

A colorful crowd estimated at 25,000, cheering Britain's uphill stand, saw the greater experience and team work, plus the sensational hitting of Hitchcock, decide the issue. It gave the United States possession of the historic international cup for the third straight time, and the sixth time in nine contests for it since 1886. It was presented to the victors after the match by Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Sr., mother of the United States star, and will remain in the Meadowbrook Club's custody for at least another three years, inasmuch as the British under exisiting agreements, cannot challenge again before 1930.

Hitchcock, as he was in the opening match, scintillated on the attack, scoring five of the winners' goals altogether, but except for his flashing spurt in the opening period, Tommy rose to his customary heigths only at intervals thereafter. His work in the first six minutes of the game, however, was enough to decide the battle. Two of his three goals in that chukker were tallied in less than a minute of actual play, the first on a free shot after a foul by Atkinson, and the second on a pass from Webb. The third was a pretty 30 yard effort from a difficult angle.

Hold their Own.

Webb, the left hander, with the deft touch, added to the United States score in the second period but after that the British more than held their own. In scrimmages that were marked by the roughest sort of scrambling for the ball, one resulting in a leg injury to Malcolm Stevenson the invaders fought with every resource at their command as the play surged up and down the field.

Captain George at No. 1, and Major Atkinson, a veteran back, were the stars of the British team, the former scoring two goals and giving the United States' captain, Milburn, a rugged battle, while Atkinson performed brilliantly on the defense, besides dashing up the field to aid the attack frequently.

Scored in Fourth.

The British drive did not gather headway until the fourth period when Roark and Atkinson scored in succession, and it reached its peak in the seventh chukker. After drawing up to 6-4, the Britons appeared to have an excellent chance to close the gap, but goals by Webb toward the end of the seventh period, and by Milburn at the start of the final chukker, settled the issue.

Roark's inability to capitalize a number of penalty shots cost the Britons heavily. He was able to make only one of them good and had to loft the ball out of the reach of the Americans grouped at the goal to gain the tally. Steverison shared the defensive honors with Milburn in balking these British efforts. Hitchcock, on the other hand, also failed to get the "breaks" on many occasions after spectacular dashes down the field, missing five goals by margins that could be measured in a few feet.

The three goal margin of the United States' victory was the slimmest to which this "Big Four" has ever been held in international cup play. Three years ago the same combination swamped the British 16 to 5 and 14 to 5, while they had a 10 goal margin last Saturday:

The lineup and summary:

America (8), Briton (5.)

J. Watson Webb, Position No. 1, Captain Richard George.

Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., Position No. 2, Captain John T. Dening.

Malcolm Stevenson, Position No. 3 Captain T. C. I. Roark.

Theatres

AT THE REGENT.

More than a month was devoted to the casting of "Breed of the Sea," F. B.O.'s visualization of Peter B. Kyne's magazine story "Blue Bloods and Pirates" which comes to the Regent Theatre for an engagement of three days starting to-day.

Jack Votion, head of the casting department at F.B.O.'s studio in Hollywood, aside from the principals trotted for the inspection of Ralph Ince, the director, more than 500 types to portray pirates, sailors, South Sea islanders, etc.

As to the featured players with Ince himself playing the lead, a dual role, the cast as assembled for the picture can well be called "the perfect personnel." It includes the fascinating Margaret Livingston who has a score of successes to her credit in the most exacting role of her career as an Island girl; Dorothy Dunbar, the beautiful, discovered by Edwin C. King, in charge of production and hailed in Hollywood as THE discovery of 1926; aPt Harmon and Alphonse Ethier character actors in demand by every picture company on the coast and Shannon Day the former Follies beauty who is best remembered for her setllar work in "The Vanishing American."

There's a half dozen minor roles but played by the pick of talent in Hollywood.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Sept. 15.—The regular league service at Zion on Thursday evening was well attended. Fifty-four being present, with the khaki leading in the contest points. Earl Fairman, missionary convener, had charge of the program. After a short song service and the usual business, an interesting program was given. A hymn by the Blues, prayer by Mr. A. Barnum, scripture lesson read by Grenville Meiklejohn, and devotional talk by Rev. Mr. Daniel preceded a vocal duet by Messrs. Fred Barnum and Roy Fry.

The most interesting part of the program was a talk by Miss Nellie Bennett dealing with her experiences on a two months's trip to England and Wales. This was received with much appreciation by those present as Miss Bennett brought out many interesting points regarding Old Country people and customs as well as vividly portraying the many famous spots visited.

Mr. Fairman dispensed with the usual topic owing to the lateness of the hour. The next meeting is in charge of the citizenship department.

It was decided that the present officers should hold office until the end of the calendar year and the annual meeting be held the last week of December, rather than the last of September. The contest also continues until that time and the interest is bound to be great as the Reds and Blues strive to overtake the leading Khaki and White groups.

Following the league service a short congregational meeting was held to make plans for the anniversary services at Zion church. This event will take place on the Sunday following Armistice Day or November 13th. The session expects to secure the services of Rev. L. Whyte of Holloway street United Church, Belleville for this important occasion, and as he is noted for his wonderful ability, both in the pulpit and outside, a splendid anniversary occasion should result.

MISSIONARY GIVES SPLENDID SERMONS

Rev. R. M. McMullen Preaches at Dunsford United Anniversary.

DUNSFORD, Sept. 14.—The anniversary services on Sunday and the concert on Monday evening in St. David's United church were a success in every way. The services on Sunday were conducted by the pastor, the Rev. J. F. Everson, while the Rev. Reginald McMullen, who is on furlough from Korea, delivered two very practical and interesting addresses to large audiences.

In the morning Mr. McMullen gave a description of the people and the country and in the evening he discussed the conditions under which the people live and the religious life and outlook.

Korea is a land of hills and sparkling waters. Only 20 per cent of the land is arable. The people are very poor. The Japanese and Chinese lord it over the Koreans and live in the hope that some day they will absorb them. Interest is very high, running from 24 per cent to 36 per cent. Many of the natives are compelled to leave their own land because of oppressive commercial conditions.

Mr. McMullen stated that he did not consider it enough for us to give the Koreans the gospel, we must establish within their borders and before their eyes a clean business life that would be a demonstration of the gospel we preach. The truths of Christianity must be made practical if we of the West would have influence to christianize the East.

The church was prettily decorated with asters, gladioli, geraniums, dahlias, sweet peas, and phlox. The music in the morning was furnished by the members of the Emily United church choir and in the evening by the members of Dunsford United church, three choice selections being rendered at each service.

The Monday evening concert was well attended and the program much appreciated. It consisted of readings by Mrs. Gerald McClelland, elocutionist of Peterborough; vocal solos by Percy H. Skitch; violin solos by Clayton Taylor; Mrs. Thomas Moon and Ernie played the mouth organ and the bones. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Reginald McMullen and the Rev. Milton L. Hinton, of Bobcaygeon. The proceeds amounted to $100.

Somehow the evening never seems complete without this fine old ginger ale

TO THINK of entertaining is to think instinctively of "Canada Dry." For there is something about this fine old ginger ale which adds a bit of distinction to every occasion and makes your home, indeed, a pleasant place to be.

The very sparkle of this famous and honored drink brings memories of some well-remembered visit to a great hotel or exclusive club. Just to pour it forth into the long-stemmed glasses is to give new charm to napery and silver and add a cheery, joyous note to the bridge game, the dinner, or the dance.

So it has been said that the evening never seems complete without this Champagne of Ginger Ales. It accentuates a welcome . . . lingers in a farewell. "I've had a lovely time" is no idle, empty phrase when recollections of truly pleasant hours warm the parting handclasp.

In all the world there is no beverage so sure to please so many people as "Canada Dry." The witchery of a wonderful flavor has made it the outstanding beverage success of all time.

FINDS CHANGE GLACIAL THEORY

Scientist Offers Proof of Existence of Men in America.

ARROWS IN FOSSILS

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

DENVER, Col., Sept 15 — (United Press).—Although scientists for two score years were firm in their belief that man did not live in America during the glacial age some 1,250,000 years ago, most of them now have changed their minds.

Discoveries made by Dr. Harold J. Cook, famous Denver paleontologist, and his associates from the Colorado Museum of Natural History not only have proven that the first known man in the world lived in the United States 4,000,000 years ago, but the same man also lived in the same district about 2,000,000 years later.

The first man lived in a virtual tropical paradise which covered what now is the United States, Canada and Alaska.

But with the coming of the ice age a great silence settled over the area which a few hundred thousand years before had been teeming with the most luxurious of life. For a million or more years nothing stirred upon the face of the land.

Snow fell. But there was no one to see it. It was bitter cold. But no one to feel it.

Then, slowly the ice barrier began to recede and in the course of many centuries the glacial age appeared.

Imperceptibly it came. Two thousand, three thousand years passed. Perhaps it was but one degree warmer. But as the years passed it became less cold. A bit of green appeared upon what for ages had been bleak, ice covered plains.

Trees began to spring up. A flower peeped here and there from a protected spot.

As time went on, animal life, greatly modified from that which had lived in the same area so long before, appeared. Soon great herds of shaggy elk, flat horned bison and other hardy beasts were browsing the still none too fertile land in search of food.

It is at this stage of the world's progress that one of Dr. Cook's latest distoveries fits in.

As in the case of the quarternary age, scientists until recently had not believed that man lived in America during the glacial period. a

And again Dr. Cook caused the theories to turn right about face.

While searching for prehistoric animal fossils in New Mexico, Dr. Cook came upon an extremely well preserved specimen of a glacial age flat-horned bison. He had it shipped to Denver for mounting.

Upon examining it more closely in his laboratory here, Dr. Cook found to his surprise three perfectly formed arrow heads lodged in the vertebrae of the million year old skeleton.

The animal could not have lived at any time but during the glacial period. And the arrow heads, slim, perfectly made from greyish purple flint were like nothing ever found by archaelogists delving into more modern Indian remains.

Dr. Cook announced his belief that man had lived in the glacial age. Most of the scientiifc world after viewing his evidence agreed with him. Work was redoubled in an effort to find more specimens of human life during the time.

Several recent discoveries made by Dr. Cook and his associates are now being exhamined and catalogued in the Colorado museum. Nothing has been told about them. No one but the scientists know what they are.

"We believe them to be of extreme importance," Dr. Cook said, "but we hesitate to make any statements concerning them now. Next year, perhaps, when we are more sure of ourselves we will have something to say."

WAREHOUSE FOR SALE.

Pursuant to the powers of Sale, contained in a certain Mortgage which will be produced at any time for inspection, Tenders will be received by the undersigned up till 4 p.m., Saturday, the 15th of October, 1927, for the purchase of the southerly 100 feet from front to rear of Lot No. 10, south of Simcoe Street and west of George Street, in the City of Peterborough, accompanied by a marked cheque for 10% of the amount of the Tender, payable to the order of M. ANNUAL JOINT LUNCHEON AT EXHIBITION GROUNDS

Splendid Address on Automotive Development Marks Pleasant Affair.

MUSICAL PROGRAMME.

Exhibition Board and Kiwanis Club Are Mutually Helpful Organizations.

Twenty-five years of automobile development was the subject of the address of major William Mayall, president of the Jolley Motor Company, of Hamilton, at the luncheon of the Kiwanis Club and Exhibition directors held this afternoon in the dining tent of St. James' United Church Ladies' Aid.

Mr. Mayall, who is a member of the Kiwanis Club of Hamilton, brought the greetings of his fellow-members to the Peterborough Club, and the good wishes of the Mayor and aldermen of Hamilton to the City Council of Peterborough.

Prefacing his address with a dramatic recital of his introduction to his first automobile, driven by an older brother along the rural lanes of an English county, Mr. Mayall provoked many a grin from his audience as he related the deficiencies of this early 3½ horse-power car.

Enumerating the various stages in the development of the modern car, Mr. Mayall said the introduction of electric ignition, was the most notable advance. The next step was the invention of sliding gear transmission, then came the electric lighting and starting system. In recent days the outstanding changes had been the bringing in of closed bodies and balloon tires.

An infant business twenty-five years ago, the automobile industry had become the second or third in the world. One of the factors contributing to the progress, was the development of alloys of steel to withstand the heavy demands on it. The steel companies solved the problem of manufacturing steel that was hard and tough, yet ductile. The steel industry had developed along lines parallel with those of the motor industry.

"Aside from the question "What is Henry Ford going to do next?" Mr. Mayall declared that the query most frequently addressed to him was, "When will saturation point be reached in motor production?" In reply, Mr. Mayall expresses belief that saturation will never be reached in industry. In support of this contention, Mr. Mayall referred to the methods used by the leading companies in estimating the demand for an ensuing year. A survey is taken of all the resources of the principal buying countries. If normal conditions of industry and agriculture prevail, the potential market for cars is placed at one-fifth of the population. The normal life of a car is five years. This means in any given year, that twenty per cent. of existing cars are due for replacement.

To-day, said Mr. Mayall, one could purchase for $1,000 a car that before the war would have cost $2,500. The reduction in the price of more expensive cars was on a similar scale. Standardization and mass production accounted for this lowering of prices. A significant fact concerning the auto mobile industry was that it was the first to pay labor more than it demanded. Paying higher wages and insisting on greater output, the industry secured a production unequalled by any other industry except steel. In the automobile plants, there were no labor unions and no strikes.

Approximately seventy per cent. of cars purchased were used for business and professional purposes. In all his experience he had never known of a single case in which a home was mortgaged for the purchase of a car. On the other hand, he had known of many cases where men had worked two hours extra a day to pay for a car.

Despite depreciation and expenses of operation, the automobile was the cheapest, most efficient and most convenient form of transportation known in the world to-day.

Tom McIndoo, vice-president of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, thanked the speaker for the address and voiced the appreciation of the farming community at the efforts of the Kiwanis Club to promote interchange of ideas.

President Isaac P. McNabb of the Kiwanis Club, chairman of the luncheon in calling on Roland Denne, president of the Exhibition Board, paid a tribute to Mr. Denne and his co-workers for their labors in developing the Fair.

Mr. Denne thanked the Kiwanis Club for co-operation in boosting the Exhibition. It had been an uphill fight for ten years. The Exhibition Board had spent $10,000 in improvements. If the Board had the money it could put on a show surpassing any outside of Toronto. For years they had been battling with the Dominion government to have Peterborough Exhibition placed in Class A alongside Ottawa, and London Exhibitions.

Miss Edna Joyce and Buddie Melva artistes on the vaudeville programme of the Exhibition, contributed musical items to the luncheon programme.

GOVERNMENTS FACE OPEN CLASH OVER REJECTION OF PROPOSALS

Might Develop Into Tariff War, is the Opinion of Some Officials.

GIVE AND TAKE BASIS.

Present Rates Will Prevail Until U. S. Ready to Begin Discussions.

WASHINGTON D. C., September 16. — Canadian Press. — Rejection by France of United States proposals for a most-favored-nation commercial treaty to correct French tariff discriminations against American goods brought the two governments to the verge of an open clash yesterday that, in the opinion of some officials might develop into a tariff war.

While the French communication, declining the offer was not made public, it was said authoritatively at the State Department that there will be little delay in formulating an answer as the tariff act forbids the negotiation of treaties as to tariffs on any basis but that of equal treatment for all nations.

Washington officials indicated astonishment that the French foreign office and its technical advisers were not fully advised as to the provisions of the American tariff act. The nature of the counter proposals, however is taken as an indication that they were not, since they could have been no point in suggesting to the Washington government a course of action it could not follow within the law even if it so desired.

May Impose Penalty Duties.

It is also uncertain whether the French government is aware of the so-called retaliatory provisions in section 317 of the United States tariff act under which the president may impose penalty duties or even absolute embargoes against importations from countries exercising tariff discriminations against American goods. It is practically certain that the American answer to the French reciprocity suggestion will make no mention of these provisions confining itself to an exposition of the limitations of the law which make the French plan out of the question.

It is equally certain however that the possibility that the penalty provisions of the tariff act might come into use for the first time to meet the situation raised by the new French tariff schedules was given increasingly serious consideration yesterday by officials of the State and Commerce Departments. The normal correspondence between the two governments is not as yet at a stage where any open threat of retaliatory measure is to be expected, although some elements of the French answer to the original American suggestion verge on that character.

Seek Give and Take Basis.

The French communication not only rejected the most favored nation treaty negotiations, but declined to grant any temporary relentment for American goods of the maximum schedules of the French tariff reform decree of August 30, unless and until the United States had formally committed itself to French proposal for negotiations on a give and take reciprocity basis as to specific duties imposed by each country. In the event of an agreement for such negotiations, the French communication added that France would be willing to grant a fifty per cent. easement from maximum tariff rates on American goods affected, but warned that this temporary relief would be promptly withdrawn and the full maximum rates reimposed in the event the negotiations failed.

The communication reached the State Department late in the day, and there was no opportunity for detailed consideration. It was withheld from publication under the rule of courtesy that requires opportunity for simultaneous publication of such communications by the originating government but Associated Press despatches from Paris were said to have conformed closely to the note.

Secretary Kellogg left Washington last night for a vacation of two weeks at his home in St. Paul Minn. and did not have an opportunity to discuss the note with President Coolidge. However limitations of the tariff act which forbid negotiations except on the basis of equal treatment are regarded by the State Department officials as so clear and binding that there is no doubt what the America reply must be.

THE WEATHER

Ideal weather conditions prevailed to-day for the Fair. The weather could not be improved on. Warm, but not too warm, blue skies, with a few fleecy clouds lazily drifting by, no wind, no dust—but why enumerate further? If the Fair directors and the vendors of pink lemonade, icecream, sandwiches, pop, and "hot dogs," were not satisfied they are hard to please. The hot wave which was promised for yesterday, failed to come this far east. The highest temperature here was but 70 degrees. In Toronto it was eight degrees higher, while further west the temperature went over 90 degrees. At the eastern limits of the province heavy rain fell. A particularly fine day is usually to be viewed with suspicion, and if the expected happens we will see some showers to-morrow. I hope I may be wrong.—W. P.

Issue Ban to Curb Paralysis Epidemic

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—A ban has been put on the travelling privileges of the public during the epidemic of infantile paralysis to the extent that children under 18 years of age will not be permitted to reside outside of their home municipalities. Such an order has been sent in placard form to every post office in the province for display.

Copies are also being sent to the provincial police with instructions to post in a conspicuous place outside the post office. Local boards of health are being notified by letter about the new order, which they are expected to enforce in their respective communities.

BUSSES PACKED WITH VISITORS

Fair Goers Jam Vehicles and Those Shut Out Try to Climb On.

FAIR IS WORTH IT

Anyone doubtful of the success of the Exhibition should try to get an Exhibition bound bus at the corner of Charlotte and George streets, between seven and nine o'clock. It would be acceptable to most patrons if they were supplied with a large shoe horn with which to insert themselves into the human crush within the bus. When the door is finally closed after the last passenger has wedged himself in and done the pancake act for long enough to permit the door to swing behind him, thus holding him in place, many attempt to climb on the engine hood, fenders, steps and even the bumpers. The mystery is how they still maintain human form after such confinement. Of course, when the door is opened at the destination they are all expelled by the simple process of expansion, by those in the interior, buried deep in the press. It is certain that for nothing less than the Peterborough Exhibition would some people endure such trials and tribulations. As it is, they come back for more.

Extra busses brought in by the Border Transit Company are doing good work, but the rush of patrons at these special rush hours would tax any transportation system.

KNIGHTS TAKING ORPHANS TO FAIR

Children From Children's Aid and St. Vincent's Shelters To Have Outing.

The little children who are housed at the Shelter and at St. Vincent's Orphanage will have a big day on Saturday, when they will be guests of the Knights of Columbus at the Exhibition Grounds, not for a half a day, as in former years, but for all day, with dinner as a mid-day interlude in a session of fun and frolic, made possible through the co-operation of President Denne and the Exhibition Board director and the managers of the Midway shows.

This is the fourth annual outing of the sort arranged by the Knights of Columbus, who give every year a Christmas and a Fair week treat to the children of the Shelter and the Orphanage. In the morning, the small lads and lasses will be taken on an education tour of the buildings and the animal quarters, where everything will be explained to them in detail. Dinner on the grounds will be followed by a visit to the grandstand and the performance of which they will be witnesses, preceded by a tour of the Midway and its various attractions.

The visit will be in charge of Grand Knight A. Costello and Frank Fairen, assisted by members of the society.

DANCER WANTS TO FLY ACROSS

Puts Clause in Theatre Contract For Release For Flight.

WITH GERMAN ACE.

VIENNA, Sept. 16.—(United Press.)—Lena Amsel, popular Viennese dancer, soon to star in the American play "Broadway," has introduced a clause into her contract under which she can be released as soon as the weather becomes good enough for a trans-Atlantic flight.

Some weeks ago she announced that she would accompany the German war ace, Ernst Udet, on a flight he proposes to make to New York.

Chinese Baby Named After Col. Lindbergh

CHICAGO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has another namesake. He is one Long Hop, a little baby born a few days ago in Chinatown. His chinese parents, impressed by Col. Lindbergh's feat, wanted to name their baby boy after him, but they wanted a name with a Chinese ring to it. After much thought the name was chosen today.

POULTRY SHOW HIGHLY PRAISED BY TWO JUDGES

New Building Needed, However, For Proper Display of Birds.

MOST CLASSES GOOD.

Outstanding Birds Shown in Some Classes, is Comment of Judges.

Many nice things were said of the Poultry Show by the two judges, M. B. Crosby and A. W. Tyson, both of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The standard of exhibits is on the whole very high, says Mr. Crosby, with some birds of remarkably fine qualities. Mr. Tyson declares the show this year has been one of the best he attended.

Both judges, however, had a criticism to offer regarding the accommodation provided for the poultry. A modern and more commodious building is required, they think, if the show is to continue to make progress.

"The show deserves better accommodation," said Mr. Tyson, whose third visit to Peterborough this is. Pointing to the cages of water fowl piled one tier above another, Mr. Tyson remarked, "That is something very unusual, especially in an up-to-date fair. It does not do justice either to the bird or to the men who are showing them.

Mr. Crosby spoke in the same strain. "Birds do not appear at their best when they are placed high on top of other cages," he said. It makes them appear "leggy" as compared with those below. The judge is really looking up at them and this fact might possibly give him a wrong impression of them. A bigger and better building is really necessary here for the Poultry Show.

Barred Plymouth Rocks, said Mr. Cosby, were extra good, White Plymouth Rocks were good, and Partridge Rocks fair. The classes of Wyandottes on view were all of fine quality with an especially fine showing of Partridge Wyandottes. The Jersey Black Giants, he said, formed one of the best classes he had ever seen in a Fall Show. Anconas and Black Minorcas were good. Black Leghorns, although forming a small class, were of splendid quality. Blue Andalusians were of fine standard, with some outstanding birds among them. Leghorns on view were of excellent appearance in all classes with many birds of exceedingly high quality. The Black Houdans were of unusually high standard. Hamburgs, both Golden and Silver Spangled, were a group of good birds with a remarkably fine class of old birds in the silver spangled section. The Gold Pencilled and Silver Pencilled Hamburgs, shown together, made a small but attractive class. The Campines were a small class, but exhibited a high degree of quality. Cornish was a small class but fair in quality.

Partridge Cochins and English Dorkings were well represented.

Redcaps were just fair. Buff Orpingtons were, to use Mr. Cosby's words, "Real fine stuff." White Orpingtons were surprisingly small in number, but among them were some birds that gained the hearty commendation of the judges. White-crested Black Polish were also few in number but of good quality. Silver Polish and Golden Polish had a number of fowls that took the eye. Seabright Bantams formed a big class with a high standard of excellence. Rose-comb Bantams were also satisfactory from point of view both of numbers and quality, but Black Cochins were only fair.

Discussing the exhibits on which he passed judgment, Mr. Tyson said there was a good entry of Rhode Island Single Comb Reds with fine quality all through. Rose Comb Reds, while not so numerous, or of such a high standard, were nevertheless worthy of taking part in an exhibition like the Peterborough Fair. Light Brahmas were largely represented in all section. Good entries and many fine birds featured alike the Brown Red Game Bantams, Dark Brahmas, and Black Red Game Bantams. In the last named class the prize winning cock gained the special award for the best game bantam in the show. Numerous examples were on view of Buff Cochins and Brown Cochins, while Silkies were well represented by a group of attractive looking fowl. There were goodly numbers of all the popular varieties of guinea fowl, turkeys of all types, with the best entry of water fowl which Mr. Tyson has ever seen at any Fall Fair. The Toulouse gander, belonging to H. L. VanAllen was given the prize as the best bird in this section of the show.

BRIGHTON MAN IS CHAIRMAN COBOURG UNITED PRESBYTERY

Conference Held in Norham Elects Officers for the Year.

BANQUET SERVED

Campbellford Minister is Treasurer—Baltimore Supplies Presbytery Secretary.

NORHAM, September 16. — The following were elected at the meeting of the Cobourg Presbytery in Norham United Church yesterday:

Chairman—Rev. J. S. I. Wilson of Brighton.

Secretary—Rev. J. G. McKee, of Baltimore.

Treasurer—Rev. C. E. Daniel, of Campbellford.

An address was given by Rev. Mr. Gandier, of Toronto, who has just returned from a trip to the Orient. Luncheon was served the visitors, and at night a banquet was served by the ladies of Norham United Church.

A complete report of the conference will appear in The Examiner later.

Darkening Clouds Sends Mercury Down

CHICAGO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).— A spring-like shower late yesterday started the rout of September's mid-summer heat wave in which middlewestern millions have sweltered for four days.

Darkening clouds intervened earlier in behalf of a parched country, driving the mercury slowly downward here from its high point of 93 psppppppp.p pppp high point of 93 degrees reached shortly after noon. Hourly readings had equalled those of yesterday and the temperature threatened to exceed the 95 degree record of the previous days, until the clouds appeared. Similar readings were reported throughout the central states, the highest being 100 degrees at Peru, Ills.

The shower was of short duration in Chicago's downtown district. The sun was shining brightly once more when the National League Brooklyn-Chicago baseball game was called off, 3 blocks away on account of rain.

FOKKER SEES HOPE FOR MEN OF OLD GLORY

Believes Fliers Landed Safely on the Water—Able To Inflate Raft.

DOUBTS PLANE SPUN.

Some Engine Trouble Probably Caused Pilots to Make Forced Landing.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Hope that the crew of the monoplane Old Glory is alive and afloat in the plane's rubber collapsible lifeboat was expressed yesterday by Anthony H. G. Fokker, designer and builder of the ill-fated ship.

Fokker's hope was strong enough to amount almost to a belief that Pilots Bertaud and Hill and Philip A. Payne, flight director, still may be found and rescued.

Engine trouble probably caused the pilots to make a forced landing, Fokker believed, and he added that, knowing the pilots, they made a good landing.

Darkness and a rough sea, he believed, caused the disaster. With more favorable conditions, the airplane builder said, Old Glory could have remained afloat for some time.

The latest radio from the rescue steamship Kyle received by way of Louisburg, Nova Scotia read:

"Searching in all directions from position wreckage was located. Weather clearing, wind northwest. "Nothing sighted since."

Fokker's hope and belief, given out in a statement yesterday, buoyed up the fast-dwindling assurance that the three men ever will be found. The statement follows:

"Reports indicate that Old Glory had to make a forced landing in the dark, in a rough sea. Knowing Hill and Bertaud as I do, and their ability as pilots, I feel sure that when they realized they had to make such a forced landing, they did so with

CANADA AIR MAIL SERVICE BEGINS

Plane On Way To Montreal With Letters From Steamer.

LEFT AT RIMOUSKI

QUEBEC, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Canada's new air mail service was inaugurated successfully to-day, when a hydroplane driven by Pilot Graham of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Ottawa, rose off the surface of the st. Lawrence in front of Rimouski and headed up stream for Montreal. The plane is carrying five hundred pounds of letter mail which was taken to Rimouski wharf by a tender from the Canadian Pacific steamship Empress of Australia when she passed there at 8.35 this morning on her way to Quebec.

Re-Fuels at Three Rivers.

MONTREAL, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—The Royal Canadian Air Force plane which left Rimouski this morning with mail taken from the steamer Empress of Australia landed in Three Rivers at 2.03 p.m., eastern daylight time, to re-fuel. The plane is the first to carry Canadian mail from steamers, and inaugurated this service to-day. After re-fuelling, the plane will proceed to Montreal, its destination.

REDUCED RATES FAIL TO BRING MORE SETTLERS

Canadian National Railway Official Offers New Immigration Scheme.

FEW CAN QUALIFY.

Flat Passage Fare For Ocean Trip Is Now Proposed.

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Abolition of the reduced passage rate from the British Isles to Canada, except for families coming on to farms, women entering domestic service, and juveniles between the ages of 14 and 18, and the substitution therefor of a flat passage rate of say ten to twelve pounds sterling, without the regulations and restrictions which now apply to those applying for the reduced passage rate, is urged by Dr. W. J. Black, director of colonization, agriculture and national resources, Canadian National Railways, as a means of securing more British settlers to Canada.

Dr. Black has recently returned from a tour of Great Britain, the Scandinavian countries, Germany and other European lands.

Few Can Qualify

It is pointed out that only a relatively small number of settlers are able to qualify for the reduced passage rates, owing to the necessary regulations and restrictions imposed and also that the government and the various colonization officials must exercise extreme care in undertaking to guarantee employment for applicants over a given period of time sufficient to see them on their feet.

GERMANS WOULD TRADE IN EMPIRE

Merchants Demand Treaties With Canada, Australia and South Africa.

HANOVER, Germany, September 16 (United Press). — German commercial treaties with Canada, South Africa, and Australia were demanded in a speech to-day by Dr. Louis Ravene, president of the Central Association of the German wholesale trade. He was addressing German wholesalers and overseas exporters at their annual convention.

Dr. Ravene's utterance is interpreted as a sign that the German Government will increase its efforts to attain commercial agreement with the British Dominions.

Socialist Leader Gets Prison Term

SAVONNA, Italy, September 16 (Canadian Press). — Pilippo Turati, former leader of the Socialist Party in Italy, and six accomplices in his escape were sentenced to ten months in prison yesterday by a tribunal which heard the evidence against him and those who aided him to flee from Italy aboard a fast motor launch to Corsica.

Another accomplice was condemned to eleven months' imprisonment and four others acquitted.

Pilippo Turati fled from Italy in the winter of 1926. His dramatic departure by motor boat to Corsica caused a stir in anti-Fascist circles. A week after landing in Corsica, he turned up in Paris, where he has been living since.

PLANE STARTS FROM DUBLIN ACROSS OCEAN

Capt. MacIntosh Leaves Dublin To-day On Flight To New York.

CARRIES BLACK CAT.

Fliers Expect To Reach New York in 26 Hours—Aviation News.

DUBLIN, September 16 (Canadian Press).—Captain R. H. MacIntosh, in his plane, Princess Xenia, hopped off to-day from Dublin on a trans-Atlantic flight to North America. The plane made a splendid take-off, getting into the air at 1.34 p.m., local time. It carried a heavy load, including 720 gallons of gasoline. Just prior to taking off, Captain MacIntosh saw a black cat, which he picked up, remarking, "This is certainly an omen of good luck." The plane carries a good supply of food and water.

Captain MacIntosh announced that he would head for Newfoundland and thence to New York. Before taking off he said he expected to make the flight in 26 hours.

Two fast airplanes of the Free State Air Force escorted the Princess Xenia to the coast. Just before starting, Capt. MacIntosh said, "With good luck we shall do it." Capt. MacIntosh's only companion in the flight is James Fitzmaurice, commandant of the Irish Free State Air Force, who succeeded as co-pilot, Capt. Anthony Wreford, who was originally announced as MacIntosh's companion in the venture. Capt. MacIntosh is known as the "pilot of the night" because he claims the record for the largest number of hours of nocturnal flying ever made. With thirteen years' experience, he has a reputation of being one of the best pilots in the world. He was a pilot on the western front throughout the war and had many narrow escapes but came through unharmed. He is 32 years old and unmarried.

The two pilots, who fought in the air during the Great War and have been flying steadily since, were confident that they would be able to meet the westward challenge of the Atlantic which claimed Nungesser and Coli and the St. Raphael, carrying Princess Lowenstein Wertheim, Capt. Hamilton and Col. Minchin.

"I have every confidence in the success of our attempt," said Capt. MacIntosh as they finished the final preparations to hop off. "We have made every possible test of our machine and the weather report is better than we have had in a long time and as good as we can expect. There's a north wind off the Irish coast and a slight wind beyond."

The fliers were in danger of being mobbed by admirers who crowded about them and their plane to deluge them with congratulations on their pluck and persevereance and best wishes for success on their daring venture.

Finally, Fitzmaurice, breaking away from the friendly crowd, turned to MacIntosh saying:

"Come on Mac. Let's get on this machine and get a bit of peace."

The plane was sighted over Maryborough, Queen's County, at two pm. headed due west.

Returning By Boat.

TOKIO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press). —Edward F. Schlee and Walter S. Brock, who brought their round-the-world flight to an end at Kasumviguara on Wednesday, will fly their monoplane, Pride of Detroit, to Yokohama this afternoon, whence it will be towed aboard a barge to the Korea Maru. The plane will be carried on the upper deck of the ship when it sails on Saturday for San Francisco. It will remain intact so that when the fliers arrive in San Francisco there will be no delay in their projected flight from there to Detroit.

MacIntosh Experienced.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Capt. R. H. MacIntosh, who hopped off from Dublin to-day on a trans-Atlantic flight, has carried more than 10,000 passengers and spent more than 6,500 hours on the air as a commercial pilot. During the war he registered more than 300 flight hours in a bombing plane.

His plane, the Princess Xenia, is a

CANADA'S ELECTION TO COUNCIL GIVES SATISFACTION TO BRITAIN

Both Government and Press Pleased —Empire Relations Strengthened.

DISCUSSION IN GENEVA.

Delegates Not Worried By Empire Having Two Votes in Council.

LONDON, Sept. 16 (United Press). —Canada's election to a non-permanent seat on the Council of the League of Nations has given much satisfaction both to the Government and British press in that it is regarded as strengthening Imperial relationships.

In this connection Auguste Gauvain, political editor of The Journal Des Debats in Paris, has reached the interesting question as to whether Canada will now have to create a diplomatic corps because he fails to see how she can play the role as member of the council if she is not "diplomatically accredited abroad."

This question was addressed by the British United Press to political authorities here, who answered that there was no necessity at all for Canada to create any diplomatic corps, the present arrangement being all that is necessary. The attitude of the British Government in the matter is that Canada can have as many diplomatic representatives abroad as she pleases, but it is not believed that she will ever embark on the creation of a diplomatic corps because of the enormous expense involved, and it is thought that she will be content to let the Foreign Office do the representing as at present.

Meanwhile, the British and Canadian representatives at Geneva will work closely together and it is emphasized that the whole organization of the Foreign Office is at Canada's disposal to carry out all her obligations as a member of the Council.

No Reason for Uneasiness

GENEVA, Sept. 6 (Canadian Press).—What effect the election of Canada to a non-permanent seat in the League of Nations Council will have upon the procedure and policy of that body was a topic of discussion today. For the first time in history as a result of yesterday's balloting the British Empire has two votes in the league's governing body, but close observers of the Dominion's politics predict that two will not always vote as one, and that there is no reason for uneasiness over the new situation.

The Irish Free State was an eleventh hour candidate for a council seat last year, and received but ten votes. Canada now achieves the seat with one vote to spare, having been supported by twenty-six out of the forty-nine voting nations. It has been noted with some amusement in past years that Canadian and even Irish delegations often spoke in French instead of English in order to have a little fun with the Mother Country and that in conference under league auspices where no general question of Empire policy was at stake their representatives frequently lined up against those of Great Britain.

Finland came to the fore for the third remaining vacancy at the last minutes and was elected, notwithstanding that the presence of the new Baltic state in the council was rather frowned upon by Germany, who would have preferred to see Belgium remain in the council.

The choice of Cuba as a semi-permanent seat holder is heartily welcomed on all sides, as her active interest in the league has been manifest from the start and one of her statesmen, Dr. De La Torriente, has already presided over the assembly.

DENIES REPORT FROM TORONTO

Americans Buying Stock as an Investment, Says Sir Thomas White.

NOT SEEKING CONTROL.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—"There is in my view nothing in recent buying to indicate anything in the nature of an attempt to secure control of Canadian bank or banks." Thus Sir Thomas White, vice-president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, dismissed a report from Toronto that an "investment trust" had been formed in New York to buy the stocks of Canadian chartered banks.

"Canada," Sir Thomas said, has been in the midst of a very active market in all classes of stocks and it would appear to me that some American investors or speculators have purchased a limited amount of Canadian bank stocks either for the purpose of investment or with the expectation that Canadian bank shares may appreciate in value in the future in view of the general prosperity throughout Canada. The fact is there is a plethora of money in the United States seeking investments in all fields where a stable interest return and prospects of appreciation may be expected."

CANAL WORKERS WAGES RAISED

Carpenters, Machinists and Engineers Benefit By New Schedule.

WELLAND CANAL.

OTTAWA, Sept. 16. — (Canadian Press.)—Wage increases for carpenters, machinists, steam hoist and derrick engineers, locomotive crane operators and steam shovel crews, employed on the Welland ship canal, are announced by Hon. Peter Heenan, minister of labor. The new rates are retroactive from August 1, 1927.

Hourly rates of wages under the new revision are as follows: Carpenters, 85c.; machinists, 70c;. steam shovel engineers, $1; steam shovel crane men, 80c.; steam shovel firemen, 65c.; steam shovel hoist and derrick engineers, 75c.; locomotive crane operators, 80c.

The changes in question, sanctioned by the minister of labor, have been made under the authority of the fair wage clause of the contracts, which call for the observance of rates current from time to time in the district. The last wage revision on the Welland ship canal contracts was in 1925.

SAN FRANCISCO TO THE ORIENT LATEST TRANS-OCEANIC FLIGHT

German Flier of Great War Fame To Try Pacific Hop.

MAKE TWO STOPS.

From China He Hopes to Fly to South Africa and Return.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—The latest trans-oceanic flight to be projected is one being planned by Captain Jack Von Weigand, German ace, who hopes to fly from San Francisco to China next month.

The German aviator, who is credited with having brought down Quentin Roosevelt's plane during the World War, was here yesterday to confer with H. C. Mitinger, secretary-treasurer of the Gettysburg Flying Service, relative to some commercial flying business. From here he went to Gettysburg and said he expected to go back to St. Petersburg, Fla., next month.

Captain Von Weigland said he expected Renard Wheeler of St. Petersburg would accompany him on his proposed flight. Stops will be made at Honolulu and Tokio. From China he hopes to fly to South Africa and return.

Continues Search

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Sept. 16 (Canadian Press). — The government coastal steamer Kyle, apparently abandoning plans to return at once to St. John's with wreckage of the trans-Atlantic monoplane Old Glory which she picked up last Monday wirelessed yesterday that she was continuing the search for the three missing members of the ill-fated plane's crew.

Leave To-day

OLD ORCHARD, Maine, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—With a few days remaining before the New York-Spokane air derby, "Duke" Schiller and Phil Wood last night anxiously awaited the dawn to return to Windsor, Ont., where they will put their monoplane, Royal Windsor, in condition to contest for honors in the non-stop classic.

With fair weather promised for a flight by way of Albany and Buffalo and with the correction of ignition trouble which bothered them Wednesday when they flew back from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, they were ready to leave the beach here early today. They set the hour of their departure at 8 o'clock.

Is Not Married

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (A.P.)—Whether Ruth Elder, 23-year-old Florida aviatrix, who plans to fly across the Atlantic ocean, is single or married, continued a moot question last night.

Returning to Curtiss Field at dusk from a 24-hour "rest" spent in impenetrable seclusion, she remained at the field only long enough to deny she was the wife of Lyle Womack, Lakeland, Fla., accessories salesman, as stated by her sister in Anniston, Ala.

"Mr. Womack is a very dear friend of mine, but we were never married," she said.

After inspecting her plane, the "American Girl," which was found to have developed a leak in the left wing tank, Miss Elder announced that she and her pilot, Captain George Haldeman, would move today to a hotel near the flying field in order to be near the plane.

Would Use Runway

Both Captain Haldeman and Miss Elder expressed relief when informed that use of the Roosevelt Field runway will not be denied them on their take-off for Europe. J. J. Lannin, former owner of the Boston Red Sox and new owner of Roosevelt Field, said he would not hinder anybody from using the field, but he did not wish to appear in the light of encouraging trans-Atlantic flights in planes not completely equipped.

Despite the girl's determined reiteration that she and Captain Haldeman, her pilot, would make the flight, Captain Charles B. Collyer, in charge of the Spokane derby which starts from Roosevelt Field Monday, declared he was going to do his best to dissuade her.

Ex-Emperor Predicts Another War By 1937

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—Prophecy of another world war before 1937 has been made by the former Kaiser in an interview with the London correspondent of the Danish newspaper, Dangens Nyheder, and carried in the German press yesterday. He is quoted:

"Jealousy between nations is steadily growing. Either the League of Nations is blind or has its eyes bound. We will experience a war which will last only a few days, perhaps only a few hours. New submarines, airships, explosives and frightful gases will completely wipe out unprepared nations."

It is reported the former Kaiser added that his greatest wish is to return as ruler in order to teach the world how to insure permanent peace.

BIG CATCHES OF TYEE SALMON

Season Was Late—Biggest Tyee Landed 51 Pounds.

CAMPBELL RIVER, B.C., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Aristocrats of the fishing world are here in pursuit of the king of Canadian fish game—the Tyee salmon. Although the run was late in materializing, good catches have been made lately by light rod and tackle and the Tyee Club has awarded several medals to fishermen fortunate enough to land fish of more than thirty pounds in weight.

The biggest Tyee landed so far this season was 51 pounds. He was captured by P. A. Coleman, Seattle angler. Several forty-pounders have been taken and thirty-pounders are common. The Tyee is the biggest of Pacific Coast salmon and every summer they gather in their unnumbered thousands at the mouth of the Campbell River to enter the spawning grounds.

Fishermen have come to Campbell River this year from as far away as London, Eng. Several British naval men are numbered among the fishing fraternity this year, but most of the Tyee men are mostly wealthy anglers from the Pacific Northwest States. One of the most celebrated visitors is Dr. J. A. Wiborn, master fisherman of Catalina Island, California, who spends most of the year fishing and has landed tarpon and swordfish and tuna.

American Tourists Make Record Catch

MARMORA, Sept. 16.— A. C. Simonhan and J. Dickenson, of Youngstown, Ohio, fishing locally on Monday with T. McQuaig and R. Nayler as guides, had what is admitted to be the best catch of the season. Within three hours they secured 20 bass, totalling over 60 pounds and also an 18¼ pound maskinonge.

POLICE GUARD DANCER'S BODY

Will Not Allow Friends of Isadora Duncan To Take Possession.

PROPERTY FOR BROTHER.

NICE, France, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The body of Isadora Duncan, the dancer whose adventurous career ended in a tragedy when her silken scarf became entangled in the wheel of her automobile and broke her neck last night, was locked in her studio today and police are guarding the door which they permit no one to enter until Soviet consular official has signed the necessary papers allowing friends to take charge of the body.

Miss Duncan left no will, according to Mrs. M. D. Perks, British newspaper woman who was driving with dancer when she met death last night. Mrs. Perks said that all the dancer's friends would testify that she intended all her property to go to her blind brother, Augustine. Although Miss Duncan was recently financially embarrassed, Mrs. Perks said, the royalties on her book of memoirs were expected to net many thousands of dollars.

DAMAGE REPORTS ARE EXAGGERATED

Crews of Ships Arrive From the West Coast of Mexico.

Cattle Trade Good Canada and States

LONDON, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The fact that not a single head of Canadian cattle has reached Manchester since last April has been a matter of some comment, which elicited a statement from the secretary of the Manchester Association of Importers and Exporters that it was due merely to market conditions.

"Trade is so good between Canada and the United States," the statement says, "that better prices are realized there. When the market swings again, importation will probably be resumed."

ALBERTA'S CROP SAFE FROM FROST

Report States Damage Done By Frost Was Negligible.

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Alberta's tremendous 1927 wheat crop is safe, according to reports reaching the provincial department of agriculture. Damage by frost on Wednesday night was negligible.

Provincial government field men and Dominion government experimental farms in all parts of the province were communicated with and the sum total of these reports is that the districts in which this first frost of the Fall is reported as being the heaviest are the places in which the least damage could have been done owing to the very advanced state of harvesting operations.

From as far south as Lethbridge to the province's most northerly grain section, the Peace River Country, reports were reassuring. Lethbridge, for instance, registered a temperature of 36 degrees on Wednesday which was four clear degrees over the frost line. At Medicine Hat there was also no frost and in this region all wheat has been cut with the exception of some in the Cypress ill district. Added to this is the fact that the area is harvesting a wonderful crop. In the Hamma district, in the southerly part of the province, there was quite a little frost, but the greater percentage of he wheat is cut there with the exception of about 40 per cent at and around Oyen, where frost damage will only be small as all the crops are ripe.

Heavy Frost at Lacombe

From the central section of Alberta comes the report of heavy frost at Lacombe, but here again 80 per cent of the wheat has been cut for a distance of five miles from the town there is not ten per cent of the remaining crop standing that could be damaged.

Around Red Deer, cutting has been accomplished to the extent of from 75 to 85 per cent, and then onwards and northwards through Hardisty, Sedgewick and the Vermilion districts the bulk of the crops have already been harvested, so that there is no worry there.

It is well known the Peace River Country was well ahead of other sections of the province in harvesting work and all crops are cut. Thus, the opinion of the Department of Agriculture that crop damage is almost negligible is well substantiated.

WEDDING BELLS

DYKE—BRAKE.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 16.—A quiet wedding took place in St. John's church on Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock when Wilfred Augustus Dyke and Myrtle May Brake, both of Newfoundland were united in marriage by Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tighe were the attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyke will reside on William street.

JEFFERSON—SIDDALL.

A pretty wedding took place in All Saints' church on Saturday, September 10th at 2.30 when Nora, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Siddall, of this city, was united in marriage to Fred Jefferson, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Jefferson, Blackburn, England, the Rev. J. D. Patterson officiating.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, and looked lovely in a dress of white georgette trimmed with lace and rhinestones and her veil caught at the sides with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of butterfly roses and sweet peas.

Her attendants were Mrs. S. Smith, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, attired in a dress of turquoise blue georgette, and Miss Mamie Hickson of Mount Forest, the bridesmaid, in pale yellow georgette. Both wore black and silver hats with shoes and hose to match and carried sheafs of asters and gladioli. The bridegroom was assisted by Mr. A. S. Reed.

Mrs. W. A. Logan presided at the organ and played softly throughout the ceremony.

About 60 guests attended the reception held at the home of the bride's parents where the rooms were tastefully decorated with asters and gladioli.

The young people were the recipients of many beautiful presents, including a lovely clock from some of the employees of the Canadian Woollens.

Guests were present from Lindsay, Toronto, Mt. Horeb, The Thousand Islands, U.S.A., and Hamilton.

C.N.R. APPEALS ORDER OF BOARD

Supreme Court Will Hear Argument About Alternative Routing.

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Canadian National Railways was today granted leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against the order of the Board of Railway Commissioners ordering the railway to provide for an alternative routing of Maritime freight through Ste. Rosalie and St. John, N.B. The motion for leave to appeal was argued before Chief Justice Anglin. The case was placed at the head of the Supreme Court list and will be heard October 4.

Fascist Officers Shot By Red In Ravenna; One, After Being Wounded, Kills Assailant

RAVENNA, September 16. — Ettore Mury, Commander of the Eighty-first Legion of Fascist Militia, and Renzo Morigi, Secretary of the local Fascisti, were shot by Leopoldo Missiroli, a Communist, in the principal square of this city late last night. Morigi returned the fire of his assailant, who was hidden behind the columns of a public building, and killed him on the second shot.

Commander Mury is seriously wounded, having been shot through the abdomen, and is in a local hospital. Morigi was wounded in the leg and is expected to recover. The dead Communist was about 40 years of age.

The shooting occurred when Commander Mury was conversing with other Fascist officers preparatory to leaving on an excursion to Fiume

Ravenna, with Forli, is one of the most important centres of the Romagna regior., of which Premier Mussolini is a native. The entire population is indignant at the attack on the Fascist officers, and showed much sympathy with the victims and their families, the shooting having served to further emphasize the loyalty of the people to the present regime. Except the ingrained hostility of the Communists to Fascism, there is no known reason for Missiroli's act, as he did not know either of the men he shot, nor did they know him. He was identified by objects found in his pockets, including medals containing effigies of Giacomo Matteotti, slain Socialist Deputy, and Andrea Costa, the first Socialist Deputy elected to the Italian Chamber.

Premier Mussolini was the first to telegraph to the victims, saying in a despatch to Mury:

"Accept my fraternal greetings and most fervent good wishes. The blood shed by you makes you sacred to the cause of the revolution."

In the telegram to Morigi he said:

"I send you my good wishes. Through your sacrifice, the Fascism of Ravenna will become ever stronger."

SPENDS FULL DAY IN TRAINING CAMP

Champion Has Busiest Eight Hours Since Arrival at Camp.

LAKE VILLA, Ills., September 16 (Canadian Press). — With but a week to go before facing Jack Dempsey in defence of the heavyweight championship, Gene Tunney yesterday put in his busiest eight hours since arriving here more than two weeks ago.

Tunney was examined by Dr. Jos. L. Russell, representing the Illinois State Boxing Commission, before working out 10 rounds. More than 2,000 spectators watched.

Gene boxed three sparring partners two rounds apiece and punched both the light and heavy bags another round.

The workout, Tunney's first in three days, and the beginning of the final drive for physical perfection, amounted to little more than heavy exercise for the big champion. Gene warmed up slowly on the bags. Apparently he was a big soggy after the lengthy lay-off, and displayed little real energy until he locked gloves with Chuck Wiggins and Billy Vidaback. In two rounds with Jackie Williams, a Chicago heavyweight, Gene clinched a great deal to avoid the straight right hand Williams landed on his face occasionally.

Boxed With Speed.

Tunney boxed with speed and deftness, dancing lightly out of range, whenever Wiggins or Vidabeck cut loose with both hands to the head. The champion's offence consisted for the most part of a one-two" attack, a sharp left jab followed by a right cross to the chin, the two blows landing almost as one. Tunney missed frequently with both hands, and his timing appeared a bit rusty. Dr. Russell, who pronounced Dempsey a "perfect physical specimen" several days ago, declared that Gene was "normal in every respect" after the examination.

OLD MASTERS

Oh! that we two were Maying
Down the stream of the soft spring breeze;
Like children with violets playing
In the shade of the whispering trees.

Oh! that we two sat dreaming
On the sward of some sheep-trimmed down,
Watching the white mist steaming
Over river and mead and town.

Oh! that we two lay sleeping
In our nest in the churchyard sod,
With our limbs at rest on the quiet earth's breast,
And our souls at home with God!
—Charles Kingsley: Song from "The Saint's Tragedy."

CONTRACT BRIDGE RULES APPROVED

Whist Club Accepts General Practice With Two Exceptions.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 16.—(United Press).—Contract bridge, the game which has supplanted auction in many card rooms, emerged today with a certified list of rules made official by the Whist Club. The new laws follow the generally accepted practice with two exceptions.

Only the winning final game of a rubber earns a premium—700 points if a two game rubber, 500 if a three game. The former allowance was 200 for the first game and 500 for the winning game.

Penalties for under tricks if doubled, when declarer is not vulnerable, are changed to 100 for the first two tricks and 200 for the third and fourth tricks. Formerly it was 100 for the first three tricks and 200 for the fourth trick. The penalty of 400 for subsequent tricks remains.

COUNCIL PREPARES PAVING PROGRAM

Millbrook to Have Main Drain Laid This Fall.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 16.—Millbrook Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Reeve W. T. Wood in the chair, and present Councillors Eakins, Lang and Stinson; Councillor G. W. Sayles absent on trip to Northern Ontario.

Stinson-Eakins: That H. Nattress be appointed weed inspector within the corporation limits.

The following accounts were read and on motion of Eakins-Lang, ordered paid:

E. McCorry, labor, $2.50; Hydro-Electric, street lighting, $69.83; Town Hall lighting, $1.79; Attwooll and Sheppard, account, $43.56; H. Nattress, constable, and labor, $32.25; Millbrook Telephone Company, acct., $7.95; Miss N. Russell, care of Mrs. Scott, $10; Mirror-Reporter, on printing contract, $22.50; B. Raper, labor, $18.50; S. Donnelly, street watering, $205.96; S. C. Code, C.I., Smith's Falls, $50.

Fire Chief J. J. Clarke made report re firemen's equipment being all in good condition.

Stinson-Lang: That light be installed on King Street in front of business blocks occupied by V. C. Lambert, and the Lindsay Creamery Company.

Eakins-Stinson: That trees on Anne Street be trimmed to allow for better lighting conditions.

A. W. Connors, civil engineer, of Toronto, met the Council and discussed with them plans relative to going ahead with the new main drain this fall, and providing satisfactory arrangements can be made work will be completed in preparation for the paving programme in view for next season.

Within two days it is expected there will be a man on the job taking the necessary levels, and preparing plans and estimates, and that tenders for laying drain will be called for within the next two weeks is the present likelihood.

With the drain finished this fall it will be possible to make an early start with the paving of King Street, which is promised for 1928.

For the benefit of blind radio listeners a weekly wireless program is to be published in Braille by the British National Institute for the Blind.

BELMONT TOWNSHIP

HAVELOCK, Sept. 16.—The Belmont Rural School Fair was held in the Havelock Park on Friday afternoon with ideal weather conditions and a good attendance.

The sheep exhibit by the Belmont Sheep Breeders' Club was the largest since the fair was inaugurated there, being about a hundred and thirty exhibited. W. S. Davidson, local cattle buyer made arrangements with the association to ship a hundred of these to Toronto. A special prize donated by the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association for the best fleece was won by Wellington Burgess.

Other prizes were awarded as follows:—

Pen of ten market lambs: 1, Fred McMillan; 2, Edward Carr; 3, Edward Keating; 4, D. Maloney; 5, C. Steenburgh.

Ram and three ewe lambs: 1, D. Maloney; 2, Fred McMillan; 3, Edward Carr; 4, Wellington Burgess; 5, Edward Keating; 6, James McMillan; 7, Peoples Bros.

A demonstration was given by a veterinary surgeon from the Ontario Agricultural College on parasites in sheep. An old sheep was killed and dissected for this demonstration.

Mr. Cox, from the Department, gave the school children a talk on preparing vegetables and grain for exhibit. He advised them to choose smooth select roots of uniform size and to pull onions three or four days before exhibiting to allow the tops to dry. Also to leave the outer skin on and braid the tops. Roots should never be shown with green tops and potatoes should not be washed. In regard to sheaf of grain, care should be taken to remove any traces of rust and the straw from the outside of the sheaf.

A hundred and fifty-five prizes were awarded for school exhibits. Of this number, sixty-three or about forty per cent went to school section No. 12, Belmont (Cordova). This school also won first prize for the best school parade. School section No. 2, Belmont came second with thirty-three prizes, and the other schools came in the following order: School Section No. 1, Belmont, 22 prizes; No. 6, 13; No. 3, 10; No. 4, 6; No. 5, 4; No 8, 3; No. 9, 1.

Enthusiastic Owner of 3
Brunswick
Panatropes

Illustrating his proverbial good taste in music as in all other things, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has installed a trio of Brunswick Panatropes in his Royal quarters.

WHY?—Because the Brunswick Panatrope is the world's first and only proven electrical record-playing instrument. Because it is the only one to reproduce every note in the ENTIRE MUSICAL SCALE. Because its reproduction of music is so perfect that no other instrument can approach it.

See it. Hear it—at your Brunswick dealer's to-day.

The Music of the Panatrope Is the Standard which Imitating Manufacturers are striving to attain.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1927.

THE LAST CHANCE.

Tomorrow, with the finest programme of the week offered for the benefit of Exhibition visitors, should see the largest crowd of the week on the ground.

The co-operation of the citizens of Peterborough is appealed to in order that the last day of the 1927 Exhibition shall be a memorable one.

The people of the district have been doing their part all week; the attendance figures have been stimulated steadily by an influx of visitors from all parts of Eastern Ontario.

A similar invasion can be looked for today, and with a final boost from the citizens of Peterborough itself the Directors' hope of a new attendance record will be more than realized.

It has been a great Exhibition, and tomorrow should prove its greatest day in every respect.

Make Saturday a record-breaker; it is your last chance to see Peterborough's big fair.

WANTED—ANOTHER BUILDING.

The Examiner does not know what plans for development the Exhibition Board has ready for next year, but ventures the suggestion that the time is ripe for the erection of a large building for special exhibits.

Manufacturers and merchants have exhausted all the space available for their displays, and many firms that would like to place exhibits at the Peterborough Industrial find there is no room for them.

If a new building were erected—call it manufacturers' building, or whatever else you like—there is not the slightest doubt that both local and outside firms would be delighted to have a chance to fill it with attractive displays.

Such exhibits are of much value from both an educational and a business standpoint, and they usually contain something of interest to every Exhibition visitor.

Development along this line cannot be expected beyond the present standard until more accommodation is supplied.

The Directors realize that fact, and it may be that before next September a new unit will be added to the Exhibition plant.

WE NOMINATE MR. GUNDY.

The Examiner begs to nominate for its own particular Hall of Fame S. B. Gundy, of Toronto, President of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, who has delivered what is believed to be the shortest presidential address in the history of a Canadian trade organization.

Of speakers who make long addresses there is no lack in this otherwise favoured land.

But it is a refreshing novelty to find a man who can make a sentence or two serve the purpose of a two hours' harangue.

Mr. Gundy has done so.

"Let us put aside provincialism. Let us think of Canada as a whole"; that was practically the whole annual address.

If he had taken all afternoon to deliver his message the President of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce could not have said anything more important.

His brief address brought home what is beginning to be felt as the most important problem facing the country; that is, the need of educating Canadians to get away from the parochial viewpoint in regard to Canadian affairs.

And it served its purpose as effectively as if Mr. Gundy had discussed it for hours.

SHOULD BE CANCELLED.

Reckless drivers are not going to be driven off the highways if men who have been convicted of driving while intoxicated are given back their privilege of handling a machine.

An Oshawa motorist who was released a short time ago after serving a jail term for driving a car while drunk appeared in court a few days ago on a similar charge.

He pleaded guilty, and this time he goes to jail for 40 days with hard labour.

No fault is to be found with the sentence, but the point is, that if this irresponsible driver, as soon as he has served his second sentence, is to be allowed to get back to the wheel of his car again he is quite likely to be involved in another case of the same nature, perhaps with disastrous results.

Surely a man who within a few months has twice been convicted of a serious charge of this kind should have his driving license cancelled.

He is not fit to be entrusted with the responsibility of handling a car when he has on two different occasions attempted to drive while under the influence of liquor.

The authorities in a case of this nature should not hesitate to cancel licenses.

THE MAIL BOX BACKS DOWN.

The rural mail box, that receptacle of convenience which stands at nearly every farmer's gate, is to undergo a change. It is not long since it was first looked upon as the outstanding advantage in the farmer's life; it saved him many a trip to town, and it brought him his daily paper and his letters as regularly as the slot in the city dweller's side door. With its installation the world came to the farm, rural isolation was clipped, and, rain or shine, mud or snow, harvest or not, the farmer and his family have been able to sit by the evening light to read the news of the day.

The mail box was so important that a location convenient for the mail carrier was essential. It stuck out in a handy and friendly attitude to meet the driver halfway, and until now this has been considered quite proper. But it has lost some of its prestige. It is no longer the most important thing in the rural world. It has been found that its extension over the highway is an interference with traffic, and it is to be pushed back. In the future it must not intrude itself upon the public as in the past. It has been relegated to second place.

Thus is progress coming into the rural life of Canada. The telephone and radio have supplemented the convenience of the mail box, but the automobile has become so ubiquitous that the farm is in the midst of population so numerous that the mail box must be moved to let it pass.—The Globe.

BRITISH EDITORS TELL US OFF.

Something appears to have got on the nerves of the editors and publishers of British provincial weeklies who have been touring Canada. At first they started off by chorusing Mr. Baldwin in a song of praise for us, but by the time they go over the prairies and through the Rockies and back again one of them blurted out that our newspapers were rotten and another that we bragged too much.

Well, come to think of it, they might have said something worse. Or, to put it another way, they might have picked on something worse than our newspapers. The press of Canada has its faults, but, comparatively speaking, it is not so bad. True, we have no London Times and no Manchester Guardian; but what our critics forget is that the combined circulations of the Times and the Guardian—and we throw in those of the Daily Telegraph and Morning Post for good measure—do not cover one-tenth of the homes of even the city of London. What is left? What is left, apart from a few provincial journals of very limited circulation, is a popular press infinitely more jazzy and more sensational than anything we have in Canada.

True, they do not print such large headlines; but that, after all, is but typographical What they do print, however, are stories so sensational that if they appeared in a Canadian newspaper that newspaper wouldn't live. Some months ago a very distinguished Englishwoman, now living in Canada, asked us why we published so much of the Hall trial, with its sordid details; such things, she said, could not appear in the British press. Yet when the notorious episode of Mr. "A" was to the fore, such staid journals as the Times literally published pages of its messy and sickening story. And so with the amours and adventures of the Hugo Russell case. So with a hundred cases that we could quickly cite.

The simple fact is that the publication of scabrous details of British divorce cases became such a pronounced policy of British newspapers that such news had to be prohibited by law.

Critics of Canadian newspapers have a stock-in-trade argument to the effect that Canadian journals do not print as much serious, national and international news as their British contemporaries. Such criticism, invariably, comes from Canadians who do not see a British newspaper from one end of the year to the other. And it is the sheerest nonsense. Take, as an illustration, the case of London. The newspapers in London with the large circulations are the evening newspapers. There are the Evening Star, the Evening Standard and the Evening News. Among them they have a circulation of propably 4 millions; they provide the only evening news that Londoners get. Yet we venture to say that any evening newspaper in either Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa or Montreal, publishes more world news than any of these London papers. A great deal more.

Then there is the British Sunday press. We often wonder whether our Canadian critics of Canadian newspapers ever see the London Sunday journals. Certainly our brother editor from Britain, who is so captious, must have forgotten about them. We hear a great deal, these days, about Mr. Hearst's New York Mirror, and about Mr. Bernarr McFadden's New York Graphic; but if they are any worse than Lord Riddell's News of the World—which goes to 3,000,000 Britons every Sunday—we haven't noticed it. And the News of the World isn't all. Only slightly behind it, much more than pale shadows of it, are Reynold's newspaper, and the Sunday Chronicle.

So much for that.

As for the indictment that we make long, stupid speeches, quoting statistics and bragging about our resources—well, we fancy we're guilty. Guilty, at all events, about the long speeches and the dry statistics. Time and again we have protested against the orators who eternally bring in "that three thousand mile border without a fort or gun." But worse even than these profound bores are the people who, generally ignorant of the background and principles of their subject, and barren of ideas, get a secretary or somebody to tabulate a lot of figures for them, and then go down to some dinner or luncheon and, amid reeking smoke and the smell of cooking, unleash them upon their unfortunate audience. Ordinarily, we're against new laws, but there should be a law against that.

Perhaps, too, we are inclined to boast. It's a fault of youth, and as a people we are young. We like visitors to lay on flattery, as James Russell Lowell said, with a ladle; and he's an extraordinary Canadian who can keep "our boundless natural resources" out of his peroration. But perhaps we will learn. Perhaps we will discover that our resources aren't boundless, and stop talking about them; and perhaps when those editors return again to accept our entertainment and hospitality, we shall have achieved that unique perfection which they appear to have sought.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

CATTLE GRAIN, AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Ont., September 16.—There was no change in general conditions in the cattle market yesterday. No fresh cattle were shipped in, and an effort was made to effect a clean-up of the few stale cattle left over from the week's markets. The bulk of these were cleared off the slate on Wednesday afternoon, at the lower prices prevailing since Monday for the same types of cattle. Good to choice butchers steady with last Monday.

Hogs steady at Wednesday's advance to $11.90, selects, off cars, and $11.00 f.o.b. selects. Packers bidding 25c lower for Saturday's loadings.

Notice has been sent to shippers and drovers that, taking effect on Saturday next, September 17, all hogs will be bought and sold on the graded basis only.

General run of prices as follows:

Choice butcher steers active at from $8.25 to $8.75, with extra choice up to $9.00. Light steers, $8.25 to $8.50, and choice butcher heifers, $8.00 to $8.25.

Baby beeves firm; choice, $12.00.

Common steers and heifers, $5.00 to $5.50.

Choice butcher cows, $5.00 to $5.75, medium, $4.25 to $4.75.

Bulls, choice, $4.50 to $5.00; choice butcher, $4.50 to $5.00.

Springers and milkers, quiet at steady prices.

Stockers and feeders active, selling from $6.50 to $7.00; heifers, $5.50 to $6.25; delivery country points.

Lambs, choice, $12.00 to $12.25.

Calves, choice, $13.00 to $14.00.

Hogs strong, and 25c higher at $11.00, f.o.b. selects. Packers are bidding 25c lower on next Saturday's hog loadings.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., September 16 (Canadian Press). — The foreign demand for grain on the Montreal market yesterday was quiet and only sales of odd loads were made. There was an improved inquiry for ocean grain room to most ports, and a moderate business was done at steady rates.

There was some demand from exporters for grain in the local cash grain market, and sales of American No. 2 hard wheat were made at 2⅛c per bushel over the Chicago December option, f.o.b. Montreal, and Canadian Western tough No. 4 barley sold at 8c per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, c.i.f. Montreal, for first half October shipment. A moderate trade was done in car lots, and prices were unchanged.

The flour market was without any new feature to note, prices for the spring and winter wheat grades ruled steady under a moderate demand.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained and the demand continued good. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet, but prices were steady.

There continues to be a steady demand from Liverpool and Manchester for Canadian baled hay, and sales were reported at 80s per ton on a 32½c per 100 pounds ocean freight rate.

The undertone to the egg market was steady, and the trade was fair. The receipts were 1,136 cases.

The volume of business transacted in butter was again small, but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 1,301 packages.

The export and local trade in cheese was extremely dull, but prices ruled steady. The receipts were 6,112 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, September 16 (Canadian Press). — Indications of constant pressure to market the new spring wheat crop both in the United States and Canada did much yesterday to weaken wheat values. Moreover, a statement ascribed to the United States Department of Agriculture was circulated saying the general average of farm prices for the remainder of the year are not likely to exceed the present level.

Closing quotations on what were unsettled 1c to 1¼c net lower; corn at ⅛c to 1c advance; oats, ⅛c off to ¼c up; and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 22c.

Enlarged selling which was in evidence during the last hour of wheat trading appeared to be based a good deal not only on the increasing movement of new wheat north-west, but also on assertions that frost in Canada had done no damage. Furthermore, late export advices failed to redeem early predictions that European purchasing of breadstuffs yesterday would prove to be of liberal volume, the seaboard finally estimating that but 300,000 bushels of wheat had been bought for shipment across the Atlantic.

Railroad reports at hand said the movement of new wheat north-west was taxing transportation facilities to the limit, and that further transient embargoes at outlying points had become necessary. Under such circumstances, speculative buying power here gave out in the later dealings, whereas earlier the trend of prices had been upward on account of unexpected firmness of the Liverpool market and because of wet, cold weather in Canada, especially word that ice had formed at Edmonton.

Influenced by wheat weakness, corn lost much of an early advance that was associated with expected lower temperatures in the corn belt. Oats were steadied by the relative strength of corn.

Most of the provision list became weak at the finish.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

We inherit that jazzy instinct from our jellyfish ancestors, a British zoologist tells us. The professor must have been peeking in at a dance.

The movie operators in Chicago went on strike and theaters were closed. Maybe Mayor Thompson was just a bit indiscreet in defying King George like that.

TODAY'S PUZZLE.

Why is it that the ladies these days don't seem to mind at all if the cigaret smoke discolors their lace curtains?

NEW BRUNSWICK AUTHORS WRITE ABOUT ANIMALS

Dr. George F. Clark Latest To Gain Distinction in Nature School.

GOOD OPPORTUNITIES.

Province Has Unexcelled Wilderness Camp Grounds in Interior.

WOODSTOCK, N.B., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—It is nationally recognized that New Brunswick authors have contributed more than their share to the Nature school of Canadian literature and that they have always obtained the material for their stories at first hand.

The unexcelled opportunities which the interior of New Brunswick offers for wilderness camping and observation of forest life have contributed largely to this end. Its native writers make it their business as well as their recreation to spend a good part of the year in the back country, well away from towns and railways and the hectic scurry of human existence. Those of them who have been drawn far afield by the exigencies of their profession make frequent pilgrimages to the source of inspiration.

Prominent among the New Brunswickers who have recently won literary distinction is Dr. George Frederick Clark, of Woodstock, who has published four books within the past two years and who at present has a large amount of material ready for publication. While taking an active part in the community life of Woodstock, his native town, Dr. Clark takes care to keep in communication with the wilderness by maintaining a log camp on an isolated lake, shut in by woods which stretch north for 200 miles to the Bay of Chaleur.

Dr. Clark's retreat is separated by a substantial journey from Milltown, the nearest community, and even the ubiquitous automobile cannot assail its threshold, for it is several minutes tramp from the road. It is built on the style of a lumberman's camp, consisting of one large, low apartment, with bunks built out from the four walls and a massive stone fireplace as the centre of life. The bunks, which are of more permanent design than those provided by Mr. Pullman, accommodate 12 persons at capacity, so that not only the author's family, but those of his friends with a taste for the primitive may enjoy the camp's back woods hospitality.

No more happy spot could have been selected for the study of wild animals in their native environs. Through the still night air the call of the moose is to be heard across the water, the barking of foxes, the scurrying stir of the more diminutive and timid of the wilderness citizens.

Unspoiled forest and barren sweeps from the very door far into the north. A few yards' stroll and one is surrounded by it. Dr. Clark, being and experienced woodsman, knows how to take full advantage of such fortuitous conditions. He has learned through experience the art of observation, sportsman, as well as writer, woods life has held his interest unswerving for many years.

Under these circumstances it is not to be wondered at that his backwoods stories are winning the approbation of the critics, for their truth as well as for their pleasing style. Dr. Clarke is a prolific writer and in addition to the four books which he has recently published, he has nine animal stories ready in manuscript.

APPEALS HEARD ON LOCAL CASES

Henry Vs. Henry Partnership Dispute Settled at Osgoode Hall.

CITY WINS DECISION.

Present: Latchford, C.J.; Riddell, J.A.; Middleton, J.A.; Masten, J.A.; Orde, J.A.

Henry v. Henry—R.R. Hall, K.C., for plaintiff. V. J. McElderry (Peterborough) for defendant. Appeal by plaintiff from judgment of County Court of Peterborough of 22nd April, 1927, in respect of judgment upon defendant's counter-claim. Argued 12th inst.

Judgment: When the proceeds of the house were paid to the firm the firm and not each individual partner became the debtor, and as plaintiff and defendant were equal partners defendant is entitled to call upon his brother to repay not the whole but one-half of the balance. The proceeds of the mortgage amounted to $2,735.83. From this must be deducted the firm moneys advanced to cover expenses of building, $772.39, leaving a balance of $1,963.44. Defendant's share of this would be deducted the $400 due to plaintiff for his labor, leaving a balance of $581.72, to which must be added amount found due with respect to other matters, $81.50, a total of $668.32, and from this should be deducted the amount of the note, $500, leaving a net balance due to defendant of $168.32. In view of the changes we are making we think the plaintiff should be awarded costs of the action and defendant costs of the counter-claim to be set off pro tanto. Inasmuch as the claim was not disputed in this award of costs the entire costs of the hearing should go to the defendant. In view of divided success there should be no costs of this appeal.....It must be understood that while all matters dealt with by the trial Judge are now finally disposed of this judgment is without prejudice to the rights of the parties as to all other matters. If deemed necessary a provision to that effect may be inserted in the judgment.

Roberts v. City of Peterborough—W. F. Huycke (Peterborough), for plaintiff. F. J. Hughes for defendant. Appeal by plaintiff from judgment of County Court of Peterborough of 22nd April, 1927. Action to recover $500 damages for injuries from falling on icy sidewalk on George street, Peterborough. At trial the action was dismissed with costs. Appeal dismissed. No costs.

W.A. AND DEANERY HOLD MEETINGS

Victoria Deanery Clergy and Ladies Meet at Blackstock.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 16.—The annual combined Rural Deanery meeting of the clergy and the W.A., for the Deanery of Victoria, was held in Saint John's church, Blackstock, on Tuesday, September 13, two sessions morning and afternoon being arranged for, and over 125 delegates in attendance.

There were twelve different branches represented, delegates coming from Beaverton, Cannington, Sunderd, Linday, Bobcaygeon, Bethany, Millbrook (St. Thomas church and St. John's), Omemee, Emily, Fenelon Falls, and Reaboro.

The morning session was jointly for the clergy and the Woman's Auxiliary, Rev. F. J. Sawers, rector of Saint Matthew's church, Toronto, delivering an inspiring sermon, Rev. J. H. Kidd, rector of All Saints' church, Cannington, Rural Dean of the Victoria deanery, and Rev. J. F. Powell, rector of the Blackstock parish, being the celebrants for the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper which concluded the service.

The ladies of the parish served lunch in the Town Hall, the menu being of a most satisfying character. During the noon recess the delegates from the various W.A. branches met upstairs for their afternoon gathering, the clergy holding their business session in the church.

Mrs. Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, who has been the Deanery Officer for the past three years, presided until after the election when Mrs. (Rev.) J. F. Powell succeeded her in the chair, and took charge for the remainder of the afternoon.

Miss Chappelle, an officer from the Dominion W. A. Board, Toronto, and Miss Rapson, a missionary nurse on furlough from China, were the speakers, the former discussing the general missionary work carried on so effectively by the women of the church, in a most helpful manner, while Miss Rapson described the situation existing at her station in China before she left. Many of the wounded soldiers were brought into the mission hospital, and the speaker aroused a keen interest in her hearers as she told of the spiritual results accomplished while the hurt bodies were being faithfully ministered to.

The meeting next year will be at Fenelon Falls, the invitation from that church being gratefully accepted.

Hearty votes of thanks were extended to all who had assisted in making the gathering the pronounced success which everyone felt had been its outstanding feature. The ladies served tea before the delegates and speakers left for home.

W.M.S. Meets.

The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the United church held its first meeting after the holidays in the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon, the President, Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard, having charge for the opening period.

The special subject of prayer was for the Divine guidance to be specially manifested during the sessions of the Dominion Board which are held this month in Toronto.

A letter from the Presbyterial President, Mrs. J. W. Roberts, of Grafton, urged forming a prayer circle in each Auxiliary, each evening being the time when all members will unite in petition for God's blessing on missionary activites. The year being a nine months' one in 1927, owing to the change from March to December in closing the books, the local share of the $17,200 allocated to the Cobourg Presbyterial demands a special effort to meet the objective in view in the alloted time.

Mrs. H. E. Smith, convenor of Group H, took charge of the program, Mrs. Will Armstrong reading the Scripture lesson from Isaiah 55. Mrs. Smith conducted an interesting questionaire covering the annual expenditure, the types of work, and the fields of labor of the W.M.S., and a duet, "In the Garden", by Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Miss May Byam was much enjoyed.

A reading, "Telling the Old Story in Japan", by Mrs. Moore, and a brief talk on specific cases of hardship endured by missionaries in these disturbed times in China was given by the chairlady, who also read a poem written by a worker in India which expressed, in choice language, the hunger for Christ which exists in the hearts of the people of that land.

A pleasant social hour was enjoyed at the close during which tea was served by Group H, Mrs. (Dr.) Rae and Mrs. A. J. Brown moving and seconding the formal vote of thanks at the close.

The new study book, "New Paths for Old Purposes", will be begun at the October meeting.

Shower Given.

The home of Mrs. George Fowler was the scene of a happy social gathering on Tuesday evening, a miscellaneous shower having been arranged, under the auspices of St. Thomas' church A.Y.P.A. in honor of Miss Muriel Lang, whose marriage to Mr. Walted E. Wright, of Peterborough, took place on Thursday, September 15.

Twenty-five or more of the young people had gathered by 8.30 p.m. community games of various kinds, under the direction of Rev. P. C. and Mrs. Howard, whose initiative and experience along this line are well and happily known, filling in the time very pleasantly for the first hour or two after the guests had arrived.

The game of "Statues" was purposely held until the last and when Miss Thelma Ball, Miss Muriel Curtiss, and the bride-to-be were being used in its intricacies it was possible to have the latter placed in the centre of the company, comfortably seated, and the "shower" appropriately brought on as the next feature of the entertainment.

Miss Lillian Crocker played the accompaniment for a suitable little verse composed especially for the occasion, which all sang heartily, while Misses Ada Attwooll and Kathleen Fowler entered with a large basket, daintily trimmed in pink and white, flowers and streamers being the decorative scheme, and "showered" the guest of honor with the many-shaped parcels with which it was piled high.

The opening of the boxes and parcels, large and small, centred the interest of the company for the succeeding half hour, after Miss Lang had expressed her thanks in a few well-chosen words. China, fine linen, brass ware, cut glass, pyrex ware, etc., were among the gifts, both beutiful and useful, which made up the "shower" in its generous proportions.

A number of musical selections rounded out the evening enjoyably, piano solos and duets being contributed by Miss L. Crocker, Misses Martha and Marguerite Lang, and Miss Vaneta Ingram, while Miss Elizabeth Russell received her share of the applause with two or more vocal solos which gave much pleasure to the listeners.

A dainty supper was served by Mrs. Fowler, assisted by her daughter, Miss Kathleen, and members of the committee in charge, the formal vote of thanks to the hostesses for their generous hospitality being heartily extended before the happy gathering was finally brought to a close and the guests left for their respective homes.

Miss Lang has been a member of the A.Y.P.A. for some time and has given active assistance with its various undertakings. Mrs. P. C. Howard, as the president, had a considerable share of responsibility in planning the evening, and seeing that the various details worked out to a successful conclusion.

REBEKAHS HOLD FINE CORN ROAST

Annual Fall Outing Held at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Fallis.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fallis generously extended the hospitality of their house and grounds, Fallis Line, for the annual corn roast under the auspices of Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, which was held on Monday evening, and was attended by a large number of the Rebekahs, the Oddfellows and their friends.

The verandah was hung with gasoline lanterns, effectively lighting up the lawn for the games which filled in the time happily until the workers responsible for the refreshments had the "roast" ready. Comfortable seats on the verandah were available for those preferring friendly conversation to the more strenuous activities of French tag and other sports, which, however, interested the majority of the guests.

Within doors there was a table for cards for any who cared to play, and music should dancing be the preference. A bon-fire was lighted, but, unfortunately, not a big blaze, such as had been planned, as the wind blew the flames directly toward the barn.

About ten o'clock the corn was ready, the menu including also hot dogs, pie of various kinds and tea, and the general verdict was emphatically that nothing better could have been provided.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Harkness, Mr. and Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Garside, Mr. and Mrs. Lavergne Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Thorne (Omemee), Mr. and Mrs. E. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Lambert, Misses Ada Attwooll, Kathleen Fowler, Ethel McKnight, Nettie Taggart, Margaret Armstrong, Isabel Syer, Ruth Thorndyke, Etta Peel, Alice Armstrong, Muriel Ball, Messrs. W. Tinney, D. Fowler, A. Jeffrey, H. Jordan, J. McKnight, T. W. McCamus, Gordon Armstrong, J. Larmer, Arnold Armstrong, Henry Lancashire, G. Elson, H. R. Armstrong, J. Thorndyke, Percy Bingham, R. I. Fallis, Aubrey Fallis, V. R. Hunter, E. Morden, and several others.

The social gathering was considered one of the most enjoyable of its nature which the Rebekah Lodge has yet sponsored.

FOKKER SEES

their usual good judgment and probably came down in what on land would have been a perfect landing

Doubts Plane Spun

"We all know that no matter how perfect the landing, made even in daylight in the water, it is liable to be disastrous to a land plane. Add darkness and a rough sea to the situation and it becomes infinitely worse.

"Engine trouble probably caused this forced landing, and I do not agree with those who state that the plane might have gotten out of control, or spun into the ocean. Planes of this type do not spin or get out of control. It is a reflection on the splendid piloting ability of Messrs. Hill and Bertaud when people state that the plane got into a spin or out of control and had to land.

Others Fear Worst

"Undoubtedly the pilots did all they could right up to the last minute, and the circumstances were so bad with the darkness, weather and rough sea against them, that they did not have a chance.

"The possibility that they may still be afloat in the rubber boat is a hopeful one, and I trust that it may be true."

Other aviation experts yesterday held, however, that the condition of the wreckage found by the Kyle indicated there was little hope to be entertained that the three men still were alive.

Apparently the fuselage of the plane had been torn off in the plunge into the water, they pointed out, and no trace of the engine was discovered. The engine and body evidently had been ripped from the wing that was found.

It was believed that the missing gasoline tank, holding 900 gallons, broke loose and smashed the plane, breaking it in two.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, September 16.—The Presbyterian Girl Guides are making extensive preparations for their sale of home cooking and afternoon tea, which will be held this Saturday afternoon in the vacant store, Front Street.

"Variety," the week-end feature at the Regent, is finding favor among local movie fans. Emil Jannings, who played such a successful role in "Quo Vadis," is equally popular as a German trapeze artist who, with his wife, is the main light at a circus near Berlin. His wife, Lya de Putti, is particularly attractive as an actress.

The picture is introduced by a scene in one of Europe's dreaded prisons. Jannings, convict No. 28, is summoned to the warden's office to receive his pardon after serving twenty years for murder. This pardon is subject to the warden's approval, and he asks the old man to make a statement. At first No. 28, now a bent, weary prisoner and a feeble old man, refuses. Then, upon being told the reason for the warden's request, the sorrowful man sits down wearily on a stool and tells his strange story. It is the old tale of a wife and another man, the eternal triangle. But it is simply told, no frills or fancies, but true to life. And that is the picture.

WARKWORTH MAN WINNER OF SHIELD

W. Brown and H. Webber Second and Third For Special Prizes.

The silver shield donated by W. H. Merrill, acting on behalf of the Gardner Seed Company of Rochester, N.Y., for the best stooks of oats and corn was won by George Helson, of Warkworth. Second and third prizes of five and three dollars each were awarded to W. Brown, of Smith and Harvey Webber, Peterborough.

The winner staked his chances on Bountiful corn, Mr. Brown on Sweepstake corn, and Mr. Webber on Bountiful corn. All three winners used Empress oats. There were in all ten competitors.

The judge, Melton W. Young, said it was impossible to speak too highly of the standard of excellence attained by the winning competitors.

This prize was won in 1925 and 1926 by J. Gordon Mann, of Smith. With three consecutive wins, the shield becomes the property of the successful contestant.

OBITUARY.

JOHN BEATTY.

OMEMEE, Sept. 16.—In the death of Mr. John Beatty, which occurred on Saturday, Sept. 10, one of the pioneer residents of the village has been removed. Deceased who was seventy-five years of age, was born in Omemee and had resided here all his life. In his earlier years he served as councillor and tax collector. He was very popular in Orange circles and in politics a Conservative.

The funeral which was held on Tuesday afternoon from the residence of his daughter, which was under Orange auspices, Rev. E. W. Rowland officiating, was very largely attended.

Interment was made in Emily cemetery, the pallbearers being Messrs. George Lowes, Harry Lowes, Charles Ivory, Lewis Windrim, J. Bannon and W. J. Thorne.

Many floral tributes adorned the casket, thus testifying to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

He leaves his immediate relatives two daughters, Miss Lula, of Rochester, N.Y., and Mrs. T. E. MacPherson, of Omemee, also one sister, Miss Margaret Beatty and one brother, Mr. Joseph Beatty, both of Omemee.

DE LAVAL MILKERS AND SEPARATORS

Modern Dairy Appliances That Save Time, Labor and Money.

In the Manufacturers' Building at the Peterborough Exhibition, the De Laval Company are in arresting evidence again this year with a commendable display of their time and money-saving Milkers and Separators.

Both these world-famed machines are operated by power —electric or gasoline—and both are guaranteed to assure their users of maximum service at the minimum expense. Not only are farmers and dairymen interested in this exhibit, but city folks also find in these modern Separators and Milkers a revelation of that spirit of scientific progress which marks the operations of this enterprising local manufactory.

The Milkers are single units and it is claimed that the extra flow of milk obtained by their use will pay for the cost of the machine.

Their Cream Separators have a capacity of up to 1,000 lbs. per hour and, like their companion Milkers, give their users an equipment which for economy, efficiency and service, positively cannot be excelled.

The De Laval Company's products have found a growing market, not only at home, but also abroad. And in substantiation of this statement it is interesting to note that they are found in operation to-day in the United States, South America, Europe, Africa, Asia, Japan, Australia and the Pacific Islands (Advt.)

It's a safe bet that if you visited the Exhibition Grounds last night you decided they have a pretty good lay-out there. The midway is the leader among midways, the vaudevile is top-hole, and the exhibits were never equalled. It's worth another trip—maybe you missed something.

PLANE STARTS

Fokker 7A, with a 510 horse-power Jupiter six air cooled motor. MacIntosh estimates the plane has a flying radius of 4,300 miles. He spent over 300 hours in air testing the motor before beginning the flight. The plane's fuselage is blue, and it has brown wings. It has no wireless but carries a collapsible rubber boat as a safety measure.

Levine Will Fly.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—The pleadings of his wife and two children that he abandon his projected flight from England to India to-day found Charles Levine apparently unmoved in his determination to carry out his plans. Levine had promised last Tuesday in a trans-Atlantic telephone conversation with his wife to consider cancelling the project, but when he called her from London yesterday he said he wouldn't be satisfied until he accomplished the flight. He said he had made up his mind to proceed with it.

Ruth Elder Married.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Ruth Elder, comely 23-year-old aviatrix, is a married woman and her husband of two years is coming to New York to see her hop off on her "holiday" flight to Paris. After playing truant from Roosevelt Field, where her monoplane, American Girl, is being groomed for its long hop, the girl flier finally admitted that she was the wife of Lyle Womack of Lakeland, Florida, that she had always used her maiden name while a dentist's assistant in that town, and that she had been "kidding" the reporters and others who sought to determine the domestic status of the young woman who wants to be the first of her sex to fly over the ocean. She had denied she was married until news despatches from Florida were called to her attention.

Windsor Leaves Coast.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Sept. 16. — (Canadian Press).—With Windsor, Ontario, their "home port," seven hundred miles distant, their destination without a stop, Duke Schiller and Phil Wood hopped off from the beach a few minutes after nine o'clock, eastern daylight time, to-day. They planned to fly over Concord, New Hampshire, Albany and Syracuse to Buffalo, thence across to the Canadian side to Windsor. Wood and Schiller may not be companions on the New York-Spokane air Derby early next week. Before leaving the ground here Schiller said he did not think Wood would go with him.

About the Exhibition

A large wired cage in the Women's section of the Main Building is attracting much attention from visitors. Within it are a number of lovely little canaries of the 'German Roller" breed, the property of Mrs. J. S. Chandler Aylmer street. Their soft twittering and quick, flashing movements are pleasant to ear and eye both.

In the Dog Show tent, the judging is going on through the day, with general satisfaction expressed over the work of the judge, Dr. James E. Hair, of Bridgeport, Connecticut. To-night, there should be a good attendance for the judging of local and general specials for best of breed.

Entered in the Bull Terrier class, in the Dog Show tent, are two dogs shown by Colonel G. F. McFarlane, of Toronto, president of the Canadian Kennel Club. Mr. Charles A. Stone, of Toronto, who organized the Canadian Kennel Club and built the Dog Show building at the Canadian National Exhibition, is also exhibiting two very fine specimens of Irish setters. In the total of between forty and fifty dog champions that grace this year's show are two outstanding specimens in Herb Routleys Springer Spaniels; International Champion Trent Valley Cuties and Champion Mossend Dick (entered for exhibition only.) Mr. Routley also shows Trent Valley Firesqual, brought over from England within the last fortnight, for field trials, and Trent Valley Just right, (also entered for exhibition only), reserve winner for best of all breeds at the Ottawa Show.

From Halifax in the East to Winnipeg in the West, the out of town exhibitors forming about a third of the total number of exhibitors, and with entries in the Show from as far away as Columbus, Ohio, comprises this year's range.

A Kerry Blue terrier was a somewhat lonely-looking addition to the showing yesterday. This is another champion, Castletown Roche Paulus, and is handled by Mat Gracey of Toronto for its owner, W. H. Lytle, of Toronto.

"Girls are deceiving," says the weight guesser after handing out five boxes of candy in succession to ladies whose weight he had missed, some of them by as much as fifteen pounds. This remark, delivered with a knowing smile which gave it a two-edged meaning, seemed to be the product of deep reflection abetted by costly experience.

Peterborough for honesty. A lady left her purse containing twenty-three dollars on one of the seats on which she had rested. Missing her property she returned an hour later to the bench, where she found her purse untouched.

The judging of the cattle this morning attracted quite a number of spectators to the corral in spite of the blazing sun which beamed upon all and sundry.

The cattle were of a very fine type, and one old-timer expressed the view that his neighbors were "cattle intoxicated."

The attendant at one of the tents on the Midway this morning began the day by a declaration of war against a number of bees which persisted in dogging his footsteps. He made valiant efforts to rout the insects by spraying them with an oil guaranteed to put them out of action, but either his aim was faulty or the bees were particularly elusive, for they sallied all round the tent in the gayest of abandon, seeming rather to enjoy the spray.

The exact date of the foundation of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition is not known, but the most reliable authorities place it around 45 or 50 years ago.

Every available inch of space in the Main Building is taken up. Jeannette's Style Store features the latest models in hats. Barrie's stall displays furs made in Peterborough. Eighty per cent. of the furs manufactured in this city, says a notice on the stall, are sold outside the boundaries of the city. The Upper Canada Bible Society displays Bibles and Testaments. The Empire Milking Machine Company shows automatic water systems, milking machines, air compressors, and paint spraying machines. Puritan Maid hose takes up the bulk of the space allotted to Richard Hall & Co. The Roy Studio shows portraits of local and out of town people and examples of colouring of amateur photographs. The White Cycle Co., has on show models of batteryless radio sets. The Singer Sewing Machine Co. displays the ubiquitous auxiliary to the busy housewife.

The Weather Man seems determined to qualify for that bathing suit promised him by the Exhibition Board for good behaviour until Saturday at midnight.

MANY ASK FOR EXHIBIT SPACE

Manufacturers of Ontario Would Show Goods at Peterborough.

GOVERNMEN GRANTS.

So great are the demands made on the Exhibition from manufacturers desirous of displaying their wares, that Webber Turner could easily sell 1,000 spaces if they were available, said President Roland Denne this morning.

Mr. Denne declares that Mr. Turner to whose ardent labors on behalf of the Exhibition he paid public tribute at the luncheon of the Kiwanis Club and Exhibition Directors, has had half a dozen files of correspondence on this subject.

The reputation of the Fair has grown, said President Denne. From the bottom of a list of 378 fairs in Ontario, it has climbed to the top. The Board was still urging on the government the desirability of raising the status of the Fair to Class A instead of Class B. For that reason, among others, Mr. Denne regrets Mr. Motherwell's inability to come to Peterborough yesterday.

The Jubilee celebrations of this year, says Mr. Denne, amply demonstrated that nothing is impossible to a united Peterborough.

Peterborough's grant for exhibition purposes from the Government had been reduced to $1,500, in spite of the fact that the Exhibition was really doing part of the work of the Government. In educating the farmer to raise better cattle, better sheep and better swine, the Exhibition Board was increasing the value of the stock and bringing more money into the country. The Government simply had got to loosen up. Peerborough was the hub of the Central district of Eastern Ontario. He hoped that in the near future, the Board would have a building second to none for the housing of exhibits.

Mr. Denne, at the luncheon yesterday, also made the interesting suggestion that the Kiwanis Club should build a hall in the Exhibition Grounds, which could be used by both organizations; the Exhibition during the day and the club for dances after 9 o'clock. President Isaac P. McNabb of the Kiwanis Club gave the assurance that the project would be discussed at the next meeting of the Board of Directors of the Kiwanis Club.

IN POLICE COURT.

Grover Halpin and Ed. Hubbel were this morning fined $15 and costs by Magistrate Langley for disorderly conduct last night in a local cafe, where after smashing up the furniture and dishes and assaulting a waiter, one Chinaman managed to escape to a neighboring cafe to phone the police, who took them into custody.

ESSEX truly follows . . .

Racing Car Development

Thus There is Greater Power—Greater Reliability—More Economy And For The Same Reason Every Part is Engineered to Perfectly Balance Every Other Part

Twenty years ago racing cars were twice as heavy and were powered by motors four times as large as the racing car of today. Yet they were only half as fast and had nothing like the endurance of the present day car.

Engineers learned that big motors did not mean greater power. Faster and more enduring motors were found in the smaller high-compression type. And then to make full use of the motor development, the chassis throughout had to be redesigned. Every part had to be engineered in perfect balance to every other part.

Since every racing car is virtually hand made, and cost is no object, these things offered no obstacle.

But such practice is not customary in building stock automobiles. To save costs many makers use the same axle, transmission, clutch and motor.

Essex, however, follows racing car practice. Its Super-Six motor develops more than 2½ times the power its size ordinarily rates it. It converts waste heat to power and gives economy in fuel and oil that is astounding.

The distinction, however, is not limited to the motor. Its chassis is in true balance in every part. Clutch, transmission, axles and frame are especially engineered to make a perfect unit. This permits compactness and adds 15% to the length of the body without extending the body beyond the rear axle.

This unity of construction assures added advantage in every particular of performance, reliability, comfort, safety and economy

DISTRICT CHURCHES

MILBROOK UNITED CHURCH -

MILLBROOK, Sept. 16—The Business Men's organized Bible Class, of Uxbridge, of which Mr. Thomas Gold has been the teacher since its inception twenty years ago, had charge of the special Rally Day service in the United Church on Sunday evening, the visitors coming by motor and meeting the members of the local men's Bible Class in an informal reception, at which tea was served, before the opening hour of 7.30 p.m.

The service was especially for men, and was under the auspices of the organized class taught by Mrs. (Dr.) Rae, and a notable feature of the large congregation was the fact that probably the men were in the majority.

Mr. Gold had about twenty members of his class with him, including an orchestra which played for the hymns, and at other times throughout the service. Mrs. Gold was the accompanist for the orchestral selections, and Miss Ella Elson for the special musical numbers which included a duet, "I'll Exchange My Cross for a Crown," by Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Gold; a solo, "Out of the Ivory Palaces," by Mr. Gold, and a trio, "God is Love," by Mr. and Mrs. Gold, and Mr. Lyman Nichols, the latter being the orchestra leader.

Mr. W. W. Staples read the Scripture lesson from John 15:1-17, and the pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard led in prayer. During the taking of the offering the orchestra rendered a selection; the ushers were chosen from the men's Bible class, and were Messrs. J. H. Might, A. J. Henderson, H. Lang, and W. Brown.

Mr. Gold gave an impressive address from the text, "And as Jesus passed forth from thence, he saw a man named Matthew sitting at the receipt of custom; and He saith unto him, follow Me. And he arose and followed Him," Matthew 9:9.

A strong plea to allow Christ the making of one's life by responding to His call as Matthew did, was urgently presented, and the fact stressed that such a response will change utterly the self-centred life, and the transformation will be not only for time but eternity.

"There are many even in this audience tonight in whom the world sees nothing worth while, but Jesus may have such singled out to make a real contribution to the growth of His Kingdom. The call "Follow Me" is for everyone, and the pathway leads a service worthy of the Master who has summoned you. But follow close; the trouble with the church to-day is probably that there is too great a distance between us and the Saviour who has called us to put His program across in this generation."

"The greater the love, the greater the urge to service, and Christ never needed friends more than He does to-day—close followers who will have the relation of the branches to the vine, for His life flowing through ours will make us a blessing."

"Don't you think we owe fullest allegiance to the Son of God, Who paid so great a price for our redemption, that we who are representing Him to the world, and who are the successors of those early disciples, should make living the Christian life the chief business of our lives, and since every man is worth while to God, should realize that it's our job to lead others to a personal knowledge of Him?"

At the conclusion of the sermon Mrs. Gold sang, very appropriately, "Christ is All," and the pastor pronounced the benediction.

In speaking informally to the local men's class, at the conclusion of the service, Mr. Gold told of the beginning of his own class, of its growth through twenty years until it now has a membership of 200; at its last annual rally in June there were 1,000 men gathered in the church, the ladies having to take the gallery where, as Mr. Staples remarked, "they could, for once look down on the men."

For the past eleven years Mr. W. W. Staples, of Lindsay has been asked to address this class on its annual rally day, Mr. C. W. Weeks, also of Lindsay, being the other speaker for this and other years.

There was a pleasant social hour together before the visiting leader and his wife, with the class members who accompanied them, left for their drive home, warm expressions of appreciation of the service so willingly and helpfully given, being repeatedly made as the goodbyes were said.

NOT FRIGHTENED BY TRAGEDIES

Despite the numerous tragedies which have overtaken other trans-Atlantic fliers, Miss Ruth Elder, aviatrix, still persists in her determination to pilot her monoplane "The American Girl" from the United States to France. Accompanied by her navigator, Captain George W. Haldemand, the twenty-two-year old girl flier left the Ford airport in Detroit for Lakeland, Florida. From there she plans to fly north to Roosevelt Field, N. Y. There she will refuel her plane and, as soon as weather conditions are favorable, attempt a non-stop trip to Paris. The aviatrix will carry a $10,000 cheque to the war orphans of France.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

THE KINGDOM DIVIDED

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for September 18. The Kingdom Divided. I Kings 12:12-20.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist.

So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king had appointed, saying, Come to me again the third day.

And the king answered the people roughly, and forsook the old men's counsel that they gave him;

And spake to them after the counsel of the young men, saying, My father made your yoke heavy, and I will add to your yoke: my father also chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

Wherefore the king hearkened not unto the people; for the cause was from the Lord, that he might perform his saying, which the Lord spake by Ahijah the Shilonite unto Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

So when all Israel saw that the king hearkened not unto them, the people answered the king, saying, What portion have we in David? neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse: to your tents, O Israel: now see to thine own house, David. So Israel departed unto their tents.

But as for the children of Israel which dwelt in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them.

Then king Rehoboam sent Adoram, who was over the tribute; and all Israel stoned him with stones, that he died. Therefore king Rehoboam made speed to get him up to his chariot, to flee to Jerusalem.

So Israel rebelled against the house of David unto this day.

And it came to pass, when all Israel heard that Jeroboam was come again, that they sent and called him unto the congregation, and made him king over all Israel: there was none that followed the house of David, but the tribe of Judah only.

After the glory of Solomon and the building of the temple comes the ignominy of Jeroboam's folly occasioning revolt in Israel and the division of the kingdom.

There is much to cause reflection in what is written in the record and in all that one can read between the lines. In the first place we are reminded that apparently all that was associated with the glory of Solomon's reign and the building of the temple was not in harmony with the true glory of God.

Too often even great and beautiful churches have arisen out of extortion and out of oppression of the people who have lived at their very doors. Can God take satisfaction out of expensive houses erected ostensibly to his praise when the things of love and righteousness are neglected?

Dissatisfaction Arises.

The oppressions of Solomon's reign may not, of course, have been all associated with his great project of temple building. There were many and expensive ways in which Solomon revealed the power of his reign. It is amazing how much oppression people will accept without murmuring or at least without rebellion, though they may murmur considerably, as long as there is associated with the oppression some element of prejudice and grandeur.

When Solomon died, however, the smoldering dissatisfaction of the people came to a head and they immediately demanded that their burdens should be lightened. Jeroboam, who succeeded Solomon, consulted two groups of people as to what answer he should give these who besought him concerning the nature of his rule.

The old men whom he consulted advised him to accede to the demands of the people and to establish his rule in good will by doing all that he could for the alleviation of their burdens. The young men, however, advised him to assert his kingly authority; in other words, to be a strong man and not show any weakness at the beginning of his reign by succumbing to popular demands.

Jeroboam decided to follow the advice of the young men, so when the representatives of the people came to receive his reply, his answer was, "My father did chastise you with whips, I will chastise you with scorpions."

Tyranny Its Own Poison.

The result was such as one would anticipate. All tyrannies carry within them the seeds of their downfall. Sooner or later they bring their inevitable consequences.

The people revolted against Jeroboam, though two tribes continued loyal to the Davidic House and tradition. The ten tribes set up a separate kingdom with Rehoboam as their king. This kingdom was known as the Northern Kingdom, or the Kingdom of Israel, whereas the other kingdom was known as the Southern Kingdom, or the Kingdom of Judah.

Our lesson represents this division of the kingdoms as brought about by Jehovah. We may possibly take such a statement too literally just as men have taken too literally the idea that kings and governments are ordained of God. It is worth while, however, to note that this writer in ancient Israel justified revolt in the nation and set upon it the seal of divine authority.

Instead of that false and vain religion that has inculcated obedience to rulers, regardless of the worthiness of their rule, and that has set a sort of divine authority upon kings and laws, we may well regard this representation of the revolt against injustice as a godly and worthy thing.

Divinity of Right.

There is no such thing as divine right except the divinity of right. No formal prestige or power, no historic tradition or claim of authority, can make a thing right that is inherently wrong.

Men are slow, even in a democracy, in grasping this simple yet profound truth which underlies all true life and government and which must be constantly recognized and acted upon if the true liberties and rights of the people are to be maintained.

There is a tendency in America today to attach to law that claim of divine right that formerly in older communities was attached to kings. No true citizen will minimize the importance of the law, but it is a profound mistake to demand from people obedience to law simply because a thing is law.

It is the rightfulness of law that ought to be emphasized, with this fact always in mind, that where the chosen representatives of a democracy have made laws that in itself constitutes a certain rightfulness of the law until it is repealed, unless the law is inherently repugnant to conscientious convictions of right.

Where such conscientious convictions conflict with the law, a case which will not be very common in a modern democracy, it is hard to see how there can be any other attitude of the Christian man other than that of the ancient disciples who said, "We ought to obey God rather than men."

However, there will never be any fear of the solidity of institutions of good government where men act only from considerations of honor and conscience.

RALLY SUNDAY AT MILLBROOK

W. W. Staples Gives Helpful Address in United Church.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 16—Special Rally Day services, in connection with the Sunday school, were held in the United church morning and evening, the attendance being particularly good on both occasions.

The school occupied the centre pews for morning worship, the superintendent, W. Fred Fallis, the pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, the home Department superintendent, Rev. Joseph Wilkes, and the speaker, W. W. Staples of Lindsay, being on the platform.

Rev. Mr. Wilks led in the opening prayer, and the special musical numbers included a song, "Working Together," by three little girls, Bryer Edmunds, Myrtle Nattress, and Mary Burnham; a male quartette, "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me," by Messrs. H. W. Johnston, W. H. Coombe, M. McDowell and V. C. Lambert; and a cornet duet, while the offering was being received, by Messrs. G. E. and E. L. Burnham. Miss Ella Elson presided at the organ in the absence of the regular organist, Miss S. Hetherington, who is on holidays. The ushers were Messrs. Clarence Ball, Jack Byam, Dr. A. Jemison, and W. G. Hetherington.

Mr. Staples gave his address particularly for the boys and girls, but interested the older folk also as he spoke from the text, "What I say unto you, I say unto all, Watch," from Mark 13: 37.

Illustrating his remarks from the watch held in his hand, the speaker developed his theme from the five letters of the word, elaborating each in detail: W—Words; make these clean, helpful, encouraging, kindly, avoiding the gossipy story that grows in the telling, untruth, prevailing, and usually keen hurt to someone's feelings resulting.

A—Acts; keep actions noble, true, unselfish.

T—Thoughts; need to be kept pure because they tell in the face, and the life.

C—Company choose wisely, and of the kind who will arouse, and expect the best from you.

H—Habits; be careful how these are formed for they run into character, and determine the soul's destiny.

"To each is given a shapeless mass
A bag of tools, and a book of rules:
And each must make, e'er life is flown,
A stumbling block, or a stepping stone."

The secretary's report showed 21 teacher and officers present; a total attendance of the school of 262; and an offering of $16.60. The offering goes to the Religious Education Council for the purpose of aiding, or starting, weak schools, or new schools, in district where help is needed in the religious training of the boys and girls, the older folk being frequently interested as well.

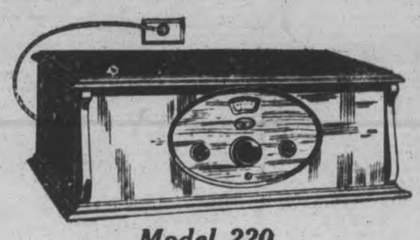
The Crowning Achievement of Radio Science—The New 1928 Models

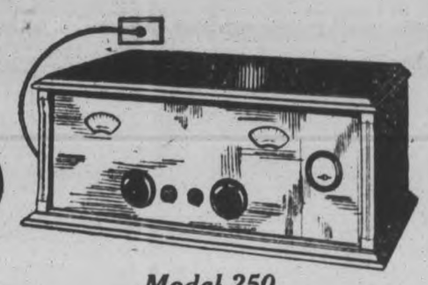


Model 220

Powerful Rogers-Batteryless Receiver, single-dial control, completely shielded audio amplification unit, illuminated dial, patented Rogers A/C Power Tube, finely-finished walnut cabinet. $275.00 complete, except speaker.

ROGERS BATTERYLESS A/C (MADE IN CANADA) RADIO

No Batteries No Chemicals



Model 250

A 5-tube Rogers-Batteryless Receiver, with completely shielded audio amplification unit. Walnut finish cabinet. $215.00 complete, except speaker.

In 1925, while skeptics and critics were loudly declaring that the direct operation of a radio set from A/C current (eliminating all batteries, chemicals, chargers, etc.) could not be done, young "Ted" Rogers, of Toronto, DID IT—and this, Canada's contribution to the development and progress of radio, was the greatest forward step since the invention of the vacuum tube.

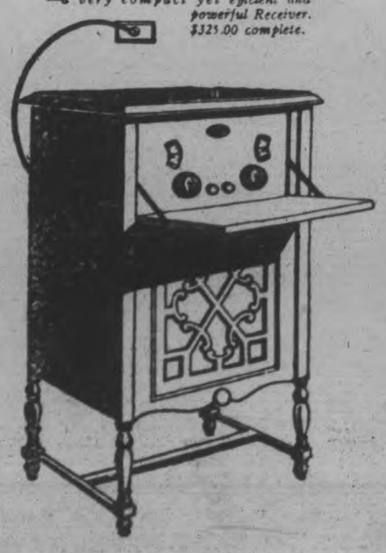
Now, in its third year, the Rogers stands supreme as the pioneer of "Electric" Radios. Today radio sets operating direct from any light socket, without batteries, chemicals or chargers, are not merely an accepted success but are the standard, and will, within another year, completely supersede battery sets where electric current is available.

With five years of research and experiment behind it; with three years of proven performance; with the record of having, alone and unaided, developed the batteryless principle for others to emulate, the Rogers is the logical, the sensible choice of every purchaser who desires a batteryless set that has successfully passed the period of experiment and test, with its accompanying grief.

The Canadian public have already spent about two millions of dollars for Rogers Batteryless Radios, and from Halifax to Vancouver they have proved their worth by the one true test—continuous performance, with uniform, everlasting power.

Cameo Console

A 5-tube Rogers-Batteryless Receiver, combined with Junior Symphony Horn—a very compact yet efficient and powerful Receiver. $325.00 complete.



Three Years of Proven Performance

With such a record behind it, everyone who intends to buy a radio this Fall should see and hear the Rogers now. There will be a hundred special events broadcast this season that you won't want to miss. If used only for these major events a Rogers will more than repay you. Then there will be the myriad of daily programs to afford you pleasure and entertainment by the touch of a button and turn of a dial—today, tomorrow—for years to come.

Let Us Demonstrate in Your Home

The place to test a radio is where it is going to be used—in your home. We will place a Rogers in your home for test and demonstration and if it does not perform to YOUR satisfaction you may return it FREE of all cost. Rogers sets cost you no more than any other first-grade radio—$215 to $395 for the standard models—payable on terms to suit you. It takes only a few minutes to instal a Rogers and less than 5c a week to operate it.

Symphony Console 200A

Same Radio Receiver as Model 220, with Rogers Symphony Speaker in beautiful walnut Console Cabinet. $395.00.

LIVE IN WATER TOWER

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—A gigantic water tower of solid brick construction has been transformed into an apartment house that will accomodate 100 persons. The tower was abandoned fifteen years ago when other methods of water distribution were adopted. Externally, the building now has an imposing appearance.

There's one thing on which the family agrees, says Flapper Fanny. They all say this year's Exhibition is the best ever.

Need Better Light?

Here You Are!

TWO lights that best serve every lighting need—indoors or out! They're time-tested and popular Colemans—now used in more than 3 million homes. They're always ready with a flood of steady, pure white brilliance—more light than 20 old-style oil lamps or lanterns.

The Coleman Quick-Lite Lamp—Just the light for reading, sewing and for the family-circle hour after supper. Saves work—no wicks to trim, no chimneys to clean, no daily fillings. Makes and burns its own gas from clean gasoline. Safe—can't spill fuel even if tipped over; can't be filled while lighted. Listed as standard by the Underwriters Laboratories. Economical—over 40 hours brilliant service per gallon of fuel. Handsome in design. Price, $11.00.

The Coleman Quick-Lite Lantern—Operates just like the Coleman Lamp. Finest light known for the farm—always ready for any job any night. Use it for chores around your barns, sheds, feed lots, granaries and for night hauling, feed grinding and repair work. Makes it easier to do better night work quicker. All enclosed, has mica chimney—is wind-proof, rain-proof, and insect-proof. Prices in Canada, with separate pump, $9.50; with built-in pump, $10.50.

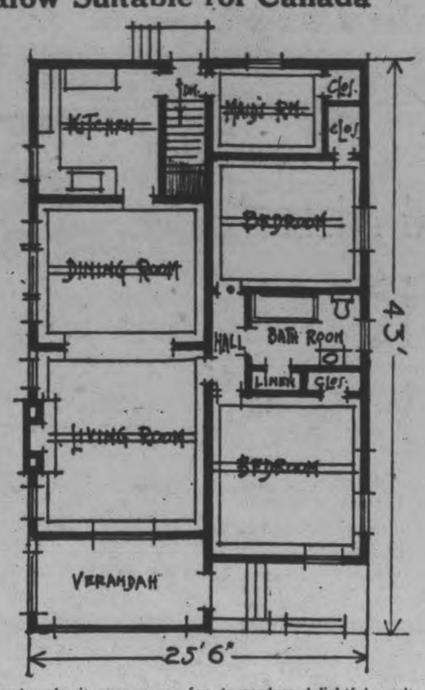
Southern Bungalow Suitable for Canada

By W. E. Van Egmond and Stan. E. Storey, Architects.



This plan would solve the problem of the prospective home builder who desires a home of the bungalow type to be built on a lot of limited frontage, for being only 25 feet 6 inches wide, it could be easily erected on a 35 foot, lot. It has six rooms, all of a size suitable for their purpose, while striking feature indicative of careful planning is the absence of space loss in halls.

By enclosing the verandah as has been done in this case, it is practically transformed into a sunroom, and as such would be warm and useable throughout the year. Furthermore, as we must pass through here to enter the house, it obviates the necessity of a vestibule by itself performing its functions.

The living room which is about 13 feet by 14 feet has a fireplace in the center of the exterior wall with a window on each side. A very wide doorway between the living and dining rooms, renders it possible, when occasion demands, to have these two serve the purpose of one very large room.

The kitchen, a well lighted square room, is of ample size to accommodate sink, cabinet, range, ironing board, refrigerator and all those items designed to improve the housekeeper's lot, and when so equipped a maid would think twice before leaving such pleasant quarters.

As an example of compact convenient planning the arrangement at the rear door is worthy of particular attention. Notice how easily the basement stairs, maid's room, and rear door may be reached from the kitchen without in any way congesting that room itself, also how meter readers and others going direct to the basement, will find it unnecessary to pass through the kitchen. It is seemingly minor points such as these which constitute the difference between good and bad planning.

A maximum of privacy is given to the sleeping quarters by a very popular arrangement wherein the bathroom and two bedrooms open into a small inner hall, access to which may be had only through the living room. The Maid's room and bedrooms each have good clothes closets, and there is a linen closet in the bathroom.

Very little monetary economy would be effected by not excavating under the entire house, and the owner would miss a well-lighted basement, having abundant space for coal storage, heating, laundry, and storage purposes. If the purse permitted it, a bathroom in the basement would be found very convenient, and make it unnecessary for the maid to use the ground floor fixtures.

Not in respect to its plan alone does this home stand the test of study, however, as an examination of the perspective will reveal.

The exterior shows strong Spanish tendencies but is none the less thoroughly practical for a Canadian home. Noteworthy features are the shaping of the rafter ends, and the extremely heavy overhang of the roof at eaves and gables, a typical Spanish treatment.

The space between the front bedroom and bathroom windows, which would otherwise be a rather expanse of blank wall, has been cleverly relieved by the use of well designed lattice. Other features which would not fail to strike the observer are the large verandah enclosing window with its curved head, and the chimney which is kept very severe and simple, in accordance with the best traditions of the style.

Using a shingled roof as is shown, a colour scheme which would not fail to produce delightful results would be stucco tinted light straw, with varigated roof in shades of grey purple.

With a wide lot this house would have a very satisfactory appearance turned crosswise on the property, and with a few slight changes the plan could be completely reversed so that on a lot facing south, full benefit would be had of the sunlight in the living room, dining room and kitchen.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architects direct, Messrs. W. E. Van Edmund & Stan. E. Storey, Regina, Sask.

Why is colour Harmony in a Room important from a health point of view?

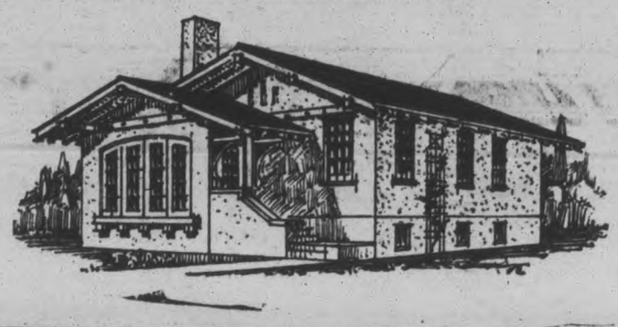
Because color has a distinct effect on nerves and health. Clashing discords of color or dull, dreary rooms are actually destructive to rest and comfort.



SUNDAY SCHOOL EXECUTIVE MEETS

Dummer Workers Plan Meetings For Winter Season.

WARSAW, Sept. 16.—There was a good attendance at the Dummer Sunday School Association executive held on Monday evening. Mr. Robert Somers, President, was in the chair. After the opening exercises three groups were formed. Bible class workers, with home department, teachers' training and other superintendents, formed one group; boys' and girls' workers another group, and children's workers the third.

The Bible class report was that the teacher should know the subject, and if thoroughly acquainted with the Bible, a great deal of outside reading is not absolutely necessary. Also, if the subject is made interesting adults will attend.

The home department, by sending literature into homes which are not represented in the Sunday School, might arouse interest and finally bring more to the school.

Teacher training superintendent spoke of the class to be held in Lakefield for five days, beginning on October 3. Rev. H. B. Herrington is to be one of the teachers, and it is much to be desired that all who possibly can will avail themselves of this opportunity. It is thought better to devote the week to the lessons than to have weekly or bi-weekly classes throughout the townships.

The teachers of the younger pupils feel the need of curtains, and for the very little ones low chairs, and assistants where there are many wee ones.

The young people's department planned to have week-night meetings at some central place. Social, religious, physical and literary subjects will be studied. A committee was named to make the necessary arrangements.

After service in the United Church next Sunday evening Mr. Herrington will show some lantern slides on Bible subjects.

MAYOR GREETS GENERAL SYNOD

No Change Will Be Made in Election of Primate.

SECOND SESSION.

KINGSTON, Ont., September 15 (Canadian Press). — Officially welcomed to Kingston to-day by Mayor Price, the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada to-day entered on the second day of its session. In the absence of the Primate, Archbishop Matheson, Archbishop Worrell, of Nova Scotia, presided at a joint session of the two Houses to receive the Mayor. Rev. H. O. Tremayne, Mimico, Ont., was appointed honorary secretary of the Upper House, and Rev. W. E. Kidd, Anson, Ont., assistant secretary, it was announced.

The question of the method of election of the Primate came up before the Upper House, and it was announced that no change would be made. The appearance of this item in the agenda of the Synod led to the rumour of Archbishop Matheson's retirement, which he later denied.

LAKEFIELD W. I. PROGRAM GOOD

Useful Talks on Clothing and Flowers Given By Members.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 16.—The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon last at the home of Mrs. H. Kemp, with a good attendance. Mrs. J. H. Payne, the President, occupied the chair.

Mrs. Kingdon and Miss Graham took charge of part of the afternoon's programme dealing with planning a costume. The former dealt with the various uses a flour bag can be put to, showing that it has a variety of uses which a practical woman will find invaluable. The latter read a paper on a business woman's costume, stressing the economy of practical clothes.

Mrs. Hugh Kidd, Mrs. J. H. Payne and Mrs. W. M. Graham spoke on winter bloom and ways of preparing for it by cultivating bulbs, primroses, primulas, geraniums, begonias, etc.

These talks were greatly enjoyed by the ladies, who are nearly all interested in flowers and endeavor to have some bright blossoms to cheer the dreary winter days.

It was decided to hold a Hallowe'en social and a committee was appointed to make arrangements.

Mrs. McMaster offered her home for the next meeting, the first Wednesday in October.

The Institute will have a table of home cooking at the Lakefield Fair this year and expect in this way to augment their funds. The society, which was organized in July, is progressing well and has more than doubled its numbers since its organization.

Chain Store Buying—

Has become a basic principle in this age of diminishing distances. As towns and cities many miles apart are linked together in the flicker of a microphone, it is natural that the stores that serve them should be bound together by the common problems of modern merchandising.

By buying in quantities sufficiently large to serve more communities, the chain store is able to purchase the newest goods in the leading markets at QUANTITY PRICES—an advantage heretofore only possible in the largest stores of the bigger cities.

Canadian Department Stores, Limited—a union of twenty-two of the Dominion's oldest and largest department stores—is the first of these great chain systems to be established by all-Canadian firms in Canada.

MODERN IDEAL GIRL DESCRIBED

Comparisons Made With Measurements of Venus de Milo.

LONDON, Sept 16—(United Press)—Measurements of Miss 1927 as she ought to have been agreed on by fashionable dressmakers, who design frocks for the ideal figure and try to fit the modern girl into them. The measurements and for comparison those of Venus de Milo in inches, are:

Miss 1927		Venus
12.5	Neck	12.5
9 .5	Forearm	9 .5
9 .5	Upper arm	9 .5
5 .	Wrist	5 .9
35	Bust	37
27	Waist	28
35	Hips	38
20	Thigh	22.5
21	Upper leg	22
14	Knee	15
12	Calf	13.5
7	Ankle	7 .4

What modern frocks have to do with ankles, calves, and knees is not stated.

AN ATTRACTIVE MUSICAL CORNER

E. V. Warne Has Splendid Exhibit of Gerhard Heintzman Pianos and Orthophonics.

Two handsome Gerhard Heintzman Pianos and three beautiful Orthophonic Victrolas constitute an exhibit by Mr. E. V. Warne in the Manufacturers' Building at the Exhibition that is really worth while. The pianos are an upright finished in walnut, and a mahogany-finished player. Each of the lovely Ortnophonic models give that marvellous realism and tone volume in reproduction for which the Orthophonic Victrola has won universal recognition as a phenomenal creation in this age of invention wonders.

And crowds of visitors are daily held entranced by the life-like recording by these instruments of delightful vocal and instrumental numbers.

Daily demonstrations of the pianos are also winning unstinted praise from all lovers of excelling piano harmony. For mechanical efficiency, sweetness of tone, wonderful volume and wide range, Gerhard Heintzman Pianos are approved of by leading professionals and a discriminating public at home and abroad.

Mr. E. V. Warne, since going out on the jewellery business and devoting his undivided attention to Gerhard Heintzman Pianos, Phonographs and Records, is experiencing a gratifying growth of business at 325 George Street. He handles Orthophonic Victrolas exclusively.

How Do You Like This Design for Negligee Or Little Coat

THIS is a pattern for a negligee or incidental coat—for daytime or evening wear.

It's really quite simple, and you can easily make it from a piece of material two yards long—or a little longer or shorter—and as wide as it happens to be, so long as it is wide enough to stretch, say, when you stand, arms outstretched, across the back and to the elbow or beyond on each arm.

Now fold the cloth over, one end on the other, so that it is doubled, thirty-six inches long. The fold is the line of the shoulders. Slash the front from the bottom to the fold, and cut along the fold about four and a half inches each way from this slash. This forms the neck and the points that fold back like revers. Cut two yard long facings about four inches wide, and face back both fronts. Cut two other strips sixteen inches long and four inches wide for the collar. Seam them together along one long edge and both short edges, turn it and, starting at each front, baste the collar on. Gather the back nine inches slit slightly to ease it into the collar. The collar ends and the facings turn back to form revers.

So much for that. Beginning about ten inches down from each shoulder make two inch-wide tucks, and sixteen inches from each shoulder baste the front edge firmly to the back, about twelve inches in and perhaps fourteen inches, on the back section, from the shoulder crease—so that the front armhole section is a little bigger than the back.

That's all there is to it. The edges, of course, must all be hemmed or faced. The coat I saw was made from a charming piece of batik—which of course needed no hemming along the side edges.

You can use this pattern in crepe de chine for a negligee, or in any suitable fabric for a coat.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

If anything had been lacking to convince Faith that her own vague fears were justified, Joy's childish comment, uttered in sincere bewilderment after her first evening at home following a summer in camp, turned the trick with sickening effectiveness. Joy had said, her eyes puzzled and distressed: Hee! Everybody seems so funny!"

The morning following Joy's return, Faith set herself resolutely to a hard and uninteresting task, in a desperate effort to keep her mind off Joy's too-illuminating words and her father's warning. She was going methodically through Joy's trunk and dresser drawers, laying aside the garments that could be mended and made to serve the rapidly growing child for another short period.

"Oh, dear, she'll have to have almost a complete new outfit," Faith worried. "Four new suits of underwear, at least three new petticoats, some new silk-and-wool shirts—she does take cold so easily; a new coat—I wonder if I can make her a decent one out of my old brown velour coat, if I buy some nice fur to brighten it up? And let's see—dresses—dresses—"

But it was no use. She could not keep her mind on Joy's wardrobe. Her pencil began to make aimless marks on the blank space below the was them atter with her household? Household Why quibble?—she asked herself angrily. Marriage was the word! What was wrong with her marriage, that blessed adventure which she and Bob had begun so high-heartedly, so sure that they could make it a very model of a marriage? Was it—she braced herself to face the question—that he no longer loved her? Or was it—more sickening thought—that he had never loved her, that he had always loved Cherry and now found himself in a dreadful trap, forced to live in the same house with the woman he had married and the girl he really loved?

Oh, no, no! For if she convinced herself that Bob still loved Cherry, there was only one thing to do. She would have to go away—but, oh, she wasn't convinced! No, no!

"I've got to get hold of myself," she whispered. "I've got to face this thing—think it out. It can't be—so bad."

She tried then, a little feverishly, for all her determination to be calm, to remember when Bob had last kissed her passionately, one of those long, clinging, exultant kisses that had made her so shyly and rosily happy the first weeks of her marriage. She began to cry, slow, despairing tears, when she realized that she could not remember—it had been so long ago. Oh, he kissed her now, but so differently! Brief, cool kisses on the lips, or tender, pitying kisses on the forehead or eyelids when her heart was troubled—as when Cherry's baby had been kidnapped by Chris Wiley.

Was marriage always like this? Was she, perhaps, lamenting, like all other wives, the inevitable passing of romance? But Fay and Junior still "petted" openly and ardently; Fay's eyes glowed with a steady light of happiness. Mr. Minnock, their neighbor, looked at little Mrs. Minnock as if he could hardly keep his hands off her—or his lips from hers—

"Mrs. Hathaway, here's a letter for you," Kate Lundy said grimly from the doorway. Her manner had been grim since Jim Lane had left to live in his son's house.

"Oh, from the bank," Faith said listlessly. "I wonder—but I know I haven't overdrawn." She opened the envelope and slowly the blood drained out of her face.

FASHION NOTES.

By HEDDA HOYT

(United Press Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(United Press).—With modern women of Turkey forsaking veils and harem trousers for smart French frocks, the French woman is reversing the order and wearing harem-hems.

Some of the most recent imported gowns and skirts with harem hem treatments, modified of course, but harem-y nevertheless. An attractive dinner gown, typical of many, has a draped bodice, a wide crushed hip sash from the folds of which emerge gathered skirt panels which attach at the hem to a slender skirt foundation giving the harem trouser effect. Almost every gown using the harem hemline has a wide draped hip sash. Oftimes the bolero bodice effect is combined with the harem skirt idea, the bolero extending to the top of the swathed girdle.

While it is quite evident that harem hems will not be a popular choice with American women, there will be a sufficient number of these models to keep them from appearing bizarre. As a rule chiffon or georgette is the material used for the gown of Harem effect since the skirt must be soft in effect and since such gowns are used for dressy afternoon or dinner occasions. Most models are sleeveless and made with rounded necklines.

Recently we saw a well-dressed matron wearing a harem outfit at tea-time. We say 'outfit' since her hat and shoes also had an oriental effect. Her gown, similar to the model previously described, was made of gray georgette. Her shoes were of soft gray satin in sandle effect, heeled and outlined in mauve. A draped turban of velvet in three shades: gray, white and black had in it's front fold a huge cluster pearl pin. One earring of graduated pearls with a large pearl ball at the end was attached to the turban. The effect was more attractive and more subdued than it appears in print. Getting away from fluttering skirt treatments is, in itself, somewhat of a relief. The turban also offers a variety from the small or wide-brimmed hat sans trimming.

It must be realized, however, that the harem skirt is not for the short woman. One must be tall and slender and have sufficient poise to carry the harem skirt.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1927

Although this is not an important day in planetary direction, threatening aspects are discerned by astrologers.

It is a day in which to finish what has been begun instead of making any sort of an initiative.

Deceit is supposed to be encouraged by this rule of the stars, which makes, also, for dishonesty.

This sigh is held to stimulate a love of speculation and even of gambling.

Women are warned that they will be peculiarly susceptible to the malefic rule which stimulates a love of games of chance.

Gambling in fashionable circles as well as among classes that live by their wits will be prevalent in the coming winter, it is foretold.

New standards are to replace laity in social affairs, if the stars are read aright.

A period of modesty and simplicity is to be welcomed by leaders of fashion, the seers prophesy.

Changes in the modes will be apparent first in the coiffure, for women will copy the smooth hair of their great grandmothers, if the stars are rightly interpreted.

Under this sway there may be many cases of blackmail and much increase of crime that is for its aim the acquiring of large amounts of money.

Continued surprises in weather conditions are indicated for all parts of the country.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have a fortunate year, but they must thank their stars and not themselves.

Children born on this day may be high-strung and rather inclined to be irresponsible. They are likely to be lucky all through life.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The new way with the long scarf is to wear it round the shoulders and thrust through the narrow belted girdle. This is a new tailored frock of navy blue with a scarf striped with beige, brown and navy blue.

"It is fatal to tell some women they have personality," remarked a conceited rather young bachelor the other day, "for if you do it is ten to one they will try to express it in their dress."

Just as if what you said, my dear young man, would have any weight. That is what I felt like saying—only of course I didn't. As it was I just said, "I suppose so," or "Really" and added something about what a nice cool summer we had been having. Much as I resented the rather smarty remark of this young man I thought about what he had said afterwards and admitted to myself that dressing to express a real or supposed personality isn't always a very good plan.

I know it is the custom among fashion writers to urge women to dress to their type and to warn them of the foolishness of following the latest mode. Personally I think more dress mistakes are made by women who seek to express their personality in dress than by the women who possess a keen scent for new fashions. There is always something youthful and rather vrile about a new fashion. It interests the casual observer when a woman's personality wouldn't interest him at all.

Take skirt lengths. Your own personality may be expressed by skirts that touch your insteps or trail all around on the ground—still you know what sort of a time you would have if you tried to wear skirts like that in a day when we speak of a skirt that covers the knee as being rather extreme in length.

I really intended to say something about the new ways of wearing scarfs—saying that there were so many really fashionable ways of wearing a scarf nowadays that any woman of any personality could find some one way that was becoming. But I have space to tell you of only one of these new ways—and the sketch shows that way better than I can explain it. A woman prominent in Newport society has been wearing her long scarf that way and it looks smart and different without being "odd."

Women's New Way of Gaining True Hygienic Protection

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

BECAUSE women feared them, and because they presented endless opportunity for embarrassment, old-time sanitary "pads" had to go. Now one goes about for hours, wears sheerest frocks and gowns under the most severe hygienic difficulty without a moment's fear.

Kotex is a new-found scientific protection that virtually 8 in 10 better-class women now employ.

Filled with Cellucotton wadding, science's remarkable, new super-absorbent, it is 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads. Also, it deodorizes while it acts. AND—you discard it easily as tissue; no laundry, no embarrassment!

Obtain at stores; 12 in box. If box is not marked "Kotex," don't accept it—it is not genuine Kotex.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

HOW UNCLE WIGGILY WAS SAVED

Standing up in his washtub boat, with his little rabbit boys Bumper and Jumper on either side of him, Uncle Wiggily wondered what he could do to save himself and the children. He was not a good swimmer—few rabbit gentlemen are—nor were the boys. Once they flopped into the ocean, as they would be sure to do when their boat filled and sank, they might drown.

"But we'll catch them before they drown!" chuckled the Sword Fish.

"That's what we will!" laughed his cousin the Saw Fish.

These two bad chaps had made Uncle Wiggily's washtub boat leak, as I told you in the story last night. The Sword Fish had told his cousin what to do and the Saw Fish had done it—sawing a hole in the bottom of the tub so the water leaked in.

"Daddicums?" asked Jumper as he stood in the water now up to his

"What's the matter?" asked the Turtle.

knees beside his father, "this is an adventure; isn't it?"

"Indeed it is, but not a jolly one," answered the rabbit gentleman.

"What are we going to do?" asked Bumper. "The water is getting deeper all the while," which was true enough. "And we are far from shore, Daddicums, he added, which was even more true.

"We must call again for help!" decided Mr. Longears. "Your mother or Nurse Jane in the shell cottage may hear us and come out in another washtub to save us."

So all together the three rabbits cried: "Help! Help! Help!" but they could no more get any help than your mother can, sometimes, when the cook suddenly leaves and company is coming. Nurse Jane or Mrs. Longears did not hear the call.

"There is something swimming in the water," said Jumper, pointing a paw at some rippling waves, while the water in the leaking tub boat grew deeper. "Maybe that is a submarine boat coming to save us, Daddy."

But Uncle Wiggily, with his sharper eyes, saw the Saw and Sword Fishes swimming about, hungrily waiting. As long as the rabbits remained in the tub the fish could not get them, but once the tub sank, then all would be over.

"That is no one coming to save us," said Mr. Longears as he noticed the sharp and jagged snouts on the two fishes. "They are our enemies. We cannot expect help from them!"

"Maybe if we paddled hard we could get the tub to shore before it sank," said Jumper.

"Let's try!" cried Bumper. But even as they paddled, the washtub sank lower and lower in the sea until the water was almost coming in over [illegible] of heart and strong of will.

Wiggily was almost ready to give up there came swimming alongside of the tub the big sea turtle who, some time before, had given the little rabbits many rides on his broad, shelly back.

"What's the matter?" asked the Turtle.

"The Saw Fish made a hole in our boat and we are sinking!" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"I will save you!" promised the turtle. "Now listen carefully, for I must dive beneath the waves where you can't see me or hear me speak. I am going to swim under the bottom of your tub, and I will plug up the hole in it with some seaweed. Then I will swim along beneath it and hold the bunch of seaweed in place by pushing up on it with my back. As soon as you see that the hole is plugged, begin to bail the water out of your tub. Throw the water overboard. Your boat will then float higher and you can paddle to shore."

"But we have no pails with which to bail out the water," said Bumper.

"Uncle Wiggily has his tall silk hat, and you boys have your caps," croaked the turtle. "They will do nicely. Now I am going to dive under and plug up the hole."

So saying the turtle sank beneath the waves. A little later, looking down through the water in the tub, which was now over his knees, Uncle Wiggily saw a bunch of seaweed appear in the hole the Saw Fish had made. Then the rabbit daddy cried.

"Bail, boys! Bail for your lives!" All three began to toss the water overboard. The tub grew lighter and rose higher on the waves. The turtle beneath it held the seaweed plug in place with his broad back and, by flopping his flippers he helped push the tub toward shore.

When all the water had been bailed out Uncle Wiggily and the two boys began to use their wooden paddles and soon they came close to shore and were saved. The Sword and Saw Fishes could not get at the turtle to harm him because of his thick shell, and they dared not follow the tub into shallow water for fear of getting stuck on a sand-bar. So the bunny and his two little boys were saved, and they thanked the turtle heartily.

FINANCIAL OPERATIONS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—Four major financial operations today promise to set a new peace-time record for magnitude.

The United States Treasury will issue $500,000,000 in new securities and pay off $400,000,000 of maturing certificates of indebtedness.

Federal income tax collections for the third quarter, due today, are expected to total around half a billion dollars.

Dividend distributions by leading railroad and industrial corportations will run $200,000,000 or more.

Issuance will begin of 17,000,000 shares of new General Motors Corporation common stock, having a market value of nearly one and a quarter billion dollars, for 8,500,000 shares of the old issue.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

ASKING YOUTH.

Age is always asking youth,
Asking favors, that's the truth.
What, you ask, does age desire?
If you'd know, then ask a sire.
There are favors, certain ones,
Sires are always asking sons.

Sires are asking sons to play
In a clean and decent way.
Seeking pleasures, but the kind
That will leave them pure of mind,
Purer, braver, stronger still.

Sires are asking sons to spend
Time, before the time shall end,
For their hours of study, too,
Doing what they need to do
That their future may be made
Fruitful with some honest trade.

Sires will labor, sires provide,
Sires will walk that sons may ride,
Asking, as each father delves,
Sons they help to help themselves.
These the favors, this the task;
Does it seem so much to ask

CURING RHEUMATIC FEVER

As I explained in the two preceding articles, rheumatic fever is simply a necessary crisis period which occurs with some people who are so toxic that the bodily forces are compelled to burn up impurities and eliminate toxemias to save the patient's life. At the start, the fever rises quickly, with headache, loss of appetite, excessive thirst, and scanty, dark colored urine. Within the first day or two profuse sweating, which has a peculiar sour odor will start, one or more joints immediately become sore, and this soreness spreads from one joint to another, sometimes involving nearly all the bony articulations at the same time.

Patient should be put to bed at once, or at least as soon as the bowels are thoroughly cleansed by one or more enemas. He should be placed between woolen blankets, and no garment other than wool allowed to touch the skin. Plenty of cover (woolen if possible) should be put upon the bed, being pinned so that when the patient moves, the outside air will not be drawn under. If sweating does not become profuse, it may be stimulated by rubbing the body with oil of wintergreen and, in many cases, it is advisable to produce extra sweating in the joints by wrapping them with bandages made from long narrow strips of flannel cloth sewed together. Excellent bandages may be made by tearing several yards of pure white flannel into strips two inches wide and sewing the ends together. Make two long bandages for each of the knees, elbows, and ankles. These should be changed about every two or three hours, the extra bandages being allowed to dry in between times.

The patient should be given quantities of water at any temperature he desires; at least one glass every half hour, and more if it is possible for the patient to retain it.

The sweating must be continued day and night until the temperature is down to normal. This will be enervating to the patient and he will complain about it but, nevertheless, it must be kept up if serious after-consequences are to be avoided.

Of course, no food of any kind should be given as long as there is any fever. One enema daily should be given, but it should be given on a bedpan, without the patient being allowed to get out of the woolen covers.

It may take two or three weeks to accomplish the desired results through this sweating treatment. The first food given should be non-starchy vegetables prepared in the form of soup, with a very gradual return to other foods.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Ralph K. writes: "I suffered for years with a bad case of eczema. My body was almost entirely covered with scales, and no remedy seemed to help me. Since taking the fasting and diet treatment which you recommend I have been entirely cured. What I want to know is, could not leprosy be cured in the same way?"

ANSWER: I have not had the chance to treat a case of leprosy, but several cures have been reported by physical culturists who understand the fasting cure and have given this treatment to cases with which they came in contact. I would be glad to get in touch with anyone suffering from a true case of leprosy, as I am eager to demonstrate my belief that leprosy can be cured if the blood stream is made perfectly pure through fasting and dieting.

QUESTION: Mrs. L. C. writes: "My son, twenty-one, is suffering from colitis. The doctor says it will take a long time to cure him and that he must not eat meat. He is not living at home but in a boarding house, so I cannot regulate his diet. How best could I help him?"

ANSWER: Tell your son to move from the boarding house, as it is the last place in the world where one can get a special diet such as he requires for the cure of colitis. The doctor was right when he said it would take a long time to bring about a cure, but wrong when he said that meat produces colitis. "Colon-itis" simply means inflammation of the colon, which comes from dietetic errors of all kinds. I advise your son to eat in a restaurant or cafeteria where he can select the proper foods and thus follow the menus which appear in this paper every Saturda

Laparte and Miss Reese arrived here on Tuesday after a hurried trip from Chicago which was made necessary by the fact that Miss Reese had urgent business to attend to here.

TWO KILLED IN HULL ACCIDENT

Driver of Automobile Which Hit Street Car is in Custody.

COMPANIONS DEAD.

HULL, Que., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Julitte St. Amand, 18, of Valtetreau, Que., and Abraham St. Louis, 40, of Prescott were killed when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Hull electric street car late last night. They died within a few minutes of the accident. John Horan, William Warren of Prescott, and Alice Brosseau of Hull escaped with minor bruises and injuries. Warren, driver of the car was taken into custody today and will be held as a material witness.

According to the statements of the victims, Warren was turning the automobile round when he noticed the street car approaching. It seemed to him, he said, that the trolley was stopped so he drove directly in front of it and crashed. Miss St. Amand and Mr. St. Louis, who were sitting in the front seat with the driver, were thrown partly through the front window of the auto and were pinned underneath it as the car turned over.

STONEY LAKE NEWS

STONEY LAKE, Sept. 15.—The Toronto Exhibition and the clang of the school bell have summoned home many of the cottagers from the lake, but there are privileged ones who can stay through September and enjoy the best part of the season. The lake is not so crowded, one finds one's favorite picnic spot free from crowds of people who are cramming their holidays with jazz and noise.

The turning leaves bring an ever-changing view and there is the nip of the early morning and late evening on many days which braces one and gives one a new zest for life. The long evenings mean that one enjoys to its fullest degree the big stone fireplaces. There are the interchanged visits with friends, the evenings on the lake in the moonlight, with good weather, September at Stoney Lake comes near to being a veritable dream of Paradise.

The following guests were registered this week at "Viamede": Miss Leone MacPherson, London, Ont.; Miss Gladys MacPherson, London, Ont.; Miss Wilhelmina Jackman, Toronto; R. G. Sarginson, Hamilton; Miss Sarginson, Hamilton; Miss Corinne Mahan, New York; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Miller, Hudson, Ohio; Master Bob Miller, Hudson, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Niven, Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Jackson, Kansas City, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Klouke and son, Highland Park, Ill.; Mr. J. C. Boyler, Toronto; O. E. Harris, Toronto; Mrs. Stilweel, Toronto; W. A. Stillweel, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Speight, Toronto; Murray Speight, Toronto; Miss Marion Speight, Toronto.

Kawartha Park, which is essentially a family resort, looked rather deserted when September came in. There are still a number of the summer residents there, but the young people have disappeared, called home by school and business.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser entertained at a delightful children's party last week at their cottage at Burleigh Falls. There were fifteen children and a number of grown-ups present, and both children and adults had a delightful time.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. S. Morris entertained a number of the younger set at a delightful swimming party at "Chosen Waters" last week. Swimming, aquaplaning, and other water stunts gave the young people a truly delightful time.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Budres and Miss Doris Budres have closed their cottage at Kawartha Park and returned to Toronto.

Rev. and Mrs. F. H. Brewin and family have closed "Romaja" and returned to Toronto.

Mr. A. Bell, of Toronto, is with his son, Mr. Allan Bell, of Boston, at his cottage, "Peal o' Bells."

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Crawford and daughters, Virginia and Barbara, of Toronto, have closed their cottage for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Lingwood have closed "Kushaqua" and returned to Lakefield.

Mr. James Acton, of Toronto, spent a few days at the lake this week.

Mr. J. H. Edmison, of Toronto, and Mr. Alex. Edmison, of Algonquin Park, spent the week-end at their cottage at Kawartha Park.

Mrs. Gordon H. Graham and Miss Peaches are remaining on at "Twilight" for a short time.

Mr. George Zimmerman closed his cottage at Kawartha Park last week and returned to Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Burritt and family, of Ottawa, who spent the summer at "Capalino," have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Renwick closed "Sunrise" last week and returned to Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, of Peterborough, spent a few days at "Capalino."

"Delhi," the summer home of the Cookson family, of Toronto, has been closed for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddis have closed their cottage and returned to Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Elliott and Miss Jean Elliott closed "Laristin Hall" on Thursday last and returned to Peterborough.

Messrs. Alan and Ernest Doidge, of Saginaw, Michigan, and Mr. Arthur Doidge, of Toronto, were at Juniper Island last week.

The Misses Annie and Gussie Griffin, of Lakefield, and their sister, Mrs. C. W. Finnemore, of Unionville, are at "Eagle's Nest" on Eagle Mount.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McBair, of Peterborough, went up to "Bona Vista" on Saturday.

Miss Isabel Nelson, of Peterborough, spent a few days last week at "Twin Oaks," Kawartha Park.

Canon and Mrs. F. J. Sawers, who spent the month of August at "Tanglewood," lower Stoney Lake, returned to Toronto on September 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Jackson, of Kansas City, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Klanke and son of Highland Park, Ill., who spent their vacation at their camp at Jack's Lake, were week-end guests at "Viamede."

Mr. and Mrs. George MacLeod and family have closed "Minnewawa" and returned to Toronto.

Miss Dorothy Sherin, of Peterboro', spent the week-end with her mother at "The Shack."

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Jones, of Toronto, have closed their cottage for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Rayson have closed "Twin Oaks" and returned to the village.

Professor and Mrs. D. Sloan, of Peterborough, were guests of Miss Roberts at her cottage near Sandy Beach for a few days. They returned home on Monday.

Mrs. Sheehy has closed "Lyrefoune" and has removed to her home in Peterborough with her family.

Rev. and Mrs. G. S. Scoville and son, of Agincourt, spent last week at Mr. Jones' cottage at McCracken's Landing.

Simple Home Recipe For Bad Stomach Gives Swift Relief

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this good advice:

Artificial digestants and starvation diets are seldom needed. Within reason, most folks may eat what they like, if they will keep their stomach free from souring acids that hinder or paralyze the works of digestion. And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a little Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant harmless form of Magnesia that swiftly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A few days' trial of Bisurated Magnesia (powder or tablets), which any good druggist can supply at trifling cost, should quickly convince you that fully 90 per cent of ordinary stomach distress is absolutely unnecessary. Try Bisurated Magnesia today!

New York Mayor Gives Mme. Nungesser Check

PARIS, September 16 (United Press).—Mayor James Walker today presented Mme. Nungesser, mother of Charles Nungesser, who was lost in an attempt to fly across the Atlantic, a check for one million francs as a token of New York's esteem for her son.

Mme. Nungesser asked Jimmy to kiss her after the presentation. The Mayor complied on both cheeks.

TELLERS BEGIN COUNTING VOTE

Result in Ireland Cannot Be Known Before Beginning of Week.

THREE WOUNDED.

DUBLIN, Sept. 16. — (Canadian Press.)—The tellers to-day began the task of counting the unusually heavy vote cast in yesterdays Free State Parliamentary elections, with government leaders expressing confidence that the result would constitute a strong endorsement of the administration. The tabulation of the ballots will continue to-morrow and only fragmentary knowledge of the outcome is probable before next week.

Three men were wounded, one seriously, a message from Starbane says, in an election fight between Fianna Fail (De Valera party) and Government supporters at Raphoe last night.

There was some chuckling to-day over a challenge at the polls of the identity of General Richard Mulcahy, former Minister of Finance and one of the best known figures in Ireland. Putting down the Bible after swearing that he was General Mulcahy, the former Minister glanced fiercely at his Fianna Fail challenger and muttered audibly: "And well some of you people know it, too."

Five varieties of fish heretofore unknown to science were found among the 186,000 specimens taken by the University of Oklahoma zoological expedition in Western Oklahoma last summer.

CHECK AND REST TENT PROVIDED

Canadian Department Stores' Provision at the Fair Appreciated.

The Canadian Departmental Stores, Limited are responsible for a much-appreciated convenience at the Exhibition this week, in the form of a combined rest room and free check room. Facilities are afforded here, with a courteous attendant in charge, for checking any parcels or other impediments, free, while the large tent is arranged as a comfortable rest room, with wicker chairs where tired people may sit and watch the crowd pass by outside. Large matting rugs on the ground, lighted floor lamps and tall ferns, add a decorative touch, while the walls are arranged in Oriental style with rugs as hangings, alternated by lengths of bright chintz.

A small brass-chained enclosure holds models of the latest styles in men's and women's wear, with coats and hats, ties and hose for the masculine patron. The ladies' wear models include a seal coat with sable collar and cuffs, another with brown squirrel trimming and a coat of soft brown suedine with collar and cuffs of Thibetine fur. A couple of hats demonstrate the last word in Miladi's headgear, and there are show cases displaying scarfs, gloves, hose and also some lovely things in fine linen for the buffet and the dresser.

Shipload of Flowers To Be Strewn On Path Taken By Fliers To Hawaii

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Laden with thousands of floral pieces to be strewn upon the sea, the liner Maui sailed out through the Golden Gate for Hawaii yesterday to pay tribute to the memory of the seven fliers lost in the Pacific as a result of the Dole aerial derby which started on August 26. The flowers, blessed during inter-denominational services at the pier, will be cast on the Pacific seven hundred miles from shore.

A floral piece was given by the school children of Cairo, Mich., who were taught by Miss Mildred Doran, formerly of Eganville, Ont., who perished with six men in the attempt to blaze the trail over the Pacific through the air. It was made of straw flowers in the shape of a Bible. It had a cork base and was expected to float indefinitely. This floral piece was three feet wide and four feet long.

Mine Trading Again Crosses Million Mark

TORONTO, Sept. 16.— (Canadian Press.)— For the second successive day the trading has gone over the million mark on the standard stock and mining exchange during the morning session. Amulet overshadowed the other transactions by jumping another 35 points to 6.05, with 200,000 shares changing hands. Barry Hollinger advanced 5¼ and Corona eased ½ at 17, although tradings in both were over 100,000. Dome Mines was up 35 at 8.75 and Gold Hill Mines one at 35. Potter Doa. sold at 16¾, a net gain of ¾. Teck Hughes made a gain of 20 to 9.35 and Cap Rouyn firmed ½ at 18.

Toronto Stocks Firm; Good Gains Recorded

TORONTO, Sept. 16. Canadian Press. — Bullish sentiment brought about sharp upturns in the prices of most stocks traded in on the Toronto Stock Exchange while the volume of trading showed a great increase. Canada Cement and Steel of Canada outshone all others in the matter of speculative activity. An announcement by the president of the company that devleopments of importance were pending, caused Cement to score an overnight gain of 33 points. This was shaded later, the noon closing quotations being 238 with all evidence of the stock being tightly held. Steel of Canada was active throughout the session and advanced 13 points to 173.

Canada Bread on small transactions continued its advance, selling up 9 points with a noon close at 145 Dominion Stores moved up 4 points to 82. From the standpoint of activity unlisted issues were again to the front and in furious trading British American Oil gained a good fraction at 29¼. Transactions in this stock totalled more than 8000 shares. Canada Malting gained 2 at 32; Bakeries were up 1 at 33½; Gooderham and Worts were up 1 at 47½; Laura Secord common and preferred moved up 1 and 2 points respectively to 43 and 132. Brazilian, another strong issue, reached 194½, up 1 3-8. Bank stocks held firm.

The only sign of weakness cropped up in Massey-Harris which lost a point at 37.

Heavy Selling Retards New York Upward Move

NEW YORK, September 16 (Canadian Press). — Heavy profit taking and short selling inspired in part by the sharp increase in brokers' loans to record high levels, retarded operations for the advance in to-day's stock market. Wide fluctuations again took place, however, in a number of the high-priced industrial specialties. Commercial Solvents and American Type Founders each soared nearly 11 points to new peak prices, and a number of others were whirled upward 3 to 6 points. Call money was in plentiful supply all day at the renewal rate of 3½ per cent., despite the increase in brokers' loans and the export of more than $12,000,000 in gold to Argentina during the week, the reserve ratios of both New York Federal Reserve Bank and the combined twelve Federal Reserve Banks showed slight increases indicating no strain on the credit situation.

Wheat Prices Move Up; Rain Sends Corn Down

CHICAGO, September 16 (Canadian Press). — Corn prices underwent a decided setback early to-day owing to highly beneficial general rains. Despite the break in the corn market, wheat developed firmness owing to bullish reports from Australia and Argentina. Opening ⅜c to 1¼c off, corn later showed a drop of 2½c under yesterday's finish. Wheat started at ¼c decline to ¼c advance, and subsequently made gains all around. Oats were easy. Provisions tended downward.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September 1.26¼, December 1.30. Corn September 94¼, December 95¼. Oats September 44⅝, December 47⅛.

HONAN DIOCESE COURT SUPREME

Canadian General Synod Recognizes Freedom of the Chinese Church.

KINGSTON, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)— Important changes in the organization of the Church of England's work in China are recommended in the report of the Board of Management of the Missionary Society of the church in Canada, which was received at a joint session of the Upper and Lower Houses of the Synod to-day. The Synod of the Diocese of Honan, China, under its bishop, is now recognized as the supreme church authority in the Honan district. The Canadian Church Mission there is made an auxiliary to the Chinese church. This marks an important step in the emancipation of the Chinese church. In future all appointments to the Mission staff will be submitted to the Honan Diocese for approval.

INQUIRY BEGUN INTO METHODS OF SALESMEN

Affairs of Stock Selling Firm Are Now Being Probed.

MANAGER MISSING.

Salesmen Leave District When Clients Seek Return of Money.

OTTAWA, September 16 (Canadian Press). — Instructions have been received by J. A. Ritchie, Crown Attorney of Carleton County, to represent the Attorney-General's Department in investigating the affairs of the Ottawa office of William G. Benner & Company, brokers. Yesterday the police seized the books of the local office after the Attorney-General had instructed the action over the long-distance telephone.

Charles Adams, who is said to have been the Ottawa manager, had left, and it was understood that he was in Windsor. However, reports of a raid of the broker's office in that city last night did not reveal Mr. Adams' whereabouts.

Several stock salesmen, of whom Mr. Adams was said to have been the head, had been selling extensively in Ottawa and the district as far west as Kingston. Some statements claim as much as $100,000 was paid by persons in this district.

Suspicions began to be aroused following the action of Dr. Cotnam, M. P. for North Renfrew, who initiated proceedings in Toronto against certain brokers there based on the claim of misrepresentation. Then the clients here became aware that the "high pressure" salesmen who had sold them the stock had left the city and the Attorney-General was notified. The latter acted immediately and held some cheques which were on the way to a Windsor address. This address had been left by Adams with the office staff of the Benner Company here as the point to which cheques arriving were to be forwarded.

According to many from the Ottawa Valley who telephoned into Ottawa during the night, the system worked by the company was to persuade people to buy well-known stocks on margin. They forwarded their cheques to the firm, and if the stocks advanced, the company was instructed to sell. The clients were at once urged to put the money into more stocks on margin, each time adding a little money. Under this method they continued to pay in to the company, but these clients claimed they had never drawn any money out. When their suspicions were aroused and they took steps to wind up their accounts, the salesmen they had been dealing with had left the city and the office staff was not in a position to act.

MARKET RISES ON GOOD NEWS

Reports From Mine and Grain Fields Reflected on Exchanges.

SOME LARGE GAINS.

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Crop reports from the Canadian West and forward conditions in the Northern Ontario mining areas were reflected in the bullish situation in the stock markets in Toronto and Montreal today. There were spectacular scenes on the Montreal Exchange. The records of sales in the Toronto markets were also unusual. Canada Cement scored a gain of thirty-three points overnight on the Toronto Exchange shading off towards noon. There were equal gains in this feature in Montreal, where the President issued a statement advising shareholders to retain their stock. Steel of Canada was also active and strong in both cities. There were heavy transactions in the Toronto market, the trend being largely to higher prices.

Tilden Stages Comeback to Defeat Jean Borotra

TILDEN RETURNS TO OLD TIME TENNIS FORM

Smashes Way to Victory Over French Opponent in Singles.

TURNS IN THIRD

Wins Four Games in Row in the Fourth Set.

WEST SIDE TENNIS CLUB, Forest Hills, N.Y., Sept. 16 (United Press).—William T. Tilden smashed to victory yesterday against Jean Borotra, France, in the quarter finals of the National men's singles tennis tournament.

The American who with his mates fell before the Frenchmen in the Davis Cup matches at Germantown, beat Borotra 6-1, 3-6, 10-8, 6-1.

The turning point of the match came in the third set when Tilden smashed through in the eighteenth game.

Tilden came back fresh after a short rest to take four games in a row in the fourth set from Borotra. After dropping the fifth game on Borotra's service, "Big Bill" won the next two games and the match.

Rene Lacoste, French ace, and defending champion, joined Tilden in the semi-finals by defeating Manuel Alonzo, former Spanish Davis Cup player, 8-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2.

Fans Tardy.

Tennis fans seemed tardy or forgetful when Francis T. Hunter, American Davis Cup player, and John Hennessey, of Indianapolis, began play on the centre court to determine which should enter the next round. At least two-thirds of the horseshoe was empty when play began. The weather was a bit warm to make sunny seats comfortable, and there was no shade. Hennessey took the first set 6-4.

Point score, first set:
Hunter . . . . . 4 1 4 2 4 4 5 1 1 4—30—4
Hennessey . . . . 3 4 0 4 2 2 7 4 4 6—36—6

Hennessey won the second set 7-5.

Point score, second set:
Hunter . . . 4 4 4 2 0 4 2 1 1 4 0 1—27—5
Hennessey . . 2 2 0 4 4 2 4 4 4 1 4 4—35—7

Bill and Jean.

Hunter and Hennessey retired from one of the two centre courts at the end of the third set of their match. William T. Tilden II. and Jean Borotra of France began warming up on the other court. Cameramen rushed the famous pair and the crowd applauded. Borotra wore the Basque bonnet, which has risen to fame along with him. His right wrist was bandaged. Tilden and Borotra began play and the other two returned and resumed play. The stands were a little more than half full. Tilden won the first set, 6-1.

Point score, first set:
Tilden. . . . . 2 4 4 6 4 6 4—30—6
Borotra . . . . . 4 0 2 4 1 4 2—17—1

Victory For Hunter.

In a quarter-final match Francis T. Hunter, United States Davis Cup doubles player, defeated John Hennessey, of Indianapolis, 4-6, 5-7, 6-0, 6-3, 6-4. Through beating Hennessey, who sprang the surprise of the tournament by trimming Henri Cochet, of France Wednesday, Hunter earned the right to meet the winner of the Tilden-Borotra match in the semi-finals.

On a recent eventful voyage from African ports to Boston the steamer "Eastern Glade" had one of her crew dangerously burned in an explosion, another attempted suicide, a third was alleged to have attempted murder, while a fourth died and was buried at sea.

Mrs. Dempsey Hopes To See Her Son Fight

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Satisfied that her son, Jack Dempsey, is "getting along all right" at Chicago, Mrs. Celia Dempsey today apparently was chiefly concerned about securing a ring side seat from which to watch him fight Gene Tunney.

"It will be the first championship fight I have seen my boy appear in", she said.

Promoters Discuss Details of Fight

LINCOLN FIELDS, Crete, Ills., Sept. 16. — (Canadian Press.)—Jack Dempsey, waiting until darkness fell before doing any boxing, lunched yesterday with Tex Rickard and a number of Rickards friends.

After the luncheon there was a secret session, with the former title holder and Leo P. Flynn, his manager, discussing with Rickard and other promoters various details of the battle. What transpired was not divulged. All denied there was talk about the Illinois boxing rules or the names of possible referees and judges.

Chairman J. C. Righeimer stated that the referee and two judges would not be named until just before Dempsey and the champion crawled into the ring a week from to-night.

"The Commission meets next Tuesday, two days before the fight," Righeimer said, "and the question of judges and referee may be discussed or even decided at that session. There are about six referees, all capable and experienced, available to us. Surely there is one among them that would be satisfactory.'

CARDS SPLIT DOUBLE BILL

Champions and Giants Continue in Tie for Second Place.

PIRATES WIN 2-1

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—The world champion Cardinals divided their third straight double-header with the Giants yesterday and the two clubs continue in a tie for second place, each dropping half a game further behind the league leading Pirates, who trimmed the Braves. The Giants won the first game by knocking Haines out of the box in three innings, piling up a six run lead, and continued the assault for a final total of 11 to 3. The Cards took the closing battle by 8 to 5, darkness halting the contest after the New Yorkers had batted in the eighth.

St. Louis used 20 players in the opening encounter, five being pitchers. Terry hit two homers, his 18th and 19th of the season, one coming with two on base. Taylor made two triples, one with the bases full, when Haines had purposely passed Harper to get at Taylor.

Big Lefty Jim Faulkner, the new Giant from Toronto, made his debut and allowed seven hits in five and two-third innings, being lifted with the bases loaded. Larry Benton came to his rescue and put on the brakes, allowing neither a run nor a hit for the remainder of the game. Faulkner got credit for the victory.

In the second combat the Cards took advantage of New York errors, and hit Fitzsimmons and Walker hard. Roush and Hafey hit homers in this game in which Frankhouse, a right hander from Houston, Texas, won his third straight start for St. Louis. About 27,000 witnessed the twin session. The Cards and Giants are 4½ games behind Pittsburgh with one more clash in the current series.

Batting opportunely behind brilliant pitching by Carmen Hill, the Pittsburgh Pirates continued their march pennant-ward yesterday by defeating the Boston Braves 2 to 1.

It was the Corsairs' fifth straight triumph over the Braves, their eighth victory in a row, and Boston's 12th consecutive defeat. It marked at the same time Hill's 22nd win of the season. He has been defeated nine times. He allowed only five hits yesterday.

The game was a tight hurling battle between Hill and Bob Smith.

ATHLETICS WIN FULL SERIES

Defeat Chicago White Sox in Final Game by Score 5 to 4.

YANKEES LOSE OUT

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The Athletics made a clean sweep of their three game series with the Chicago White Sox by winning the final yesterday 5 to 4. Jimmy Fox hit a home run with two on in the third round and gave the Mackmen a 4 to 0 lead that Chicago tied in the sixth. A double steal by French and Cobb, the former scoring, put over the run in the seventh that defeated Ted Lyons, the Sox pitching ace.

The Cleveland Indians prevented the Yankees from winning their 100th game here yesterday by taking the last of the series 3 to 2, Uhle yielding only seven hits.

Langford, a Cleveland rookie tried out by the Yankees several years ago, won the game in the sixth with a home run scoring behind J. Sewell.

Wins Final Game.

St. Louis took the final game of its season series with Boston yesterday, 2 to 1. The winning run came in the sixth when Rice drove the ball into the right field bleachers for a home run. The blow broke up an old fashioned pitchers' battle between Milton Gaston and Slim Harriss. The Browns have won 16 games from the Red Sox this season and lost six.

After dropping three games in a row, the Detroit Tigers about faced yesterday and won the last game of the series from the Washington Senators, 6 to 5. The Tigers overcame an early lead in the seventh when two singles, a double and a homer by Manush with one on netted four runs, giving them a lead they held.

Keffer Beats Young In Quebec Play-Off

ROYAL OTTAWA GOLF CLUB, Sept. 16.—Karl Keffer, veteran "pro" of the Royal Ottawa Club and twice Canada's open golf champion, captured the Quebec open title here yesterday afternoon in a stirring play-off with Jack Young, assistant "pro" of the Royal Montreal Club. The 47-year-old local teacher ran up two birdies and one eagle to amass a total of 70, seven strokes under his opponent.

LEAFS TAKE SIXTH GAME

Win Series From Syracuse Stars, 4-2 by 3-0 Victory.

BISONS WIN FINAL

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Toronto took the series from Syracuse 4 to 2 yesterday by winning the sixth game, 3 to 0. The Stars outhit the Leafs, but played a ragged and listless game offensively and defensively.

Baltimore won the final game of the series here yesterday, defeating Newark in a hectic battle, 8 to 7. In the ninth inning with two down, Maizel hit Honey, the third pitcher for the Bears, for a triple. Swancy, who relieved his mate, then cut loose with a wild pitch and the winning run went over the plate.

NEWCASTLE UNITED TAKES LEAGUE LEAD

Displaces Sunderland for Pride of Place in First Division.

LONDON, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press Cable).—The first division of the English soccer league saw another leader displaced in mid-week games when Sunderland yielded pride of place to the league champions, Newcastle United, by virtue of the latter's victory on Wednesday over Derby County. This win pushed the Tynesiders one point ahead of their rivals, and was a manifest notice on all other members of the division that Newcastle United intend to fight in order to keep what they now hold. The game was played at St. James' Park, which is the locale of Newcastle's game on Saturday when they meet Everton. The Lancashire club are also engaged on Wednesday but the best they could do on their own ground against Bolton Wanderers was to split the issue. This practically duplicated their game with Bolton ten days ago.

On form, all the advantage is on the side of the Northumbrians, who have their league title to think about. They have already won four games handily, their previous tilt with Derby County resulting in a draw, so that with nine points back of them they are in a decidedly favored position.

Interest on Huddersfield

Much interest on Saturday will be focussed on Huddersfield Town who will entertain Manchester United. Huddersfield are in the unusual situation of having to search for their first victory this season. In previous years they have started off magnificently and finished just as magnificently, but they have fallen on lean times and out of their four games played all they have extracted is one solitary point—a draw last Saturday with Tottenham Hotspur.

Manchester United were doing well until they ran into a disaster at Old Trafford a week ago. On that evil occasion the league champions smothered them by seven goals to one. If Manchester United have recovered from the shock, they may give Huddersfield a stiff game, but if not, Huddersfield may embrace the occasion to garner in their first full points.

One of the most interesting of Saturday's games will be played at Highbury where the homesters, Arsenal, are slated as hosts to Sunderland. There is little to draw between the records of these clubs, Arsenal having now got over their initial defeat, when Bury handled them badly. Sunderland have not yet dropped a game, but they have divided the points twice—once with Portsmouth and the second time with Leicester City. Since then they have defeated in turn Birmingham and Liverpool.

The cup-holders, Cardiff City, whose career has been punctuated with draws, are down to travel to Birmingham. The Welshmen have not been beaten yet, but four out of their five games have been drawn. Whether their tilt in the Midlands will be any more decisive remains to be seen.

Other scheduled first string encounters are: Aston Villa at Burnley; Sheffield United at Bury; West Ham at Leicester; Derby County at Liverpool; Blackburn at Middlesborough; Tottenham Hotspur at Portsmouth, and Bolton Wanderers at Tie Wednesday.

PECK SOCCER GAME HERE SATURDAY

Masseys Versus Thistle at King Edward Park—Kick-off at Three.

Local soccer fans will be treated to another battle between the Thistle and the Masseys in the E. A. Peck final game for possession of the trophy that has been presented to the soccer association many years ago and has been competed for every season since it was donated to the football executive.

The Masseys, who have been fortunate in getting byes into the final, again face their previous cup opponents, the Thistle, who have lost all the trophies they held for three seasons in a row, but intend to capture this piece of silverware to-morrow.

Arrangements have been completed by the president, Vincent Stewart, whereby E. A. Peck, donor of the cup, will present it to the winners at the finish of the game.

As usual, the 'Jags' will not choose their eleven until the time of the kick-off' and request all signed players to be at the pavilion no later than 2.45 p.m.

The league champions, the Masseys, will in all probability trot out their strongest team so as to capture all the trophies in 1927 season.

A new referee, Alex. Mitchell, has kindly consented to officiate in the capacity of adjucator of play in this important match, in place of Johnny Ward, who requested to be relieved of the duties, owing to other business, and deserves credit for the way he has handled the difficult position with impartial decisions.

Advertise in The Examiner

On the last four occasions that Bill Tilden has clashed with little Bill Johnston in the national tennis finals he has emerged victorious each time. That would make it seem that Tilden either had complete mastery over Johnston or else he was simply a jinx for the diminutive Californian.

No doubt Johnston regards Tilden as the original hoodoo man, yet Tilden, on the other hand, gives Johnston credit for developing his backhand stroke, one of his greatest assets. He said he early learned he had to do it if he was to have the upper hand.

It was back in 1919, when the two first met, that Tilden learned Johnston could pound his backhand stroke to a pulp. At that time he was a good defensive backhand stroke but nothing to offer on the offense. He worked diligently indoors during the winter of 1919-1920 and finally developed an offensive as well as a defensive backhand stroke.

To this feature of his play, Tilden gives credit for whatever margin of victory he has attained over Johnston in the last seven years. By an analysis of Johnston's play against him, he learned his weakness and eliminated it from his scheme of play.

While most champions lean to originality in methods, Tilden is a firm believer in the value of imitation. He says the greatest help for an ambitious youngster is to watch the play of the stars, and in trying to imitate them it is but natural that he will develop the best in his own style. Tilden doesn't favor imitation that destroys individuality but merely imitation that helps to bring out the best in one's own ability.

Last year Tilden after six successive wins was shorn of his title of champion.

WILL NOT REVISE EXISTING HYMNAL

Add Supplementary Collection of Hymns to be Used in Conjunction With It.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—The existing hymnal of the Church of England in Canada will remain unrevised, but a supplementary collection of hymns will be compiled to be used in conjunction with it, it was decided yesterday afternoon, at a joint meeting of both the Upper and Lower Houses of the General Synod. Magistrate James E. Jones, of Toronto, presented the reports of the Hymnal committee, and introduced a resolution for the appointment of a committee to compile the supplementary collection and to submit to Synod a collection of anthems, the resolutions passed without opposition.

One report of the Hymnal committee announced a reduction in price o fthe hymnal. The other report deals with a questionaire sent to clergy organists and choirmasters with a view to a possible revision of the hymnal. The result of the questionaire showed that practically all the hymns in the present book are in actual use in some churches and no change, was thought advisable at present.

In urging the publication of a supplementary collection it was pointed out, that the present hymnal, compiled 22 years ago was lacking in the vigorous songs demanded by the youth of to-day in such organizations as summer camps. It contained no hymns dealing with social service, a department of church work which had recently developed and there were many hymns in the English hymnal which might well be used here. A revision of the hymnal would be necessary sooner or later and the thought was expressed that many pieces could be introduced and tested out in a supplement which would prove useful when revision should be undertaken.

The report of the executive council was presented by the Archbishop of Huron and adopted. One of the features of the report was a recommendation favouring the establishment of a newspaper under the direct auspices of the church. This matter was referred to the General Board of Religious Education. It included also the discontinuance of the Federal War Service Commission and the turning over of the Commission's funds to the Counicl for social service, to be used for military purposes.

At the close of the afternoon session the delegates visited Queen's University where they were guests at tea in Grant Hall. Practically all the members availed themselves of the opportunity and were shown about the buildings by members of the staff.

CRICKET NOTES

The Peterborough Cricket Club will close its playing season to-morrow afternoon, when it will meet a team representing East City. This game will commence at 2 p.m., and all members of the Peterborough Club are asked to turn out. Any others who would like a game are cordially invited.

RUGBY NOTES.

There will be a meeting of the Rugby Union in the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday night, and all interested are requested to be on hand.

The junior rugby team is getting into condition for a big year. Many of last year's team are in town and with the addition of several new players from P.C.I. and some from other places who are now working in the city we should have a good outfit. Last year's aggregation was put out of the running only after a hard-fought sudden death game in Oshawa, with the McCormicks of Toronto.

The first junior O.R.F.U. rugby practice will be held on Monday evening at 5.15 on Confederation Square (Central Park.) The practice is a uniform practice and all players are expected to turn out either in uniform or sweaters and knickers. The following players are expected out: Westbrook, McIsaac, J. Hope, H. Fraser, J. LeBarr, Terry Hall, Bob MacKay, Ted LeBarr, Ashmore, Mackness, Palmer, Yelland, White, Gibson, Donahoe, Allen, Robertson, Hatton, Flemming, Howden, Fawcett, Merritt, Latimer, Jack Stuart.

Any other players under the age of 21 years on September 1st are requested to turn out with the team, even if they have not had any rugby experience and a good try-out will be given them

Theatres

AT THE REGENT.

Yo-Ho, a story of pirates, of loot and stolen treasure, of conquests on strange seas, of mysterious tropical islands—of twin brothers and a girl who meet after years of separation! This is briefly the essence of "Breed of the Sea," the F. B. O. Gold Bond Special showing at the Regent Theatre now.

The picture is filled with the zip and tang of the sea; with the old spirit of adventure when men lived romance and made history. The role of the daring pirate who terrorizes the southern seas is played with tremendous realism and effectiveness by Ralph Ince. Ince also plays the part of the other brother who chooses the ministry as his calling. To Ince goes the credit for the masterly direction of the picture. The cast includes such favorites as Margaret Livingston, Dorothy Dunbar, Alpaenz Ethier, Pat Harmon, and many others. The story is by Peter B. Kyne, one of America's most popular authors. The adaptation for the screen was made by J. G. Hawks, and the continuity was written by J. Grubb Alexander.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"MONTE CRISTO."

The revival presentation of "Monte Cristo," now playing at the Capitol Theatre, brings to local movie fans a unique presentation of the picture that first brought the hero, John Gilbert ,to popular notice. It is one of the type of productions, however, that might have been filmed yesterday, because its setting is cast in the times of a century past. The combination of Gilbert and Renee Adoree in this film was acclaimed by public approval on its release some years ago, but it is the man who has the dominant and stellar role, "Monte Cristo" owes its out-of-the-ordinary attraction to the fact, that while it is the story of a possessing passion ,it is not the passion of love that is depicted, but the passion of revenge. And it is one of the enthralling pictures that absorbs the audience in its unfolding. Characterizations do not count as much as does the plot, a somewhat unusual situation for the movies, where plot is nearly always subordinate.

John Gilbert has the stellar role, superbly played, with a dual portrayal that introduces him to the audience as a young man, vital and eager, and makes him do his best work later as a prematurely aged creature, silent, but compelling through the force of his obsessing idea of revenge. He is Edmond Dantes, the sailor of Marseilles, who loves the pretty Mercedes, and prepares to wed her. A jealous rival, and his accomplices, plot his downfall and accuse him as a political spy to the loyal Prosecutor, de Villefort. A letter carried by Dantes, of whose import he is unaware, accuses the father of de Villefort as a traitor to his country, so the son immediately causes Dantes to be placed in the grim fortress prison of the Chateau d'If. Here he languishes for twenty long years, while his form stiffens and his head turns white. In the meantime, his victorious rivals have gone on to fame and power, and Mercedes has married his foremost enemy, de Montegno.

After long years of labor with rusty tools, Dantes scratches a way to a neighboring cell, where another political prisoner is immured. This man, highly educated, trains him in the sciences and arts, and when he dies, Dantes impersonates the dead man and has himself cast into the sea from whence he is rescued by pirates, who again help him to the Island of Monte Cristo, where he finds, through the aid of a parchment map entrusted to him by his fellow-prisoner, a fabulous buried treasure.

Armed with wealth and incited by an ever-burning desire for revenge, he goes to Paris as the Count of Monte Cristo. Threads of intrigue and interwoven circumstances bring to his hands all the elements he needs for a complete vengeance over his enemies. Fate helps him, and one by one, he destroys the three men who have ruined his life. The fashion in which he does this, makes a dramatic, living picture that has a notable setting in the atmosphere of the Court and the palaces of the men who have now achieved a high place in the ranks of the mighty.

It is an absorbing tale, splendidly enacted by a powerful central figure, supported by an excellent cast, with the costuming and backgrounds of a forgotten romantic age to lend color and verisimilitude.

Mr. Herrington has other fish stories—true ones—to tell.

There is between three and four hundred dollars to be laid out on the boundary. Fifteen or more years ago there was two hundred dollars, and for a long time the road was in splendid condition. However at that time all the men who regularly used the road gave several days of free work with their teams. As the work was done in winter the gravel was drawn across the fields and about twice as many loads drawn per day. Roads were opened through fields for traffic. This time crushed stone will be used.

SCIENTISTS LOOK FOR BIG 'QUAKE WITHIN A YEAR

Say There is Fault Extending From San Francisco East to Nagasaki.

FOLLOWS MEDITERRANEAN.

Many Minor Shocks Presage Large One, in Opinion of Experts.

LONDON, Sept. 16—(United Press)—Sir Oliver Lodge, famous British scientist, supports Professor Muskaytoff's theory that there is a vast crack around the world and that this is a proof that there is a definite northward movement of Africa and India towards Europe and Asia.

"There is no doubt", says Sr Oliver, "that the earth's crust is settling down, nor is there anything abnormal in the operation except the improved means of communications which broadcast news of earthquakes and typhoons all over the world in a few seconds."

Meanwhile Sir Charles Gregory admits that he and fellow scientists are anticipating a disastrous earthquake within a year somewhere near the fault line, which runs from San Francisco south of New York and through the Azores, Spain, Messina, Crimea, Leninakan, Samarkand, and Nagasaki.

Gregory says it "has been proven consistently, following the series of minor and medium earth disturbances such as we have experienced recently, that a big earthquake is likely to occur."

ADD THREE SHIPS TO EASTERN ROUTE

Vessels To Ply Between Canada and British East Indies.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Three new vessels to operate on the eastern route between Canada and the British West Indies will be purchased from Cammell Laird and Company, Liverpool, at a total cost of $3,949,000. Official announcement to this effect was made last night by Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce.

The first vessel, stated Mr. Malcolm, will be completed within 13 months, the second within 14 months and the third vessel within 15 months.

President Coolidge is shown above with Mrs. Coolidge and their son John, who has joined them for a short vacation. The president has been caught in a broader smile than the public usually sees. Perhaps the prospect of freedom from office has relaxed his customary severity.

Boats for the western route between Canada and the islands will not be ordered for three weeks at any rate, intimated Mr. Malcolm, as certain negotiations in the matter were pending.

Regret was expressed by Mr. Malcolm that the Government was unable to give the contract to a Canadian firm, due to the fact that the lowest Canadian tender was for $6,820,000.

The three new vessels will provide a passenger, mail, freight and steamship service, in accordance with the Canada-West Indies trade agreement of 1925. The boats, it is understood, will call at Bermuda, St. Kitts, Antigua, Barbadoes, Trinidad, Demarara and other points on the eastern route.

PEAK NAMED FOR PREMIER

Mount Stanley Baldwin, in the Caribou Range, 10,400 Feet High.

VISIBLE FROM RAILWAY.

OTTAWA, September 16. — At the suggestion of the British Columbia government, a high peak on the British Columbia side of the Divide has been named Stanley Baldwin in honor of the first British Prime Minister to visit Canada while in office. The peak is about 10,400 feet high and is situated in the Cariboo Mountains. The peak is visible to the south from the railway through the Yellowhead Pass.

A group in the Cariboo Mountains, British Columbia, just south of the Yellowhead Pass, and visible from the railway, has been named the Premier Group, and peaks in it have been named as follows: Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir John Thompson, Sir John Abbott and Sir Mackenzie Bowell.

The elevation of Mount Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the highest of the peaks, is about 11,750 feet.

Mountains in other parts have already been named after other Premiers since Confederation—Sir John A. Macdonald, Alexander Mackenzie, Sir Charles Tupper and Sir Robert Borden. Sir John A. Macdonald was commemorated in this fashion by order-in-council as long ago as 1887.

WEDDING BELLS.

JONES—CROMPTON.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in George Street United Church on Sept. 14th, when Mrs. J. P. Crompton, of Peterborough, was united in matrimony to Douglas D. Jones, of Pyle, South Wales, Great Britain, the Rev. J. E. Todd officiating.

OBITUARY.

JOHN A. McINTYRE.

Early on Monday morning there passed away a well-known resident of Indian River, John A. McIntyre.

Deceased had been in ill-health for a long time, but his death was not expected, and coming so suddenly was a great shock to his family.

Left to mourn his loss are his wife, two sons, Alexander and John, four daughters, Mabel, Annie L., Myrtle, and Isabelle, three sisters, Mrs. James Robertson, Villiers, Mrs. Campbell of Toronto, and Mrs. Cruthers of Vancouver, and one brother, Morley of Cobourg.

The funeral took place on Tuesday at 2 p.m. to Fife's Cemetery. Mr. Eikenarr, of the Baptist Church, Indian River, and Mr. McCleary, of Westwood, officiated.

The large funeral cortege and the many floral tributes testified to the esteem and sympathy of the community.

WILLIAM H. LOUGH.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Sept. 16.—The death occurred on Thursday afternoon at his home in Ida, of William Howe Lough, in his 83rd year. The late Mr. Lough was an old and highly respected member of the community in which his entire life had been spent. He was widely known throughout the district, having kept the post office and store for over 50 years. In religion he was a faithful member of St. John's Anglican church and in politics a staunch Conservative.

His wife, Agnes Baptie, died six years ago. One son, Roy, and four daughters, Miss Helen Lough of Ottawa, Mrs. Robert McCamus of Ida, and the Misses Jean and Vivian Loughs at home, are left to mourn the loss of a loving father. Two sisters, Mrs. Grandy of St. Thomas, N.D., and Miss Teresa Lough, of Mount Pleasant, and one brother, Frank of Winnipeg, also survive.

The funeral will be held on Saturday, leaving his late residence at 2 p.m. for St. John's church and cemetery. The I.O.O.F. will be in charge.

QUAKERS EXHIBIT MOST INTERESTING

Mothers Flour is Packed in Sacks of Good Gingham.

A feature of exceptional interest to thrifty housewives is the Quaker Oats Company exhibit of Mother's Flour in the manufacturers building of the Peterborough Exhibition. This flour is made from the finest hard wheat by the most modern and scientific milling processes, and is specially prepared for household baking. Instead of cotton or jute a sack of high quality gingham is used. The material is of good quality, and is 36 inches wide, and a yard and a fifth long, and is ideal for rompers for the little ones, dresses for the girls, aprons, sun bonnets, handkerchiefs, and curtains for kitchen windows.

Six magnificent specimens of white leghorn pullets are also on display at this exhibit. The birds are snow-white in color, and have been raised on the Quaker Full-o-Pep products, and are objects of admiration from the many hundreds that visit the exhibit.

The exhibits are so many and varied that visitors are astounded at the extent of this concern's operations. Among other commodities this section is replete with Schumacher feed, Quaker Dairy Ration, Full-o-Pep chick feed, chick starting and growing mash, Laying mash, Full-o-Pep Scratch grains, Big Egg Schumacher grains, Victor Feeds, each of which finds approval with discriminating customers.

Of special interest is the series of moving pictures which record incidents in the poultry industry, from hatching to maturity, demonstrating the proper forms of housing conditions, etc.

Other products of the Quaker Mills are Quaker Oats, Quick Quaker, Quaker Corn Flakes, Quaker Cake Flour, Quaker Puffed Wheat, Tilson's Natural Bran, Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour and Buckwheat Flour.

These are Canada's most widely used cereals.

The company's local plant is up to the minute in scientific equipment for sustaining their universal reputation for manufacturing nothing but the best in pure foods and cereals.

ROW OF POTATOES CAUSES COURT CASE

Action Settled at Recent Session of Division Court.

At the last sitting of the Division Court, the case of George Foster vs. James Pammett, was tried.

This action arose, as the result of a dispute of ownership of some potatoes. Mr. Foster claimed ownership, and Mr. Pammett claimed ownership.

The two men were at the time of the planting of the potatoes, employees of the Canadian Woollens Limited, and together with some other employees of the Canadian Woollens Limited, planted them in a field belonging to the Auburn plant.

The action was tried, and as a result of the trial, His Honour Judge Huycke directed that the potatoes now in the row in dispute were the property of Mr. Foster. In view, however, of the smallness of the amount involved, His Honour directed that each party should pay his own costs.

BABY PRINCESS NAMED.

Eternal Happiness is Translation of Japanese Name.

TOKIO, Sept. 16... — (Canadian Press.)—The baby princess born to the Empress Nagako last Saturday has been named Hisanomiya Sachiko, meaning "Eternal Happiness." The ceremonies included the ancient custom of bathing the child, also twanging of a bowstring to ward off evil spirits.

SHOW PEOPLE TRAVEL FAR; PRACTICE HARD

Have Played in Most Parts of the World Where Whites Live.

ALWAYS EXERCISING.

Spend Leisure Time Behind Scenes in Limbering the Muscles and Tendons.

Travelling from city to city and in many cases from country to country vaudeville artistes compress much experience within a compass of very few years. A review of the travels of the entertainers of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition comprises practically all the countries of Europe and America, the white nations of Africa, the Australian Commonwealth and parts of Asia.

Ceaseless practice seems to be the secret of success in those feats involving unusual demands on the muscles and sinews, especially in the tricks of the contortionist. Behind the scenes while awaiting their call to the stage the artistes employ almost every spare moment in limbering up for their public efforts.

Although one would hardly suspect it, De Marlo during the past few days has been suffering from the effects of a chill which he caught on his first day's performance before the grand stand. The wonderful agility which he exhibits on the stage is the result of much labor and practice out of the public eye. De Marlo was born in Natal in the Union of South Africa and is the son of a doctor who hailed originally from Dundee in Scotland. As a lad he was weak chested and delicate, and it was on the advice of his father that he took to physical culture in the effort to build up his strength. Years of practice brought health and strength and unusual proficiency in feats of strength and agility; and the attractions of a life on the stage proved too strong to be withstood.

Those who repeatedly during the past few days have wondered how Marlette has escaped death in performing her astounding feats will not be surprised to learn that on one occasion she fell from a swinging trapeze suspended sixty feet in the air and narrowly escaped being crippled for life. Physicians who attended her in hospital declared that the injuries to her back would confine her to bed for the rest of her life, but the plucky lady declared that she had still many years before her on the stage, and confounded the medical men, besides falsifying their prophecies by walking unaided out of the hospital after several days of attention.

Probably no pair on the stage have experienced so much of revolution as have De Marlo and Marlette. During their tours of Portugal Mexico, and Brazil, they found their safety repeatedly imperilled by popular uprisings against the government of the day, and while fulfilling engagements in South Africa in 1914, just before the outbreak of the Great War, the Union was involved in a disastrous strike which, to use De Marlo's expression, was almost as bad as a revolution.

A Canadian "Australian"

The "Australian wood-chopper," who wears the red sash is really a French-Canadian. His name is Henry Peters and he was born in Prince Edward Island. Mr. Peters acquired his marvellous skill with axe and saw in the lumber camps of Canada, and the northern states of the Union. He has also to his credit five years' service with the Royal Northwest Mounted Police doing patrol work for the force in Northern Manitoba, where his knowledge of woodcraft stood him in good stead.

The other wood-chopper, who wears the blue sash, is a native-born Australian who after many years' absence, still confesses to a longing for the land of the Southern Cross. Henry Jackson has been on the stage for twenty years exhibiting his skill as a woodsman.

Wood-chopping has for many generations been an outstanding sport in Australia. Like the pioneers of Canada the Australian tree-fellers found an abundance of fun in their work, and no field day was considered complete which did not have as one of its leading features a wood-chopping contest. A system of handicaps was improvised to encourage the younger and less skilled competitors, and this naturally led to the keeping of accurate records. In course of time, Mr. Jackson's many wins led to his being placed under severe handicaps, and he became known throughout the Australian States as a wizard with the axe and saw.

Twenty years ago, a Scotsman named McDougall who had made his pile in the goldfields of Victoria and New South Wales returned to the Old Country for a holiday. While in London, he visited the famous Hippodrome which then enjoyed a wonderful reputation for the novelty of the casts which the management introduced to the public. Totally unimpressed by the programme, the disgruntled visitor from "down under," sought out the manager.

"Why don't you get some of our wood-choppers from Australia," he asked, "and put on something really novel?" The suggestion appealed to the adventurous mind of the manager, and after some negotiation, the Scot returned to Australia, commissioned to enter into a contract with the most skilful wood-chopper he could find. Naturally he sought the assistance of the judges and handicappers of the wood-chopping contests, and he was advised to get into touch with Mr. Jackson. The latter secured the co-operation of one of his most active competitors, a man named McLaren, and the pair duly appeared at the Hippodrome, and made an instantaneous success. A three months' engagement at the Hippodrome followed, and the wood-chopping act was thoroughly launched on the stormy waters of the theatrical sea. Promoters from the Continent were soon on the heels of the two Australians, who, in the course of the next five years, exhibited their progess before most of the royalty of Europe. Tours in the United States came later, and it was while the act was on this side that Mr. Jackson, losing his partner, replaced him by the sturdy French-Canadian who had grown up with an axe in his hand.

Reforestation is conducted in a very scientific manner in Australia, says Mr. Jackson, and wood-cutting in the great forest systems is very strictly regulated. Australian timber is the fastest-growing in the world, he says, and the hardwoods rival the great trees of redwood of Western America.

The axes which are used for throwing on the stage are specially made for the purpose, and weigh about three pounds and a half. The chopping axes weigh a little more than five pounds.

Kindness With Animals.

Kindness and firmness are essential in training animals for performance on the stage, declares Terelis, whose animals certainly justify his methods. Terelis, who wears a medal presented to him by the Wirk Brothers, the largest show and circus in Australia, for his work in breaking in a number of brumbies, the Australian bronchos, has travelled through the principal cities of Europe, America, and Australia. No one unwilling to spend a great deal of labour and patience can hope to succeed in training a horse for performance on the stage. In the process, the whip should be used only as a guide, not as a bludgeon.

Travelling in a foreign country, especially a non-English-speaking country, always attended with difficulty and inconvenience, is rendered much more hazardous by the necessity of conveying a number of animals. During one of Terelis' engagements in Mexico one of the many revolts against the Government broke out and Terelis got over the border into the United States just twenty-four hours before street fighting began. Like most of the other artistes, his preference is for Great Britain, Canada, and the United States as the countries in which to follow his occupation. The white pony in his troupe was brought over to this country originally for Sir Henry Thornton.

The La Mart clown act on the vaudeville bill is composed of La Mart, senior, his son, and "Soup" Pennels, of Toronto. The two young lads, who have performed well in amateur comedy acts, are now making good under the guidance of the experienced comedian, who has been performing in acrobatic and comedy acts for the past thirty years, and has been at the Toronto exhibition, in different acts, for the last twenty years. He started in the acrobatic line when he was about nine years of age, and has played on every known circuit, having had experience in Europe as well.

This is not Mr. La Mart's first visit to Peterborough, as he was here some twenty-odd years ago, when a call was sent to Ottawa, where he was playing in a water carnival for acts for the Peterborough fair.

Danny Simons played in the same bill here that year. The stage was a rather rough plank construction, laid out flat on the ground, and the grandstand was not to be compared with the present splendid construction.

He was also here in his La Mart Kornics, when Collie Ross brought his Wanderers' Bicycle Club here for a special meet, and they all stayed at the old Oriental Hotel after riding down on their wheels.

The present act is a new one only being on the circuit for about three months.

Both of La Mart's helpers are musicians, performing well on the saxaphone and banjo.

Mr. La Mart knows Peterborough fairly well, having had relatives living here at one time or another.

Bon-Hair troupe of acrobats did their "coming out" on this business three generations ago and have been in the business ever since. There are two sets of brothers to the act and all are closely related. They have been training in this line of work since the tender age of three, in some cases, and have continued at it constantly. They have played in England, on the continent and throughout America, coming here from Ottawa and the Toronto Exhibition. The largest of the three tumblers is one of the heaviest acrobats that is foot-juggled in the game.

This act has been played solely on the Keith vaudeville circuit in this country and has been on the stage for eleven years. The two "children" of the act are 19 and 23 years of age, and weigh approximately 105 lbs. each.

They have reached their present excellence through a gradual evolution from bare-back riders, trapeze artists and contortionists.

AROUND THE CITY

The Fire Department had a call at 4.50 p.m. yesterday, which proved a false alarm. A child seeing fire belching from a factory smoke stack, informed his mother, who sent in the alarm.

There will be a Council meeting on Monday at 7.30 p.m. to discuss general business.

Princess Xenia Forced to Land on Irish Coast

NO LANDSLIDE TO EITHER SIDE IN IRISH VOTING

Latest Returns Show Cosgrave With the Largest Group.

FIANNA FAIL NEXT.

Many Minorities Represented By One or More Members in House.

DUBLIN, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—First returns from Thursday's Free State Parliamentary elections indicate that there will be no landslide in the direction either of the Government party or Republicans. Both the parties of President Cosgrave and of Eamon De Valera, Fianna Fail leader, showed increased polls, which were due in the natural course of events to diminution in the number of candidates and to accessions to the leading parties from the smaller groups. At 4.50 o'clock this afternoon, the election figures, which probably will not be complete until next week, gave the following standings:

Government	25
Fianna Fail	20
Labor	3
Farmers	1
National League	2
Irish Workers	1
Independents	7

The Farmer and Labor parties have both suffered. R. F. Baxter leader of the Farmers' Party, lost his seat in County Cavan to J Cole, Protestant Independent, while it appeared likely that Thomas Johnson, leader of the Labor Party, also would meet defeat. James Larkin, Independent Labor, was elected on the first count in Dublin, North. This result was not expected and is felt to indicate his return to some influence among Dublin's workers.

WOOD CHOPPERS CUT DOWN TREE

Decaying Pine Removed By Them For Their Grandstand Act.

FEAT OF STRENGTH.

The Scriptural phrase, "Now the axe is laid at the foot of the tree," was literally true this morning at the Exhibition Grounds. The Australian wood choppers ran out of raw material and Henry Jackson and his Canadian partner sallied out into the grounds to replenish the stock. Mr. Jackson cast longing eyes on a fine pine, the central one of three at the north-east corner of the infield and had actually notched it preparatory to "falling" it for further dissection on the stage this afternoon and evening, when Tom Brown appeared. He suggested the choice of another pine, the farthest north of the group, which has shown evidence of decay during the past year.

The wood choppers knocked several pieces off the bole of the tree and, evidently satisfied that it would meet their needs, brought it down with the celerity that has delighted every woodman who has witnessed their marvellous workmanship during the past five days.

The huge piece on which the two men exercised their skill this afternoon was hoisted by Mr. Peters on his shoulders and carried to the stage a distance of more than a hundred yards. The sturdy French-Canadian did not even stagger under his burden.

VARIED PROGRAM.

Recital Will Include Numbers of Many Types.

The recital to be given by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, soprano, assisted by Maurice Park, tenor, and Miss Agnes Logan, pianiste, in the Conservatory of Music Hall on Monday evening, promises to be of more than usual interest. The program has been chosen with an eye to varied types of songs and has a wide range, from the music of the Old English character, in Purcell's and Handel's songs, to the very modern bits by A. A. Milne, for Mrs. Park, by request, is singing two of the dainty characteristic things of this composer, set to music.

Mr. Park is giving numbers by Brahms, Schubert and Borodine, with a trio of Old English numbers, and Miss Logan is providing the accompaniments for the group.

CAKE 50 YEARS OLD.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 17.—A golden wedding anniversary celebrated recently by Mr. and Mrs. T. Frank Tyler was featured by the cutting of a cake baked by Tyler's mother on his wedding day. Another, made at the same time, was served on the couple's [illegible] fifth anniversary.

Incognito Dropped By Boris In Britain

BALMORAL CASTLE, Scotland, Sept. 17 (Associated Press).—Boris, Europe's loneliest King has ceased to be Count Rilski and is again the King of Bulgaria at Balmoral Castle, where he is guest of King George and Queen Mary. It is reported he will soon re-assume his incognito and visit London, and royal matchmakers are speculating about his finding a wife on his present tour.

HEADS POLLS IN CORK CITY

Cosgrave Receives Heavy Majority Over Former Lord Mayor.

AIKEN FIRST ELECTED.

DUBLIN, September 17. Canadian Press. — President Cosgrave headed the poll in Cork City in Thursday's parliamentary election, receiving 17,395 votes against the 11,608 of former Lord Mayor French, who stood second.

The first man elected to the new Dail, apart from the unopposed Trinity College members, was Frank Aiken, famous chief of staff of the Irish Republican army, who topped the poll in Louth.

The following three candidates were declared elected on the first count in Dublin North:

General Mulcahey, Government, 14,597; Alfred Byrne, Independent, 11,874; and James Larkin, Independent-Labor, 7,490. There were 65,202 valid votes cast in the constituency, and the necessary quota was declared to be 7245. S. T. Kelly, Republican, got only 6958 first preferences, but probably will be elected in the further distribution of preferences.

The election is carried on by the preferential system and it probably will be next week before the full results can be tabulated.

Although reports received in Dublin were that the balloting which was unusually heavy, was carried out without disturbances for the most part, two deaths have been reported in election clashes. Advices from Kilcock, County Kildare, said that William Grogan was killed in a scuffle between rival parties at the close of the polls, while messages from Starbane said that John Curran had died as the result of injuries suffered in a fight between Fianna Fail and government supporters at Raphoe, Donegal. Two other men were wounded in the fray.

Three Declared Elected.

In Dublin city south, three candidates were declared elected, being S. Lemass, Republican, chief party agent for De Valera, who polled 11,240 votes; Dr. Henessy, government, who polled 9400, and J. W. Beckett, government, 7362. Robert Briscoe, Republican, failed of election on the first preferences, but probably will be elected on the distribution of votes.

Ernest Blythe, government, Free State vice-president, headed the poll in Monaghan, but was 142 short of the necessary quota. He will be elected by the distribution of votes, and the others likely to be elected from the same constituency are Richard Haslett, Independent, and Dr. P. C. Ward, Fianne Fail.

Captain Redmond, the National League leader, was elected for Waterford, where the Fianna Fail candidate also was returned.

WEDNESDAY MARKET STARTS NEXT WEEK

Vegetable Growers' Association Plan For Preserving Season.

There will be a Wednesday market in Peterborough during the preserving and pickling season. This announcement was made today by G. N. Moncrief, secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Vegetable Growers' Association.

The Wednesday market is planned as a convenience to housewives, enabling them to purchase fresh fruit and vegetables in the middle of the week.

AROUND THE CITY

The Board of Health will meet on Tuesday at 10 a.m.

The Swimming Meet held at the Y.W.C.A. last evening was the best of the season. There was a large audience of spectators and the races were all well contested by an eager group of swimmers. Jean Harvey and Sadie Levine scored the highest number of points. Mary Brooks, Margaret Dunlop, Betty Manning, Margaret Roger and Ruth Sutton also showed particularly good work. The next swimming meet will be held next Friday evening.

PARIS AWAITS TARIFF REPLY WITH CONCERN

Three Ministries Hope It Will Permit Further Negotiations.

EXPECTED NEXT WEEK.

Foregone Conclusion United States Will Reject French Proposals.

PARIS, Sept. 17. — (Canadian Press.)—The answer of the United States to the French tariff note of Thursday is awaited with some concern in the three ministries which share in the responsibility, the foreign office, the ministry of commerce and, in a less degree, the treasury. They hope the reply will be of such a nature as to permit further negotiations.

It is fully recognized at the foreign office that Article 317 of the United States' tariff arms President Coolidge with the power to increase the present duties 50 per cent as a reprisal, but it is believed also at the Qual D'Orsay that there is nothing yet in the situation to justify such a measure and it is assumed that a way out will be found.

United States' observers believe that the ministry of commerce, which has more to do with the forming of the French reply than the Foreign office, was impelled by economic considerations to take a stiff position at the beginning for the purpose of bargaining.

Will Reject Proposals.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 17. — (Canadian Press.)— This country's reply to the French tariff note probably will be forwarded early next week. It is a foregone conclusion that it will reject definitely French desires to negotiate a give-and-take tariff agreement. The French note has not at yet been made public and in the absence of official word as to the attitude the Washington government will take, it has occurred to some observers that it might be possible to impose an increase in duties on French products under the flexible provisions of the tariff act and then negotiate with France for reciprocal readjustment of rates down to the French minimum rates as the limit of French negotiation on the one side and down to the statutory rates in the United States as the limit of negotiation on the other.

Whether this method is in actual contemplation by government officials is not known.

Available figures on the commercial business interchange with France last year show that United States exports to France amounted to 5½ per cent. by value of the total American foreign commerce, while the French export to the United States amounted to between six and seven per cent. of the total French export trade.

GOOD JUMPING AT EXHIBITION

Sixteen Horses Go Over the Bars in Various Events.

CAMERON WINNER.

The best jumping exhibition ever witnessed in this city was seen at the Exhibition yesterday afternoon when sixteen horses from the stables of Sir Clifford Sifton, F. J. O'Connor, Alfred Rogers, The Toronto Hunt Club and Miss Kay Bredin performed in front of the grand stand. The stand was crowded for the occasion, and the audience greeted the riders with great applause as the horses cleared the bars.

Captain Paton and W. J. O'Connor acted as judges.

Cameron from the Sifton stables carried off first prize in the opening jump of the day when he cleared the eight gates with a perfect score, the only horse to make this record during the day. Black Fox, from the stables of the Toronto Hunt Club, came second, being scored one point for a touch. A. Rogers' Uplands was third, when he was marked for a point and a half. Ten other horses for the most part cleared the bars very successfully.

Four pairs entered in the second event when two horses would clear the bars together. Shyagar and Cameron from the Sifton stables came first, being marked for one point. Miss Bredin on her Black Douglas and Wellington from the Sifton stables were second. Limerick, owned by F. J. O'Connors, and Paul Rivero, from the Rogers stables, were third.

Thirteen horses entered the third contest, with Cameron and Uplands tieing for first place and Shyagar carrying off third prize. In the jump off Cameron won by a half point.

CANADA SITS WITH COUNCIL

Rumanian-Hungarian Affairs Being Debated By League.

OPINIONS ON ELECTION.

GENEVA, September 17 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's). — Canada made her first appearance as a member of the Council of the League of Nations to-day when the newly elected members of the Council took their seats at a meeting called to deal with the report of the committee on Roumanian-Hungarian affairs, Sir Austen Chamberlain is chairman of the committee.

EUROPEAN COMMENT.

LONDON, September 17 (United Press). — The election of Canada as a member of the Council of the League of Nations is causing curious comments in Europe. Some argue it will increase the British voting strength in the Council, which will be dangerous to the future of the League. Others assert it marks the disruption of the unity of the Empire and that Canada will really represent Washington.

Naturally all these comments produce nothing but laughter in official circles here, where it is stressed that Canada is fully indeepndent and can take whatever course she wishes at Geneva, although it is believed that her identity and interests with Britain will see Britain and Canada working closely together on the League as in the past.

DISCUSS SOCIAL WELFARE.

GENEVA, September 17 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's). — In the discussion by the Social Welfare Committee of the Assembly of the League of Nations on the subject of social vice, Dr. W. A. Riddell, member of the Canadian delegation to the Assembly, said there were no "licensed houses" in Canada. He characterized such places as "cesspools of humanity." Dr. Riddell presented the Canadian point of view on social vice.

Several delegates, including the representatives of South Africa, took a high moral stand in their speeches.

The Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttleton (Dame Edith Lyttleton), British representative, made an impassioned plea for the betterment of morals throughout the world.

BIG CROWD SEES HEIFERS JUDGED

Ayrshire Club Animals Make Good in Senior Classes.

THE WINNERS.

The biggest crowd seen around the judging ring yesterday assembled for the judging of the Junior Ayrshire Heifer Club. The open two-year-old class was the biggest, with thirteen entries all good. The boys in this competition entered their stuff in the regular class. The three winners in the latter class are all members of the Heifer Club.

Ayrshire Heifer Winners.

1. Fred Anderson, $15.00; 2, Harry Jackson, $13.00; 3, Clarence Mann, $12.00; 4, Aubrey Blakely, $11.00; 5, Margaret Mann, $9.00; 6, Dawson Paul, $8.00; 7, Gordon Kidd, $8.00; 8, Roy Wheeler, $8.00; 9, Alex. Tyres, $8.00.

Prizes in the two-year-old class went to Fred Anderson, Harry Jackson and A. Blakely. The winner in the one-year-old class was Clarence Mann.

Attendance at Exhibition.

Yesterday was the best day at the fair so far, but fell 2,618 behind the corresponding day last year. An attendance equal to Saturday's of last year will be needed to push the total past last year's record mark. The figures are:

	1926.	1927
Tuesday	6,220	1,967
Wednesday	3,103	9,558
Thursday	4,440	6,850
Friday	13,105	10,487
Total	26,868	28,852
Decrease on day		2,618
Increase to date		1,984

PRESS FIGURES ON WHEAT CROP BELOW OFFICIAL

Winnipeg Paper's Experts 8,000,000 Bushels Lower Than Government's.

LOWER ON OATS.

Harvesting at Standstill on the Prairies—Many Causes of Damage.

WINNIPEG, September 17. — Canadian Press. — The wheat production of the three Prairie Provinces this year is palced at 424,312,135 bushels in the preliminary estimate of the Manitoba Free Press to-day. This estimate is based on the personal inspection of a staff of agricultural experts, who have covered more than 8700 miles of territory, and from the estimates of local correspondents. The estimated oat production is shown at 280,300,435; barley, 82,613,009; rye, 14,879,80, and flax 3,761,399.

Compared with the estimate of the Dominion government, issued last Monday, the Free Press wheat figures are approximately eight million bushels lower; oats fifty two million bushels lower; barley, six million bushels higher; rye, one million bushels higher, and flax one million two hundred thousand higher.

The latest reports from country correspondents state that approximately 95 per cent. of the wheat is cut in Manitoba, and from seventy-five to eighty five per cent. in the other two provinces, while very large sections of oats and flax are still uncut.

Rust, frost hail and lodging have been the chief sources of damage, with loss believed to have been done in Saskatchewan and Manitoba by rust. All harvesting and threshing is reported to be at a standstill at the present time on account of the recent rains, and in some districts grain is reported to have begun to sprout in the stooks.

In many fields where rust infection is slight and there has been no frost, wheat still shows a small and shrivelled berry, the report states. Garnet wheat, has not, as a rule, produced much better crops than Marquis, and has shown quite as strong a tendency to rust.

Durum wheats, of which acreage has enormously increased in both Manitoba and Saskatchewan, have developed rust in almost every field. The western stem saw fly was also found in parts of Manitoba and in some district root rot was noticed.

DEATH IS AVENGED.

VERA CRUZ, Sept. 17.—During the funeral of a murdered policeman here recently, the hearse was followed to the cemetery by brother officers who forced his killer to march before them. At the graveside, the murderer was riddled with bullets. Then the burial ceremony took place.

MUCH PRODUCE OFFERED TODAY

Corn Sells at Two Dozen For 25 Cents—Potatoes 30 Cents.

BUTTER 43; EGGS 45.

The farmers' market was a warm place this morning. Flowers and vegetables alike wilted under the rays of the beaming sun that poured down its radiance with increasing heat to the noontide hour. Over against the curb near the stores a patient black horse stood short-tied to a post in such a way that it could not move out of the glare.

Produce was plentiful. Corn had a quick sale, with quotations on golden bantam at two dozen for twenty-five cents. Potatoes were 30 cents a peck and $1.50 a bag. Cucumbers were 70 cent a large basket and tomatoes 40 and 45 cents. Green tomatoes were 40 cents and crabappies 20 cents, the latter in a small basket of six-quart capacity. Culvert apples were 35 cents a peck. Summer squash 10 cents each, and little white onions sold at 2 quarts for 35 cents.

Pickling pears were 50 cents for a large basket and eating pears 75 and 80 cents. Huckleberries were 15 cents a quart.

Honey sold at 40 and 75 cents in the 2½ and 5 pound tins.

Little protesting porkers with scrubbed white hides were pushed into long sacks for a homeward journey. They sold at $5 apiece. "Would you like a nice little pig?" ingratiatingly asked the vendor who noted The Examiner's interest in the squealing piglets.

Elderberries were 50 cents in large baskets.

Upstairs, produce sold quickly, with bare tables at a comparatively early hour. Butter was priced generally at 43 to 45 cents a pound; eggs at 45 cents a dozen, and chickens at 33 and 35 cents a pound.

MEXICAN STORM DAMAGES SHIPS

Two Not heard From and One Calling For Help.

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—The hurricane off the west coast of Mexico last week had its reaction in shipping here to-day with two ships upheard from and a third in distress. The freighter Grace Dollar dropped her propeller six hundred miles south of here and her appeal for aid caused Salvage Steamer Peacock and a coast guard cutter to start to her aid.

The British motor ship Cape of Good Hope should have been here a week ago and has not been heard from. She carried radio equipment and it is feard she may have been damaged in the storm. The Mexican steamer Bolivar was also due here a week ago and has not been heard from. The freighter Horace Baxter of San Francisco last night was reported hard aground on an island near Victoria, B.C., but she appeared in little danger.

LEGION NOTES

Members of the Legion who are going to attend the unveiling of the memorial at Brighton to-morrow are requested to be at the Canadian Legion Headquarters, Murray street, at 10.30 a.m. sharp. The Peterborough Automobile Club have kindly offered cars for the occasion, and it is expected that a good representation from Peterborough branch will be in attendance. Don't forget the time, 10.30 a.m. Dress: Mufti, with medals. Unattched officers, optional. Members of militia units, khaki with medals.

FACED WITH STRONG WINDS SWEEPING OVER THE ATLANTIC FLIERS FORCED TO TURN BACK

Were Already Over Sea On Their Projected Non-Stop Flight.

MAKE SAFE LANDING.

Capt. McIntosh Under No Contractual Compulsion To Attempt Crossing.

DUBLIN, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—Faced with head winds sweeping at 40 miles an hour, Captain Robert H. MacIntosh and Commandant James C. Fitzmaurice in the monoplane Princes Xenia, when already over the Atlantic on their projected non-stop flight to New York were forced to turn back to Ireland. They made a safe landing six miles south of Bally Bunion, County Kerry, at 6 o'clock last night.

The airmen, who hopped off from Baldonnel Airfield, Dublin, at 1.35 p.m., braving the tragic fate of recent trans-Atlantic fliers in an attempt to be the first to make the westward passage by air, were uninjured and went to a local hotel.

On Kerry Coast

Bally Bunion is about 160 miles southwest of Dublin. It is south of the Shannon River on the Kerry coast and is a favorite seaside resort. It has a splendid beach, high cliffs with caves and natural rock arches of remarkable formation. It has a permanent population of only several hundred.

The town is about 50 miles south of Galway Bay, over which the Princess Xenia was reported to have passed about 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Another Failure

The landing of the aviators at the little seaside resort four and a half hours after they had hopped off with high hopes and cheery farewells, meant failure for another east-west trans-Atlantic flight, but it was failure without loss of life.

The reluctant decision of the airmen to turn back to land and safety came after they had encountered adverse winds and a blinding fog.

Not Under Contract

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—Captain R. H. MacIntosh, British trans-Atlantic flight aspirant, was under no contractual compulsion to attempt the crossing, his principal backer, William B. Leeds, announced last night. Leeds said that several days ago he cabled MacIntosh releasing him from all obligation to make the flight, due to the wave of public sentiment against further trans-oceanic ventures.

TIME TO STOP.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Two wedding receptions were being held in a fashionable hotel here at the same hour. Since the guests kept getting into the wrong receptions, the two affairs were merged. A late guest, refusing a glass of champagne, said: "I know when I've had enough; I've seen two brides already."

Lion Takes Part In Continental Hop

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 17.—(United Press.)—Leo, the world's only flying lion, was a passenger to-day on the first California-to-New York non-stop flight. Martin Jensen, Dole flier, piloted the plane. The flying lion is representative of a motion picture company.

MUSIC CONTEST WILL BE HELD

Kiwanis Club Arranging Competition in Connection With Fair.

RULES SET OUT.

In connection with the big 'Produced in Canada' Exhibition which the Peterborough Kiwanis Club is holding in the Armouries for the week commencing Monday, October 10, it has been decided to hold a musical Contest for encouraging greater interest in music, and greater proficiency in musical performance.

An outside musician, of national repute, in the person of W. H. Hewlitt, head of the Hamilton Conservatory of Music, organist and choirmaster of Centenary Church, and conductor of the well known Elgar Choir of Hamilton, has been engaged to act as adjudicator. Mr. Hewlitt has had great experience in judging musical contests of this nature.

The co-adjudicator, along with Mr. Hewlitt, is Roy Perwick, Mus. Bac., of Toronto University, Licentiate in singing of Toronto University, and supervisor of music in the Public Schools of Hamilton.

1. There will be a gold and silver medal given as first and second prize in every class. These will be publicly presented at the final concert, which will be taken part in by all the medalists.

2. Competitors in returning entry forms, must enclose a fee of 50 cents for a preparatory or junior class, one dollar for senior class, and two dollars for school classes. No entry valid without these fees.

3. Competitors in vocal and violin classes to bring their own accompanists, but if unable to do so, they may avail themselves of the services of the official accompanist, Miss Agnes Logan, 210 McDonnel street, Peterborough, free of charge.

4. Competitors will be known to the adjudicator by number only. Number to be allotted to competitor according to the order in which their entries are received.

5. Entries must be on hand at the latest by Wednesday, Oct. 5, addressed to Dr. Craig, 146 Hunter street, Peterborough, and endorsed in the left hand corner of envelope: "Kiwanian Music Contest."

6. The contest is open to all non-professional students and musicians. None receiving more than one hundred dollars a year for musical services are eligible to compete.

7. Competitors must be on hand 20 minutes before their special class is timed to commence, and must be present at the close of their respective competition to be informed as to who will appear in the finals. Time-sheets will be forwarded to competitors on Saturday Oct. 8, the contest taking place on Wednesday, 12th inst.

8. The public is welcome, free of charge to hear all competitions. A small charge will be made for the evening contest given by all the medalists.

9. Absolute silence must be maintained while contests are in progress.

10. Marks will be awarded for quality of voice, style, interpretation, phrasing, intonation, memorizing, facial expression, etc.

11. Competitors where age is a condition, must state age last birthday, and date of birth.

12. The adjudicators' decisions are final.

DR. A. GANDIER TELLS OF TRIP TO FAR EAST

Gives Interesting Address at First Meeting of Cobourg Presbytery.

GOOD WILL EVERYWHERE.

Speakers Appeal For Effort on Behalf of Maintenance Fund.

NORHAM, Sept. 17—The Cobourg Presbytery meeting opened in Norham United Church, at 10 o'clock a.m. Thursday. Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, of Brighton, who acted as chairman, conducted the Devotional exercises. The Presbytery roll was called, after which it was voted that the election of officers take place.

The elected officers for the coming year are as follows:

Chairman—Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, Brighton.

Secretary—Rev. J. G. McKee, Baltimore.

Treasurer—Rev. C. D. Daniel, Campbellford.

Communications from Colborne, Norwood, Roseneath and Rednersville were read and discussed.

The next meeting of the Cobourg Presbytery, it was decided, will be at Grafton in the month of November.

Nominations were made to Conference Settlement Committee, Conference Standing Committee on Religious Education. It was moved that the chair appoint a committee to strike the standing committees. The following were elected to the Conference Settlement Committee:

Col. E. E. Snider, Port Hope.
Rev. A. F. Anderson, Port Hope.
Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, Brighton.
Mr. Hopper, Cobourg.

At this juncture, welcome was extended to Rev. Alfred Gandier, D.D. of Toronto; Professor Watts of Queen's, and H. W. Ackerman of Belleville.

Professor Watts was called upon to speak, in behalf of colleges. He suggested that a special field day be set aside in all churches for the presentation of college claims.

He said, "Back behind all church work, is the man of the field. All church work must suffer if he is not trained. College give the training. No phase in church life is so vital as work in college.

Two things which ought to be emphasized are: The need for more men. The college will train the men when they offer themselves for the work. At the time of Union there were 270 men without charges. Since them barely 400 unions have taken place. But even so, we have now but very few men without positions. The number of men offering themselves for the ministry is less than the number twenty years ago.

The second thing to be emphasized is the need for consecrated and adequately trained men.

We are living in a period of transition and adjustment. Progress is being made materially, in scientific lines. Science has made men impatient of old doctrines. Where a man has strong convictions, men listen to him—they want not materialism but God.

The primary function of the college is to train boys for the ministry, but we interest ourselves in all the young people and want to be their friends.

College is also anxious to help ministers, out of college, keep their intellectual training up to a high standard by means of extra-mural courses.

Professor Watts closed him address by announcing the Theological Conference, which is to be held in Toronto, next week.

Rev. W. H. Clark pronounced the Benediction.

Afternoon Session.

At the beginning of the afternoon session welcome was extended to Rev. C. H. DeMille, Oshawa, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Rev. A. Gandier took the opportunity of heartily seconding Dr. Watt's message of the morning session.

Mr. W. H. Ackerman spoke, in behalf of the Maintenance and Extension Fund. He gave the following statistics:. Total sum required for maintenance and extension fund, $3,400,000. Total required for maintenance and extension fund from Bay of Quinte Conference, $320,000. Total required for M. and E. funds from Cobourg Presbytery, $38,916.

Mr. Ackerman read some recommendations drawn up at a conference in Whitby, last week, and concluded his address.

Rev. A. Gandier, of Toronto, who has just returned from a trip to the Foreign Missions in the Orient, was the next speaker. In his introduction he emphasized Mr. Ackerman's words and said that the congregations should regard their allocations to the Maintenance Fund as the minimum and not the maximum for which to strive.

He sketched the work of the church in regard to Finance, since the war and made an appeal to the church to do its duty this year and thus to get a firm foothold for the future.

In illustrating the great need for the success of the maintenance campaign this year Mr. Gandier said in

Wedding Date Rests On Big Fight Result

LONG BRANCH, N.J., Sept. 17.—If Dempsey defeats Tunney in Chicago next week, Miss Grace Holden, twenty-one, of Somerville, will be a June bride next year, but if Tunney wins, Miss Holden's marriage to Henry Piper, of No. 226 Edwards Avenue, this city, will be performed next January. Miss Holden, a Dempsey fan, wants to be married in June, but Piper sees no reason for such a long wait. The result of the fight will decide the wedding date.

FAMILY FIGHT INVESTIGATED

Hugh Liggett's Death Caused By Brother Pushing Him, Jury Finds.

KILLED BY WAGON.

PORT HOPE, Sept. 17.—A story of an altercation between two brothers, both in their seventies, a quarrel that ended in tragedy, was told here Thursday when a Coroner's jury investigated the death of 76-year-old Hugh Liggett, Hope Township farmer.

Hugh Liggett died on September 13, following injuries received on September 7, when, according to the evidence Thursday, he and his brother, 74-year-old Sam Liggett, quarrelled.

Verdict of the Jury.

After 40 minutes' deliberation the jurors declared: "We, the jury, agree that Hugh Liggett came to his death as a result of being pushed by Sam Liggett in such a way that he fell in front of a wagon wheel, which passed over his body, causing injuries which resulted in his death."

The accident occurred, it was said, after an altercation in a harvest field regarding the disposition of an oat crop grown on shares by the deceased farmer and his brother Sam. Evidence was given which claimed that when Sam objected to garnering arrangements made by Hugh the latter flourished a pitchfork in a menacing fashion, causing Sam to grapple with him. Hugh fell under the hoofs of a team, and the front wheel of the wagon passed over him. Dr. A. C. Beatty testified that deceased had received a crushed side, together with broken ribs, and that these injuries resulted in his death.

Hugh Liggett Well Known.

Hugh Liggett was well known, and much interest was taken in the inquest, conducted by Coroner W. F. Diamond of Port Hope, with Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr, K.C., of Cobourg. In all, nine witnesses gave evidence.'

The funeral of the deceased, who was in his seventy-sixth year, was held immediately before the inquest, in Perrytown Cemetery. It was widely attended, and was under Orange auspices. Garden Hill L. O. L. 385, was represented, and brethren were also present from Bewdley, Canton and Perrytown.

OLD MASTERS

Jenny kissed me when we met,
Jumping from the chair she sat in;
Time, you thief, who love to get
Sweets into your list, put that in!
Say I'm weary, say I'm sad,
Say that health and wealth have missed me,
Say I'm growing old, but add,
Jenny kissed me.

MORE MISSIONARY SUPPORT NEEDED IN WESTERN CHURCHES

Condemi Work in the Foreign Fields To Neglect of West.

INSPIRING ADDRESSES.

Feature Afternoon's Session of General Synod of Church of England.

KINGSTON, Ont., September 17 (Canadian Press). — Inspiring addresses from several Western bishops on the need of more missionary support to the Western churches featured yesterday afternoon's session of the General Synod of the Church of England. The presentation of the report of the Missionary Society aroused the frontier prelates to a condemnation of extensive missionary work in the foreign field to the neglect of Western Canada. The bishops taking part in the debate were Bishop Lloyd of Saskatchewan, Bishop Harding of Qu'Appelle, Bishop Gray of Edmonton, Bishop Adams of Caribou, and Bishop Sherman of Calagry.

Bishop Sherman of Calgary took a more optimistic note. In all his experience in the West he had not found a single suggestion of an alien spirit. He urged the delegates to think in terms of Canada as a whole and not in terms of their own section, diocese, or parish.

"It is a fallacy," he said, "to assert that we can reach unity through agreement; agreement is reached through unity. There is, if we can only tap it, conserve it and strengthen a deep-seated inherent unity in this country." He called upon the Synod to promote a spiritual unity in Canada and to get behind the one true vehicle for unity available to them, the work of the Church of England in Canada.

Declaring that it was an absolute disgrace to allow English charity to sustain church services in Western Canada, he prophesied that a day would come when the West would be able to pour out its bounty to help "poor old Eastern Canada." The East ought to help the West now, until the Church was established there and there were men enough to attend to the needs of the growing population.

"Let's made this rgeat nation Christian and Canadian, the one and the safe," he concluded.

Look After Own.

The wealth of the West was not being put to the service of the Church as it should, thought Bishop Adams of Cariboo. This was because the Church had not been strong enough fifteen or twenty years ago to mould the character of those who were making money there. The Church would not repeat the mistakes of the past. It should get busy now on the newcomers, who in a few years would also be wealthy. He also urged the delegates to look after their own people first before going to the foreign field.

"A little church like a lean-to leaning up against the future," was the way Bishop Gray of Edmonton described one of his churches he had recently visited. He baptized many children during the visit, which was the first call of a clergyman in months.

In Edmonton, he said ,they had a great University, in which was a large Roman Catholic College and an institution of the United Church.

Many Anglican students needed religious instruction, but there was no money to establish a college.

Bishop Harding of Qu'Appelle said he had the largest missionary diocese in the Anglican communion. Many districts were without priests. Like the Bishop of Saskatchewan, he emphasized the need of looking after "our own people first."

Makes Eloquent Plea.

Advocates of foreign missions did not allow the Bishop's onslaught to

Registration Opens Queen's University

KINGSTON, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—Registration at Queen's University opened on Friday morning, when about one hundred students residing in Kingston were registered. On Monday students from outside the city will be registering, and it is expected that there will be a great rush until Wednesday, when the first classes will be held.

COTTON MARKET STILL UNSETTLED

Result Government Prediction of Lower Prices Under Certain Conditions.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—The cotton market was unsettled yesterday, evidently as the result of Thursday's government prediction of lower prices under certain conditions, and price changes were decidedly erratic.

A steady tone had developed early in the day in sympathy with Liverpool cables and December contracts sold at 21.85 cents a pound, but the price dropped later to 21.05 cents, a loss of about $4 per bale, or about $1.50 under the lowest level of Thursday.

There were numerous rallies and breaks, and a statement late in the afternoon from Secretary Jardine, expressing surprise that the market should have given way under a prediction by his department and pointing out that the situation now is stronger than at the time of the August government prediction, had only moderate influence. There were intimations that the government was considering the abandonment of such reports in the future.

Other factors also were largely ignored and a private crop estimate indicating a loss of about 500,000 bales in the expected yield had little effect on values.

The New York Cotton Exchange received a telegram from the Savannah Cotton Exchange declaring that Thursday's government statement, made through the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, "gives ground for the accusation that the department is endeavoring to manipulate the price of cotton instead of performing its legitimate function."

The telegram, which quoted resolutions of protest adopted by the Savannah Exchange, suggested that a committee from the principal cotton markets be sent to Washington to protest to Secretary Jardine in person.

HARVEST LABOR SCARCE IN WEST

Persistent Demand For Harvesters Has Arisen in Prarie Provinces.

MANITOBA HARD HIT.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 17. — Canadian Press. — A persistent demand for harvest help has arisen in the prairie provinces, especially in Manitoba. J. A. Bowman, Manitoba superintendent of the Employment Service of Canada, stated that only 200 men yesterday were available for the fields whereas a total of 1200 could easily have found work.

Harvesting is on in earnest and the demand for men is stiff he said. Manitoba was not ready to take the men who came from the east in the harvest excursions and as a result Saskatchewan and Alberta received almost every harvester. Now that the Manitoba crop is ready for the harvest the province finds itself devoid of men for the fields.

Serious Shortage.

CALGARY, Alta. September 17. — Canadian Press. — Calgary District is experiencing the most serious shortage of harvest labor since the movement of farm hands to the prairies from Eastern Canada and British Columbia started several years ago, according to William Carnill, superintendent of the local office of the Alberta Government Employment Service.

Yesterday it was stated that orders for harvest hands at the local office exceeded the supply by approximately one thousand. There was no immediate relief in sight for the situation.

Philadelphia Zoo Elephant Scorning Jazz Drenches Orchestra Testing Her Re-actions

PHILADELPHIA, September. 17 (A.P.)—Poetre, a twelve-year-old Asiatic elephant at the Philadelphia Zoo, blew a trunkful of water over an orchestra which had come to play for her in behalf of Science.

The impromptu shower came during the rendition of a jazzy piece. Poetre, chained ten yards from the orchestra, stretched forward until the end of her trunk dipped in the water of the pool in which the elephants bathe each afternoon.

With deliberate movement, the elephant's trunk was raised and aimed at the musicians. Having reached the proper elevation Poetre blew and music ended with a discordant burst of sound as the musicians upset their chairs in a scramble to escape a thorough soaking.

The orchestra played for the animals at the zoo so that C. Emerson Brown Director of the Zoological Garden could record their reactions. Poetre's reaction was quite evident.

Classical music achieved a victory over jazz in the monkey house. The first rumbles speaks chirps and bleats from the instruments as they were tuned up in this section of the zoo brought consternation to the occupants. Big and little monkeys chimpanzees orang-outangs mandrills marmosets and all the others betrayed the most lively curiosity mingled with other emotions.

Noticing the diverse reactions the musicians tried each instrument separately. So the drummer tapped a rat-a-tat-tat on his drum and the monkeys covered in corners of their cages in evident fear.

Then the violinist drew his bow over the strings and instantly the monkeys were quiet. Some came forward to the bars of their cages and gave evidence of finding the sound soothing. But the saxaphone and the trumpet each in trun, sent shivers of fear once more over the audience and the moment the musical instruments were stilled the monkeys set up an angry chattering.

When the bass viol grunted out a few notes the monkeys gazed at each other and at the instrument, in seeming amazement. They crowded to the bars and blinked as if trying solemnly and with all the power to understand.

A Business Man's View Of Religion

BY IRVING T. BUSH

Quite by accident, the other evening, after dinner, five men withdrew to coffee and cigars in the smoking-room. One was a lawyer devoting all of his time to the affairs of a great public corporation; three were men of substantial success in the business world; I was the fifth. I watched them light their cigars, take a look at the lighted end, and lean back with a sigh in comfort, and then I introduced the subject of religion. They were a fairly hardened group, and I wanted to get their reaction. To my surprise, they all expressed regret at the apparent drift away from the old-time religious point of view on the part of the young people of the present generation. They had concrete examples and illustrations to prove just what was happening, and seemed certain we were going to the dogs.

One of them said: "I am worried to death about my two boys, and don't know what to do about their religious training, or, in fact, whether to attempt to give them any. Both my wife and I were brought up very strictly in the Methodist Church. We were taught everydogma and as youngsters believed them all. When we grew up, and went out into the world, we began to ask questions, with the result that a reaction set in upon both of us, and we now feel something like contempt for our old teachings. They are just absurd to us now, but I know what a steadying influence belief is to young people, and we cannot make up our minds whether to let the boys be taught the old-fashioned things we were taught, or to develop along modern lines of thought with their generation. They are both intelligent, and even at ten and twelve are beginning to ask questions. They are certain sooner or later to think for themselves, and to lose faith in the old dogma, even if it is taught them. Is a lost faith better than none? That is the question my wife and I are asking ourselves, and I imagine it is the question which is being asked by serious parents everywhere more often than any other.

"We tried out the old school once," he continued, "by sending both of the boys to Sunday school. They fell into the hands of a fine, conscientious woman of middle age who believed and taught everything from Jonah to the Immaculate Conception. The boys came home and asked us questions we could not honestly answer, and it came to a point where we either had to lie to them about our own beliefs or take them out of Sunday school, so we took them out."

"I have lost all my old beliefs in dogma as it was taught in my day," said another of our little group, "but in the evening, when I go out and look up at the heavens, I know there is some Power somewhere greater than I am. I can't prove that there is by any scientific demonstration, but I don't know any one who can prove there isn't. I have the greatest respect for science, but when it tells me this world is an accident which has developed out of gases, I begin to think science is gassing a little itself. We need scientific proof of everything which is capable of proof, but we need a little faith as well—a faith stripped of superstition and legend to its bare fundamentals, to which we can all hold fast because it is so simple we can believe it."

I have been wondering since I attended that evening Sunday-school class of hardened sinners in that smoking-room if it isn't possible for a business man to discuss religion without giving offense to any one. Religion itself would become a business proposition if belief were taken away from the men and women of to-morrow. Unbelief undermines character, and character, and character is the bed-rock of business and all progress. To begin with, let me say to the old school, I have deep religious convictions. Perhaps not just like theirs, but they are strong and deep. If they point accusing fingers at me, I shall say they have tried their way, and ask if it has succeeded. Isn't there a danger that because of insistance upon dogma the young people are beginning to doubt everything?

For myself—I believe in the young people of to-day. They are a fine, upstanding lot—as a whole. There are a few loose ends, but every generation has them. The trouble is they have a harder time getting adjusted, for they are making their own standards, and not merely accepting worn-out theories. We old-timers had all of our rules of conduct neatly docketed and handed to us tied up in blue ribbon like a diploma. Most of us accepted them and asked no questions. The boys and girls of to-day are not willing to do that. They are asking questions, and that in itself is not a sign of mental deterioration. Questions which cannot be answered are embarrassing. It is not convincing to an eager young mind to say that they are in the realm of the unanswerable. A youngster may want to believe—as I think most of them do want to believe—but he refuses to swallow both Jonah and the whale. I do not ask young people to swallow Jonah. Perhaps the whale did; and perhaps it didn't. What real difference does it make? Jonah may have been a dwarf and the whale a whopper. The fact that the Bible has come down to us from ancient days of legends does not upset all religion or destroy its fine teaching.

There is enough left if we discard every miracle, and why worry about the miracles themselves? Should doubt concerning miracles upset our belief in some Supreme Power? What would we say of the radio if we did not have it and read of it in the Bible? Or transmitting pictures by wire, or calling up London and Paris by phone, or a thousand other simple phenomena of our every-day life? The radio is merely an instrument which has put us in touch with what has always existed. The voices and music have always been all about us, in the air. We have just learned how to hear them, and now I sit in my Florida home, and listen to concerts in New York and Chicago. The voices from China and India are undoubtedly everywhere as well. We have reached across the Atlantic, and it is only a question of time before we shall hear from the uttermost parts of the earth. Where is the end? Who can say? Are voices from other worlds waiting in the air for us to find some way to hear them? All this may not prove that there is a God, but it should at least teach us not to scoff at what may seem improbable to our present intelligence. Of course, the scientist says all these things have been discovered by exact scientific methods. That is true, and we owe science a great debt. But science admits to-day many things it disbelieved a generation ago. I am not arguing in favor of the acceptance of prehistoric legends as the fundamentals of faith. I merely ask, Why argue at all? If some wish to believe that everything in the Bible is divine truth, let them, but the rest of us will still have enough left for a fine faith to hand to our children if we rest our belief in a Supreme Power based upon what we call right.

What about the Immaculate Conception and the divinity of Christ? Does it really matter? If Christ were on earth to-day, would he join in the quarrel as to his divinity, or would he say, "I come to preach that there is a higher power"? Isn't that the real question, and does it make much difference whether we agree or disagree about the details? We call that power God. Those who speak other tongues have other names for it. Does it matter whether we believe it is entity or a great organized force? Can we prove it is either? Can any one prove it is neither?

I read the other day in an article about atheism a statement holding the believers in God up to ridicule, because in thousands of years they had not proved his existence. Have the atheists proved his non-existence? At least, during all those thousands of years the world has gone on. Nature has worked its infinite wonders each season. The mind of man has wrought marvels, and, whether we believe in God or not, we have come to know there is a right and a wrong, and to respect the right, even though we may not always practice it. Is this all accident, or is it evidence?

When Edison discovered electric light, we did not know how it was done until he told us, but we know it was not an accident. It was the product of a mind more developed than our own. Is the human brain an accident, or is that the product of a mind beyond our own?

Some go so far as to ask: "Who created God, if there is one?" Is it not enough to believe that there is a Power which has organized and directs the destinies of the world, and can we not admit that, whatever the control is, it is based upon the difference between right and wrong and honor and dishonor? To all questions of dogma I am content to answer, "Perhaps." I do not know; but does it matter? I believe that there is a Power which I am content to call God, and am convinced that a recognition of the simple virtues of right and truth and kindness lies at the base of that Power.

Do we help our children by insisting that they believe things their minds reject? Do we develop their virtues or their characters in that way? Is it not better to tell them that details do not matter; it is the fundamentals which count? Do we not help them more by giving them a belief so simple that they may kneel in a Mohammedan mosque, or a Hindu temple, and give thanks to the Power which is behind all beliefs? Do the details of any religion count, and, stripped of dogma, are not all religions very much the same? Does it really matter whether the worshiper believes his God is in the wooden image before which he kneels, in the heavens above, or in his own heart? Wherever it is, it is the same Power, and is not the best religion one so broad that it teches tolerance of all?

Have the practices of Christianity been all we would like them to be? It is not necessary to go back to the horrors of the Inquisition. Only a few years ago I was in Constantinople while that city was occupied by the Allied forces. In a city where Mohammedans had till then kept their women in seclusion and had condemned drink I was told there had been opened by Christians five thousand saloons and European harlots walked the streets. This was done, they said, to satisfy the troops of the Christian Powers. If you were a Mohammedan, and had lived in Constantinople at that time, how would you judge Christianity? Would you judge it by the teachings of missionaries who seemed powerless to control their own people, or by the actions of Christians whom you actually came in contact with? Should we not be a little tolerant of the faith of a people who believe what they have been taught to believe, just as we believe what we have been taught? The mind of man has embroidered the fancy of legend upon the same fundamental belief in both faiths—a belief in a Power which we call God, and which they call Allah. It is a Power which teaches right.

I have gone into temples in India, and seen the patient bowed figure of the ignorant peasant, with little in his life, kneeling before an image in prayer. He prays to a Power which he may believe is in the figure before him, but which he is confident is behind all the wonders of the universe. As I have watched the kneeling figure, I have thought of peasants in Italy I have seen in prayer before the figures of the Holy Family, gorgeously arrayed in silk and satin and jewels; of the head of Christ I once saw in the ancient Church of St. Stephen in Vienna, decked in a flowered poke-bonnet placed there in adoration; of the Russian peasants I have seen kissing their relics. Is it not a question of the degree of intelligence, and are not we only a little less ignorant than these simple peasants? Does it do any good to take their faith from them? Are we helping the world or our own to take faith away from our own children, without giving them something in its place?

Is not a simple belief in a Power which controls the world for its ultimate good better than losing faith? Is it not perhaps the best faith, for it embraces each and is tolerant of all? It is my faith. Am I right? Perhaps not in detail; but does it matter?

On the wall of the bedroom of my aunt, who has seen eighty-three years come and go, hangs this little verse:

Fonck Installs Four Extra Gasoline Tanks

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Mechanics have installed four additional gasoline tanks in the Sikorsky plane Ville de Paris, constructed for Captain Rene Fonck's proposed flight to Paris. Captain Fonck supervised the installation.

The new tanks have a capacity of 700 gallons and increase the total fuel capacity of the plane to 1,800 gallons. This, the captain said, will be sufficient to carry the huge biplane for fifty hours and give it a flying radius of 5,000 miles. He has insisted he will make some sort of a long distance flight this year.

A DOCTOR'S PRAISE.

A Noted Doctor Strongly Endorses Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The test of any remedy lies in its acceptance and employment by the qualified medical practitioner. No less an authority than Dr. Andrea Amici, physician to the Papal household, writing on the subject of anemia, impoverishment of the nervous system and disorders attributable thereto, strongly endorses Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, recommending them as superior to other tonics.

Dr. Amici's testimony reads as follows:—"For several years I have made use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in my work and I have always found them efficacious in the treatment of disorders due to impoverishment of the nervous system, anaemia and neurasthenia, stomach weakness, retarded development in young women, and irregularities. There is no lack of tonic remedies, but in my experience no one of the manifests a superior efficacy to that of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

No more conclusive evidence of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills could be asked for or given, than is found in the above endorsement of this noted European physician. Besides this, however, this medicine has enjoyed a world-wide public confidence for more than a third of a century and has brought relief to thousands and thousands of weak and suffering people.

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness and stomach trouble. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OBITUARY.

MRS. CATHERINE CONDON.

One of the oldest and most respected citizens of Douro passed away at midnight on Sunday, Sept. 4th at St. Joseph's Hospital, in the person of Mrs. Catherine Condon, in her 75th year. MISSION WORKERS WELCOMED HOME

Rev. and Mrs. R. M. McMullin Return to Emily From Korea.

DUNSFORD, Sept. 17.—A large congregation of friends and neighbors gathered in Emily United Church on Thursday evening to welcome Rev. R. M. and Mrs. McMullen home from the foreign mission fields in Korea. The service opened by singing "Faith of our Fathers", followed with prayer by the pastor, Rev. J F. Everson. Misses Jean and Mary Elliott rendered a duet and Miss Jean sang a solo. Mr. and Mrs. McMullen gave short addresses. Mrs. McMullen recited "The Lord's Prayer" in the Korean language. An address to Mr. and Mrs. McMullen was read by J. F. Ashmore. The service closed by singing "Far and near the fields are teaming" and the Benediction.

During the social hour that followed it was decided to hold anniversary services in Emily United church on Sunday, October 3rd. Rev. S. Wesley Dean, of Toronto, who is a member of the General Council and head of the Department of Finance for the United church of Canada will be the preacher for the occasion. A fowl supper and concert will be given on Tuesday, October 25th. Following is the address to Mr. and Mrs. McMullen.

To Rev. R. M. and Mrs. McMullen:

We, the members and adherents of Emily United church, together with your many friends and neighbors, have assembled this evening that we might in some public way express our appreciation of the services you have rendered as foreign missionaries in Korea.

Those of us who have known you for many years feel grateful that your early environment inspired within your hearts a desire for such an opportunity to serve. We feel ourselves indebted to your parents for this noble spirit, which no doubt to a large extent was the outcome and fruit of their teaching and example.

With thanksgiving to God for sparing your lives we welcome you home on furlough and hope that you both may have a delightful re-union of old acquaintances. If there is anything we can do to make your stay among us more pleasant we shall be glad to learn it. We are proud of you both and rejoice that from this vicinity persons with such aspirations have come forth.

We hope your visit may be not only pleasant but profitable to yourselves and to your friends. May you have the joy and satisfaction of knowing, that in this land because of your life, other hearts have been fired with a new zeal, inspired with a deeper courage and turned with a greater earnestness of purpose toward the interests of the Kingdom of God.

We pray God's blessing to rest upon you both and upon your little son, Greig, now and always and when the time arrives for you to return to your appointed task we wish you Godspeed and the assurance that we shall be even more interested in you and your work than before. We proffer you wholeheartedly our prayers, our sympathy and our support.

Signed—(Rev.) J. F. Everson, J. F. Ashmore, W. J. Kennedy.

NOT FOR UNCLE SAM.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The Marine Society of England, which through lack of funds has decided to sell the Gainsborough picture of Thomas Thornton, is determined that the picture shall not go to America. For that reason we shall not put it up for auction, but hope some gallery will make an offer," say officials. The work is worth about $55,000.

FLOWERS STREWN ON PACIFIC OCEAN

Memorial Service Held For the Seven Fliers Lost in Race.

ABOARD SEAMSHIP MAUI, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)— This flower laden ship halted to-day seven hundred miles out of San Francisco, while captain, crew and passengers joined in a memorial service to honor the memory of the seven aviators who were lost while flying over the Pacific from San Francisco to Honolulu, all originally participants in the recent Dole flight.

When the 700 mile mark was reached, the engines of the Maui were stopped and the vessel rode at the will of the wind and waves while Walter Cribbins, representing San Francisco, paid tribute to the valor of Miss Mildred Doran, Michigan school teacher, native of Eganville, Ontario; J. A. Pedlar, pilot of her biplane, and Lt. V. Knope, their navigator; Capt. W. Irwin, distinguished war time flier who rode in the Dallas Spirit, and A. Eichwaldt, his navigator, of Berkeley; Jack Frost, of New York, pilot of the Golden Eagle, and Gordon Scott, his navigator.

While Cribbins spoke, the floral offerings, gathered from the gardens of California, the gifts of admirers of the courage of the missing aviators, were cast upon the sea. The floral creations were mostly of special design made with raft backings so as to ride the waves for days.

In his address Cribbins paid tribute to each of the fliers. "I believe that the beauty and sweetness of Mildred Doran have been preserved to ornament and perfume that house of many mansions," Cribbins said. "I believe that the smiles of affection and the deeds of kindness and the pleasant memory which she left with us will be cherished forever." He continued with a eulogy of the other fliers, whom he characterized as ambitious and courageous.

Walking With Jesus

'Tis well to walk with Jesus as friend and Saviour here,
Whose loving smile will cheer us,
when the way is lone and drear,
To Him by faith close clinging, we shall safe and sheltered be,
From the vain world's strife and turmoil from its temptations free.

Chorus:
'Tis well to walk with Jesus from the rising of life's sun,
'Till the last faint ray has faded and the toilsome day is done.

'Tis well to walk with Jesus and just let the world go by,
And sin has no power to harm us
when the Blessed One is nigh;
He will ne'er forsake or leave us,long as we with Him abide,
All who will may walk with Jesus,
no, not one, will be denied.

O, His wondrous love and pity, O,
the riches of His grace,
He washed us in His precious blood from sins dark crimson trace;
In His presence there is solace for earth's troubles, toils and cares,
Beneath His wings sweet refuge from the wiley tempter's snares.

'Tis well to walk with Jesus, and
His loving voice obey,
Love Him, serve Him, truly trust
Him, never from Him careless stray;
He's our only hope and confidence,
for us He lived and died,
And rose again to open Heaven's pearly portal's wide.

From all ill He will defend us, lead
our faltering steps aright,
Until Zions towers and turrets break
upon our raptured sight;
There we, too, O joy unspeakable, a robe of white shall wear,
And walk with Him, forevermore in bliss beyond compare.

WEDDING BELLS.

BERO—CLARKE

HAVELOCK, Sept. 17. — A quiet wedding took place on Wednesday, August 31st in the Church of the Holy Rosary, Kendal and St. Clair Avenue, Toronto, when Mary Agatha Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Clarke of town became the bride of Mr. E. J. Bero, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Bero of Toronto. The Rev. Father Fallon officiated.

The bride wore a dress of Sunset velvet with picture hat and shoes to match and carried butterfly, Ophelia roses and baby's breath. The bridesmaid, Miss Marion Terral, friend of the bride, was attired in rose chiffon over grey lace with picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of premier roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. H. Bero of Tampa, Florida.

A luncheon was served at the King Edward Hotel and immediately after the happy couple left for New York, the bride travelling in a monkey-color ensemble suit with hat to match. The young couple will reside in Toronto.

HUBEL—McGEE.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 17.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hoffman, King street, was the scene of a pretty September wedding on Wednesday when their cousin, Margaret Hazel McGee, daughter of the late Andrew McGee of Ashton, Ont., became the bride of Mr. Clarence L. Hubel, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Hubel of Toronto.

The drawing-room, beautifully decorated for the occasion in white and with a profusion of asters, cosmos, gladioli, snapdragon, sweet peas, ferns, and autumn foliage made an attractive setting for the ceremony which was performed at nigh noon by Rev. C. E. Lougheed, B.A. Lohengrin's Wedding March was played by Miss Minnie Williams and during the signing of the register Miss Olive Haig sang "Until" in sweet voice.

The bride, who was unattended, was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. J. Hoffman and looked very winsome in her dainty gown of white satin-faced crepe with rhinestone ornament. Her bridal veil of embroidered tulle was caught up with orange blossoms fastened to a coronet of pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served and later the happy couple left for a honeymoon trip to Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa, the bride travelling in an old rose georgette dress with felt hat to match and grey charmelaine coat and grey shoes and stockings.

On their return they will reside on King Street, Havelock.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1927.

HE WAS GRATEFUL

There is real human interest in the story of the little foreign-born resident of Northern Ontario, a nine-year-old lad, who called upon Premier Ferguson to thank him as Minister of Education for the railway travelling school that made it possible for the small Canadian from overseas to learn to speak and write English.

The railway school, an idea of the Premier's, brings education to those who are so situated that ordinary schools are not yet feasible, and the policy is already beginning to have splendid results.

But the noteworthy feature of the story is that this youngster was grateful enough to take the trouble to call upon the man he knew was responsible for the assistance he had received, to express his thanks.

There need be no worry about that kind of a boy; he'll make a good citizen and a good Canadian.

And the question naturally arises as to how many native-born boys would have put themselves out even to write a letter of thanks if they had been similarly helped out.

BEAUTIFUL GROUNDS

Many visitors to Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition this week have enthusiastically commented upon the splendid appearance of the grounds.

It is to the credit of the Exhibition management that it has never lost sight of the value of keeping Exhibition Park spic and span and that it has not spared expense in carrying out its policy.

There are few fairs in Canada that can boast of such immaculate well-cared-for and beautiful grounds. The splendid grand stand, neat fence and the evidences of care and attention that meet the eye in all directions, have all produced tributes from out-of-town Exhibition visitors, and the sincerity of these expressions of approval must be gratifying to the directors who have worked in season and out to produce the results that have won so much admiration.

Exhibition Park is a credit to Peterborough and to the men whose vision and foresight converted it into such an attractive recreation area.

HE WILL BE MISSED

The regret occasioned by the moving from Peterborough of R. A. Brown, who has been manager of the local plant of the Canadian Nashua Company since that firm began operations here, has been expressed in tangible form by a number of local organizations.

Mr. Brown, who has been promoted to the management of the Nashua Paper Company's plant at Middletown, O., has been a good citizen.

Since his arrival in Peterborough he has taken a keen interest in local affairs and has been ready at all times to identify himself with any movement that has as its object the betterment of the city and the welfare of the people of this community.

It is a matter for regret that his promotion carries with it the removal from the city of Mr. Brown, who will be missed in many circles here.

The Examiner is but giving voice to the sentiments of a very large number of friends and acquaintances when it wishes Mr. Brown the best of luck in his new and responsible post.

BASEBALL VERY MUCH ALIVE

If any argument were needed to justify the decision of the majority of the City Council not to tear down the fences and stands at James Stevenson Park it could be found in the fact that to-day three Peterborough baseball teams were scheduled to play important games in as many series of the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association.

The Senior team has won the first game of the Senior Ontario semi-finals and the second game of the series is scheduled for to-day in Toronto.

The Royals have reached the semi-final stage of the Juvenile series, and if they are successful in beating Ottawa will be in the final round.

And the Kiwanis Bantams are already in the finals, matched against the Moss Park team of Toronto.

With Peterborough teams in the last stages of three of the five provincial competitions it is evident that baseball is a long way from being dead here and equally apparent that it should be the ambition of the civic government to help the ball clubs rather than to embarrass them by destroying the only enclosed ground within the city limits.

Peterborough within recent years has become widely known as a baseball centre, and it is a reputation well worth seeking to maintain.

A COLLEGE OF FISHERIES.

Not only because the North Atlantic fisheries constitute one of the most important sources of Canadian wealth and afford employment to thousands of residents of the Maritime Provinces, but because recently there has been widespread dissatisfaction with present marketing methods and complaint of some distress in the fishing industry, culminating in the announcement that the Dominion Government will appoint a Royal Commission to conduct an exhaustive investigation and to bring in recommendations, is the establishment of a College of Fisheries at Dalhousie University, Halifax, a development filled with the highest importance to one of Canada's great basic industries.

The College of Fisheries which is to be founded at Halifax in association with Dalhousie University will be a new departure so far as Canada is concerned. Indeed, it will be the first Faculty of its kind in North America. It will be conducted in co-operation with the Department of Marine and Fisheries of the Dominion and the Biological Board of Canada and, according to Dr. A. S. MacKenzie, the President of the university, the course will be of four years' duration, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Fisheries, with special instruction in fish culture and handling, general principles relating to the fisheries, the principles of fish embryology and fish culture, principles of salting, drying and canning methods, principles of freezing and smoking methods and marine biology, to be given in a laboratory situated directly on the open-sea water.

The new College of Fisheries promises to do much more than merely to disseminate knowledge concerning the proper methods of caring for fish. From it there is every reason to believe there will issue a body of men possessed of the best scientific training in fisheries subjects and capable of applying that training to scientific management of the fish-handling concerns which have been established in the Maritime Provinces and elsewhere in Canada. These men will also serve to recruit the staffs of the biological stations which are maintained at St. Andrew's, Halifax and at other points and of the fish hatcheries which have been founded by the Department of Marine and Fisheries. It is conceivable that this college will do for the fisheries what has been done for agriculture by the different agricultural colleges now scattered across the country, and no person will deny that such institutions have rendered a service of inestimable value in producing scientific agriculturists who have all but revolutionized farming and farming methods in Canada.

Just as much as agriculture, the fisheries demand that attention and treatment which can only be received from a body of properly trained specialists. One reason for the depression which has overtaken the Canadian branch of the North Atlantic fisheries is undoubtedly the adherence to methods which are obsolete and quite behind the advances made in other countries with which the Canadians must compete. It is chiefly the fishermen who have been carrying on under such obsolete and almost primitive methods who have suffered; from those fishermen who have adopted improved practices there is little complaint since they have been able to market their catches profitably and to meet the competition.

If the fishing industry is to retain that position which has been built up during the years and to gain greater revenue from participation in both the domestic and foreign trades, it is essential that it come to life, abandon the obsolete and unprofitable methods which are too often practised and adapt itself to the changes which have taken place in the industries of other countries. In the fisheries, as much as in other branches of industry, there is a great need for scientific research and scientific methods. Dalhousie University, in recognizing this need and meeting it, has possibly done more for the fisheries than a score of Royal Commissions.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

PRAIRIE GOLD.

Canada's 1927 crop yield will bring returns of well over a billion dollars. Hay and clover set new records. Instead of less than 400,000,000 bushels, the August estimate, Canadian wheat fields will put 458,000,000 bushels into the granaries of the world. It is all the biggest, best and most inspiring news that Canadians have read in many a month.

Old Mother Earth is tumbling her riches into the pockets of the Canadian farmer, and through him into the homes of the railwaymen, the mechanics, the office clerks and the stenographers the Dominion over. Had Ali Baba explored a dozen caves to their utmost recesses he would not have found the treasure represented by the hay crop alone. Beside life's reality, the wildest fantasy pales into insignificance.

Out West the binders are clicking and humming, piling the prairie gold. Every hour adds to the granary stores, and another week, the experts say, will see the whole treasure-trove beyond danger of field disasters. And then, through succeeding months, the wheat will be filtering out through the markets of the world to feed the European masses—Englishmen, Frenchmen, Italians, Rumanians, Swedes, and all the rest of them—people the vast majority of whom have little idea from whence their bread came, and to whom, if they did know its origin, Canada would be merely a name to couple in imagination with ice, snow, igloos and Indians.

Canadian commerce and industry already can feel the impetus that this flood of newly produced wealth must bring to every line of honest endeavor. It cannot help but give business a fillip and ensure a more than ordinarily good commercial year. Quite conceivably it may put the Dominion on the crest of a boom-wave like that of pre-war days.

One has to delve back several years to get the real significance of this bumper Canadian crop. This is the fourth or fifth successive year that Canadian farmers, generally, have experienced good surpluses in their operations. In 1923 a lot of them were beginning to get out of debt. The years 1924 and 1925, with the unusual combinations of good crops and good prices still holding, practically put them on their feet. Last year they started buying, cautiously and carefully, perhaps, but their buying power was felt in the industries back East. This year that buying power will be greatly increased, and with the confidence of five successive good years every channel of Canadian business should benefit.

Many a farm will get that new house which the family has been promised. The ripples of buying power will reach the lumbering, paint, hardware, roofing, glass, and a myriad other industries. Many a new automobile and radio set will be brought into farm homes. Farm machinery will be in new demand. And with it all there will be more employment and better wages. In truth does prosperity in the city depend upon prosperity on the farm.

It was in 1915 that Canada produced what was joyfully acclaimed as the greatest wheat crop of all previous time, and expected to be the greatest for many and many a year. It totalled 393,542,600 bushels. And it was a monster crop compared with previous crops, and with the immediate succeeding crops of 263,000,000, 234,000,000 and 189,000,000 bushels of wheat in 1916, 1917 and 1918.

But these are the wheat totals of the last six years, during the last four of which at least the combination of good prices and good crops has held: In 1922, 399,786,400; 1923, 474,199,000; 1924, 262,097,000; 1925, 411,375,700; 1926, 409,811,000; and now, in 1927, 458,741,000 bushels.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT

With the Exhibition over to-night, you can begin looking for your winter overcoat.

For the benefit of Aldermen who think baseball is dead in Peterborough we might point out that there are Peterborough teams still in the running in three out of the five Ontario series.

In spite of the vogue of the automobile it is noticeable that horses paraded before the Exhibition grand stand receive plenty of applause.

All danger of a frost in the West is over, according to a report in The Globe, which seems to be unexpectedly optimistic concerning the Conservative convention.

Counting the votes in an Irish election is a process that takes about as long as the preliminary campaign.

With Hon. W. E. Raney appointed to the Bench, the Progressive party will now need both a leader and a following.

CATTLE GRAIN, AND PRODUCE

TORONTO, Ont., September 17.—Heavy runs of cattle this week with a larger proportion than usual of rough and unfinished quality depressed prices in the closing markets. The comparatively small proportion of the total offering, consisting of choice quality dressy beef cattle, held prices steady to firm at from $8.00 to $9.00, unchanged from last week. Price declines during the week were confined entirely to the poorest quality cattle and were from 50c to 75c lower than last week.

Fat cows, all grades in quality, were also hit hard in a general decline of from 50c to 75c.

There has been a steady demand for choice quality stockers and feeders, and many loads of Western cattle were billed through direct to Ontario feeding points. Top feeders sold up to $7.25, and a few good shortkeep up to $7.40. Heifers $6.00 to $6.50.

Springers and milkers active. Choice springers selling from $90.00 to $120.00. Choice milkers, $75.00 to $90.00.

General run of prices as follows:

Choice butcher steers active at from $8.25 to $8.75, with extra choice up to $9.00. Light steers, $8.25 to $8.50, and choice butcher heifers, $3.00 to $8.25.

Baby beeves firm; choice, $12.00.

Common steers and heifers, $5.00 to $5.50.

Choice butcher cows, $5.00 to $5.75, medium, $4.25 to $4.75.

Bulls, choice, $4.50 to $5.00; choice butcher, $4.50 to $5.00

Lambs, choice, $12.00 to $12.25.

Calves, choice, $13.00 to $14.00.

Hogs strong and 25c higher at $11.00 f.o.b. selects. Packers are bidding 25c lower on next Saturday's hog loadings.

From Saturday next, all hogs will be bought and sold on the graded basis only.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., September 17 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in wheat yesterday was quiet, with local traders reporting only a few odd lot sales. The demand for Canadian Western rye was fairly good. Responding to an advance in Winnipeg cash prices, dealers marked up oats 1 cent per bushel.

The spring wheat trade was featureless, and trading dull. The millfeed market was unchanged.

Trade on spot for baled hay was quiet, the demand being only for odd cars, and prices showed no change. Cables from Liverpool yesterday quoted Canadian baled hay at 80 shillings per ton, and stated there were 9,000 bales on the dock unsold.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for strictly fresh eggs, and prices were marked up 1 cent per dozen. There was no change in the prices for other grades. Receipts were 1,834 cases.

The trade in butter showed no improvement. The receipts were 2,124 boxes.

Owing to the continued indifferent demand from English importers, the cheese market was quiet. Receipts were 7,454 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, September 17 (Canadian Press). — In a selling stampede corn prices underwent a setback yesterday touching in some cases almost the season's bottom level. Rains over parts of the corn belt, together with heavy deliveries on September corn contracts here, were to a great extent responsible. The corn market closed unsettled, 2¾c to 4c net lower; wheat at ½c to 1c advance; oats ¼c to ¾c up; and provisions showing 2 cents to 40 cents decline.

At one time the September corn delivery tumbled to 4¾c under Thursday's finish.

Drought complaints from Australia and Argentina had a good deal to do with strength which developed in the wheat market. There was also talk prevalent that unofficial reports expected as to the 1927 Canadian wheat yields would show less wheat than was indicated a few days ago by the Canadian Government.

Oats were in good demand. Receipts of oats were small.

Provisions reflected weakness, both of corn and of hog values and of cotton as well.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, September 17 (Canadian Press). — Cattle, 2,000; best, $14.60; steer run largely grassers selling at $10.50 down to $9.50; most light stockers $7.25 to $7.50; choice light Western feeders eligible to $10.00 and better; most sausage bulls $6.25 downward; vealers, $16.00 to $16.50.

Hogs, $13,000; top, $12.00; bulk good and choice 180 to 225 pounds, $11.65 to $12.00; 240 to 300 pounds, $10.90 to $11.75; 320 to 400 pounds, $10.35 to $11.00 mostly; bulk packing sows, $9.70 to $10.15; light lights suitable for shippers, $10.25; most pigs, $9.50 to $10.50; best strong weights, $11.00; roasting kinds, $11.00 to $11.50.

Sheep, 12,000; bulk rangers, $13.80 to $14.00; good Idahos, $13.50; natives lightly sorted, $13.00 to $13.25; best selections to packers, $13.50; 110 to 130 pound buck lambs, $11.00 to $11.50; culls, $9.50 to $10.25; fat ewes $5.50 to $6.35; top, $6.50; choice 110 pound Wyoming wethers, $8.00.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

ONE BAD LINK.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: It is very pleasing to read the letter of "Observer" in your issue of Wednesday on the north end of the Government road from Buckhorn through Rockcroft and the Catchecoma Lakes country to the Haliburton boundary and then on to Gooderham Village and Haliburton Village. As "Observer" says this is the most picturesque of all our local scenery and the Catchecoma Lakes, composed of Catchecoma, Gull, Eagle, Gold, Bottle and a number of others are as lovely and beautiful as any in the world. It is in this district that the high plateau begins, running back to Algonquin Park.

Now the only bad link in this road connecting these far northern parts with Peterboro City is that above the Catchecoma Lakes country. It is the 12 miles from there to the boundary. Why is it that a road that is otherwise first-class is allowed to be spoiled for connection with the northern districts in this way? Could our Chamber of Commerce not take this matter up, and give us enough leadership to develop our tourist capabilities especially in respect to Good Roads which are swiftly crowding in upon us. We should go after the business that would come to us from Haliburton County.

NORTH.

DIPHTHERIA PREVENTION.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—With your permission, I would like to take up some space in your columns to say something about the prevention and cure of diphtheria. As we have diphtheria in our city at the present time, with one fatal case, it seems most appropriate to discuss the subject.

I might add that the medical men of the United States and Canada who are particularly interested in the prevention of disease have requested that a special effort be made this year to stamp out diphtheria. This can undoubtedly be done in Peterborough if the citizens generally give whole-hearted support to the movement.

On looking back and considering the statistics concerning diphtheria, we find facts that must convince everybody except those who do not want to learn. Only 30 years ago death claimed more than one-third of those attacked by the disease. The use of anti-toxin has reduced this mortality rate to about one-tenth which means that previous to anti-toxin about 35 out of every hundred died. Since anti-toxin has come into general use only ten in every hundred die. With the use of toxin anti-toxin and toxoid the death rate has again been very materially reduced. In Detroit, for example, the death date for 1921 was 35.6 per 100,000 and in 1925 down to 9.5. In Auburn, New York, following a three-year anti-diphtheria campaign there was but one death from diphtheria and in 1925 not one was reported. Similar results are reported from all the large cities of the United States.

Let me put very briefly a few facts about diphtheria:

1. The young children are the most susceptible to diphtheria. They are the children of pre school age.
2. Toxoid administered to these children in three successive doses at a month's interval will immunize the great majority of them.
3. This immunity may last a lifetime, but it will certainly last during childhood.
4. Toxoid has no disturbing effects whatever to the youngest child.
5. Toxoid is given to all children under 8 years of age without previously having the Shick test.
6. Our campaign is to immunize the young children and thus rid our city of this dangerous disease.

TRENT RIVER NEWS.

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 17.—Rev. Mr. Archer has returned from his vacation of two months' trip to the Western provinces and is taking charge of his services at the United church once more. The topic he has chosen for a few consecutive Sundays is the life of "Moses."

There was a large congregation present on Sunday especially among the children. Mr. Archer remarked that more young children are in attendance at the Sunday service at this church than any place for some distance around.

Communion service will be held Sunday, September 18th, at the close of the usual services.

The annual rally day services will be held Sunday September 25th.

Miss M. Bonter, teacher at the Public School, spent over the week-end at the parental home, Marmora.

A very fine yacht passed through on Friday followed by a large motor boat towing a house-boat and large scow laden with material for work down the canal.

Miss Kathleen McNichol arrived on Friday from Toronto to spend September with her father at "Sumer-in."

The school fair for Seymour is to be held at Campbellford on Friday, September 16, instead of on Tuesday as reported.

Arrangements are being made for a public meeting of ratepayers of School Section No. 10 to decide the question of securing an assistant teacher as it is impossible for one teacher to do justice to over fifty pupils now in attendance at this school.

The closing dance at Whitehall Gardens, with music supplied by Wynn Phillips and his orchestra was held on Friday night. There was a large attendance.

Mrs. Cumming, Peterborough has been visiting her friend, Mrs. John Waters, for the past week.

MARMORA NEWS.

MARMORA, Sept. 16.—Mrs. Percy Kennedy and two children of Lindsay are visiting relatives in town.

Messrs. R. A. Elliott, A. Quinn and J. Bond attended the Senior baseball in Peterborough on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lee attended the Peterborough Exhibition on Wednesday.

Messrs. H. A. McNally, W. Regan, H. Boudreau and A. Brown attended the Kingston-Port Hope game in Belleville on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. W. Scrutton of Madoc visited Deloro with a party of friends on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Narrie left on Wednesday for Syracuse, N.Y.

Messrs. J. Dale, A. Jones and Dr. Thomson motored to Belleville on Wednesday.

WOMEN FIGHT FIRES.

OBERJOCH, Germany, Sept. 17.—Winter and summer, stormy and fair, women in this mountain village roll their hose. At least, they do when fires are put out and the women's fire department is ready to go home and finish cooking dinner for the family. The fire brigade originally was composed of men, but they were so slow in responding to alarms that their wives usurped them.

MISSING WITH OLD GLORY

Phil Payne, who is shown above with his wife, well known newspaper man of New York, who was born in Toronto, Ont., was a passenger on "Old Glory," travelling with Lloyd Bertaud and James D. Hill. Old Glory and its three occupants are now numbered among the missing. When a small boy Payne moved to Gravenhurst where he started his journalistic career on the Gravenhurst Banner. He visited Gravenhurst last year.

GRIZZLY BEAR CENSUS TAKEN

Andy Widstein Finds 615 Grizzlies Around Mackenzie Park.

500 BLACK BEARS

BELLA COOLA, B.C., Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press).—In the rugged, heavily wooded mountain country back of this town there are 348 more grizzly bears than in all the national forests of the United States outside of Montana and Alaska, according to an official census just completed.

Andy Widstein, of Bella Coola, has just completed his check-up of wild life in adjacent territory and has reached the conclusion that there are 615 grizzlies in and about the area known as Mackenzie Park, which was recently created a sanctuary for game. Wildstein was assisted in his work by trappers and big game hunters and guides who covered all the chief river valleys of the territory in order to carry out the unique census.

There are believed to be about five hundred black bears in Mackenzie Park and neighboring valleys and about fifteen brown bears.

A movement is on foot to make a special grizzly bear hunting ground for big game hunters in Mackenzie Park and to establish a grizzly sanctuary in the middle of this hunting ground. It is thought that this provision will cause the grizzlies to migrate to, and take refuge in the sanctuary where they will not be in danger of becoming extinct, as is likely to be the case in the hunting area. The overflow would be hunted in the hunting area, affording sport for the big game hunters and employment for the guides of the Bella Coola country.

FAMILIAR RELICS BEING REMOVED

Office Building Being Made Ready for New Premier, Hon. J. D. MacLean.

VICTORIA, B.C., Sept. 17.—(By Canadian Press).—The familiar relics of Hon. John Oliver, British Columbia's farmer premier who died recently, are being removed from his office in the parliament buildings here, and the place has been made ready for his successor, Hon. J. D. MacLean.

The quaint array of pictures and curios which adorned the office during Premier Oliver's ten year term and which seemed a vital part of the government itself have been removed and given to the late premier's family—the photographs of British Columbia scenes, gifts from friends, in various parts of the province, the last photograph of Mr. Oliver himself and of his aged father, taken just before the latter's death; some originals of caricatures of the late premier; handsome autographed portraits of Lord and Lady Byng presented to him when they were at Rideau Hall, and a snapshot of Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, which the premier had, for some curious reason, placed among a small gallery of Liberal leaders.

All the premier's personal papers were also given to his family, together with his unique system of calling cards on which he had laboriously written notes for almost every speech he had made and which were always ready for quick use in emergencies.

The battered alarm clock which Mr. Oliver had characteristically placed on a hook in the wall instead of a more elaborate time piece also has gone. The new premier, however, will use the massive desk over which Mr. Oliver used to work amid a pile of books and documents, and the big leather chair in which he used to sit back, fold his arms and tell you about the good old days in British Columbia.

TOTEM BUILDING BEING REVIVED

Only Two or Three Indians in British Columbia Who Have Mastered Art.

CAMPBELL RIVER, B.C., Sept. 17—(Canadian Press).—An Indian art that has all but vanished is being revived here by Chief Joseph Smith, one of the few remaining totem builders of the Coast tribe.

So far as known there are only two or three Indians living in British Columbia who have mastered the totem building art and Joseph is one of them. He lives in a modernly furnished house of his own building on the fringe of the Campbell River reservation and in his garden he has built several totem poles. They are not for sale, he says.

"By and by maybe I sell some", he said. But he is determined to build a sufficient number so that even if he does sell some of these picturesque symbols of Indian culture there will be plenty left to adorn his village. The totem poles, most of them carved images of crows, salmon, bears, wolves and so on, each figure being symbolic of an Indian family's household deity.

The sight of the dilapidated totem poles of former generations near the old Campbell River reservation stirred Chief Smith to revive the totem art. For years he has been a master of it, but not until recently has he made a serious attempt to replace all the poles sold or otherwise removed from their original native location.

HASTINGS NEWS

ENNISMORE NEWS.

ENNISMORE, Sept. 17.—Mr. Francis Crough of Toronto, is holidaying with his mother, Mrs. D. Crough.

Miss M. Moloney, of Chicago, is spending her vacation with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Perdue, of Downeyville, spent Sunday the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. Cavanagh.

Messrs. W. Kearns, R. Cavanagh, J. Killen and W. Holland attended the Toronto Exhibition last week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hickson and family of Peterborough, visited friends here on Sunday.

Great progress was made in the harvest fields here last week. The weather was excellent and a number got their peas threshed in the fields and report the yield was very good. Corn looks healthy and is doing well. There is a considerable acreage of fall wheat already sowed and a large portion of the wheat will be sowed this week. The root crop in general looks very promising.

DR. A. GANDIER TELLS OF TRIP

Korean territory which would stretch from Toronto to Hamilton, to London, to Goderich and back to Toronto, there was a missionary staff of but four people.

His inspiring address was much appreciated by the audience.

After Mr. Gandier's address the Rev. C. W. DeMille spoke, emphasizing the fact that it was absolutely necessary for the United church to succeed this year in her financial campaign. He dwelt upon the theme of sacrifice and unity, by which means the end might be accomplished.

After Rev. De Mille had concluded his talk, Rev. C. D. Daniel announced the coming winter school at Cobourg and with a hymn and prayers, the meeting was adjourned.

A very delicious banquet was served in the church hall by the Norham ladies at six p.m.

Evening Session

After the banquet the meeting was adjourned to meet at the church at a quarter after seven. The speaker for the evening was Rev. Alfred Grandier, D.D., of Toronto.

He stated that he had been entertained at Korean feasts consisting of as many as fifteen courses, but the ladies of Norham had certainly exceeded even those feats in their liberal showing of food.

In all his travels his deepest impression is "How kindly people are." Good-will fills the world when no special unrest or irritant is present to stir up trouble. He has traversed many miles, through Canada, across the Pacific, Formosa, Korea, touching Honolulu, and home by way of the United States.

He was in Shanghai at the crisis, when the people who were sympathizers of the Southern army united in that city in a formidable group. Right in his midst were Russians in the pay of the Northern army who were in a pocket between the armed supporters of the South and the barricades built by the British garrison. This fight lasted for a day and a night. For days previous to this, Chinese refugees had flocked into the city.

Then he moved down to Hong Kong. On their way down, he and his wife passed by haunts of pirates. Two days and two nights were spent on a steamer packed with Chinese of all types. It was during the time of the Spring festivals when people were all travelling to the graves of their ancestors. He journeyed through all Northern China till he came to Korea. They covered nearly every mile, taking six motor trips over the mountain passes where soldiers were on guard against the Russians from Siberia.

His interest in Japan was keen. Only twenty per cent of the surface could be cultivated. With a population of over twenty million they had a territory smaller than that of Great Britain. On account of the scarceness of arable land they have to take recourse to manufacturing in order to live. Tokio, the third largest city in the world, has a population of four millions.

Visiting China and Japan under those most unusual circumstances nothing went wrong. No unkind or gruff word was spoken to him. A good proof of this was shown him when the General Consult of Shanghai, on the very same day he met the conquering general from the South, extended to him an invitation for lunch and devoted two hours of his morst valuable time with him in discussing his knowledge of China. He would do anything in the interest of the Christian missions.

Again, in Korea, the Governor General gave a dinner to him because he represented the United Church of Canada. The official said that he appreciated what had been done by the missionaries and that he was willing to co-operate in any way if it was for the good of the people.

Another impression resulted from his travels and that was that it is only necessary to show a need of good-will and one would receive it. War is due to the perversion of one aspect of life—the instinct of preservation. This comes from false idea of nationalism. Fear breeds war and strife. Because nations are afraid, at the present moment, they refuse to disarm. If the spirit of Jesus Christ were more manifest this feeling of fear could be removed. If we show the spirit of good-will to the yellow class, they will respond.

There is the growing difficulty of the missionaries' task. Now they have to contend with the worst influences of the west in the east. It has been necessary for the government to censor every picture before it is shown.

The Orient is displaying a passion for Westernizing and for material advance now that it has awakened from its hopeless state. The unrest of the population is caused because the country can't supply food and the people are denied free speech in order to prevent Communism and Bolshevism from creeping into the country. There is a certain class of students who scoff at religion of any kind.

Particularly is the situation dangerous in Korea. Their economic position has been hopelessly ruined by Japan. They ask, "Is there not more hope for us in Communism in Russia than peaceful Christianity?" However the spirit of Christianity has made almost miraculous advancement in Korea. Church have sprung up in every part of the country. Their general knowledge of the Bible is a constant marvel, and this is shown as they judge us by the Christian standards and condemn us as we do not live up to those same examples.

A final proof that the Christian religion is really supreme is that the other religions are copying the methods of Christianity.

We should all be glad that we can contribute our share in spreading the Glad Tiding.

go unchallenged. Dean Tucker of London made an eloquent plea for the foreign fields. We ought not, he said, to take a narrow-national outlook on the mission problem. The kingdom of Christ was one the world over. Far greater fields than Western Canada were open to the Church. He referred to China and Japan, to Africa, to the Moslem world now in the throes of revolution and for the first time accessible to the missionary, and to the work undertaken by the Church among the Jews.

The need of missions was greater earnestness on the part of the members of the Church, thought Archdeacon Scott of Quebec. "How many of you laymen," he asked, "would be glad to give a son to the ministry? How many of you give as much to your church as to your golf club?" If the members of the church were more earnest and more willing to give he thought they would be able to solve all difficulties and to meet the demands of both home and foreign missions.

"The kingdom of Christ is one. We must not divide it," said Canon Gould of Toronto. He also was of the opinion that both the Western and foreign missions could be managed.

While he recognized the need of the Church in the West, G. B. Nicholson of Cochrane warned against a narrow, national diocesan or parochial outlook. "A church with a national outlook only is a dying church," he said. "Our problem," he concluded, "is not parochial, diocesan or national. It is the world problem of the Christian Church."

As a result of the discussion the Executive Council was instructed to study and report on the "situation of the Church in Canada among white men."

WAS A CRASHING NOTE.

MANSFIELD, England, Sept. 17.—While playing her piano in her apartment here, the wife of a town councilman was astonished when the instrument, without warning, dropped through the floor. The house was built only three years ago. "And I was only playing light music, too", the woman said. "I would probably have wrecked the entire building with Rachmaninoff's Prelude."

KEENE NEWS.

KEENE, Sept. 17.—Mrs. Sanders of Port Hope, Mrs. Shea, Mrs. Mann, and Mrs. Hawkins were visitors at the home of Mrs. R. N. Johnston

Mrs. Bertha Wilson has returned home after visiting friends in Toronto during the past two weeks.

Miss Leona Johnston and Miss Dunne, who have been visiting Mrs. R. Johnston, have returned home to Buffalo.

Mrs. Annie MacFarlane spent a week with Toronto friends.

Mr. Colin Comrie of Ottawa is visiting his parents.

Miss Viola Montgomery entertained a number of friends at a birthday party on Wednesday.

Mrs. McPhail is visiting Mrs. John Archibald.

Friends of Mrs. McCann will be glad to know that she has returned from the hospital and is improving nicely.

Miss Marion Adamson has entered the Port Hope Hospital as nurse-in-training. Miss Adamson was the secretary-treasurer of the United Church Sunday School, and on Sunday morning last an address was presented, the superintendent also speaking in glowing terms of her services.

On Monday evening the Young People's Club of which Miss Adamson is a member, met at the church and, following a devotional period, Miss Adamson was presented with a testament and pen and an address.

Miss Adamson replied nicely to the gifts and all the good things said about her.

The evening wound up with games and dainty refreshments, these being served by the young ladies.

ROSENEATH NEWS

ROSENEATH, Sept. 17.—Mrs. Albert Halstead met with a painful accident when she stepped on a nail. She is under the doctor's care.

Many from here attended the Peterborough Exhibition during the week.

Mr. Wilfred Davey has made a great improvement by painting the residence of Mr. John Murphy.

The school fair will be held on the Agricultural grounds on Tuesday next, September 20th.

The threshing machine is again heard throughout the neighborhood and the grain is an average crop.

GRANDMOTHERS ARE ENTERTAINED

Regent Street Ladies' Aid Holds Meeting for Them.

LAKEFIELD, September 17. — The Ladies' Aid of the Regent Street United Church held a delightful grandmothers' party in the basement of the church on Tuesday afternoon, September 13. About seventy-five ladies were present, more than forty being grandmothers. The guests of honour were grouped together on the right hand side of the spacious room.

Mrs. Robert Nugent, vice-president of the Ladies' Aid, and a former president, conducted the opening exercises, Mrs. John Murphy reading the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Percy Spence presided at the piano. Mrs. Walter Hamblin, secretary of the society, read the minutes of last meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Albert Darling. Rev. S. A. Kemp was present and gave a short address, welcoming the grandmothers on behalf of the Ladies' Aid. He referred feelingly to the debt of gratitude owing the grandmothers whose patient endeavour and loyal service made possible many of the privileges enjoyed to-day. Some of the grandmothers are still in harness and are working for the church and the community, while others are in the evening of life and are no longer able for the more active service. It is a privilege to welcome the grandmothers, and the speaker extended to them all his best wishes.

Mr. Kemp made a reference to the beautiful text from the Bible, "At eventide it shall be light," as a suitable one for an occasion such as this as the beautiful morning and noontide of life bring the rich glow at eventide.

Mrs. Albert Darling, president of the Ladies' Aid, took charge of the programme, the first number being a solo by one who is a grandmother, Mrs. S. S. Spence.

Mrs. S. S. Spence, treasurer of the Ladies' Aid, sang in her clear, full soprano, a solo entitled "The Future Is a Dream," written and composed by her late brother-in-law, Mr. Jacob White, on the occasion of his golden wedding.

Mrs. A. D. Payne played the accompaniment.

Miss Ora Dunford gave one of her inimitable dialect readings which brought down the house. It was entitled "The Tribulations of Biddy Malone," dealing with the adventures in Canadian cooking of an Irish girl, fresh from the Emerald Isle.

Mrs. Oliver George gave a piano solo, which was much enjoyed.

Mrs. A. E. Higgins contributed a reading, "Finding Mother's Glasses," which, while humorous, pointed a strong moral regarding the privilege of service.

Mrs. McMillen sang sweetly, "The Little White Cot in the Lane," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. George.

Mrs. Darling thanked the ladies, on behalf of the Society, for their splendid response to the invitation, and assured them of the pleasure it had given the members to entertain the grandmothers of the village.

Mrs. S. A. Kemp presente a beautiful sheaf of gladioli to Mrs. Peter Baptie, who was the oldest grandmother present, and Mrs. D. H. Webster presented a bunch of sweet peas and smilax to Mrs. Thomas Junkin, who was the youngest grandmother.

An exquisite bouquet of sweet peas was presented to the representative of the press, not because of her being able to qualify in the grandmother class, but as a token of appreciation from her friends of the Ladies' Aid.

Mrs. Thomas Hendren, on behalf of the grandmothers, proposed a vote of thanks to the Ladies' Aid for their invitation and the pleasant afternoon. She hoped all would be spared for further service to God and felt assured that all would remain faithful unto death.

Afternoon tea was served by the Ladies' Aid, the grandmothers being served at small tables decorated with flowers.

The following committees were in charge:

Invitation and Arrangements Committee—Miss Webster, Mrs. George Spence, Mrs. McConkey, Mrs. A. E. Higgins, Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Harry Dunford.

Entertainment and programme committee—Mrs. S. S. Spence, Mrs. Hendren, Mrs. Ingram, Mrs. Bullock, Mrs. W. J. Dunford, Mrs. Nugent, Mrs. Pearson and Mrs. W. J. Little.

A "huge success" was the unanimous verdict of all the ladies, grandmothers and those who were not grandmothers. The Ladies' Aid has been a pillar of the Regent street church from the time the present structure was begun till the present time and bids fair to carry on its good work far into the future.

In all their years of endeavor, there is no brighter chapter than their delightful entertainment of the passing generation, whose labor has done much to build up the community.

MR. MAN BOWS TO THE ENSEMBLE

BY CURTIS WOOD
For NEA Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Usually, when an innovation in men's modes is announced there is an unconscious tightening of the purse strings on the part of prospective fashion followers for innovations to them mean one thing—money.

Here is something new—and economical.

I am referring, of course, to the combination business-and-afternoon suit for men—a coat with two pairs of trousers, one of matching material, the other different.

Here is something that, like all other good ideas, makes one wonder why it has never been thought out before. It consists of a regulation business coat and vest, the tailoring and coloring selected so as to harmonize not only with the street and office back-ground but also with the semi-formal surroundings that go with an extra pair of grey striped trousers.

Nothing can give a man an air of easy grace and nonchalance and provide him with a feeling of impeccability and that prized assurance that he is well dressed than this outfit.

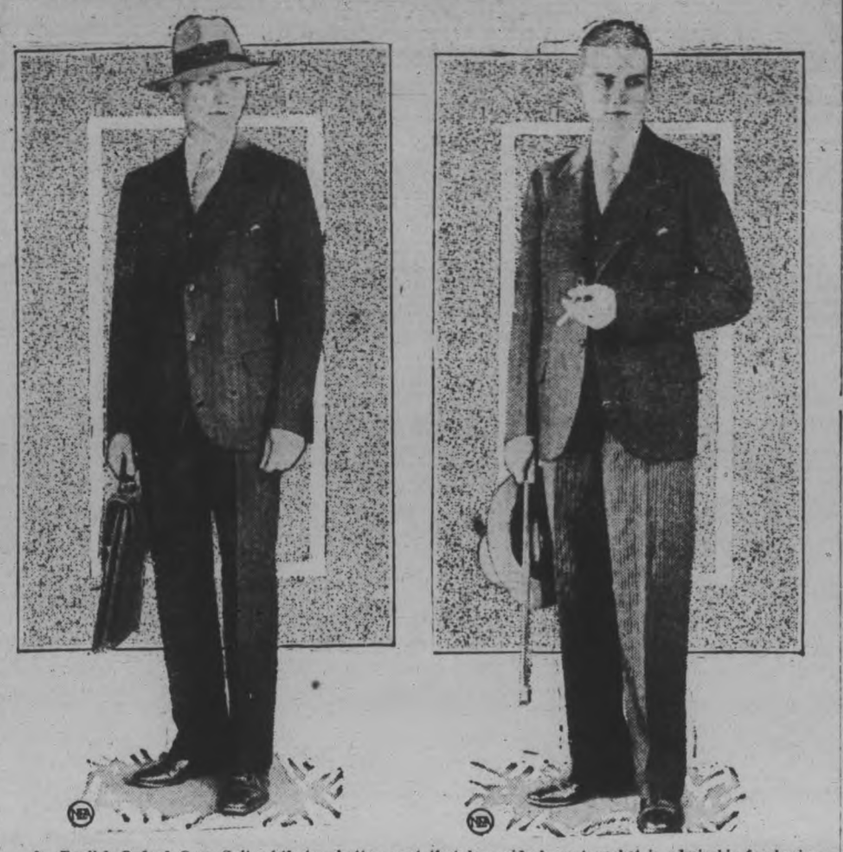
In the spring of 1920 college campuses throughout America saw a sudden splurge of grey striped trousers. That is the closest resemblance to this new combination that we can remember. The rah-rah boys, however, wore their grey stripes with a plain blue double breasted serge, while this business-and-afternoon ensemble is not considered up to the exacting requirements of conservative fashion dictates unless the coat is a sack model, single breasted and given over to subdued and comber colorings.

The coat is cut plainly so as to drape over the shoulders in the accepted English fashion. There is a wide breast pocket and large flaps on the side pockets.

The vest is cut high to prevent an unusually large expanse of tie showing—which spoils any gentleman's get-up. Any suit, incidentally, which shows more than eight or ten inches of a silk foulard hour-in-hand is immediately relegated to the "jazz" type seen in our best poolrooms and bowling

The trousers of the business end of the combination have two-inch cuffs. Coat, vest and trousers sell at $65 to $85, while the addition of the grey striped trousers which automatically put it into the semi-formal class brings the price up $15.

The grey striped trousers can make or break the entire afternoon effect. They should be cut wide and should be just long enough to "break" at the ankle. If they are any longer they will flap with each step and if they are a trifle too short they will look "skimpy."



An English-Oxford Grey Suit with two-button coat that has wide breast pocket is admirable for business wear when its matching cuffed trousers are worn. Change to pin-striped grey trousers are ready for semi-formal affairs.

Heretofore the average American business man has rebelled at the idea of paying an exorbitant price for an afternoon suit. This answers that rebellion very nicely. It can no longer be regarded as a luxury.

The recommendation of this writer is Oxford grey. It will be worn extensively this fall and will harmonize with the grey striped trousers.

Rev. A. T. Weir, Mrs. Weir, Miss Annie Stephenson, Miss E. Johnston, Miss M. Dickson, Miss E. Robinson, Mrs. Jamieson, Mrs. R. J. Adams and Miss Rapson attended the W.A. district convention and deanery meeting at Blackstock on Tuesday, where the latter addressed the gathering.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lamb accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ivory motored to Toronto to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Luxson on Thursday.

Mrs. J. J. H. Fee of Peterborough is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Grandy.

Mrs. Charles McCaffrey, Sr., is spending this week with friends in Omemee.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lamb, Mrs. E. Bradburn, Mrs. L. Mahood, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Sandy, Mr. D. Weir and Miss L. Parsons were among those who listened with pleasure to the Rev. Dr. Gandier of Toronto in Queen street church, Lindsay, on Tuesday evening.

Congratulations are being extended to Messrs. Vincent Jones and Wesley Wilson on their splendid exhibits at the C.N.E., Toronto. Mr. Jones carried off two first prizes for one bushel of fall wheat and a sheaf, while Mr. Wilson obtained third prize on each of these.

Mr. Robert Boyd has sold his farm to Mr. Fred Bent, and is making plans to erect a residence on his lot, north of Sturgeon street station.

Material for the new C.N.R. siding to be built to the tannery is being placed on the ground and the work will commence this week.

TRENT RIVER NEWS.

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 17.—Messrs. W. Chutte, Sr., Frank Chutte, Jr., Norman Brunner, and Jimmie Higgins, Buffalo, N.Y., are holidaying this week at "Algrada."

Mr. James Carnrite's new house is nearing completion, and will soon be ready for occupancy.

Dr. R. Gawley, of Hornepayne, is a visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Armstrong and family at "Lazy Lodge."

Mr. Falkner, Havelock, is having a new roof put on his cottage.

Mrs. A. Wight has a new radio placed at "Cedar Isle."

Mr. and Mrs. John Garneau attended Peterborough Fair on Thursday.

Mrs. Ethel Patterson and daughter, Dorothy, of Detroit, have been visitors this week with the former's brothers, the Messrs. John and Fred Scott.

LAKEFIELD LADY RECEIVES GIFTS

Mrs. M. Roseborough is Presented With Many Useful Articles.

LEAVING VILLAGE

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 17.—Between sixty and seventy friends, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Braden on Friday evening last to honor Mrs. Marion Roseborough, prior to her marriage to Mr. Parliament of Little Britain. The party included a large delegation from the Baptist church and the neighbours and intimate friends of Mrs. Roseborough. The key note of the entire evening was fellowship and good will and there is no doubt that it will remain as a pleasant memory to all who were priviledged to attend.

Rev. William Spencer read an address from the members of the Baptist congregation, and Mrs. G. E. Renwick read the address from the neighbours, while Mrs. A. E. Higgins and Miss Ruby Nicholls presented a pair of handsome wicker chairs, one an arm chair and the other a rocker, both handsomely upholstered; Mrs. Fred Johnson presented a wicker fern stand also, while Misses Mary Adams and Edith Nicholls presented Misses Marjorie and Stella Roseborough each with a beautifully bound Bibles with their names inserted in gold lettering. Mrs. Roseborough, although almost overcome by this tangible evidence of the regard in which she is held by her friends, made a suitable reply, assuring them all of the happy memories of Lakefield and her friends which she will always cherish. She also spoke a word on behalf of her little daughters, who have made a place for themselves in the hearts of the community, being beloved in the neighborhood by their readiness to do acts of kindness and in the church by their regularity and willingness to serve in any way, and more particularly in singing God's praise.

The following is the address read by Rev. W. Spencer—

Lakefield, Ontario,
September 9th, 1927.

Dear Friend:

We, the members of the Baptist church and congregation desire to accept this opportunity of giving expression to our love and esteem for you and your children. You have been a faithful Christian worker and have taken a real interest in every department of the work of the church.

We shall greatly miss the presence and services of yourself and your two dear girls, who have been useful workers in the Sunday school, and have frequently sung Gospel songs to our pleasure and profit.

We trust that your future may be bright and happy and wish you health, happiness and prosperity.

May the gracious heavenly Father, who has comforted you and blessed you in the past, be your Guide and Keeper all through your life.

And, if we should not, all of us, be permitted to meet together again here, may we all meet in that land where friends never change and where partings shall be no more.

We request you to accept whatever may be presented to you, not for its material worth, but as a small token of our esteem and good wishes for you and your children.

And may you cherish pleasant memories of the days you spent among us.

Signed on behalf of the church and congregation: Rev. William Spencer, minister. Mrs. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Pugh, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nicholls, Mr. and Mrs. S. Hunter, Mrs. Trinnum, Mr. and Mrs. W. Tedford, Young's Point. Mr. and Mrs. Tedford, Lakefield; Mr. and Mrs. A. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Nicholls, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Northey, Miss Shields, Mr. David Darling, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Waldon, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McMaster, Miss Gladys Bolton, Mr. Alex. MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Yonge and Miss Grace Yonge, Mrs. Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. E. Roseborough, Mr. and Mrs. A. Northey and Miss Zelda Northey, Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Northey and Miss Beulah Northey, Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Darling, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Leway, A Friend, Mr. and Mrs. J. Nicholls, Misses Ruby, Edith and Alice Nicholls, Mr. and Mrs. Glad Chapin.

The following is the address from the neighbours read by Mrs. G. E. Renwick—

Lakefield, Ontario
September 9, 1927.

Dear Mrs. Roseborough:

We, your neighbours and friends, have learned that you are about to leave our town, to make a new home and happy relations elsewhere.

And as you are about to enter into the happy state of matrimony, we wish for you the richest blessing that can come to one who has so faithfully, lovingly and cheerfully kept home and family together all these years.

You have been a helpful neighbour, and a kind friend to all around you.

You have not spared yourself, but have given of your strength and means to any good object.

You have trained your children so that they are a credit to you wherever they may be.

The children have grown up with us until they seem part of us. Therefore it is with deep regret that we part with you; so we have taken this opportunity to express in our small way our love and esteem for you.

So if you will just accept these tokens that we bring to you tonight, with our love, and when you use them remember your neighbours of Lakefield.

We hope when you have lived in your new community as long as you have lived here you will have just as many friends.

You will have your lonely hours when you may possibly be a little homesick, and then we will be glad to have you come and visit the old friends.

Wishing you and yours, God's richest blessing and many years of prosperity in your new home.—Your neighbours: Mrs. (Dr. Finnemore, Mrs. McCracken, Mrs. Vernie Graham, Miss McKibbon, Mrs. Stanley Higgins, Mrs. Norman Moore, Miss Clara Kidd, Miss M. Sanderson, Mrs. E. R. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Millage, Mrs. Edith Davis, Mrs. H. Kemp, Mrs. A. V. Hill, Mrs. Jack Murphy, Miss M. Adams, Mrs. A. Higgins, Mrs. Fred Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. S. Northey, Mr. and Mrs. J. Roseborough, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. Tom Watson, Misses Hetherington, Mrs. Clare Crittick, Mrs. Charles Lake, Mrs. B. Garbutt, Mr. Roy Bullock, Mr. Young, Mr. Pearson, Mr. E. Windott, Mrs. T. Braden, Edna Renwick.

Miss Etta Garbutt favored the company with a piano solo which was much appreciated as Miss Garbutt is a gifted musician.

Bountiful refreshments were served by Mrs. Braden, and Mrs. Renwick assisted by a number of the young ladies.

Before the party broke up Rev. William Spencer proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Braden for their kindness in opening their home for this happy occasion. Mr. A. E. Higgins seconded the motion.

Mr. Braden in replying on behalf of his wife and daughter, said that it afforded them all great pleasure to have so many friends with them but only regretted that it meant that they were losing one who had always proved to be a good neighbour and friend. Mr. Braden assured Mrs. Roseborough that there was always a welcome for her in Lakefield.

About eleven o'clock the company dispersed after a delightful neighborhood party for which the "Kentucky" section is famous in the village.

About the Exhibition

Many pictures and tables of statistics at the tent of the Children's Aid Society give a wealth of information regarding the activities of the organization. The contrast between the needy sad-looking children just admitted to the Shelter and the happy youngsters under its fostering care is very evident. During the year the Society made inquiries or took action on behalf of the welfare of no less than 361 children in this district. Children's Aid Society Tag Day this year will be held on September 24.

A special item of noteworthy interest at the Fair this year was the very large number of entries by children in the Flower Show. These were of a fine grade and reflected much credit on the junior growers. Although all could not be given prizes, on account of the many entries, they should be commended for the extremely creditable showing.

The innovation of the Toronto Hunt Club jumpers at the Exhibition was received enthusiastically by the stands.

The pig in the clover act got a fine hand yesterday and there was much amusement when it was later converted into sausages.

There has been some discussion as to the kind of wood used by the wood choppers. Friday afternoon it was willow, but any kind of wood is used as long as it is hard.

Tansleys Troupe was written up as Bon-Hair. This troupe came in place of Bon-Hair, which was billed for the fair here.

The grandstand performances yesterday afternoon offered a fine variety of entertainment. In the distance was the Hunt Club jumping; to the right was the horse judging; on the stage Cervone's Band, and the vaudeville actors provided splendid entertainment, while on the track the race and riding and driving programmes held sway.

In the first trotting heat of the afternoon a little excitement was created by the overturning of one of the carts before the grandstand. The driver was dragged some distance, but retained the reins and brought the horse to a halt without serious damage or interference with the other horses on the track.

The whistle used by the clown in the fruit stand act is a small fibre contrivance edged with steel at one side, which lies on his tongue. The whistle is obtained by a hissing effect which he has obtained through constant practice, much to the dismay of his intimates.

The Exhibition Board has notified the Weatherman to make his choice regarding that bathing suit for tomorrow.

The man who approached the "Y" tent asking for a drink that "tasted like beer," had only a very confused idea of what he actually wanted.

The proprietor of one of the show tents found to his disgust that his canvas was pierced by holes made by the onlookers desirous of witnessing the show on the cheap.

"The best and cleanest grandstand performance ever put on by the Peterborough Exhibition," is a verdict generally expressed. All of the lumber companies of the district are prepared to give those Australians a job any day.

E. J. Hilliard Montreal manager, Live Stock Department of the Canadian National Railways, visited the Exhibition yesterday and inspected the sheep and cattle entries.

R. H. Jenkinson, manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, Agricultural Department, was a visitor to the Fair yesterday.

He expressed himself as immensely pleased at the flower show. Mr. Jenkinson was particularly impressed by the success of local flower exhibitors in retaining the garden effect, which is now no longer an object of attainment in Toronto.

The showing of cattle, sheep, and swine made a great impression on Mr. Jenkinson.

Mr. Jenikson also visited Oshawa and London Shows during the present week.

Wheat Prices Lower; Corn Is Also Weaker

CHICAGO September 17. — Canadian Press. — Wheat prices turned downward early to-day, unofficial crop estimates from Canada being construed as bearish although somewhat reduced from the recent government forecast. Opening 5-8c to 1¼c down, wheat rallied a little and then sagged lower than before. Provisions showed irregular with lard prices receding.

Opening prices were: Wheat, Sept. 126½; December 129¾; corn, September. 90 7-8; December, 93½; oats, Sept. 45 5-8; Dec. 47 7-8. Favorable weather led to independent weakness of corn values.

Amulet Again Feature; Mine Trading Heavy

TORONTO, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—Amulet continued to be the feature of the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange during heavy trading of over 1,000,000 shares during the short session this morning. Opening at 605, Amulet touched 642 and closed at 636, a net gain of 31, in transactions of over 120,000 shares. Argonaut Consolidated advanced 10 at 45, and Barry Hollinger closed at 75, a net gain of 6½. Area continued to climb, gaining 4½ points to 76½, and Gold Hill Mines increased 3 points yesterday at 43½. Wright Hargreaves and Howey Gold each went up three, the former at 748 and the latter at 97. The only recession was registered by International Nickel, which lost 10 at 67.25. Kirkland Lake went up three, Laval-Quebec two, and General Manitoba eight, while Cap Rouyn firmed a quarter at 17½. Noranda was up 15 points at 24.75.

Canada Cement Touches Record High This Morning

TORONTO, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—Heavy trading was again a feature of the bullish market on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, and week-end profit-taking furnished the bulk of the pyrotechnic display. Canada Cement, following reports of the proposed sale of the plant, lock, stock, and barrel, gained four points to-day and touched 242, a new high for all time. This issue gained 31 yesterday, and its gain of to-day brings the total increase to 35 points in two days. There were only small lots up for sale to-day, however, and Hiram Walker, an unlisted issue, was the feature stock to point of activity with more than five thousand shares changing hands. Walker was down 3-8 at 53½. The gains outnumbered the losses and the market assumed a very bullish tendency toward the close of the short session.

LONDON, September 17. — United Press. — "God bless him!" was the inscription found on a photograhph of the Prince of Wales wrapped in a ballot paper in Ireland. "Oh! for the good old days when the British were here! We want John Bull back again. You are a lot of scratchers.'

Also written across the ballot papers were many other denunciations of politicians in Ireland.

Toupee As Dish Rag Enrages Bold Husband

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 17 (United Press).—His wife used his red toupee for a dish rag, so Patrick Weston was granted a divorce from Mrs. Ida Weston. "I left my toupee on my desk," Weston said, "and later found she had been washing dishes with it."

EMPIRE TRADE LEAGUE WORKS IN DOMINION

Investigating Markets With a View to Increasing Commerce.

HAS SPACE AT C.N.E.

Director General Feilden is at Present Working in Canada.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 17 (by the Canadian Press).—In connection with the movement to develop British Empire trade, Theo. Feilden, Director General of the Empire Trade League, and editor of "The Empire Mail," organ of the League published in London, is now in Canada on behalf of the Empire Trade League and a number of important British industrial and commercial interests, representing some hundreds of millions of dollars of capital. Mr. Feilden is on a special mission of market investigation with the object of extending trade connections between the Dominion and the Mother Country.

The Empire Trade League, Mr. Feilden points out, stands for the unity of the Empire, co-operative marketing, and a closer understanding of every requirement of the various countries under the Union Jack.

The League has taken extensive space at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, where a display of literature concerning the Empire Trade League is being made and large British manufacturing interests are being represented.

The Premiers of the various Dominions are patrons of the Empire Trade League as follows: Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Canada; Rt. Hon. Stanley M. Bruce, Australia; Rt. Hon. J. G. Coates, New Zealand and Hon. W. S. Monroe, Newfoundland.

Every section of the British Commonwealth of Nations is represented on the Grand Council of the League. The League is non-political and membership therein is open to all citizens of the British Empire.

Sir Edwin Stockton, ex-M.P., cloth merchant, Manchester, is acting president of the League and Chairman of the Grand Council. There are 40 vice-presidents and they include the following: Earl Jellicoe, Viscount Burnham, owner of the Daily Telegraph, London, and President of the Empire Press Union; Major the Hon. J. J. Astor, chairman of the Times Publishing Company, London; Sir Robert Horne, former Chancellor of the British Exchequer; Sir Alfred Mond, M.P., chairman of the Mond Nickel Company; Lt.-General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, Rt. Hon. L. C. Amery, Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs; Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Premier of Quebec; Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario; Hon. E. K. Bowden, ex-Minister of Defence, Australia; Hon. P. G. Stewart, Ex-Minister of Works and Railways, Australia, and Sir Campbell Stuart, Director of the London Times Publishing Company.

After Mr. Feilden has completed his tour of investigation in Canada he proposes to produce a special issue of The Empire Mail, devoted to a comprehensive story of the 60 years of the Dominion's development and progress and a description of its industrial and commercial possibilities and the opportunities offered in Canada for British capital, British enterprise and British migration. This special issue will be circulated in every part of the Empire and in the chief trading centres of the world.

RAM GRADING IN ONTARIO

Province Wishes To Aid in Development of Better Flocks.

MARKS EXPLAINED.

The value of the pure-bred sire of standard conformation and quality is now appreciated widely by sheep raisers in the Province. There has been a growing demand for rams of superior quality but often small breeders find it difficult to secure the right animal. Time and expense do not permit them to personally purchase their rams so it is necessary to purchase by mail order, which in itself is a most unsatisfactory method, both from the standpoint of the purchaser and of the seller. Breeders of pure-bred sheep find it difficult to reach these small sheep raisers because the size of their business does not permit them to carry on extensive advertising. Consequently on one hand there is sometimes a surplus of pure-bred rams available and at the same time a market for them is not being supplied.

It was to assist in solving this difficulty that the Dominion Live Stock Branch and the Provincial Department of Agriculture instituted the Ram Grading Policy in Ontario last year. The policy is to be continued this year.

All pure-bred sheep breeders in the Province who desire to make application can have their rams graded. A grader will visit the breeder during the latter part of September and will tattoo each ram offered for sale in the ear, according to grade.

Rams that are marked with XXX are those considered suitable for use on the average pure-bred flock. They carry all the breed characteristics, are free from black wool and are of a size and conformation to indicate strength and ability to act as strong sires. Naturally, there is a wide range in this grade from a ram suitable for a small pure bred flock of average quality to a ram suitable for a high-class pure-bred flock which competes successfully in the show-ring.

The second grade rams are marked XX and are those which show normal healthy development and good body conformation but lack somewhat in breed type. They are good, useful rams but only to be recommended on grade flocks. Cull rams and undersized rams are not marked.

Each breeder quotes a price on the rams as they are grades and the grader makes a list of the rams, eartag numbers and the prices quoted. After the grading is completed in the Province a complete list is prepared by the Ontario Department of Agriculture of the breeders' names and addresses, the breed they keep, together with the rams offered for sale, their grading, and the price asked. These lists are then sent to all those interested in buying or placing pure-bred rams.

This service to pure-bred breeders and purchasers of rams is simply a guide in placing pure-bred stock and there is no obligation taken by the Departments of Agriculture that the rams that are graded will be sold. However, it is hoped that the grading of rams will stimulate sales and give the sheep raiser, at a distance from breeders an opportunity to purchase by mail to the satisfaction of both buyer and seller.

Application for ram grading should be made to the local Agricultural Representative by telephone or in writing before September 15th, 1927.

CHARMING HOME OF LOW COST

By Thomas R. Wilks, Architect.

The acquisition of distinction in a residence while economy must be the uppermost thought in the designer's mind, is not a very easy task, but its possibility is amply illustrated by the home shown here, which may be built for about six thousand dollars, or, indeed, by any of the large number of really artistic low cost homes which are being built with architectural services throughout the country.

To a clever combination of a frame building, of rug brick veneer, and buff cement stucco on metal lath, together with a green slate asphalt roof, must go the major share of the credit in this instance.

An uncommon feature for a house of this size is the reception hall, off which is a large coat alcove. The living room has a beamed ceiling, and tapestry brick fireplace, and is connected with the dining room by a wide archway. Notice the excellent placing of the fireplace in such a way that its cheery glow would pervade both rooms, and the commendable group between the rooms, formed by the window on each side of the fireplace, tending to create the impression of one large room.

The kitchen, which is very completely equipped, has two entrances. One is a side grade entrance with stairs to basement under the main stairs, while entry may also be made from the rear through a small porch. An alcove contains a cupboard, table, and refrigerator, and here, without moving a step, much of the kitchen work may be accomplished.

Returning to the living and ascending the stairs we find a linen closet, bathroom, and three good size bedrooms having really large clothes closets. Each bedroom is located on a corner, thus allowing windows in two walls with the consequent advantages of cross ventilation.

Laundry tubs, and a hot water heating furnace, are located in the basement.

The wiring is modern in every respect, and provides a profusion of wall and base outlets.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address Thomas R. Wilks, 612 Queen St. E., Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario.

An Old, Old Complaint.

Question: In heating a house with stoves, is there not some way to overcome the fact that some rooms are very warm while others are uncomfortably cold?

* * *

The modern method of warming a house with any type of warm air heating plant in the living quarters is based on the principle of circulating the air. Air moves from the heater, through the rooms and back to the heater. To accomplish the most widely extended circulation, doors must be high and equipped with transoms, there must be grills in the lower panels of the doors. It is usually desirable to supply auxiliary heat for the bath room.

A PERFECT MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Baby's Own Tablets Should Be in Every Home Where There Are Children.

The perfect medicine for little ones is found in Baby's Own Tablets. They are a gentle but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach; drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and promote healthful refreshing sleep. It is impossible for Baby's Own Tablets to harm even the new-born babe, as they are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates or any other injurious drug.

Concerning the Tablets, Mrs. Alex J. Perry, Atlantic, N.S., writes:—"I always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house for the children, as I have found them a perfect medicine for little ones."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TRACTOR KILLS COLBORNE MAN

W. H. Britton Crushed By Runaway Machine at Baltimore.

ON THRESHING OUTFIT.

PORT HOPE, Ont., Sept. 17.—Thribly crushed between a runaway tractor and the separator of a threshing outfit, William H. Button, Colborne, was fatally injured near Baltimore Thursday night. An inquest was opened yesterday morning and adjourned until September 22.

Button, about 66 years of age, was engineer on a tractor engaged in hauling a threshing outfit to the farm of William Mann, about three miles east of Baltimore. Approaching the farm, the outfit was being drawn up a steep grade when mechanical trouble arose and it was found necessary to back the tractor down grade for a short distance in order that an adjustment might be made to the tow chain and cable, precaution being taken to place a heavy block of wood behind the wheels.

The weight of the huge machine, combined with the momentum gained in backing the short distance down grade, caused the wheels to jump the block, the jerk throwing Button from his seat to the ground beyond the tractor and he was pinned between tractor and the rear of the separator. When extricated, Button was dead; his head, chest and limbs badly crushed.

FRENCH INCOME INCREASES FAST

Tax Returns Show Total Nearly Doubled in Four Years.

Official figures for the foreign trade of France for the month of July, according to statistics received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its French Information Service, show that exports exceeded imports in value by nearly 431,000,000 francs—exports 4,499,160,000 francs and imports 4,068,183,000 francs. This is the first time since March of this year that the balance has been favorable. For the corresponding month of last year exports amounted to 5,284,035,000 francs and imports 4,909,538,000 francs. In weight exports for July, 1927, amounted to 3,301,708 metric tons and imports 3,654,418 metric tons, as against 2,880,094 for exports and 3,576,489 metric tons for imports during July, 1926.

For the first seven months of this year, imports amounted in value to 31,186,393,000 francs and 29,710,622 metric tons, as against 34,327,510,000 francs and 26,978,898 tons for the corresponding period of last year, or a decrease of 586,205,000 francs compared with 1926. In weight, however, exports increased by 2,807,496 tons for the last year.

During the month of July, 1927, the gross receipts of the French Autonomous Sinking Fund, according to official figures transmitted to the Bankers Trust Company by its French Information Service, totalled 551,242,089 francs, or 52,498,663 derived from the first transfer tax, 192,238,276 from the inheritance tax and 306,505,150 from the tobacco monopoly, as against a total of 583,063,199 francs in June when returns from the same sources were respectively 38,923,623, 209,653,685 and 334,485,811 francs.

Receipts for the first seven months of the year totalled 3,549,915,995 francs or 284,434,930 from the first transfer tax, 1,176,271,961 from the inheritance tax and 2,089,209,104 from the tobacco monopoly.

The total amount paid by French taxpayers to the state during the first seven months of 1927, excluding communal and departmental taxes, totalled 26,800,766,595 francs.

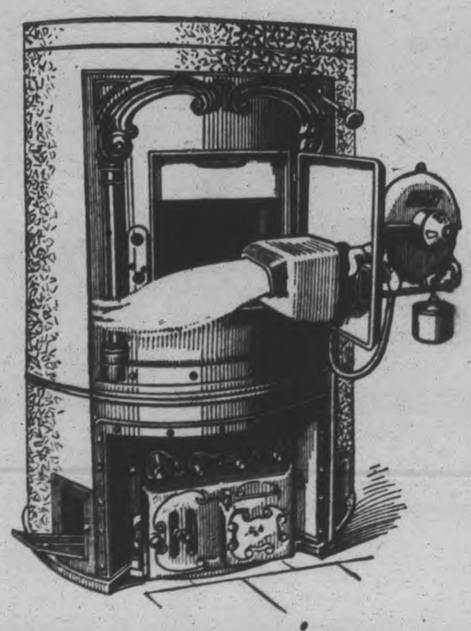
Killed Sick Wife; Doctor Found Insane

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 17.—(United Press.)—Fifty years ago in the surgical ampitheatre of Berlin Unviersity, Dr. Karl Von Engle discussed with fellow students the ethics of permitting or actually facilitating the death of an incurable patient. A coroner's jury yesterday decided Dr Von Engle, 72, and paralyzed, was insane because he killed his slowly dying wife, Carolina, rather than watch her fight against the ravages of an incurable ailment.

Here is Dependable Automatic Heat—at Low Cost!

Homes equipped with the Kitchener Just-Rite Automatic Oil Burners are homes in which the heating plant has changed from a nuisance into a convenience. There are no fires to build, no coal bins to be kept filled, no banking the fires every night, no getting up in the early morning in a cold house to go down and get the furnace started, no ashes to be shovelled and hauled, no unhealthy variations in temperature.

Instead—your home is automatically heated without having to pay the slightest attention to your heating plant. Just-Rite does all the work for you. With it you light your furnace once in the Fall and it is lighted for all Winter—you need never visit the cellar again. A thermostat upstairs holds the temperature where you want it. Yet, you can change the temperature by touching the thermostat with just one finger.



In addition the Just-Rite is—

as a softly spinning top. There is no motor hum, no hissing, roaring sounds because neither air nor oil is under pressure—practically nothing to tell you the Just-Rite is operating.

Safe

The Just-Rite is absolutely fool-proof. There is nothing to get out of order, nothing to explode. Safety devices have made the Just-Rite as safe as electric light.

Clean

In the Just-Rite, every particle of oil is so completely burned that there is no soot or dirt. Every bit of oil is transformed directly into heat and of course with such perfect combustion, there is no odor.

Easy to Install

The Just-Rite burner is adaptable to any furnace—you do not have to adapt the furnace to the burner. No baffling, no bricking up inside. Note that the Just-Rite is installed in the door—your furnace is not changed in any way and is always ready to burn runbish or for any emergency. The in-the-door feature is exclusive to the Just-Rite.

The following Just-Rite Dealers in your locality will gladly demonstrate the Just-Rite Burner and explain the many advantages that make it better.

Atoms, Morons, And Eons

A Column of Fact, Opinion, Theory and a Little Sentiment.

AN ENGAGEMENT RING'S UNIVERSE

"If the diamond in a ring were enlarged to the size of the earth, the individual carbon atoms of which it is composed would be only about as big as baseballs."

In other words there is a microcosm in the glittering gem of the solitaire, a little world which Science has discovered but which remains a "terra incognita" to the happy young lady who proudly wears it on her finger, a sacrifice and symbol of her witchery.

English scientists have succeeded in measuring the distance that separates one atom from another in a crystal with an error of less than one part in a thousand.

It is no use proposing to the September bride, whose diamond still gleams with a mysterious lustre only her eyes can see, that she might ponder this note gleaned from recent discoveries in atomic properties.

Here is the rest of it: "Clutch a piece of iron. It seems substantial, dense, continuous, all that is implied by the word "solid." Look at the stars above. How remote from us, how remote from one another! Stellar distances must be measured by light—years,—so empty is space. Yet the piece of iron you clutch is relatively just as empty. Magnify it to the dimensions of the solar system, and its atoms would be separated million of miles. Hundreds of comets have swept through the solar system without colliding with a planet. A comet far smaller than an atom might theoretically swim through a seemingly solid piece of iron just as readily. Science has compelled us to modify the traditional conception of "solid" matter.

It takes a million million atoms to fill the head of a pin, yet the X-rays indicate the position of every one. Scientists once had to study faces of crystals under the microscope and measure the angles they made with one another in order to deduce the internal arrangement of atoms. Now the X-rays have made the groupings of atoms definitely known."

An Interlude of Sentiment

Have you ever read Eugene Field's "Little Toy Dog" and the "Little Tin Soldier," the little soldier whose musket moulds in his hands? It is a charming bit of sentiment about childhood. Eugene Field was inspired by his little son, his favorite child, who died in his 44th year last Saturday from burns suffered in an automobile accident.

Unlike the tin soldier's little boy, Field's son grew up, and himself had a wife and two children from whom he was separated. Life is like that.

Human Nature As It Is

Professional uplifters, prohibitionists, educationists and others who strive to establish in this perverse and naughty world the pink paradise of their pious preconceptions might profit from dwelling upon this blunt and possibly lamentable fact of human nature: "A great many men and women do not want to be cultured, are not interested in the higher life. For these people existence on the lower animal levels is perfectly satisfactory. Given food, drink, the company of their fellows, sexual enjoyment, and plenty of noisy distractions from without, they are happy. They enjoy bodily, but hate mental, exercise. They cannot bear to be alone ,or to think. Contemporary urban life with its jazz bands, its negroid dancing, its movies, theatres, football matches, newspapers and the like, is for them ideal. The notion that one can derive pleasure from ardous intellectual occupations is to such people merely absurd. More leisure and more prosperity mean for them more dancing, more parties, more movies, more distractions in general. Machines are giving universal leisure and universal leisure makes universal culture a possibility. But a large proportion of human beings are so constituted that they do not want to actualize that possibility."

For Your Notebook

"Ignorance of the facts has never yet deterred a man who wished to express not reason but spleen."

Oblique Psychology

Listen to this dogmatic ipse dixit by John B. Watson oracle of the behavionists: "By the end of his second year the child's temper is well organized; his vocational slants, his character, his fears, his positive bent towards things—toward pencil, paper, chalk, carpentry, social relations, water—has been so slanted that only a divine being could unmake him and give him over to the biologist as new material fit to watch for the unfolding of family traits."

Man a Million Years Ago?

The theories of the anthropologists are a continual vexation to the unscientific layman. There is so much seeming contradiction in opinions of even the most distinguished students of this branch of science, that one is at a loss which to accept. The late William Jennings Bryan would perhaps have warmly approved the following statement by Sir Arthur Keith: "In brain capacity the head of the Piltdown race was remarkably similar to that of modern races." And he places this Piltdown race in the Pliocene period, not less than half a million years ago and possibly much more.

Nor does he think that this is the beginning for he adds: "There is not a single fact known to me which makes the existence of a human form in the Miocene an impossibility."

And the close of the Miocene period, immediately preceding the Pliocene, is estimated at not less than a million years ago.

TOURS IN "HORSE CAR."

PRATT, Kan., Sept. 17.—After he had purchased a team of horses to work in the harvest fields, W. R. Faucher found he was unable to sell the animals. In order to get them home from Oklahoma he rigged up a tongue for his automobile, hitched up the horses and started on a 500-mile drive to Pratt. He arrived, with his wife and two children, without having used a drop of gasoline.

Widow Fights Will Giving Nurse Money

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Mrs. Jeannette T. Aldrich, widow of Sherwood Aldrich, former vice-president of Nevada Consolidated Copper Company, to-day started suit to break his will, which left the bulk of his million dollar estate to his nurse, Ethel M. Sears, of this city, formerly of Brantford, Ont. The widow alleges undue influence upon her husband in the making of the will and says it was not legally executed. She charges that her husband was not of sound mind at that time and demands a jury trial of her action.

There's some spot in Ontario you would like to visit again

It may be the old home town, some little hamlet, the old farm, or some other quiet spot of storied memory. It retains your interest through the years for reasons known only to yourself. Visit it again this fall. Use the splendid highways.

Autumn is the most delightful time to travel through Ontario. The air is so cool and invigorating. From nearly every hilltop is presented that spectacle of variegated color in which Ontario excels—a delight to the eye and a feast for the soul.

But when you're on the highways, remember your co-operation is needed in keeping them safe. Careless driving endangers life and property. The speed limit is 35 miles an hour. At that rate care must be exercised, and every warning noticed and obeyed. No motorist can afford to take chances at highway or railroad crossings, or other points where danger may occur.

Watch your headlights to see that they do not glare. It is so simple to keep headlights adjusted there is no excuse for the menace of glaring lights.

See to your brakes. The increased speed limit means that extra precautions have to be taken. Your life, the lives of your passengers and of other persons on the road will often depend upon your brakes.

Obey the rules of the road. BE COURTEOUS. Be patient. Do not enforce your rights to the inconvenience or danger of others.

Secure Your Motor Vehicle Operator's License Now!

If you have not yet applied for your Operator's License, do so now. Traffic patrol officers or city police may call upon you to produce it at any time. In case of accident, it will be the first thing asked for. Its absence renders you subject to fine. Application Forms at any garage.

His Worship Mayor Holloway is in receipt of a letter from Eugene Bonatelli, the Consul-General of Italy, at Ottawa, asking particulars regarding the late Rev. V. Clementi, who was for many years rector of the Anglican Church at Lakefield. The Italian Government is interested at the present time in preparing a biography of Muzio Clementi, the "Father of the pianoforte," who is buried in Westminster Abbey, and who was the father of the late Rev. V. Clementi, and requires the desired information for inclusion in the biography of the noted pianist. The late Rev. Clementi formed the Clementi Lodge, A.F. and A.M., at Lakefield, which two years ago celebrated its semi-centennial anniversary. He was rector at Lakefield for ten years, and died in 1899 in Peterborough, in the house built by him, now occupied by Mr. Arthur Stevenson, on Aylmer street. He was also at one time rector of the Anglican Church at Lindsay, and was for many years president of the local Horticultural Society. His two sons were Theodore and Mutius Clementi, the latter name a modernized version of Muzio, and his grandson, Mr. C. H. Clementi, lives on Monaghan Road.

The engagement is announced of Thelma Geraldine Foster, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Foster, Jackson Park, to Mr. W. F. Welsh, the marriage to take place the latter part of September.

The Smart High Neckline

Fashioned in the mode of the hour—in jumper effect. The jumper type of frock has attained an assured position and is fashioned from a variety of materials. We have designed here an attractive model from striped flannel which simulates the two-piece effect, yet has all the comforts of the one-piece dress. The back is plain and in one piece, and the bodice front is joined to the skirt beneath a wide tuck. Two pocket tabs are set on to simulate pockets; or if really truly pockets are desired, slash the material on the line for the pockets, make an inset pocket and tack the tab over the opening. There are inverted plaits at the side seams, and the collar may be worn high as illustrated, or turned back to form revers. The long, full sleeves are gathered into narrow bands at the wrist. No. 1172 is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years (34, 36 and 38 inches bust only). Size 18 years (36 bust) requires 3⅝ yards 36-inch, or 3¼ yards 40-inch, or 3¼ yards 54-inch material. Price 20 cents.

The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are advance styles for the home dressmaker, and the woman or girl who desires to wear garments dependable for taste, simplicity and economy will find her desires fulfilled in our patterns. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY SAVES THE PIRATES

Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty hopped as close as they dared to go to the black opening, or door, of the Pirate cave. Uncle Wiggily was wearing the uniform of the Police Dog, brass buttons and all. Baby Bunty had on her blue silk dress, and she said she must be careful not to go too close to the ocean.

"'Cause salt water spots blue silk dresses terrible! Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy told me so," Baby Bunty had said to Uncle Wiggily when they started out on this adventure.

For it was an adventure they were going to. As I told you in the story before this, Jackie Bow Wow, his brother and some of the other animal boys found a Pirate cave at the seashore. As there were no gold or jewels in it, and as the little boy Pirates wanted some lollypops, they sent Baby Bunty to kindly ask Uncle Wiggily to come nd give up his gold and jewels. But Unkie Wig?" whispered Bunty, for, every now and then would come calls of:

"Help! Help! Help!"

At first Uncle Wiggily did not know what to do, but at last he saw, up on top of the hill in which the Pirate cave was dug, a chimney hole to let out the smoke when, years ago, Pirates made fires in the cave to cook their meals. Hopping up on top of the den, the rabbit gentleman called down the chimney hole:

"Hello there, Jackie—Peetie—Stumble—anybody! I'm Uncle Wiggily! What's the matter down there? Have you found some real Pirates?"

Jackie Bow Wow, inside the cave, happened to be directly under the chimney hole. He looked up and saw the face of the rabbit.

"But you're dressed up like the Police Dog!" barked Jackie.

"That's all right, I did it for a joke," explained Uncle Wiggily.

"Well, there's no joke in here!" chattered Billie the squirrel, as he, also, looked up and saw the rabbit. "We were going to take your gold and jewels, Uncle Wiggily, but now we're caught ourselves."

"By whom?" asked the rabbit talking down the chimney hole.

All this while the other boys inside the cave could be heard rushing about, shouting, yelling and throwing stones, while above that racket sounded a roaring noise and a savage voice said:

"I'll catch every one of you! Yes, every one! If you'll only stop jumping around so much I could catch you easier!"

"Who is that?" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"It's a big Sea Lion," answered Jackie. "While we were here in the Pirate cave, waiting for Baby Bunty to bring you so we could take your gold and jewels to get lollypops, all of a sudden the Sea Lion rushed up from the ocean and flopped in here before we could get out. He says it's his cave and he's going to bite us."

"That must never be!" declared Uncle Wiggily. "I'll fix that Sea Lion. He won't know I'm not the Police Dog and I'll tell him if he doesn't flop back in the ocean I'll arrest him."

Hopping down off the top of the cave, Uncle Wiggily went in by the front door. There he saw the Sea Lion who had the animal boys huddled into a corner of the cave where he could easily catch them.

"Get back into your ocean or I'll arrest you!" cried Uncle Wiggily speaking as much like a Police Dog as he could. "Come on out!"

"Oh, excuse me!" roared the Sea Lion, looking over his shoulder. "I was only teasing these boys. Sure, I'll go back in my ocean." And as it was dark in the cave the Sea Lion couldn't very well notice that it was Uncle Wiggily dressed like a Police Dog. And so, quite fooled the bad chap flopped into the ocean and the Pirates were saved. Then Uncle Wiggily laughed, bought lollypops for every one and this ends the story.

9-2

"Oh, excuse me!" roared the Sea Lion.

Uncle Wiggily decided to play a trick on the Pirates so he dressed up like a Police Dog.

Then, when the rabbit gentleman and Baby Bunty drew near to the Pirate cave, they heard, as I told you, shouts for help.

"What you s'pose is the matter, Unkie Wig?" asked Bunty while from within the dark cave could be heard Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow barking as hard as they could bark, while Billie the goat bleated and the two Bushytail squirrel boys chattered their teeth.

"Perhaps there were some old-fashioned Pirates asleep in the cave away far back in a dark corner," whispered Mr. Longears, "and they don't like the boys to bother them."

"The boys are only playing," said Bunty. "I shouldn't think the Pirates would mind."

But something was wrong, that was sure. For such barks, snarls, whines, yelps, chatterings and bleating as came from the Pirate cave you never heard!

"What can you do to help them,

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

This new type of circular skirt may have been suggested by a skirt originally cut too small. The frock is made of three shades—beige, brown and henna.

It's a great general who can turn defeat into victory, and a really clever dressmaker who can turn a slip of the scissors or a mismeasurement of material into a new fashion.

Of course, no one can ever know just how many devices of fashion have been due to these sartorial mistakes. If a dressmaker achieves a new arrangement of drapery, a new cut of sleeve or a new sort of frill, she naturally isn't going to advertise the fact that she came upon it quite by accident, and doubtless she speedily forgets this seemingly unimportant detail.

The charming effect of short sleeves may originally have been discovered by some dressmaker who cut a sleeve too short by accident, or who tried a sleeve on sans the long cuff and then decided that it looked very pretty as it was.

A new frock from Paris that I saw the other day really looked as though it had resulted from a decided mismeasurement. The sketch shows you how the skirt was arranged. It really does look as if it had been made much too small at the waist and hips to start with and had then been finished in the way you see just for the fun of making something quite different.

New colors—or rather new shades—I am told frequently, result from "mistakes" in the dyeing. The important thing after the new shade has been produced is to go back and deliberately make the same mistake over again.

It is all very well for experts to make mistakes, for with them they may be turned to account. But with the beginner or amateur a better plan is to work with a pattern and to work slowly. And speaking of patterns—would you like the pattern or rather diagram of a charming negligee. It is copied from a negligee in the wardrobe of a well-known actress we know—and if you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I will gladly send you the diagram sketch and working directions. The same pattern may be used for making a simple little evening wrap or a house coat to wear over your frock on chill evenings at home.

MILLIONAIRE MARRIES

Charles R. Flint, New York multi-millionaire and so-called "father of the trusts," he having done a great deal of work in organizing and consolidating big business, was recently married to Charlotte Reeves, whose father was for many years telegraph operator in the House of Representatives at Washington, D. C. The groom gave his age as seventy-seven, the bride as thirty-seven. While on his honeymoon tour in Europe Mr. Flint gave an interview in which he declared that it was "pure green greed" which impelled a multi-millionaire to keep "wanting to swell his wad million after million."

Prize Winning Recipes.

The exhibit of home-made cooking in the Ladies' section of the Exhibition this year evoked many favorable comments. The winner of the first prize of $1.00 for the best example of chocolate layer cake was Mrs. S. H. Carpenter of Lansdowne street. Her recipe is as follows:

Custard: 1 cup white sugar, ½ cup cocoa, ½ cup milk, butter size of an egg. Boil until thick and cool.

1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup butter, 2 eggs, ½ cup milk, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda.

Add custard and bake in layer tins, using chocolate icing or marshmallow icing.

The second prize of fifty cents for chocolate layer cake was won by Mrs. A. Carroll, of Fraserville, whose recipe was appended, as follows:

1½ cups flour, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs, 2 teaspoons chocolate, 1 teaspoon soda.

WOMEN'S WORK IS ATTRACTIVE

Many Attend Exhibits of Women's Institutes at C. N. E.

SEVEN PROVINCES.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 17 (by the Canadian Press).—One of the exhibits attracting general attention at the Canadian National Exhibition is that assembled in the west wing of the Women's building. Seven provinces have contributed to this and have arranged booths depicting the various resources, industries and community work, especially in relation to the rural women.

The poster contest, in which W.I.'s throughout the Dominion competed, and for which prizes to the amount of $75.00 will be given by the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada resulted as follows—first, Kars W.I., Ont.; second, Canning, N.S.; third, Lake Hill at Saanich, B.C.; fourth, Hardisty, Alta.; and fifth, Granby Hill, Quebec. The posters showed by photograph and other illustrations what these various W.I.'s had accomplished in their own communities.

British Columbia W.I.'s have assembled an exhibit of dehydrated fruits, ever-lasting flowers, bulbs, while W.I. members there have made some 300 pairs of gloves from rabbit skins. The leather cut from these to form the fingers have been fashioned in most artistic corsage flowers and dyed in every color. Lavendar water and crystalized cherries also form part of the exhibit.

Alberta has endeavored to show its educational advantages and what the W.I.'s have done to assist. In the background are pictures of the schools from the humblest rural one to the fine university, technical, normal, business and city schools, also what has been accomplished in many rural schools, in the matter of playground equipment. A model playground, bubbler fountain, correct desks and school seats also carry out the idea.

Saskatchewan's booth depicts a variety of that province's resources and women's work. The background is very effective with its transparent scenes while a stero-motograph with 75 slides of farm homes, road scenes, games, etc., attracts much attention. The "homemakers" there have sent honey—also samples of linen made from home-grown flax. Tiles and pottery made from Saskatchewan clay are another feature of this booth.

Manitoba's exhibit this year deals exclusively with poultry. The background shows photographs of typical Manitoba commercial flocks, of the Canada Goose, "king of game birds," of culling flocks, etc., while a case of dressed poultry of every kind gives a realistic touch to this booth.

Ontario's booth is a typical Women's Institute one. It shows the fourfold programme of these organizations of which there are over a thousand branches in this province, along the lines of educational programmes, papers, addresses, etc.; government service—free literature and demonstration courses from two weeks to three months in foods and cookery. There are also exhibits of home nursing, first aid, millinery and sewing, community-building halls, and memorials. There are demonstrations of welcoming settlers, establishing libraries and maintaining libraries.

Quebec's booth is divided into two sections the French assembled by the Cerles de Fermieres and the English by the W.I.'s. The French exhibit consists of many attractive hooked rugs, woven bedspreads, homespuns, and linens made from the Quebec flax-all work of the French W.I. members. The English section includes principally rugs, wool, rag and silk, knitted afghans and a small model of a Quebec rural farm home.

New Brunswick has specialized on fish. The background is arranged with many tins of commercially canned sardines, and home-canned salmon, this done by W.I. members. A case of live lobsters attracts a great deal of attention. Each day these are used in the fish demonstrations.

The national W.I. exhibit is in charge of Mrs. David Watt, honorary president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada. Mrs. Alfred Watt, the Canadian woman who took the Women's Institute idea to England in 1915, is a welcome visitor to this part of the exhibition this year.

HAVELOCK NEWS

HAVELOCK, Sept. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Steenburgh and family returned to Oakmont, Pa., after spending several weeks at their cottage, Cedar Point, at Crowe River.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clarke and daughter, Alta, attended the funeral of Mrs. Clarke's brother, the late Mr. Latham Clarke, at Wilton, Ont., last week.

Mrs. Archie Long of Peterborough was the recent guest of Mrs. A. J. Plunkett.

Miss Lillian Plunkett spent the week end in Port McNichol.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vansickle and son, Randal, of Timmins, returned last week after visiting the former's brothers, Messrs. David and Robert Vansickle. Mr. Vansickle made the trip by motor and came over the new Ferguson highway. He left Timmins on Thursday morning at two o'clock and arrived at Havelock on Friday evening at seven o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Clarke have returned to Detroit after spending a few weeks with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clarke and Mr. and Mrs. James Longmuir.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Johnston and family of Carmichael were the recent guests of Mrs. Johnston's mother, Mrs. W. Steenburgh.

Mrs. John Wood of Oak Lake spent a few days in Toronto last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith attended the Toronto Exhibition last week.

MOUNT OF OLIVES THEIR REFUGE

To the Biblical Mount of Olives in the Holy Land that took the lives of 30 persons and left thousands homeless. Here is a typical group of survivors camped out upon the hilltop.

SOLE SURVIVOR.

Adam W. Graham, of St. Thomas, Ont., who is, since the death of Dr. Charles Mair, pioneer poet, the only surviving member of the 45 men who surrendered to the rebel leader, Louis Riel, in the house of Dr. (later Sir John) Sultz in Fort Garry on December 4, 1869, so far as is known.

THE TWO PREMIERS

Premier King and Premier Baldwin have met before, but this is the first time on Canadian soil. Baldwin was in Canada 37 years ago.

A PRESENTATION PORTRAIT.

The above portrait in oils of the late Hon. Charles Smith Hyman, of London, Ont, formerly Minister of Public Works in the Cabinet of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1905, will be hung in the City Hall at London, in memory of the popular statesman, who was at one time Mayor of London. The handsome portrait in oils has just been completed by a talented young Canadian artist, Francis J. Haxby.

WALKING ACROSS CANADA

Here is Bernard van den Basselaar, young Hollander, who is now walking across Canada after having covered already 16,000 miles in his world tour. He has been on the road nearly five years.

FAVORITE OF PRINCE

Miss Jean Gordon, Canadian member of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, who was a favorite of the Prince of Wales on the voyage across the Atlantic. She charmed the heir to the throne with her beautiful voice on several occasions and was frequently seen in his company.

FORMER DANCER.

WIFE ADMIRES MUSSOLINI—DIVORCE SOUGHT

Lucien Muratore, operatic tenor, filed a divorce suit against his wife, Lina Cavalier, who is also a famous song bird. He claims that his wife has been swept off her feet by a purely platonic friendship for her compatriot, Mussolini, with whom she is only distantly acquainted, but whose work in rehabilitating Italy has won her unbounded admiration. By a peculiar twist of fate, another woman whose charms previously captivated Muratore, also nursed an even more ethereal passion. She is Muriel McCormuck, grand daughter of John D. Rockefeller. This lady has vowed undying devotion to the memory of a young Harvard graduate who was killed during the war.

THRIVES ON 'THIRTEEN.'

The "unlucky" number 13 has no terrors for Lieut.-Col. R. E. Heaslip, M.C. (above), gazetted on the 13th of the month as O. C. Haldimand Rifles (Ont.). He was born on Sept. 13, transferred to France on June 13, 1916, to serve with the 13th Battalion, Royal Highlanders of Canada, the Canadian "Black Watch," and in his 13th month of service was sent to the Canadian corps school holding its 13th course.

NEWSPAPER MAN CLIMBS RAPIDLY.

C. J. Robertson, a former Canadian, who is general manager of the London (Eng.) Daily Express and chairman of the Sunday Express. Having met Lord Beaverbrook, then Sir Max Aitken, just before the war, Mr. Robertson was invited to join the staff of the Daily Express, which he did, but not until after he had seen several years of service in the war and had been severely gassed. His progress, when he did become associated with the paper was phenomenal, rising in eight years from assistant circulation manager to general manager, while the circulation of the paper leaped from 600,000 to 1,000,000. Mr. Robertson, with his family, is visiting his father, R. W. Robertson, of Toronto.

EXPLODES BURNS CANARD

Dr. H. B. Anderson, prominent Canadian medical man who, after much research, has exploded the claim that Robert Burns, Scottish poet, died a drunkard's death. He died from rheumatism and heart disease, he declares.

CHILD PREACHES TO CHILDREN.

Tilden and LaCoste Win Way to Tennis Finals

TILDEN WINS FROM HUNTER IN SEMI-FINALS

Tilden and Lacoste Will Battle To-day For Tennis Championship.

JOHNSTON OUT.

Puts Up Game Battle Against Relentless Attack of Frenchman.

FOREST HILLS, New York, Sept. 17. Canadian Press. — Fighting a furious but futile battle against a relentless machine-man of tennis, America's famous "Little Bill" Johnston went down in glorious defeat yesterday before the great Rene LaCoste of France.

The gallant Californian fell in the semi-final round of the national turf court championship tournament leaving only William T. Tilden II. to block LaCoste's path to his second United States title in two years.

Qualifying for the task at which his partner of many a hard fought Davis Cup battle failed Tilden yesterday defeated Francis T. Hunter, his doubles partner, at 14-12, 6-1, 4-6, 9-7, with only about half speed required. LaCoste's victory in the other semi-final was achieved at 6-2, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1.

In carrying the battle constantly to an opponent ten years his junior, "Little Bill" placed chief reliance on the famous forehand drive that burned the grass and beat the world in other days. He lost because the years had robbed the sweeping right hand of a tiny bit of its steadiness, strength and cunning.

Makes Better Showing.

As it was he made a much better showing than at Germantown in the Davis Cup matches last week when LaCoste downed him in straight sets. In the second set yesterday the Johnston drive lost little of its old time power and he won it at 6-2 before the strain began to tell. It was only the second set LaCoste had lost in the tournament. Manuel Alonso took one from him Thursday.

Throughout most of the match La Coste, who at present rides the crest of the world's tennis, was on his toes in back court, bounding about like a boxer after Johnston's humming drives.

With Johnston it was drive and charge, the only type of game he knows, but a type which produced the maximum drain upon his slender energies.

One of the longest sets ever played in a championship here kept Tilden and Hunter deadlocked more than an hour at the beginning of their match. After 63 minutes in which he was within a point of winning the set no less than ten times, Tilden ended it on a break through Hunter's service.

Whether purposely or not, Tilden played a driving game in the first and second sets which was perfectly suited to the hard hitting forehand style of his opponent. While Hunter always battled bravely, Tilden obviously used little of his power and skill.

With LaCoste and Tilden in the final a dramatic battle was assured for to-day. Tilden is not yet ready to recognize a superior anywhere in the world, although LaCoste has beaten him abroad and at home this year and last season won the national title on which Tilden had had a monopoly.

YANKEES WIN 100TH VICTORY

Ruth Turns in 53rd Homer in 7-2 Victory Over the White Sox.

HOMERS FEATURE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press.)— The New York Yankees won their 100th victory of the season here yesterday by defeating the White Sox 7 to 2. Babe Ruth turning in his 33rd homer in the third with none on base. Wiley Moore, usually used as a relief pitcher by New York, went the route. Moore had made only three hits all season and yesterday he broke out with a home run. Muesel also slammed for the circuit, bringing the New York total to 148.

The Athletics won their sixth game in a row yesterday by taking a 6 to 3 decision from the St. Louis Browns. Ty Cobb had three singles and boosted his recent hitting streak to 13 hits in his last 18 times at bat. "Jing" Johnston went the full route for the Mackmen.

Heilmanns hitting was mainly responsible for Detroit's 4 to 3 victory over Boston in the first game of the series to-day. In the first inning the American League pacemaker made a home run off Russel with Gehringer on base, and after his double in the fourth, he scored on Fothergill's single. Collins weakened in the ninth after pitching a fine game.

Only three games scheduled.

BISONS WIN OPENING TILT

Syracuse Stars Fall Victims To League Leaders By Score 9-4.

HOMER FOR BISONETTE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—The Syracuse Stars were easy prey for the champion Bisons in the opener of the series at Buffalo yesterday with the home guards landing on the large end of a 9 to 4 score. The game was featured by a long wallop over the right field fence manufactured by the bat of Del Bissonette. It was Del's 31st four-decker of the year. Mangum, star right hander of the Bisons, chalked up his 22nd win of the season.

DEMPSEY HAS AN IDLE DAY

Former Champion Spending Much Time in Secret Training.

IN FIGHTING FORM.

LINCOLN FIELDS, Crete, Ills., Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—Boxing critics who watched Jack Dempsey work out under flood lights Thursday night and expressed some disappointment with his showing, were invited back last night to watch the former champion whale away at his sparring partners.

After a week of secret training, Manager Leo P. Flynn laughed yesterday at some of the gloomy expressions of newspapermen as related in their sports pages. He cited especially the comment that Big Boy Peterson of New Orleans outscored the former champion in their round.

"When I told the boys they could come and watch Jack at his night boxing I did not say they could watch him fight," said Flynn. "They will see him fight next Thursday night. Not before. He is getting ready in the right way and boxing just enough.

"I'm in there every moment on top of him every round, holding him back when he feels the urge to cut loose with some fighters. That's the spirit I want to save up for next Thursday."

Dempsey did no work at all yesterday. Last night's showers failed to cool off the race course, so Dempsey eliminated his morning road work, and afternoon bag punching.

Inside Sportin Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, since my last Mister Swanston and his boys has been putting in a lotta overtime, but since they put Oshawa outa the race in 1 ten-inning game and then tripped up St. George's in the 2nd 10-chapter affair, the gang don't mind the extra work. The Petes has been waiting since last May to get somewhere, and it looks like as if they was on their way now. Anyhow, they give their fellow-citizens plenty thrill Wed. when they took the 1st game of the serious from the Toronto champs. To the talent from the home of Mister Geo. Young it looked like just a case of going through the motions here. All that worried them was they was going to beat the Petes so bad here that nobody'd want to go and see the 2nd game in Toronto.

Them Saints is called the youngest team what ever win the T.A.B.A. title. Well, Wed. might of been Children's Day at the Peterboro Ex., but it wasn't over there in the park that Mister Ald. Greene wants to wipe out. The old guard on the Petes just shouldered their guns and showed them cocky young Saints how fields is won. Youth must be served, they say; but anyway it was the ancient legs of Mister Shiner Johnston what carried in the winning run, and other Petes what is supposed to be tottering ruins was prominent in the slaughter of the Saints.

Local fans gotta a chance to look over both of Mister Buck McKenna's pitching stars. Mister Verrall, which eats his pie with his left flipper, was with us until the Petes began filling up the runways in the 10th, and then Mister Gillespie was trotted out. Nobody got no chance of looking him over very much. He flang only 2 balls when Mister Heckman decided the customers wanted to go home to supper, so he cuffed the 2nd shot for a hit that broke up the game. And that was that.

By the way, Mac, the busiest bird in town Wed. was Mister Sheriff Hall. What with being Secretary of the Exhibition and Secretary of the Ball Club and with them both in action on the 1 day and his 2 boys playing with the Petes, the Sheriff had more on his mind than the guy who tries to explain a ball game for the benefit of his beautiful but dumb girl friend. But all's well that gathers no moss, and Wed. night Mister Hall was happier than Lindbergh was when he hoped out of the "Spirit of St. Louis" and sez, "So this is Paris." Didn't the Exhibition break its Kids' Day record, and didn't the Petes make a total loss outa them Saints, and didn't the Hall bros. bat in 3 of the Petes' 4 markers? I hope to tell you it did, and they did.

I don't see no reason why Mister Swanston's buddies can't go on and cop the series. So I'm passing this tip on to General Williams that if he don't hurry up and clean-up Windsor the Petes is going to beat him to it.

Among the baseball sharks what watched the clash Wed. was Mister Knotty Lee, the famous ivory hunter. Mister Shiner Johnston sez the scout was down here to look him over, and mebbe he was.

Well, Mac, with the Exhibition and everything on it ain't no time to bother the customers with a long letter. I hope I'll have good news for them next week.

Anyway I gotta go down and try my hand at bingo—you know what I mean, Mac, the old housie-housie game.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

P.S.—Just a tip to the customers. If you can't beat the bingo game any other way, eat the corn. You getta little percentage back that way.—A.W.C.

HEAVY SALE FOR TITLE BOUT

All Indications Now Point To Complete Sell-Out, Says Rickard.

WARNS AGAINST FAKERS.

CHICAGO, September 17. — Canadian Press. — Two hours before dinner time last evening Tex Rickard finally got a chance to eat a bit of lunch.

It was that sort of a day at headquarters of the Tunney-Dempsey championship fight promotion where the final touches are being put to all arrangements for the battle of the $3,000,000.

"One of the greatest days yet for ticket sales," said the always placid Richard. "Yes, I'd say that all indications now point to a complete sell out."

The downtown box office had two windows open and both were busy all day handing out the $5 and $25 tickets, of which something like $800,000 worth remained on hand yesterday.

Incidentally it was figured out that everyone of the valuable pasteboards disposed of between now and the time Jack and Gene climb through the ropes in the Soldier's Field stadium next Thursday night will be just that much profit for Rickard.

When the sale reached $2,200,000 Rickard was assured of enough cash to meet Tunney's $1,000,000 guarantee; Dempsey's $450,000 assurance; the $1,000,000 Soldier Field rental; the government's ten per cent. tax; another 10 per cent. for the state, and several odd thousands of construction, advertising, printing and other incidental expenses.

Rickard warned anew yesterday against buying tickets at other than bonafide agencies. He had a fistful of the counterfeit tickets which appeared in New York, Philadelphia, Scranton and Chicago, and while they were excellent products of crooked work, they were easily distinguishable from those which will gain admission to Soldiers' Field the night of September 22.

Among those who came to town [illegible] for the pre-fight events and for study was the man who hoped to meet Tunney in Dempsey's stead, Jack Sharkey, the talkative Boston ex-gob., with his wife.

JACKSON TEAM WINS CONTEST

Draws 6,000 Pounds of Pig Iron 60 Feet, 11 Inches.

ON STONEBOAT.

James Jackson from Jackson's Corners, Otonabee, won the heavy drawing contest yesterday afternoon at the Exhibition with a fine big black team. This team drew the 6,000 pounds of pig-iron on a stone boat 60 feet 11 inches. The distance drawn this year was short of former marks, as the track has been rebuilt and is new ground.

E. Patterson, from North Monaghan, with a team of grey horses, came second, his team drawing the load 42 feet. John McManus from Smith was third with 31 feet 5 inches, and Harvey Webber fourth.

LUCK FIGURES IN BALL DEALS

Cleveland Club Has Spent Half a Million in Six Years.

STILL IN RUCK.

By CHARLES E. AHRENS

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 17.—(United Press).—The ledgers of the Cleveland baseball club reveal a story which might be called "What price ball players."

For the past few years, the management of the Cleveland club has been under fire by Cleveland fandom. Charges have been made that officials of the club have passed up opportunities to buy good ball players. Some have even accused the management of "being penurious."

Whenever a Cleveland fan writes a letter in protest, he almost always includes this line in the letter:

"If Jim Dunn were living he would go out and buy some players and the Indians would be up there."

E. S. Barnard, who is now operating the Cleveland club for Mrs. James Dunn, wife of the late magnate of the Indians, has spent more than $500,000 for ball players during the last five years, according to records of the club's business ledgers recently published.

In the five years that Dunn was operating the club, from 1916 to 1921, $197,000 was spent for new talent for the Indians. His star purchase was Tris Speaker for whom Dunn paid $50,000.

The approximate $200,000 that Dunn spent for ball players was productive of a team that won the American League pennant in 1920. Of the $500,000 spent for players since his death, only a small portion has been prolific of material able to hold its own in American League company.

The ledgers of the Cleveland club indicate that the amount paid for players isn't so important. A certain element of luck plays a part as does managerial ability and the right amount of coaching in educating recruits to big league standards.

Willis Hudlin, ace of the Indian pitching staff, at present appears to be the outstanding star bought since the death of Dunn. Hudlin was purchased for $36,000 cash and a player, Luke Sewell, first string catcher, also is rated as a star in the American League, but his services cost the Indians nothing, Sewell having joined the Indians direct from collegiate company.

Rube Lutzke cost the Indians $36,000; Glenn Myatt, $50,000; Fonsea, $35,000; Hodapp, $50,000, and Grant, $10,000.

Other players of minor importance have been bought and discarded. Some of them failed to measure up to the prices paid, but that is the gamble a big league club takes when it casts around for ball players.

Dunn's policy of hiring no scouts is blamed in part by the present management for the low position of the team. Back in the years before 1920, it was possible to buy seasoned players from other big league clubs, but since the war good ball players have been at a premium and not procurable except at prohibitive figures.

Since Dunn's death, a system of scouting has been developed, but thus far no outstanding results have been obtained. Ball players have been brought up from the minor leagues and failed to answer the demands of the management. Club officials are still hopeful, however, and predict the Indians will be among the leaders before many more summers become history.

Summing up the story told by the Cleveland ledgers, "It isn't what you pay for a ball player—you have to have the luck."

Final Heat Between Two Horses—The Results to Date.

The 2.25 class went five heats yesterday afternoon to declare a winner. Eight horses entered the race, the largest field in the history of the Peterborough track. Capt. Larabe, Jr., owned by Curtleret of Mattawa, and driven by Joe Tallifer, won first money, taking first place in the last three heats. He was placed eighth in the first when the sulky upset at the end of the first half-mile.

The final heat of the race was run between Capt. Larabe, Jr., and Hal Direct, who had won two heats and was placed second in the other two. The best time made was 2.20.

GIANTS CINCH SECOND PLACE

Bump Off Cardinals in Wind-up of Seven Game Series.

PIRATES WIN 4-3.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press) — The Giants Giants finally gained an undisputed hold on second place in the National flag pursuit here yesterday by bumping off the Cardinals in the wind-up of a seven game series. The New Yorkers failed to advance on Pittsburgh, however, as the Pirates polished off the Braves for the sixth straight time, thereby maintaining a four and one-half game advantage. The Cubs tottered back to eight contests from the Corsairs by slipping before the Robins again.

Pittsburgh continued its match toward the championship with a 4 to 3 victory over Boston for a clean sweep of the six game series. It was the Pirates' ninth stranght win and the Braves' 13th consecutive setback.

Lee Meadows, on the mound for the Pirates was well supported and the Braves were held to eight hits.

The Pirates fell on Wertz in the one and two-third innings he pitched to score their four runs before Guy Morrison entered the box and held the League leaders in check.

Brooklyn made a clean sweep of the three game series with Chicago by bunching hits behind some ragged playing by the Cubs to take the final by 4 to 3 yesterday. McWeeny was driven off the hill in the eighth, Elliott checking a rally. Root started in the box for the Bruins, but was found for all the Robins' runs. Partridge's triple after Herman had doubled in the seventh deciding the tussle.

HEAVY BATTLE GIVEN TUNNEY

Workout of Champion Something Akin To Free-for-all Brawl.

THRILLS SPECTATORS.

TUNNEY TRAINING CAMP, Lake Villa, Ills., Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—Rough two-fisted maulers piled into Gene Tunney yesterday and turned the pre-final workout of the champion into something akin to a free-for-all brawl. For the first time since Tunney entered serious training for the title spectacle in Soldiers' Field next Thursday night, he was forced to fight against the type of milling Jack Dempsey will offer, and the result was thrilling to the crowd.

No hint of what was ahead came to the 1,500 fans grouped about the arena when Gene opened the day's work with two fast rounds at the light bag and another lackadaisical pair on the heavy sack.

Jack Williams, an ambitious youngster from Chicago, lulled Tunney into security with a feeble attack in the first of three two-round boxing sessions. Tunney was keen, smiling, confident, in complete command of the situation every moment.

Plugging Match.

Then came Chuck Wiggins, of Indianapolis, the slugging heavyweight who opened an inch cut over Tunney's right eye several days ago. Primed to give Gene the type of battle he must expect against Dempsey, Chuck sailed straight into the champion, held nothing back, and the battle of the day was on.

Sweeping left hooks and overhand rights crashed into Gene's head and body. Wiggins took Tunney by surprise and nettled him into fierce exchange with the suddenness of the attack. Despite the swab of tape Gene still wears above his right eye, Wiggins slapped left jabs and hooks to the injured optic.

One solid right bounced off the champion's chin and Chuck slipped many solid punches into Tunney's body despite Gene's careful defence. Tunney soon tired of it and opened up on Wiggins with a snarl. Chuck fell back on the defence and the fun was over.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

WHY THE FIRE WENT OUT

Mother asks Mary to fix the fire,
Mary waited and asked her sire,
Father told William to fix the thing,
William told Bobbie some wood to bring,
Bobbie told sister to get it quick,
Sister told Fido to fetch a stick,
Fido barked and he ran about—
And that's how it was that the fire went out.

That's how it is there are many things to do
Still unfinished when day is through,
That's how it is that the set of sun
Finds so much of our work undone.
Whether the task is great or small,
It never really gets done at all,
It's shoved and shifted and passed about—
And that's how it is that the fires go out.

FEWER MOTOR DEATHS.

NEW YORK ,Sept. 17.—Despite the fact that 514 persons in New York City were killed in automobile accidents during the first six months of 1927, safety campaigners announce that their efforts are showing satisfactory results. There are more motor cars and more pedestrians, yet the fatalities are less than for the same period last year.

The northermost hospital is at Point Hope, Alaska, within the Arctic Circle.

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH

DIETING FOR INCIPIENT TUBERCULOSIS

It is difficult for the layman to diagnose his own disease, and tuberculosis of the lungs is often well advanced before a physician is consulted. One whose blood-pressure is low and who is tired most of the time should have a careful examination made at frequent intervals, and then follow the best advice obtainable in order to regain normal strength. If, however, one has waited so long that the physician makes the diagnosis of incipient tuberculosis, it is necessary to use radical measures and a strict dietetic and hygienic regime to bring about a cure.

The first thing to do is to take a short fast, using the following acid fruits: Apples, apricots, peaches, pears, grapes, oranges cherries, berries, tomatoes and melons. Use only one of these fruits on any one day, but vary the kind from day to day if desired.

The fruit fast should be continued for at least a week and, in many cases, for ten days or two weeks. One enema should be taken each day to insure proper cleansing of the bowels, with at least two sponge or shower baths to thoroughly cleanse the skin and thus assist in elimination. During this fast a large amount of impurities will be eliminated, and the patient will actually feel stronger after the first few days, as the system is freed of accumulated toxins.

After the fast the following regime should be used:

Upon arising in the morning, take a warm or cold sponge or shower bath.

Breakfast: One or two eggs prepared in any manner except by frying, Melba toast or toasted Shredded Wheat Biscuit. Choice of one of the following stewed fruits: prunes, pears, figs, apricots or raisins; stewed or baked apple; or ripe figs, which may be eaten raw. (Use only pure, sun-dried, unsulphured fruits.)

During the morning a short walk should be taken.

Lunch: Choice of one or more of the following cooked non-starchy vegetables —celery, spinach, small string beans, asparagus, summer squash, egg plant, cucumber, beet tops, turnip tops, small carrots, small parsnips, small turnips, lettuce, okra, chayotes, kale, oyster plant (salsify), mallow and zucchini.

Choice of one or more of the following raw salad vegetables: celery, spinach, asparagus, cucumber, parsley, small beets, small carrots, small turnips, lettuce, mallow, nasturtium leaves and flowers, endive, avocado or ripe olives. (Use no salt or dressing—except a little olive oil if desired.)

During the afternoon, take another short walk.

Dinner: choice of one or more of those vegetables listed for lunch, with the addition of one of the following proteins: lean beef, mutton, chicken, turkey, rabbit or fish. No desserts.

A warm sponge or shower bath should be taken each night, and also an enema if the bowels do not move normally.

This is the general regime which should be followed for at least several months.

In tomorrow's article I will explain how the tubercular can increase strength through exercise.

Questions and Answers.

Question: J. L. H. writes: "I am a man 40 years of age and for the past year my food doesn't seem to agree with me. Some days I feel fine, and suddenly my right hand starts trembling and I go into a dead faint for two or three minutes and it weakens me terribly. Can you advise me what to do to prevent these spells?"

Answer: You are probably suffering from some kind of heart trouble, and an extra pressure of gas against your heart produces the fainting spells. Cut down on sugars and starches for a while, and eliminate entirely such foods: onions, cooked cabbage and any such food which in itself produces excessive gas.

Question: S. T. H. writes: "Several of us want to know if prunes combine with a milk breakfast of warm milk on Shredded Wheat Biscuit."

Answer: Prunes and milk make an excellent combination, but it is better not to boil the milk. Warm it in a dish placed in a pan of hot water, as this way the milk becomes hot enough without reaching the boiling point.

Question: A Reader writes: "For the past few months I am having a constant ringing in my ears. It sounds like steam escaping from a boiler, or like when you are out in the country on a summer night and you hear the buzzing of a grasshopper."

Answer: Buzzing or ringing in the ears is caused either from high blood pressure or by catarrh of the inner ear. In either case the cure lies in dieting. Send for a special article I have prepared on ringing in the ears.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

EDWARD JOHNSON

Edward Johnson may safely be set down as one of the few greatest tenors in the world. He began to pay the price when he was born with such a golden voice. He has been paying it ever since in colossal hard work.

As a youth he left High School in Guelph with a dot of money from his father to try his luck in New York. Blown from pillar to post by the winds of Broadway, singing in a church, in light opera ,he gained a dangerous eminence as the tenor with the phenomenal B flat.

With that he managed to get to Italy where he translated his name to Edouardo de Giovanni, created the role of Parsifal in Italian, sang for years in the leading opera houses of Italy, France and Spain, and came back to America—first to the Chicago opera then to the "Met."

After ten years by everlasting hard work and a marvelous voice, a passion for languages, a great talent for acting and a personality so engaging that nobody could refuse him anything in reason, he has become one of the world's great vocal personalities.

His program here was a feat prodigious; three times as terrific as any opera. He achieved more big things in the form of perfect ... fused with divine frenzy than we have ever heard from one singer here except from Chaliapin. Caruso when he was here last, did two things that no hearer can ever forget. Johnson did several; he finished with as much glow as when he began, and was able to attend a reception and make a speech and take care of his old father and mother that same night.

This is the vitality of the great artist—and of the eternal youth who will always remain young in soul. It is the unconquerable spirit of Caruso whom more and more Johnson comes to resemble. He is not an imitation of Caruso, or a successor to him. He is himself. Within ten years he may establish himself as even greater than Caruso. That is not so important as that Edward Johnson should become great within himself.

There are singers who far excel him in lyric virtues. Johnson is not yet a great lieder singer. He still does more acting in songs than he needs to. He neglects the great virtue of sostenuto and legato for the sake of dramatics. These defects he will perhaps not eliminate until he has left the opera, because opera is a life of hectic great moments interspersed with egotisms and insincerities. Thank goodness, Johnson is not an egotist and that he is personally one of the sincerest men in the world.

Pelleas and Melisande, on which Johnson has a sort of monopoly at the Metropolitan, is mechanically the most unpopular opera in the repertoire because it has thirteen changes that make the scene-shifter's life a misery. When Johnson came back from Europe last winter, a lanky scene-shifter said unto him: "Well, Mr. Johnson, now that you are back, I suppose we'll do that dang Pelleas again."

In an opera where Johnson was to be carried on stage in a palanquin by six Nubian slaves—from the Bronx—a black Nubian said to the tenor: "Is you de gemmen we carries?" "Yes," said Johnson, "I believe I have that honor." "Well, boss, ah doan happen to know your real name." "But surely that doesn't matter." "Yeah, but ah allus likes to know who am de which in places like dis." "Well, my name's Johnson." "Oh, boss! Shake! Ma name am Johnson too."

—The Toronto Daily Star, May 28, 1927.

AT THE REGENT.

"Rookies," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest farce comedy, which opens at the Regent Theatre, should have been called "Laughs and Thrills in Celluloid."

Never has the reviewer seen a picture so replete with comedy and suspense. It opens with a laugh and closes with a thrill that is almost blood-congealing.

There are fights, and plenty of them; riots, runaway army balloons and daring dives toward earth with slim dependenece on pack parachutes attached to the backs of the players.

Airplanes swoop out of the skies directly at the camera lens, bank forty feet away with a thirty foot wing spread and give the appearance of missing the audience by inches.

Director Sam Wood spent an entire week above the clouds with his players filming the balloon sequence. Beneath the basket can be seen Hollywood, as the players climb about the rigging of the balloon and dangle by their hands.

The story, a farce by Byron Morgan, is laid against the background of a citizens' military training camp and the picture was filmed with the co-operation of the government and a number of regular army officers assigned to training camp duty.

"TILLIE" HAS A MARVELOUS CAST

Marion Davies Supported by Unparalleled Roster of Screen Players

In Marion Davies' newest starring vehicle, "Tillie the Toiler", a Cosmopolitan production filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the blonde star is supported by the most able cast of comedians ever assembled in a single film production.

Matt Moore, who has played for years in film farces, or outstanding comedy roles of dramatic productions, is seen as Mac, the whimsical office drudge.

Bert Roach, star of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's comedy hit, "Excuse Me," has an important role as Bill, the habitually intoxicated brother-in-law of the frivolous bout lovable stenographer-heroine.

Gertrude Short, who won her comedy spurs in the "Telephone Girl" series of comedies put out a couple of years ago by FBO, has the role of the stenographer in the office next door, and George Fawcett, who has played innumerable comedy roles including that of the king in "The Merry Widow", has the part of Mr. Simpkins.

George K. Arthur, who has won fame in comedy of many M-G-M productions, will be seen as Mr. Whipple, and Harry Crocker, a newcomer to the screen, is to be seen as the immaculate and rich Pennington Fish.

Arthur Hoyt, sometimes called "the height of insignificance", has the part of the business college professor, while Estelle Clark plays the role of Tillie's down-at-the-heels married sister. The role of Ma Jones is taken by Claire McDowell.

"Tillie the Toiler", a screen play by A. P. Younger, based on Russ Westover's comic strip and directed by Hobart Henley, will be seen at the Capitol Theatre on Monday.

DOURO NEWS

DOURO, Sept. 17.—The Forty Hours' Devotion in St. Joseph's Church came to a close on Tuesday evening. There was good weather for all the services except on Tuesday morning. Large crowds were present at all the services, and pious worshippers visited the church at all hours during the exposition of the blessed Sacrament. Rev. J. Finn of St. Peter's Cathedral delivered the sermon on Sunday evening; Rev. Fr. Maloney of the Church of the Sacred Heart preached on Monday night, and Rev. Fr. Carroll of the Immaculate Conception Church, Peterborough, was the preacher on Tuesday evening. All are eloquent speakers, and the sermons will increase faith in and encourage more frequent reception of the Sacraments of Eucharist and Penance. Other clergy who were visitors were Rev. Fr. McCarthy, Norwood; Rev. Fr. Garvey, Lakefield, and Rev. Fr. K. Corkery, Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin O'Brien and Mr. and Mrs. John Guerin of Rochester, N.Y., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. O'Brien.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Leonard and family and Mr. and Mrs. Charlton of Peterborough were Sunday visitors with Mrs. Mary McMurray.

FORMER DOURO GIRL MARRIED 25 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Crouch Observe Day at Rochester.

DOURO, Sept. 17.—The following is taken from the Rochester, N.Y., Times. Mr. and Mrs. Crouch are well known here, Mrs. Crouch being a daughter of Mr. Daniel O'Leary.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Crouch, of No. 84 Bronson avenue, celebrated the silver anniversary of their marriage Thursday. In the morning they attended high mass at Church of the Immaculate Conception, celebrated in recognition of the day, by the rector, Rev. Joseph S. Cameron.

In the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Crouch gave a dinner party at The Meadows, in Avon. Covers were laid for some fifty relatives and immediate friends. Thomas E. Crouch, commissioner of charities, acted as toastmaster, telling several stories in his characteristic style. Responses were made by Sheriff Albert H. Baker, George Crowley, Neil Curtin, Mrs. Frank Rogers, Mrs. Joseph Fischer and others. The dinner was followed by dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Crouch received many beautiful gifts, among these, a number of silver pieces in keeping with the twenty-fifth anniversary.

Among those who attended the dinner party were: Mr. and Mrs. Crouch, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crouch, Mr. and Mrs. A. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Fisker, Mr. and Mrs. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Bergen, Mr. and Mrs. Hillier, Mr. and Mrs. Metyker, Mr. and Mrs. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Curtin, Mr. and Mrs. Schott, Mr. and Mrs. Crowley, Mr. and Mrs. Foss, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Dore, Mr. and Mrs. Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard, Mr. and Mrs.

AT 115, SHE STILL SMOKES AND CHEWS

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Nancy Blacksquirrel Miller has smoked and chewed tobacco ever since she can remember, which is quite some time, since Nancy was born in 1912. And the 115-year-old Seneca Indian woman says she'll go right on living so long as she can sell her baskets and buy fuel to keep the old pipe burning.

Nancy comes from a line of long-lived Indians. Her mother claimed to be 150, and she has a sister living who is 100. Nancy herself never was ill a day in her life, but quite often she has to nurse her 67-year-old daughter Carrie. The old squaw does all the housework, goes to the reservation store for supplies, and weaves baskets in her spare time, if any.

LAWN BOWLING

In the bowling tournament last night the competition was exceptionally keen, resulting in three ties for first place, and making it necessary to toss for the prizes. The toss put Martin Chenhall first with two wins and 14 plus, George Coleman second, and George Johnson third, with the same score.

ESKIMOS DIG IVORY TUSKS FROM GROUND

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 17.—Trading ships from the Bering Sea are returning from summer trips with fortunes in ivory tusks which have been bought from the Eskimos of the northern islands.

For centuries before the coming of the white men, Eskimos used only the blubber of the walruses they killed and threw away the tusks. These accumulated into vast dump grounds of ivory until trading schooners brought men who bought the tusks of freshly killed animals.

Then the natives remembered the stores of ivory left by their ancestors and began to sink mines on the sites of ancient camps and villages. Each tribe so far has salvaged thousands of dollars worth of the precious material, which still is in perfect condition and shows no signs of becoming exhausted.

PLACID SETTING FOR CHILDREN'S STORIES

Henrietta Ewing Wrote Her Books Beside St. John River.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—Fredericton's elm-shaded streets, grouped protectively between the placid St. John River and the quiet hills, boat the former places of residence of a goodly company of Canadian literary men and women. While much of the national literary tradition of the New Brunswick capital is well known, it is probably not common knowledge that one of the most talented English women writers of children's stories spent many years of her life in an attractive house on Waterloo Row, overlooking the river.

Children of to-day still find delight in the stories of Henrietta Ewing, though their quiet charm is probably less appreciated than it was 30 years ago. She won a distinguished name in England during the latter half of the nineteenth century, such stories as "Amelia and the Dwarfs," "The Brownies," and a score of others making an immediate appeal, not only to the youthful reader for whom they were intended, but to those elders who were conscripted into the nursery service of "reading aloud."

A genuine literary skill, coupled with a rich and tasteful imagination, gained for her the allegiance of the grown-ups as well as of the children, who, of course, stand as the final judges upon juvenile literature.

Henrietta Ewing came to Fredericton when her husband, Major Ewing, was transferred to military duty here in the days when the redcoats flaunted their vivid pride on drill-ground and street. She lived in one of the most likeable of the old river-front homes. At its door runs the river, fringed with stately willows. During her day, the forest, pressing hard upon the outskirts of the little town, was only a few minutes' walk away in the other direction and in this atmosphere of peaceful security, isolated from the outside world, Mrs. Ewing wrote many of her best-known children's books.

Life in Fredericton was undoubtedly isolated in those days, but the cultured English lady found a small circle of persons with kindred interests and a similar background to whom she became a much-loved friend.

The house by the river quickly became a gathering place for these unhurried lovers of books and nature. Many an excursion by canoe up the St. John, or on foot into the woods back of College Hill, started from its door and concluded before its ample fireplace.

It was a congenial life and Henrietta Ewing was genuinely sorry when her period of residence here came to an end and she returned to her homeland.

It is interesting to note that the author of "Amelia and the Dwarf" had a literary background and was culturally happy in her marriage. Her mother was Mrs. Gadsby, author of "Parables From Nature," which is a children's classic. Her husband, Major Ewing, was a composer and, in addition to many less known achievements, composed one of the popular settings for that time-honored hymn, "Jerusalem the Golden."

BASEBALL NEWS

TORONTO, Sept. 17 (Special). — Peterborough came here to-day to meet St. George's, the new Star trophy baseball champions, in their Ontario semi-final game. The 'Petes' won on Wednesday in the Lift Lock City by 4-3 in a ten-inning battle, and St. George's, by winning to-day, can force a third contest. Gillespie, the undefeated St. George's hurler, was Toronto's hope. Peterboro sprung a surprise by starting Hardill instead of Heckman. A nice crowd of 4,000 was in the stands at game time.

The teams:

St. George's—Fraser, 1b; Swing, lf; Radke, 3b; Sniderman, cf; O'Driscoll, c; Boyd, ss; Younder, 2b; Swan, rf; Gillespie, p.

Peterboro—Rose, 2b; Johnson, 3b; Swanston, c; Ash, cf; Harrison, 1b; J. Hall, lf; Batten, rf; Holyman, ss; Hardill, p.

Umpires—Sheppard at the plate; Burridge on the bases.

25 Cent Coupon Theft May Bring Life Term

NEW YORK, September 17 (United Press). — Theft of 25 cents worth of cigar coupons may put Joseph Fantand, 26 years old, a sailor, behind the prison bars for the rest of his life. The sentence is possible, under the Baumes law of New York. When arrested as he was leaving an apartment with the coupons—his only loot — he admitted he had three felony convictions against him, according to the police.

OBITUARY.

NELLIE MOONEY.

The death occurred yesterday in this city of Nellie Mooney, of Bancroft. Funeral announcement later.

MODEST ROBERT ELMHIRST.

In the death of Modest Robert Elmhirst, on Monady afternoon, at his late residence, lot 5, concession 3, Asphodel lost a well known and highly respected resident. Deceased was very popular and one of the most prominent men in this district. He always took a great interest in the welfare of his community and will be missed by a large number of friends, who will regret to hear of his death.

Mr. Elmhirst was assessor of the township for 38 years. He was a member of the Anglican church, Westwood for 57 years, and was warden in the church for 39 years up to the time of his death.

Deceased was born in Asphodel on the homestead, where his parents settled in 1843. He was of a family of fourteen, 9 boys and 5 girls.

He married Ellen Leeper of Norwood in June, 1875, who with four sons, is left to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father. There was one daughter who predeceased him in 1903. The sons are Albert and Robert of Harris, Saskatchewan; Toyne of Rochester, N.Y., and Lewis on the homestead.

The surviving brothers and sisters are Frank and Richard, of Oswego, N. Y., William of Syracuse, N.Y., Phillip of Toronto; Henry of Carberry, Manitoba; Mrs. Annie Walsh, of Hastings; Mrs. John Tobb, Westwood, and Mrs. William Irwin, of Westwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmhirst celebrated their golden wedding on Tuesday, June 30, 1925, in the stone house which was erected in 1556.

Deceased was a Liberal in politics and on different occasions was nominated for posts in the Liberal ranks. Although he declined he always took the greatest interest in the upholding of his party.

The funeral was held from his late residence on Wednesday afternoon, at 1.30, from whence to the Anglican church, Westwood, where service was held at 2 o'clock. Interment was made in the family plot in the Westwood cemetery.

There were a great number of wreaths and sprays sent by friends from far and near who came to pay their last respects to one who was highly esteemed. On the coffin was a large pillow of roses from his four sons.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Adam Humphries, James Warner, William Breckenridge, Carl R. E. Birdsall, Frank Walsh and Fred Dodd.

LEVINE CAN'T START.

Monoplane Refuses To Leave Ground on Two Trials.

CRANWELL, Eng., Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press.)— Charles A. Levine postponed his projected long distance flight to India after two unsuccessful attempts to get the monoplane Columbia off the ground this morning. Levine and Capt. Hinchcliffe, the British pilot, made the first attempt at 10.30 o'clock and another a half hour later. Each time the plane kept solidly to the ground, the tail refusing to lift. Levine said he would make a study of a method of reducing the weight of the load carried and that he would take off to-morrow morning.

BIRTH.

DIED

BARNES.—At Stoney Lake, Amelia Emma, dearly beloved wife of Dr. Henry Barnes, of Cleveland, Ohio. Interment at Cleveland on Monday, September 19th.

PEDLARS TRANSFER WARES TO MARKET

Leave Exhibition For Morning To Catch the Crowds.

The pedlars from the Exhibition moved to the market square this morning, where they were demonstrating their wares. Their voices, rising and falling amid the general hubbub of the busy things, reminded some of the old-timers of the "good old days" when the presence of pedlars and 'quacks' on the market was a regular occurrence and not a novelty.

WEDDING BELLS.

GILDERS—POWELL.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at two o'clock to-day at the George Street United Church Parsonage, when Marion Helen, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Powell, George Street, became the bride of Lloyd C. Gilders, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gilders, of Ottawa. Rev. J. C. Todd performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of salmon blush crepe romaine, with a velvet hat of black and gold, and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Jean Hunter, of Toronto, wore champagne georgette with a black velvet hat, and carried Columbia roses. Mr. Wilbert Westran acted as best man.

After the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served to the immediate relatives at the home of the bride's parents.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Gilders left by motor for Brockville and Ottawa, the bride travelling in a dress of biege flat crepe, with felt hat and fox fur. On their return they will reside at 588 George Street.

THAT COLD!
To successfully combat a Cold, it is necessary to speed up the elimination of poisons and accumulated waste from the body. The best way to do this is by restoring normal nerve energy to the liver, kidneys, bowels, lungs, and skin by releasing constriction from spinal nerves. SIR ARTHUR CURRIE UNVEILS WAR MEMORIAL AT BRIGHTON AND REVIEWS WAR VETERANS

Great Crowd Attends Impressive Service on Sunday Afternoon.

OVATION FOR GENERAL.

Monument Bears Names of 29 Dead and 15 Battles—Fine Structure.

BRIGHTON, September 19. — In spite of weather which threatened rain at any moment, thousands of citizens and visitors thronged the streets of Brighton yesterday to do honour to the Glorious Dead. All preparations had been made and every detail of the entire ceremony anticipated when General Sir Arthur W. Currie, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., stepped out on to the school grounds in front of the parade.

Cheers greeted the Commander-in-Chief as he approached the ranks of soldiers in uniform and veterans in mufti and medals. At once Sir Arthur's interest was taken by the long ranks of ex-service men. Beginning with the right hand man of the front rank, he went down the lines and shook the hand of every man present. Occasionally he stopped for a brief word with men he recognized, and with Rutherford, V.C., of Colborne, General Currie held considerable conversation.

Immediately the General had completed his round of the veterans' ranks, the parade moved off to the memorial, situated in Memorial Park, adjacent to the Town Hall. The Cobourg Kiltjes' Band, their tartans and sporrans swinging as gallantly to the quick march time as to the bagpipes, headed the procession. Immediately in rear followed the local veterans and the children and staff of the Brighton School. The Regimental Band of the 40th was next in line. Then came General Currie, Brigadier-General Gunn, and others. They marched, as they had so often done before, at the head of the men who had borne arms for the Dominion of Canada and the British Empire.

The splendid showing of the veterans brought cheers from the throngs lining the sidewalks. Minus their brass buttons, spurs, and glittering arms, there was nothing of the usual fascination of the uniformed troops, but the gallant stride, erect, military carriage and precision of the heroes of countless engagements on the battlefields of France, needed no such glittring sheen to designate them not only soldiers but combotant troops. Midway along the line of veterans was the Belleville Pipe Band.

On a raised platform directly in front of the memorial were Sir Arthur Currie, Brigadier-General Gunn, C.M.G., D.S.O., Colonel L. R. LaFleche, D.S.O., Vice-president of the Dominion Command, B.E.S.L., Hon. Treasurer Colonel J. A. MacIsaac, and Lieut.-Colonel C. H. Ackerman, First Vice-president of the Ontario Command, B.E.S.L.

General Gunn.

Brigadier-General J. A. Gunn read the address of welcome, in which his praise of General Currie won applause from the thousands who listened to his words. He prophesied a brilliant future for the Canadian Legion, and wished to remind the members that His Majesty King George, the Prince of Wales, Field-Marshal Haig, and many other great men were behind them in their endeavours to carry on the work.

Reeve Mills of Brighton, on behalf of the Brighton Branch of the Legion, welcomed the visiting veterans and all those who had come to Brighton to attend the ceremony.

Rev. Captain Sydney Lambert, Christie Street, Toronto, took charge of service, beginning with the singing of the hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," and followed by a prayer of Thanksgiving and Intercession, terminated with the Lord's Prayer and the General Confession. The 40th Regimental Band furnished the music for the singing of the hymn.

A massed, gowned choir of sixty voices sang "O Valiant Hearts," the Cobourg Kiltie Band accompanying them. The responsive reading, taken from the 12th chapter of the Book of Isaiah and the 7th chapter of the Book of Revelation, was read by Captain Lambert, after which General Gunn introduced Col. L. R. LaFleche, D.S.O.

Colonel La Fleche

In his brief remarks, the Vice-President of the Dominion Command, remarked that he had an impossible task to perform, namely to introduce Sir Arthur Currie. The veterans, he said, had live four years in France with Sir Arthur and the others present knew him in their hearts. He was glad of the opportunity, however, of speaking at such an occasion, and also of the opportunity afforded him to greet General Currie in behalf of the National Executive of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L.. "I am greatly honored," he said, "to present General Sir Arthur Currie."

General Currie

Thunderous applause greeted the man who had commanded the Canadian forces at the front as he stepped to the front of the platform. Addressing briefly the others on the platform, the veterans, troops and citizens, General Currie began his speech by stating frankly that he felt greatly honored in being asked to

British Fan Starts Broadcast To States

LONDON, September 19. Canadian Press. — American radio fans equipped with short-wave apparatus and much interested in "reaching out," should have little difficulty in picking up the new long-distance service started by Gerald Marcuse, a British amateur. He will try to reach United States receiving sets. The broadcast is to be made on three nights a week. Sundays, from six to eight o'clock, will be one of them.

OLD EXHIBITOR PRAISES FAIR

C. H. Curtis Tells of When He First Exhibited Here.

PREDICTS PROGRESS.

C. H. Curtis, a director of the Warkworth Fair, is the second oldest and most continuous exhibitor at the Peterborough Fair. Norman Allen, of Newcastle, says Mr. Curtis was here before he was, but has not been so consistent. This made Mr. Curtis' thirty-fourth year, in which time he has missed only once.

In the early days, when he first brought in his sheep, hogs, and poultry, if a man won one hundred dollars in prize money he could retire for the rest of the year, and the secretary, William Collins, almost had heart failure when he paid him off.

At that time the fence ran down from the main gate, cutting off that whole section, where the midway, the Manufacturers' Building, and cattle barns are now situated.

One year they brought in their exhibits when there was two inches of snow on the ground, and by the time they had their stock bedded down and their own clothes dried out, it was time to start back home again. "Never again," says Mr. Curtis, "would I attempt a trip like that one."

Mr. Curtis predicts that Peterborough will outstep both the Ottawa and London Fairs, as he sees a wonderful improvement even over last year, which he considered to be very good.

He claims that the reason for the success is the courtesy that the "bunch" receives from the Board of Directors and the work and time the Board puts into the Fair. With them it is always "Fair first and business second," both before and during the week of the Fair.

For four years in succession Mr. Curtis took more prize money than anyone else at the Fair and this year with one hundred entries, he was successful in receiving many firsts.

IN POLICE COURT.

Two local men appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning charged with being intoxicated. One was fined $20 and costs, and the other $30 and costs, as he assaulted a police officer who was making an arrest.

Albert Dewey, through his lawyer, P. C. Innes of Toronto, pleaded guilty to assaulting Sergeant Deannard, and was sentenced to three months in the common jail, with hard labor. Both the Crown and Mr. Innes asked for a suspended sentence, as the man had a five year war record and a wife and family to support; but His Worship ruled that in the administration of justice the assault on an officer as this man made could not be condoned by a suspended sentence.

Frank Grady pleaded guilty to driving a car when intoxicated, and was sentenced to seven days imprisonment.

The youth who pleaded guilty last week to taking a car from the market square without the consent of the owner, was let go on suspended sentence on a promise that he would pay all the costs of the court, and the damage done to the car. Mr. Wearing said he would be responsible for the boy in the future.

D. M. LaRouge of Montreal, appeared charged with being a vagrant, and through his lawyer, Joseph O'Brien, reserved his plea until Friday morning, when the Crown will be able to go with another charge.

AFRICAN PAPER SAYS ELECTION HELPS EMPIRE

All Parts Have Been Strengthened Rather Than Separated, It Concludes.

SEALS STATUS.

No Challenge By League To Formulae of Recent Imperial Conference.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Sept. 19.— (Canadian Press Cable, Via Reuter's.) — It would certainly be quite erroneous to regard Canada's election to a seat on the Council of the League of Nations as indicating a separatist tendency, the Cape Times says. "On the contrary, we imagine that all parts of the Empire have been strengthened thereby in the counsels of the League.

"Had the Assembly been disposed to take umbrage at Sir Austen Chamberlain's recent frank statement on the position of the British Empire in the League it would certainly have had its opportunity at the Council election of showing its displeasure. It might have refused to vote for the British Dominion. In these circumstances Canada's election shows that Sir Austen Chamberlains plain speaking was taken in good part.

"Canada's election to one of the seats on the Council was most appropriate in the moment of its occurrence. Had there been any disposition to challenge the formulae of the Imperial Conference the opportune moment would have come with the candidature of Canada for a seat on the Council, but no word of challenge was uttered in any quarter. The League has set its seal upon the status of each and all of the Dominions as set forth in the terms of the Imperial conference resolutions.

40 MEN FOUND JOBS IN WEEK

Sixty-seven Names Still on the List at Local Office

SITUATION FAIR.

This week at the local branch of the Employment Bureau there were 42 applicants, 40 placements and there remain 67 on the list.

The summary of employment conditions for the province show all cities to have a supply of men sufficient to cover any orders received.

Farm and domestic help remain scarce but other branches seem to be well supplied. All the large cities report manufacturing conditions very fair.

In Peterborough the same conditions prevail except that slackness persists in the textile industry.

Manitoba and part of Saskatchewan report a scarcity of harvesters, which, it is said, is resultant upon their not being prepared for them when they arrived. The excursions, on arriving in Manitoba, could not find work, as the farmers had not begun harvesting, so the men continued west. The Manitoba farmers could then find no reapers when they were ready.

COUNCIL POSTPONES DECISION IN DISPUTE

Will Take Up Rumanian-Hungarian Troubles in December.

GENEVA, Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—The Council of the League of Nations, after being occupied all morning with discussion of the Rumanian-Hungarian controversy over the rights of the latter's nationals owning land in Transylvania, today voted to postpone further consideration of the disptes until its December session.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, chairman of the committee whose report on the question was under consideration, resigned from the chairmanship. The Council, however, refused to accept his resignation. Chamberlain's resignation followed upon Hungary's refusal to accept the findings of the committee.

DROWNS WHILE GOING TO TELL MOTHER OF DEATH OF SISTER

Resident of the North Country Loses Life in Paudash Lake.

BODY RECOVERED.

Deceased Had Been in Poor Health—Double Funeral To Be Held.

A tragic drowning occurred on Saturday in Paudash Lake, as a sequel to the death of Nellie Mooney of Bancroft, in this city, on Friday. The victim was her brother.

At the time of the first death the word was telephoned to Paudash Lake, to her brother, that he might relay the message across the lake to his parents.

Telephones are few and far between in that section, twenty five miles beyond Apsley, and communication is difficult at the best of times so the relatives in the city started back at the same time to go to the parents home by way of the road.

When the brother who was a bachelor of about 30 years of age, and lived by himself on the side of the lake, opposite to his parents, finally received the message, he started immediately in his canoe to tell his parents about it.

He had not arrived though when the others reached home with the message. After some time, becoming uneasy at his prolonged absence, particularly as he had been in poor health recently, some of the family went in search of him. After a short time their greatest fears were realized when they found his canoe floating bottom up.

An appeal was sent to Belleville for aid, and yesterday, after hours of dragging the body was recovered.

The remains of the daughter were sent back yesterday, and there will be a double funeral to-morrow at 2 p.m.

KIWANIANS ENTERTAIN LADIES WHO HELP CANADA EXHIBITON

Success of Last Year To Be Exceeded in Bigger 1927 Show.

CAMPAIGN STARTS.

Money Raised Last Year Has Done Good Work in Peterborough.

An informal supper was held at Hooper's on Saturday night, when the Kiwanis Club entertained the young ladies who will this year sell tickets for the Produced-In-Canada Exhibition. About twenty-four are entered in the contest.

Past-President John J. Craig, who is managing the Exhibition, occupied the chair, and told of the success attained last year and of his hopes for 1927. The work that has been done by Kiwanis Club in the past year, he said, warrants the support of the people in another effort to raise money, and he believed the young ladies would have no difficulty in selling the tickets which provide seven admissions to the Fair for one dollar.

There was a roll call of the young ladies, each telling her ideas about selling the tickets, and all expressed the belief that last year's record would be surpassed.

Objects of Kiwanis.

President Isaac P. McNabb explained the purpose of Kiwanis organization and told of the work that has been accomplished in Peterborough. As a result of the money contributed to the trust fund of the club through last year's Produced-In-Canada Exhibition, he said, it was possible this year for the club to maintain the summer camp at Jackson Park, at a cost of about $1,200. Throughout the winter many families were helped, and many children fed, through Kiwanis agency, and several maimed or ailing children were given hospital treatment that saved their lives or limbs. The President told of this in detail, he said, because he knew no ordinary appeal would enlist the services of such young ladies as were present on Saturday night. It is really a great work in which they are invited to assist.

Another point to which the President drew attention is the method of handling the money that is raised through the Produced-In-Canada Exhibition and other public efforts by Kiwanis Club. All of this money is placed in a trust fund, which cannot be used for anything except club activities such as the Jackson Park camp, relief of the needy, care for children, and so on. The members themselves pay dues and assessments into a "General Fund," and from this

MILLER SIGNS UP.

Ottawa Rugby-Hockey Star Will Play With N. Y. Americans.

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—Joe Miller, star half-back of Ottawa's Rugby team last year, has signed to play hockey with the New York Americans. Joe is looked upon as one of the great net guardians of the game.

Sunday Quiet Day For League Council

GENEVA, September 19 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's). —After a hectic week of League of Nations meetings, conferences and interviews, yesterday passed quietly here. The chilly, rainy weather did not favour any excursions which were planned as a relaxation by the representatives to the League Assembly, following their arduous labours of the week.

Senator Raoul Dandurand, Canadian delegate, and Paul Boncour of France, called on Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, yesterday morning. The latter has postponed his departure for England owing to the knotty Roumanian-Hungarian question which came before the Council on Saturday, and which was adjourned.

WOLF FARMER HAS LEFT CITY

Joseph Laflamme Causes Sensation Leading Animals To Station.

NOW OWNS EIGHT.

By the return of Joseph Laflamme to his home in Gogoma, Ontario, Peterborough has lost its "lone wolf" confined for several days last week in the barn of the Montgomery House.

When Mr. Laflamme arrived on Monday of last week en route to Apsley, he had with him two wolves, a timber wolf and a brush wolf. The former showed vicious tendencies and he decided to leave it in charge of the Montgomery House until his return. The barn attendant at the hotel found himself confronted with a delicate task and had to keep at a respectful distance from the brute when giving it food or water.

Mr. Laflamme, after visiting Apsley and Paudash Lake, returned with the other wolf and a large Belgian dog, which he had left in charge of some friends in the north district. The Belgian dog is said by local citizens who saw it to be almost human in its comprehension of the instructions of its owner, who speaks to it in a kind of "lingua franca"—English and French, with an additional admixture of Indian words. The object of this combination of languages is to prevent the misleading of the dogs by persons other than the owner.

Along with some American friends, Mr. Laflamme contemplates the establishment of a wolf ranch, somewhere in the north country, when a suitable location can be secured. He is at present the owner of no less than eight wolves in various places in the province.

On the journey to the C.N.R. Station, leading the animals, Mr. Laflamme attracted a great deal of attention from those citizens who saw the queer procession.

Some years ago, Mr. Laflamme created a great sensation by leading his teams of wolves and huskies through the streets of New York.

Some Facts About Diptheria

Diphtheria visits our town every year.

Out of every ten who develop the disease, one dies from it.

Who are the most likely to develop the disease? The young children from nine months to four years.

Can this be prevented? Yes, by having all the children nine months and upwards given three inoculations of Totoid.

Is there any danger? No.

Is there any disturbance? No.

Do you need the Shick test before giving the Totoid? No, not up to eight years.

Arrangements will be made to give all the children in the city the inoculations free of charge. Further notice about this will be given a little later.

Seeking Candy Wagon Child Killed By Car

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—With a five-cent piece tightly clenched in his little hand, seven-year-old Joseph LeBlanc skipped across the street Saturday night in quest of a popcorn wagon, but he had crossed the path of an automobile and before he could secure the confection, death overtook him.

Malcolmn Mackenzie, driver of the car, told police he was travelling slowly when the lad dashed in front of the auto and he had no chance to avoid the accident. He was arrested and later released on bail. The tragedy occurred near the LeBlanc home on Ross Avenue.

LAST YEAR'S TOTAL PASSED AT EXHIBITION

Big Crowd on Saturday Brings 1927 Total to 41,901.

CLOSING SCENES.

Visiting Artistes Laud the City and Members of the Fair Board.

After a week of the best weather, which has fallen to the lot of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition in many years, the curtain was rung down on the 1927 Fair on Saturday night with the attendance totalling 41,901, the largest in all its history of nearly half a century.

Early in the evening, with city and out-of-town visitors continuing to swarm into the grounds, it became evident that last year's figures of 40,112 were about to be broken. A big crowd in the grand stand watched the last performances of the artistes who provided an entertainment never equalled at any previous exhibition in this city. When the acts were over and the stand disgorged its army of occupants, the addition to the crowds around the stall and tents caused some slight congestion in various quarters as visitors strolled round for a last look at the Midway.

Good crowds followed the closing performances in the Midway shows and liberally patronized the mechanical devices. Towards midnight the crowds became much thinner, the tents were emptied of players and spectators, and by the time twelve o'clock sounded, some of the booths were already dismantled for shipment to the next point which, in many cases, is the Lindsay Fair.

The managers of the various shows are loud in their praises of the treatment accorded them by the directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. Courtesy and a willingness to co-operate characterized all their dealings, say the showmen. The manager of the Hawaiian entertainment, however, complains that there were too many free attractions on the grounds—which proved detrimental to the gate receipts of the itinerant shows. Free music discoursed by the local bands and from the stalls of the local music companies, he says, took up the attention of the people, with the result that his drawings were less than those of the other fairs which he attended. Inquiry, however disclosed the fact that most of the fairs in this circuit have been in larger centres of population than Peterborough—a circumstance which, in the opinion of some, discounts entirely his judgment. It is further pointed out that the features which come under the ban of the Hawaiian critic are common to every fair with any pretence of importance and are to a great extent the life and soul of the institution.

Those of the artistes who had an opportunity to see more of Peterborough than the distance from the station to the Exhibition Grounds expressed themselves in enthusiastic terms of the beauty and cleanness of the city, and made comparisons entirely to this city's advantage between it and other places visited.

The Australian wood choppers whose feats never failed to elicit round after round of applause, leave Peterborough with a splendid impression of the city and Fair after their first visit. Henry Jackson, the leader, said he had never seen such a fine Fair and grounds in any city of corresponding size in this continent.

Local and Provincial Police report that the Midway was the quietest seen in many years.

BOY LOSES EYE.

Vernon O'Connor Loses Sight of Optic Hurt at Fair.

Vernon O'Connor, aged nine, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. O'Connor, Cricket Place, who was struck by a piece of glass at the midway on Children's Day, has completely lost the sight of his left eye.

The boy when struck with the glass splinter which pierced his eye was rushed to the Kiwanis lost children's tent by his father. His father was unable to find a doctor on the grounds so he had him taken to the hospital and called Dr. Buchanan.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE'S PARTY LEADS OPPOSITION BY 4 SEATS IN IRISH FREE STATE ELECTION

Believed All Members of the Cabinet Will Be Elected.

RUNNING CLOSE.

Most Can Hope For Is Lead By Half a Dozen Seats.

DUBLIN, Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—The Government has increased its lead by four seats over the Opposition, returns up to three o'clock this afternoon show. The Government now has 67 seats in the Dail as against 63 for the Opposition. The standing was as follows:

Cosgrave party 53, Independents 10, Farmers 4, a total of 67 for the Government; Fianna Fail 49, Labor 11, National League 2, and Larkinites 1, giving 63 to the Opposition.

The Republicans have put up a good fight and are running the Government very close, and the most President Cosgrave's party can now hope for is to lead by half a dozen seats.

It is believed that all the members of the Cabinet will be re-elected, and as possibly a dozen Independents and eight or ten Farmers will support Mr. Cosgrave's re-election as chief executive, there is likely to be no change in the Ministry. But the Government majority will be slender and precarious, and since a new appeal to the electorate will be futile, business must be done by give and take methods. The main contention will be on the Public Safety Act, which Mr. Cosgrave says he will insist upon enforcing.

Kerlen Elected.

Among the successful De Valera candidates is Frank Kerlen, who was arrested in connection with the murder of Kevin O'Higgins, but was liberated in the absence of evidence. The defeat of Tom Johnson, who was leader of the Opposition since the Dail was established, removed Cosgrave's most skillful opponent and most likely successor. Eamon De Valera will probably be obliged to figure as leader of the Opposition.

F. Lynch, Minister of Fisheries, headed the poll in Kerry, with 7,108 votes. The Sligo count is incomplete, but it is known that John Jinks, Republican, who saved the Cosgrave Government by refusing to cast his vote in the Dail, has been eliminated.

County Clare remains under the De Valera spell, returning only one Government candidate as against three Republicans and one Laborite. The defeat of Mrs. Clarke in Dublin North robs the Republican party of its only woman member.

Falls Off 110-Ft. Stack And Sprains His Ankle

SYDNEY, New South Wales, September 19 (United Press). — The world's most marvellous escape from death is claimed by John French. He was working on a coal mine chimney stack at Lithgow, New South Wales, 110 feet from the ground, when the scaffolding rope broke. His fall was interrupted 60 feet below by the roof of a mine building, in the guttering of which his boot caught, and he was precariously suspended in the air for several minutes before being released. He escaped with a slightly sprained ankle.

25 TAKE OFF FOR SPOKANE

First of Three Transcontinental Air Races Begins at New York To-day.

ONE PLANE RETURNS.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 19. — Canadian Press. — Twenty-five light commercial airplanes took off on the first leg of the cross-country flights to Spokane, Wash., this morning. The start was made at 6.01 a.m., and by 6.32 a.m. the last starter had left. All the take-offs were made at one minute intervals and were accomplished with clock-like precision and smoothness.

Weather conditions which threatened a postponement shortly before the race, cleared off quickly at the last minute.

A total distance of 2350 miles lay ahead of the racers whose planes were designated officially as class B, of a type capable of carrying one passenger and a pilot.

The prizes to be awarded the winner are: First $5000; second $3000; third $1000; fourth $500; and fifth $250. The planes will stop overnight at Chicago, and at Glendive, Montant.

Five minute stops will be made at Bellefonte, Penn., Cleveland, and Brian, Ohio.

The race was the first of three scheduled to start to-day, to-morrow and Wednesday, as part of the National air meet at Spokane.

R. W. Cantwell, Oklahoma, returned to Curtis Field, a little more than a mile from the starting point, a few minutes after the take off, because of "low ceiling." He carried a passenger.

Twenty nine planes are entered in Class A race to-morrow. Class A planes carry a pilot and two passengers. The awards for this class total $18,000, divided as follows: First $10,000; second $5000; third $2000; fourth $1000.

One over-night stop at St. Paul, Minn., will be made, and provision has been mad for five five-minute stops.

Class C, a non-stop race will begin on Wednesday, if three more planes in addition to the two already entered, join the contest.

C. A. 'Duke' Schiller, who will pilot the Royal Windsor, and Eddie Stinson, Detroit, are the only non-stop entrants who have arrived with their planes.

Class C (non-stop) awards are: First, $10,000; second $5,000.

The Derby is under the auspices of the National Air Derby Association of Spoke in connection with the national air races which begin there on Wednesday.

Miss Elder Delayed

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—Miss Ruth Elder's projected flight to Paris, with Captain George Haldeman as co-pilot of the monoplane "American Girl," will not start until after Wednesday, it was pointed out today, as both Curtiss and Roosevelt Fields are crowded at present with planes entered in the New York Spokane air derby, the last of which will not leave until Wednesday afternoon.

Attired in tan knickers and white mannish shirt, Miss Elder attracted general admiration at the flying field. Her hair, which she is allowing to grow long, was tied back from her head with a multi-colored ribbon. The style has become known as the "Ruth Ribbon," and scores of young women were seen wearing them.

Will Run Class "C"

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—Officials of the New York-Spokane air derby stated today that the non-stop race will be held on Wednesday even if the Royal Windsor, piloted by "Duke" Schiller, and the Stinson monoplane piloted by Eddie Stinston, Detroit, are the only two of the seven entrants to face the barrier.

Jensen Still Missing

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—The monoplane of Martin Jensen, of Dole flight fame, transporting the motion picture Lion Leo on a non-stop flight from San Diego to New York still was unaccounted for today by its sponsors,

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Motion Picture Company, two days and a half after it left the coast city.

Twenty on Second Leg

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N.Y., Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—Twenty of the twenty-five aeroplanes that started today in the Class B flight to Spokane in the national air derby have completed the first leg of their 2,350 mile aerial jaunt and are winging their way westward. Three planes came down at Hometown, Penn., one returned to the starting point shortly after leaving, and a fifth landed in New Jersey because of compass trouble, but started again after losing two hours. The first leg of the flight was from Roosevelt Field to Bellefonte, Penn. The next stop will be at Cleveland, Ohio, and the third Brian, Ohio. Then the planes will head for Chicago, where they will spend the night.

PREMIER RETIRING.

W. S. Monroe of Newfoundland, Announces He Will Lead No Party.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Prime Minister W. S. Monroe stated to-day that he had advised his colleagues he would not lead any party in the next general election and that they could arrange accordingly if it was desired to hold an election this autumn or if they desired to form a coalition government.

SEVEN KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Fokker Ship Crashes Into Apple Orchard Near Newmarket, N.J.

FIVE INJURED.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., September 19 Canadian Press. — Seven persons were killed on Saturday and five injured, when a Fokker airplane which had flown over all the airways of Europe and had made one famous trip from Holland to West Africa, crashed in an apple orchard near Newmarket. The machine was owned by the Reynolds Airways and was brought to this country from Holland about two months ago. It set out from Hadley Field with its load of passengers seeking their first thrill in the air.

The dead are:

Frank Heater, New Brunswick.

Harry Chandler, New Brunswick, pilot.

J. V. "Charley" King, Plainfield, mechanic.

Russell Campbell, Plainfield

Miss O'Neil, Plainfield.

Mrs. Fred Donovan, Plainfield.

Russell Campbell aged 7.

The injured who were brought to Muhlenberg Hospital, in this city, are Matthew Lutz, New Brunswick.

Louis Pellis, New Brunswick.

Lorraine Donovan, Plainfield.

Verna Donovan, her sister.

DOURO GIRLS TAKE HONORS

Win Good Showing In Domestic Science Class at Exhibition.

EVELYN McMURRAY FIRST.

The girls from Douro township won a splendid standing at the Girls' Domestic Science Class at the Peterborough Exhibition.

Miss Evelyn McMurray won first with a total of 385; Miss Anna B. McMurray second with a total of 373, and Miss Marjory Frankish third with a total of 366. All three young ladies are from Douro.

KIWANIANS ENTERTAIN

are taken all running expenses of the club. The members pay for their luncheons and when a club dance is held the price is sufficient to pay all expenses. There is not a salaried officer or committeeman in the club, president, secretary, treasurer and all others giving their services absolutely free.

In view of the work that is being done by Kiwanis Club, Mr. McNabb said, it would be only reasonable to expect big-hearted citizens to purchase tickets even if they had no idea of visiting the Exhibition. Purchases such as that would be splendid contributions to a worthy cause.

W. H. Dickin.

W. H. Dickin, a member of the Board of Directors of Kiwanis Club, and now charged with management of the sale of tickets, explained the system of counting sales towards prizes. The tickets are in strips that provide seven admissions for one dollar. The price at the gate will be twenty-five cents, so that by purchasing the tickets now a large saving can be made. Every strip of tickets is numbered, and nightly draws will be made for valuable prizes.

The prizes offered are one hundred dollars, seventy-five dollars, fifty dollars and twenty-five dollars. Those who do not reach the prize-winning class will still have a percentage of the sales. In addition, there will be prizes for the young lady selling most tickets in a given day.

Mr. Dickin pointed out that many people contribute twenty-five dolars to a fresh-air fund or some other charity, and remarked that such contributions to the great work of Kiwanis, in the form of purchase of tickets, would be well worth while. He also suggested the advisability of the enlistment by the young ladies of support in their churches, clubs and places of business.

After announcing that the first strip of tickets, number one, had been requested by His Worship Mayor Holloway, Mr. Dickin conducted a draw to choose the young lady who would have the honor of selling the Mayor his ticket, and Miss M. Harris, 630 George Street, drew the lucky number from the hat.

The Entrants.

Up to Saturday night, the following had entered the contest: Miss Lillian Slaughter, Canadian Woollens; Miss Mary Dunlop, 265 Hunter Street; Miss Maretta Sanderson, 569 George Street; Miss Clothilda Collins, 506 Murray Street; Miss Gwynne Donley, Examiner Office; Miss Jean Padget, 576 Bolivar Street; Miss M. Harris, 630 George Street; Miss Alice Johnston, of Lowe and Outram; Miss M. Campbell, of the H. J. Boyle wholesale store; Mrs. Hy. Wood, 273 McGill Street; Miss Arleigh McKone, 377 Downe Street; Miss Hazel Jackson, 295 Margaret Avenue; Miss M. McFarland, Canadian Departmental Stores; Miss H. Bell, Y.M.C.A.; Miss Ivy James, 48 Lafayette Street; Miss Pearl E. Eakins, Dominion Life Assurance Co.; Mrs. A. Hope, 576 Sherbrooke Street; Miss Kathleen Cooney, 571 Weller Street; Miss Adele Robinson, 340 Charlotte Street; Miss Helen Tremaine, 360 Smith Street; Miss G. Kelly, The Hall Store; Mrs. Mason, Deyell Apartments, Park Street; and Miss Winnie Bethune, of The Examiner.

MAYOR W. T. HOLLOWAY who to-day bought ticket Number 1 for the Kiwanis Club Produced-in-Canada Exhibition from Miss M. Harris.

WOLVES SURROUND APSLEY RESIDENT

William McColl Escapes By Charging Along Road, Swinging Sack.

APSLEY, Sept. 19.—William McColl had a thrilling experience on Tuesday evening when he was almost surrounded by a pack of wolves only four miles from the village. About sundown he was returning on horseback from the marsh, where he had been cutting marsh hay, and near the big swamp at Lousley's he noticed his horse showing signs of uneasiness. Presently he heard the howl of a wolf on a ridge on the other side, which was answered from several directions, and a few minutes afterwards glancing behind he saw three wolves following him along the trail. Directly afterwards only thirty feet ahead were two more on the narrow path. McColl had on his back a white bag containing two sealers and a can. Grasping this he charged forward, swinging it over his head. The clatter of the can and sealers together with the yell he emitted scattered the wolves and they took to the bush on either side and McColl reached home in safety. He declares that there must have been at least fifteen in the pack.

OBITUARY.

CHARLES ALBERT FROATS.

MARMORA, September 19. — Charles Albert FCroats, a highly respected resident of Marmora, entered into rest on Thursday at the General Hospital, Niagara Falls, Ont., following an operation.

Deceased was sixty-nine years of age . For many years he followed mining, but of later years was an agriculturist on a small scale. His industrious spirit was displayed in the improvements made to the property adjoining his home. Besides his widow, four sons mourn his loss, all of them resident in Niagara Falls, Ont. SAYS GERMANY ENTERED WAR IN SELF DEFENSE

President Von Hindenburg Unveils Monument Commemoration of Battle of Tenneberg.

REPUDIATES GUILT.

Sword Was Unsheathed in Conflict With Pure Conscience.

TANNENBERG, East Prussia, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press.)— Unveiling a monument in commemoration of the famous battle of Tannenberg in August, 1914, President Von Hindenburg who was victorious in that battle, delivered a speech yesterday morning repudiating Germany's war guilt.

It was in self defense and with a pure conscience, he declared, that the sword was unsheathed by Germany. At any moment he was ready to prove this fact before impartial judges.

The speech was the most significant formal utterance the field marshal has made since his accession to the presidency. His words were spoken amid a spectacular setting, surrounded by war comrades, including General Ludendorff and Field Marshal Von Mackensen, government leaders and deputations of war veterans, against a background of old army flags and regimental colors.

His soldierly frame silhouetted against such colorful background, Von Hindenburg, in deep measured voice dedicated the memorial, saying:

The Tannenberg memorial is devoted primarily to the memory of those who fell fighting for the freedom of their country. But their memory and the honor of my still living comrades enjoin me here and now to declare solemnly: The accusation that Germany was responsible for this greatest of all wars we hereby repudiate All classes of German people unanimously repudiate it. It was not because of our envy or hate or desire for conquest that we drew swords On the contrary, the war with all the terrible sacrifices it demanded from the whole country was an extreme measure resorted to for the preservation of our existence against a host of enemies.

Defend Fatherland.

"With clean hearts we marched out to defend the fatherland; with clean hands the German army wielded the sword. Germany is ready at any moment to prove this fact before impartial judges.

In numerous graves, the symbols of German heroism, rest warriors of every party without distinction. They died united in love and loyalty to the common Fatherland. At the foot of this memorial may all inner strife sink into oblivion. Let this be a spot where every German may grasp the hand of every fellow countryman whose heart is filled wtih love of Fatherland and whose mind cherishes above everything else the thoughts of German honor.

"Inspired by this wish, I hereby declare the portals of the Tannenberg national memorial open."

Frantic applause interrupted the president when he demanded the judgment of an impartial tribunal on the question of Germany's war guilt, and lusty cheers greeted him when he concluded his dedicatory utterance.

Dramatic Re-union.

President Von Hindenburg arrived by automobile punctually at 11:30 o'clock. Field Marshal Mackensen and General Ludendorff advanced to greet him. It was a dramatic re-union, as Von Hindenburg had not met Ludendorff at any function since he became president. As the party moved toward the rostrum there were no cheers from the vast multitude, which, visibly impressed by the solemnity of the occasion, kept a respectful silence. There were many veteran generals who fought in the Tannenberg battle, wearing old time imperial peace uniforms and heading what remained of their companies which participated in the battle.

As the party approached the rostrum, regimental flags were lowered in salute. With the presidential party were detachments of the Reichswehr and steel helmet organizations and many official deputations from provincial governments and cities.

Major General Kahns, chairman of the Tannenberg memorial committee, expresed the hope that the spirit of Tannenberg would again manifest itself in the German nation. He asked all present to pledge themselves to this spirit and to President Von Hindenburg.

GERMAN AVIATOR POSTPONES FLIGHT

Otto Koennecke Awaits Favorbale Weather For Hop Eastward.

COLOGNE, Germany, Sept. 19. — (Canadian Press).—Because he believed weather conditions unfavorable for a heavily loaded plane, Otto Koennecke yesterday postponed his hop-off for his proposed distance flight eastward. The plane, Germania, was stocked with fuel and provisions for the venture and a large crowd assembled at the aerodrome. After consulting with his backers, Koennecke announced that the start would be postponed, and that he would take off to-day if the weather be favorable.

NAVAL FLIERS LOSE LIVES IN FORCED LANDING

Forced Inland Over the Mojave Desert By Fogs at Sea.

FOLLOWED COAST.

Despatched To Spokane With Parts For Air Race Entrants.

PALMDALE, Calif., September 19 (Canadian Press). — Three naval aviators, apparently lost in the Mojave Desert when forced inland by fogs at sea, crashed to their deaths 22 miles east of here.

The Dead.

Lieut. Katon Booth, pilot, attached to staff of Rear-Admiral Reeves at San Diego.

Machinist Mate C. S. Harrison, of San Diego Naval Air Station.

Machinist Mate Kenneth McRae, San Diego Naval Air Station.

According to Navy officials, the plane, a Curtiss 2-T-4 torpedo type, had been despatched on Saturday to Spokane with spare parts for the trans-continental air race entrants.

It was said that the fliers had been ordered to proceed along the coast route, but probably had been forced inland by the low haze encountered seaward. Palmdale is 80 miles from Los Angeles.

Although all three of the men were equipped with parachutes, it appeared from examination of the wreckage that only one of the fliers attempted to save his life by leaping from the ship when it went into a nose dive.

Failed to Open.

This man, one of the machinists, succeeded in clearing the falling ship, but was killed when his parachute failed to open because of the low altitude.

According to reports from the desert, the plane had been working perfectly when sighted before noon, but it appeared that the men were hopelessly lost when driven in from the sea.

Before the crash it was revealed by examination that Lieut. Booth and the machinists had written notes back and forth indicating their plight.

"Where are we?" asked one note.

"What direction are we going?" was another.

HARVEST NEARLY OVER.

Cavan Farmers Are Sowing Large Acreage of Fall Wheat.

CAVAN, September 19. — Harvest is pretty well finished except for a few fields of buckwheat.

There is a large acreage of fall wheat being sown. Some farmers have finished their seeding, while others are preparing the ground.

In some districts where potatoes are being raised, a great many rotten ones are being found.

CAVAN TAX RATE SET AT 24.9 MILLS

Regular Meeting Held and Routine Business Transacted.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 19.—Cavan Council met in regular session on Wednesday afternoon, members all present and Reeve S. Fallis presiding.

No communications having to be read by the clerk, Mr. Rowland addressed council asking permission to run mesh wire fence across the unopened road allowance on each side of the mill-pond between concessions 5 and 6; this privilege was granted, and the following resolution passed:

Hootan-McKnight: That Charles Herbert Rowland, his heirs, executors, administrator, or assigns, be permitted to erect and maintain a mesh wire fence along both sides of the mill-pond, crossing the road allowance at high-water mark between concessions 5 and 6 of the township of Cavan, lying between lot number 19 of the Fifth concession, and lot number 19 in the Sixth concession, and also a similar fence along the east side of the diverted travelled road now used in lieu of the quarter line between lots number 18 and 19 in the said fifth concession of Cavan, for a period of time until the council would require the said road allowance for road purposes. Such fence to be so erected and maintained at the charge and expense of the said Charles Herbert Rowland, his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns, Finney-McKnight: That the usual grant of $25.00 be given the school fairs.

Hootan-Finney: That J. N. McGill be appointed inspector of weeds for the Township of Cavan. Carried.

Deputy-Reeve Hooton introduced a by-law to levy certain school and other rates, and also to impose a percentage on all unpaid taxes at a certain time.

The following rates were struck: County 11 ¼ mills; Township 8 mills; rate 5 mills; general Long Swamp 4-10 mills.

Hootan-Hunter: That the Reeve sign the following orders: Telephone Co., account, $4.22; H. A. Fallis, paysheet, No. 6W, $146.00; R. Hicks, account for coal, $11.34; F. Lewers, work, No. 7, $2.25; J. Hutchison, paysheet No. 6, $20.00; E. Martol, work, No. 10E, $16.00; J. N. McGill, expenses re Provincial Audit road account, $5.00; E. Carveth, work, No. 7E, $4.50; A. Coulter, paysheet, No. 4W, $28.25; Metallic Roofing Co., account, $38.71; Grant, school fairs, $25.00; A. E. Wilson and Co., premium, road insurance, $122.25; J. W. Hall, tile, account, $156.52; L. H. Winslow, grant wire fence No. 11, $40.95; J. V. Sisson, balance salary collector, $25; postage, $1.50, $26.50; L. H. Gibson, paysheet, various, $341.75; S. E. Eakins, account, $173.50; Council pay, $20.00; committee work, Reeve, $6.00; Deputy-Reeve, $4.00; Councillor Finney $2.00; McKnight, $2.00—$34.00.

PLANES READY FOR AIR DERBY

Prizes Totalling $43,000 Will Be Awarded Winners of Three Races.

42 PLANES ENTERED.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N.Y., Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—The largest assembly of aeroplanes in two years was concentrated here yesterday in preparation for the start early today of the first of three cross-country races to Felt's Field at Spokane, Wash., in connection with national air races there.

Prizes totalling $43,000 will be awarded the winners of the three races, in which pilots from all sections of the country are ready to compete. Light and heavy commercial planes are to be flown.

The arrival of three more contestants overnight brought the total number of derby planes up to 42. Aviation officials said this was the largest number of planes grouped here since national air races at Mitchel Field, New York, in 1925.

The latest arrivals were S. Darius, of Chicago; M. H. McMechan, of Takima, Wash., both of whom are entered in Class B for planes capable of carrying a passenger as well as the pilot, and L. T. Royal, of Flint, Mich., Class B for planes capable of carrying two passengers and pilot.

Explains Regulations

Major Davidson explained the derby regulations and starting arrangements to the pilots at a conference yesterday morning. The class B race is scheduled to start at 5.30 a.m. (E.S.T.) to-day. The planes will take off at one minute intervals. Their route to Spokane stretches a distance of approximately 2,350 miles. The class B planes which are expected to arrive at Spokane on Wednesday, are to make overnight stops at Chicago and at Glendive, Mont. They also are to make compulsory five-minute stops at Bellefonte, Pa., Cleveland, Ohio; Bryan, Ohio; St. Paul, Minn.; Fargo, N.D.; Bismark, N.D.; Billings, Mont., and Missoula, Mont.

The prizes in this race are: First, $5,000; second, $3,000; third, $1,000; fourth, $500, and fifth $250.

The planes competing in the heavier class A are to start their race westward at Tuesday at 5.30 a.m. (E.S.T.). Their route, varying slightly from that of class B, lies over a distance of approximately 2,275 miles. Five prizes, totalling $18,250, will be awarded the winners. One overnight stop will be made at St. Paul, officials said.

The third trans-Continental race, a non-stop flight, is scheduled to start from here on Wednesday. The contestants are permitted to follow any route, officials said.

A first prize of $10,000 and a second of $5,000 are offered in this race.

Yesterday, Eddie Stinson, Detroit aeroplane designer and builder, was the only non-stop entrant who had arrived. Stinson will fly one of his own planes.

HARVEST OVER AT DOWNEYVILLE

Farmers Report Good Yield — Buckwheat and Peas Are Poor.

DOWNEYVILLE, Sept. 19. — The harvest has been all finished and it is time to cut the buckwheat which is not very good as the weather was too hot for it to fill properly. Other grain crops are fairly good with the exception of peas, which is a very poor crop. A number of patches of potatoes are withered and have taken a blight in the form of a rot.

Reduced from $250.

Sani-Bilt MOTHPROOF Chesterfield Suite at a $51.00 Saving This Week Only

ONE of the finest values ever turned out of the Sani-Bilt factory is being specially featured for this week only by dealers clear across the Dominion.

The suite featured is of the highest quality—excellent value at its regular price of $250 (at which price it will again be sold after this "Week"). Deferred payments, if desired, at a moderate extra charge. It is obtainable in a choice of specially imported upholsterings—rich, plain taupe or walnut English mohair, or diamond cut mohair with reversible cushions in French silk or block printed mohair. Its distinguished lines add grace to any room, for they incorporate the latest scallop-shaped front. The woodwork—legs, arm panels, etc.—is all genuine solid walnut, worked with tasteful hand-carving. Quality "below the surface" is of the usual high Sani-Bilt standard.

Why Risk Moths! Get the Sani-Bilt Replacement Contract

The guarantee (reproduced on the left) contains a promise of greatest importance to the purchaser. It states that the suite is 100% MOTHPROOF, or will be replaced without question. This guarantee accompanies the particular suite now featured, as it accompanies every other Sani-Bilt Suite. It means that the suite has been protected against moths by the exclusive Sani-Bilt process which no other Canadian manufacturer uses. Hence only Sani-Bilt gives you such a sweeping REPLACEMENT Guarantee.

Make it a point to inspect the special suite at your dealer's (listed below) today or tomorrow. Your eyes will convince you of the beauties of the suite and of its special value, for it is a genuine Sani-Bilt in every detail of construction. Remember, next week will be too late to secure the special price!

Teeth Made White =Glorious, Gleaming

Please accept 10-day tube to try

Remove the dingy film, to which scores of Tooth and Gum troubles now are traced.

* * *

Modern dental science now has found a way that restores "off-color" teeth to clearness, that gives toneless gums a healthy coral tint.

Famous movie stars use this way before going on a scene. That's why movie smiles glisten so. Leading dentists urge it widely. For it protects the teeth and firms tender gums.

It is called Pepsodent—a new-type tooth paste that works by removing the dingy film coat from teeth that old-time dentifrices did not clear off successfully. That's why brushing fails you.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you'll feel that film. A slippery coating that absorbs discolorations and keeps your teeth off color, that breeds bacteria by the millions and invites tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea.

Remove it and you will be amazed at what you see. Discard old ways now. Get Pepsodent at any drug store. Or send coupon for 10-day tube to try.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1927.

THE COMING OF EDWARD JOHNSON.

In providing an opportunity for Peterborough music-lovers to hear a programme by Edward Johnson, the Canadian singer, who is now hailed as the greatest tenor in the world, the Kiwanis Club deserves sincere thanks.

An opportunity to hear a singer of Mr. Johnson's calibre comes all too seldom, and it is confidently expected that the great tenor will be greeted by an audience that will tax the accommodation of the Grand Opera House.

Mr. Johnson's career as a singer has been a series of triumphs until he has been named by that wonderful Irish vocalist, John McCormick, as the "greatest living tenor"—a remarkable tribute from one great singer to another.

The Kiwanis Club believes that his visit to Peterborough will contribute to the musical education of the community; and because it is actuated by a desire to thus prove of service rather than by any mercenary spirit, it has made it possible for Mr. Johnson to be heard here.

The opportunity is too great to be missed and there will undoubtedly be a keen demand for tickets for this most unusual musical event.

A NEW RECORD.

The attendance at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition climbed to a new record this year. The final check up on Saturday night showing a total of 41,901 for the week, a figure that while falling short of this year's objective, was higher than that of any previous exhibition.

This year, as last, the bulk of the attendance was registered during the last two days of the Exhibition, the closing day this year showing much the highest total of the week.

That condition suggests the idea that future programmes must be planned to stimulate the attendance during the earlier part of the week, if a new record is to be reached again next year.

Each day must have its distinctive feature, something sufficiently strong as a box office attraction to get people away from the old impression that the last couple of days are the best.

If that can be done the 50,000 mark would not be too ambitious a target for next year's Exhibition.

The fact that more people attended the 1927 Exhibition than in any previous year in the history of the event must be gratifying to the directors in the evidence it gives of the sound reputation the Peterborough Industrial has gained for itself.

THE GRANDSTAND PERFORMANCE.

When tributes on the success of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are being paid the name of Weber F. Turner, director in charge of the amusement features, should not be forgotten.

It is generally agreed that the grandstand attractions this year were the finest that have ever been offered at the local Exhibition, and for this splendid programme Mr. Turner must be given the credit for his discrimination in booking such outstanding acts and for the manner in which he directed the whole performance.

Vaudeville such as was provided for this year's Exhibition costs money—much more money than the average visitor imagined, for most of the artistes who appeared here rank high in their profession.
